I came to Louisville yesterday, from Mobile, Ala., and will wait here until the Sam Brown gets here, which will be this week sometime, when I will get on her again.

I left Pittsburgh, Nov. 4, 1897, with two other young men, and went to Tampa, Florida, and was taken from there on the Dauntless, which landed us in Cuba, about fifteen miles east of Havana. We stayed there until after the Maine was destroyed, when we came straight to Havana and took passage on the Olivette for Key West, and there to Mobile.

It is impossible for any one to form the least idea of the suffering and misery among the people in Cuba today. It is not the soldiers, but the innocent women, children and old men, who have been driven to the cities, that suffer. The women are subject to the most infamous abuse by the Spanish soldiers who, by the way have not one gentleman in their entire army. In Cuba, the Spaniards are the most wretched cowards on earth. I can lick a whole army of them alone. The people here in the United States talk about Spanish rule in Cuba. Why they have no more control in the island than I have, except in half a dozen sea port towns. I was in the command of Gen. Gomez, and there was not a day that we were over twenty miles of Havana and were close enough, lots of the time, to hear the calls of the Spanish sentinels on duty about the city. There is no real fighting there. The dons haven't the sand to tackle the rebs, in a pitched battle. There is about 120,000 Spanish soldiers in Cuba, to about 40,000 Cubans, and I will tell you that the Spaniards have not won a single battle, in the last six months. Let the United States attack Havana from the sea, and Cuba will be a free nation in less than a month's time. Everybody in Havana knows that the Maine was blown up by a mine, and that it was done by an officer in the Spanish army, and that it was planned before the Maine was in the harbor twenty-four hours. I came back to get a chance to enlist in the United States army, and if they don't go to war, I will go back to Cuba after the rainy season is over.—Litchfield Independent.

Waseca Herald: In his issue of March 30, Mr. Donnelly was still denouncing Mr. Owen, Prof. Dobbyn and Maj. Bowler, three of the purest and ablest men of the People's party. Can it be that the people will destroy these men to gratify Donnelly's personal jealousy and hate. We do not say that Donnelly is in the employ of Jim Hill, but we do say that if he were in the employ of that railroad magnate he could not do more than he is doing to destroy the movement of the anti-monopoly forces. The people, if they would succeed, must ignore Mr. Donnelly—put him in a political straight jacket for a while.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

"We'll begin with a box, and the plural is boxes;
But the plural of ox should be oxen; not oxes.
Then one fowl is a goose, but two are called geese;
Yet the plural of moose would never be meese.
You may find a lone mouse, or a whole nest of mice,
But the plural of house is houses, not hice.
If the plural of man is always called men,
Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?
Then cow in the plural may be cows or kine;
But a bow if repeated, is never called bine,
And the plural of vow is vows, not vine.

If I speak of a foot, and you show me your feet,
And I give you a boot, would a pair be called beet?
If one is a tooth, and the whole set are teeth,
Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?
If the singular's this and the plural is these,
Should the plural of kiss ever be nicknamed kese?
Then one would be that, and three would be those;
Yet hat in the plural would never be hose;
And the plural of cat is cats and not cose.

We speak of a brother and also of brethren,
But, though we say mother, we never say methren,
Then the masculine pronouns are he, his, and him;
But imagine the feminine she, shis and shim!
So the English, I think, you all will agree
Is the queerest language you ever did see."
—Buffalo Journal.

BOB DUNN is being groomed as a kind of dark horse for the race for republican candidate for Governor. He may be able to beat the machine trio.

DISCUSSIONS are already going on as to the best method of raising revenue enough to run the war with. It has been proposed to put a duty on every pound of coffee and tea brought into the country, also to tax beer $1 per barrel, to put stamps on notes and other valuable papers. Some favor an income tax: but the Supreme Court a few years ago gave a decision against the legality of that means. It seems strange that the law will allow the government to draft a poor widow's sons into the army, and leave her to battle with the cold world alone, while her rich neighbor may have an income of $1000 or more a day and the government don't draft a dollar and don,t even oblige him to pay an income tax on it.

Diamond Tariff.

The American Economist claims that under the Wilson bill diamonds, uncut, which had been free were taxed 10 per cent, and the cut diamonds were raised to 25 per cent in hopes of raising the revenue from diamonds; but that the effect was to lower it. The Economist claims that many precious stones were smuggled into the country but that the revenue was materially lessened. When the present tariff went into effect, it claims, uncut diamonds were again put on the free list while cut were placed at ten per cent. "This change has operated both for morality and for revenue. Diamond smuggling has practically ceased, and the Federal revenue from precious stones importations has nearly doubled." Why not try the same scheme on woollens and other useful articles?

Joint Resolution for Cuban Independence.

After nearly an all night session Congress agreed to the following resolution at an early hour Tuesday morning:

Resolved, First—That the people of the island of Cuba are and of right ought to be free and independent.

Second—That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the goverment of the United States does hereby demand, that the goverment of Spain at once relinquish its authority and goverment in the island of Cuba, and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters.

Third—That the president of the United States be and he is hereby directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into actual services of the United States the militia of the several states, to such an extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect.

Fourth—That the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island, except for the pacification thereof, and asserts its determination when that is accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

The War Outlook.

War between Spain and the United States now seems inevitable. Congress has passed a resolution declaring the phople of Cuba "are and ought to be free", and directing the President to assume control of land and naval forces and proceed to see that the Spanish leave Cuba at once. The President has signed the bill, making it law in this country, and giving him authority to see that it is respected in Cuba. Mr. McKinley has also sent an ultimatum to the Spanish government, giving them till midnight, Saturday night, to reply, as to whether or not they will vacate the island. Failing a reply in the affirmative, things are in readiness to enforce the demands Ships are laying at anchor all around the south eastern coast of the United States. Soldiers are now congregated within easy reach of the vessels that will be on hand to carry them to Cuba. Fortifications have been strengthened at important points, from Boston to Key West. The President is expected to issue a call for 80,000 volunteers. The State Militia have already, in many states, offered their services. At present only those more or less skilled in military tactics have made much of a move toward going to the front. But as soon as hostilities actually begin; as soon as there is an opportunity for volunteers to enlist more will be enrolling themselves for the war. People in various walks of lite will be going to get revenge on Spaniards for what they deem their wrong and barbarous actions concerning the belongings of U. S. or to aid in freeing Cuba from tyranical masters, or for the excitement, or for the few dollars they may receive for fighting. Some will go from purely patriotic motives,

The war will, probably, if it actually comes to war, last much longer than many think. The Spaniards who have for years been having trouble among themselves as to whether they would remain under the present government, or listen to the claims of Don Carlos, who wishes to be placed on the throne he calls his own, or whether a republican form of government should be established, will if they begin to fight, probably grow more and more united in their efforts to retain their national organization. And, unless their money gives out, as it is hinted that moneyed institutations are threatening to help them no longer if Cuba is not freed, they will be receiving help from individuals from all over the world and there is no telling how long the war may last.

With the present terrible means of destruction a naval battle must, of necessity be a dreadful calamity to one or the other, possibly to both parties engaged. Yellow fever and other diseases common to hot climates will of course decimate the ranks of people from more northern climes. Taking it all in all war is a dreadful thing. But, with what has been going on between the two nations concerning Cuba and other things, and with the present situation confronting both nations it looks as if a resort to arms, will have to determine who will have things their way. Let us hope the conflict will be short and decisive.; that the least possible suffering may be entailed while the greatest good to the greatest number will be the outcome, and that peace will soon again reign supreme throughout the world.

John Lind on War.

John Lind of New Ulm spent yesterday in Minneapols. He was attending the supreme court session Saturday, and has cases on to-day, so did not return to his home.

To a Times man last evening Mr. Lind said he knew nothing new about politics. He has been at New Ulm for several weeks and has not been in contact with politicians. He is very much interested in the present crisis, of course, and anticipates a warm time in the house today.

"It will all depend on Reed" said the ex congressman. "If he wants the senate resolutions to go through, and perhaps a vote on them, they will carry. But if he does not want them to pass, he can by recognizing whom he wants and by fixing it so that votes will all be on questions of procedure, tangle things up and prevent concurrence.

"President McKinley is in a very tight place. On one hand he has a large and aggressive element of the party demanding Cuban independence, and on the other the 'peace at any price' crowd, representing the men who have furnished the sinews of war, and whose opinions he is bound to respect. His policy and his noncommittal messages show how very tight the lines are drawn around him. The great mistake of this administration was in not recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cubans a year ago.—Minneapolis Times.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15, 1898.

Major General Fitzhugh Lee, Commanding U. S. Army of occupation, in Cuba. How does that sound? If Mr. McKinley carries out his promise to act promptly upon the joint resolution of Congress demanding that Spain get out of Cuba, and authorizing the president to employ the entire land and naval forces of the U. S., and as much of the militia of the several states as may be needed to enforce the demand, and political jealousy does not prevent, it is likely that Fitz Lee's official title will read something like that before he is many days older. He has told Mr. McKinley that he wishes to go back to Cuba, not as Consul General, but as a part of the army sent there to drive the Spaniards out, and his knowledge of the island and its people would make him an ideal commander of the army of occupation which it will be necessary for the U. S. to send; but jealousy has already been aroused in some quarters by the unprecedentedly enthusiastic welcome given Gen. Lee, and it may grow sufficiently powerful to prevent his getting a military assignment that he could accept. He is positive that that the Maine was blown up by Spanish officials and he has not hesitated to say so. His time has been taken up almost entirely since he arrived in Washington in giving information either to Congress or some other branch of the government, and his popularity is growing all the time, but his head isn't swelled.

Most of the democrats and populists in Congress sought to incorporate a recognition of the independence of the republic of Cuba in that forcible intervention joint resolution, but the most they could do was to put themselves on record by supporting a resolution providing therefor reported by the minority of the Foreign Committe, which was beaten by a vote of 191 to 150. The majority adopted Mr. McKinley's view; consequently the resolution that was adopted with only 19 opposing votes in the House declares the people of Cuba to be free and independent, and ignores the government of the republic of Cuba, which has conducted for three years a successful war against Spain. However, as the resolution is as certain to bring war with Spain as would an actual declaration of war, all parties in Congress will now join in helping to fight the war to a speedy and successful conclusion, and in getting revenge upon Spain for her treacherous destruction of the Maine; when Spain is thoroughly licked will be time enough to discuss other phases of the matter.

Hon. W. J. Bryan paid a flying visit to Washington this week, in order to fill the role of guest of honor at the big Jefferson birthday banquet, given uder the auspices of the National Association of Democratic clubs. He responded to the toast, "Thomas Jefferson", and his speech was good sound Jefferson democracy from start to finish, including his reference to and approval of the course that has been followed by the democrats and populists in Congress on the cuban question. He has gone to New England, where he will make several speeches.

Representative Lacey, of Iowa, got a little more than he went after when he taunted Representative Hartman of Montana, with having about three years ago said derisively of populists, that one of them wanted to cross centipedes with Berkshire hogs in order that each hog should have a hundred hums; another to cross the honey bee on the lightning bug, so that they could work at night, and still another was trying to cross the milkweed with the strawberry, so as to have strawberries and cream on the same plant. Mr. Hartman said that the words were used by him in describing Gen. J. S. Coxey, whose wild ideas were afterwards turned down by the populist National Convention, and of whom he added: "By reading the record of the republican convention of 96, he discovered that that party was endeavoring to make bimetallic poseys and gold standard flowers bloom on the same plant, and he might very easily conclude that strawberries could be budded on the milkweed, and thereby raise strawberries and cream on the same plant. But it was also found that a great deal of the work of the republicans was done in the night time, and he naturally concluded that they would need the services of the lightning bug; and he finds out also that the republican party would want, in order to make good their promises and increase the amount of food, to breed the centipede with the Berkshire hog in order to raise a hundred hams to each animal. I want to call attention to the fact that he went direct to the master of the republican party and negotiated with him, and one of the results was that Gen. J. S. Coxey rode through the State of Ohio, in the interest of the republican party, in a private car, paid for at the expense of Mark Hanna; the actor Mark Hanna succeeded not only to his use of the idea of breeding the honey bee with the lightning bug, so that they could be used at night, but also the breeding of the strawberry plant with the milkweed, so that the republican party could have strawberries and cream the rest of their days."

DELANO, Minn.

Dear Sir: In your issue of the 15th, inst. (sent to Deputy Examiner West) you take occasion to ask as to where this Department is when there is such diversity among the counties in allowing fees to examiners in lunacy proceeding.

I presume that you are not aware that the Attorney General decided on May 17, 1893, and again on August 5, 1895 that section 49 of chapter 5, General Law of 1893 was the law fixing such fees.

This section prescribes five dollars each and fifteen cents per mile for travel, the rate for such service.

This being the law as construed by the proper officer this department has not questioned the legality where the allowance conforms to this law.

Where the allowance is at the lesser rate, we certainly do not advise the officers to raise it.

Respectfully,
M. D. KENYON,
Public Examiner.

Spanish War.

Mr. Editor: Hasn't Spain and the United States been making faces at each other about long enough? Better shoot or give up the gun.

Have read so much about the doings of Congress, Spain, Cuba, Insurgents and Reconcentrados, that my head feels like a whirlwind or a buzz saw. To the law and to the testimony. Must we sacrifice a battle ship worth two million and a half, and the lives of 266 seamen for naught or without recompense. It is a serious thing to go to war, when we know that it endangers many hardships and the sacrifice of many lives and much property. But it seems if things keep on in this way that we will become a hissing and a by word for all other nations. The flag and our Constitution is udheld by 45 states sovereign in power, and we should demand our rights and have them too.

Some say we are not prepared for war. Was we prepared for war at the time of the Revolution, or at the beginning of the Rebellion.

Some say that money is the power behind the throne and that the administration dare not tread on the lion's tail. If this be so then we would infer that the Constitution is a covenent with death, a league with Hell, and our flag a floating lie. But we cannot believe that our President and Congress would sacrifice all principle and leave a nation like ours strong in wealth and power to become a laughing stock for such unprincipled people as the Spaniards.

Weyler applied the torch to Cuba; said he would make it a wilderness, and cover the island with bones and ashes if he could only insure victory. Spain would do the same thing with the United States if they only had the chance, for they have no rule of warfare. They have always been a cruel and barbarous nation. Mr. Editor, I hope this interference between Spain and the United States will be settled soon, for the excitement of war, our school of politics, foolishness and frivoltry are so taking up the minds of the people, that if this thing keeps on they will, in a measure, become unfit for business. And when we become weak in mental power and physical strength then we will be an easy prey for some other nation. It is an easy matter to fool the people, and it is being done all along the line, from a ten cent side show up to the head of the government. Time works marvelous changes. A horse will mature in four or five years. A man will develop in brain and physical strength in 25 or 30 years. But a nation never fully develops until she begins to show signs of weakness.

Spain is a decaying, ignorant, well nigh bankrupt nation. She has a debt of $1,251,452,000 or nearly $75 per capita. It is now about 60 days since the blowing up of the Maine, and nothing done yet. If the Maine and her 266 dead seamen do not afford a reason for demanding satisfaction from Spain, it is difficult to conceive of any insult to our flag that would call for resentment. If Congress is delaying this matter on account of politics or the money power, it should be so recorded and brought up against them in the day of judgement. Our country has no lives to offer upon the alter of sacrifice to atone for our sins committed against Spain. But there may be hid somewhere a Moses in the bulrushes that will lead the people out of this trouble and land them upon the margin of the Jordan.

Yours truly,
16 TO 1.

LOOKS WARLIKE!

Spain Must Get Out of Cuba.

CONGRESS AGREED, SO IS THE PRESIDENT.

Spain Hands Minister Woodford His Passports Before He Could Present the Ultimatum.

It is claimed that shots may be fired at any time now that Spanish and American vessels chance to meet on the high seas. That a declaration of war has practically been made by Spain's giving our Minister his passport, unasked.

Every thing points to an early opening of hostilities. Congress agreed to demand that the Spainards, leave Cuba and the President signed the bill, and also sent an ultimatum to Spain, for them to answer before Saturday night.

The Spaniards handed our Minister to Spain, Woodford, his passport to leave the Country.

A Horrible Accident.

A very sad and distressing occurrence took place in the town of Albion, last Thursday evening, which resulted in the death of little Florence Fashant, the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fashant. The child had strayed away from the house some 35 rods to where a stump was burning, and getting on near the fire her clothing was soon in flames. The little one started for the house on a run, the wind fanning the flames as she went, and was unnoticed till she arrived with only a small portion of her dress left, about her neck, and her body burned to a crisp. Dr. O Connor was sommoned immediately and everything possible was done to alleviate the suffering, but there was no hope of saving the child's life. She lived twelve hours. The funeral was held in Chatham churcrh Saturday afternoon and the remains placed in Chatham cemetery in the presence of the grief-stricken parents and many sorrowing and sympathetic friends. The pall bearers were Jos. Hoffmeister, Eddie Scanlan, Johnnie Scanlan, and Joseph Fouquette. N. Backes was funeral director.—Maple Lake Messenger.

An English syndicate has bought the extensive Maine sardine factories and will retain the old Italian labels.

An unmarried woman has been elected mayor of Kendrick, Idaho, and it is feared that the affairs of that town are going to be miss managed.

Russia's flag floating over the port of Ta-Lien-Wan did not have the effect of intimidating the native Chinese, who mistook it for a new kind of Japanese kite.

A charitable society recently organized at Basle, Switzerland, announced in outlining the scope of its work: "We escort home the inebriates who are in conflict with the perpendicular."

It is figured by the president of the New York merchants' and manufacturers' board of trade that the present Cuban insurrection, covering a period of about three years, has cost this country nearly $350,000,000.

The kaiser's navy bill went through the reichstag by a vote of 212 to 139 and in the next seven years Germany will spend $82,750,000 on its navy. Old Neptune will be very much in the swim during the first decade of the new century.

The extensive use of bicycles has considerably increased the consumption of leather. Every wheel has a saddle, and each one is covered with leather, tanned for the purpose from a cowhide. Every saddle requires at least a foot of leather, and it is estimated that more than a million feet are cut up annually for bicycles.

Henry and Richard Clark are employed by the United States government as mail carriers from Ashville, Ala., to towns located in the mountains. They are brothers and both are stone blind. They go different routes and over very rough country, still no one guides them, and they trust entirely to the intelligence of their horses.

Miss Fuller, a newspaper woman, has lately been appointed harbor mistress of Tacoma, Wash. It is said that thus far she has done remarkably good work, keeping all records pertaining to the extensive shipping business of the city in perfect shape. She has made out the harbor master's report for the year, the first report of the kind ever made out by an American woman.

Think of it! Somebody is counterfeiting copper cents. At the present price of the raw material there is a profit of ten cents on every 100 coins turned out. It is difficult to see how the skilled labor required for this work can earn even laborers' wages at this business—to say nothing of the cost of distributing the coins and the dead certainty of soon being put at work in prison on no wages at all.

In 164 of the most important post offices of this country the department has placed stamp canceling machines, and others are being added. These machines are not owned by the department, but are rented from the factory making them. A rental of $250 a year is paid for the use of each machine. Each machine saves the expense of a boy to do the canceling, at a salary of $600 a year, and does it better.

Miss Amelia Sommerville, a Gotham actress, appears to be a peculiarly circumspect and self-restrained young woman, with more than the usual regard for the proprieties of life. As we understand it, she absolutely refused to marry again until a full 24 hours had elapsed after the receipt of the decree of divorce that she had secured. It is always well to have all appearance of haste eliminated from affairs of this description.

What is the Chinaman's loss is mankind's gain. It is a good thing for the world that the vast area known as the Chinese empire is gradually passing into foreign hands. Its resources are immense and must be developed. The Mongolian has held out against the onward sweep of progress as long as he can. He must stand aside for those who are more capable. It is rather sad to see his country taken away from him; but sympathetic considerations do not influence the workings of that law known as "the survival of the fittest."

Much has been forcibly said on the subject of properly prepared food as a preventive of intemperance. A medical authority remarks that unless a person is decently fed, warmed and clothed he can hardly get into a right mind to respond to moral, spiritual or legal suasion. The "submerged classes," it is urged, will be less strongly tempted when their bodies and nerves are properly nourished, and some element of good cheer brought into their lives. While the idea is not new, it is one that cannot be dismissed in practical temperance movements.

There was a convention of Anneke Jans heirs at Cleveland a few days ago at which over a hundred delegates were present. The claims of these heirs are singularly modest—comprising $80,000,000 alleged to be held by the Bank of Holland; 192 acres in the business district of New York city, of value so great as to be practically inestimable; and over 6,000 acres of land in upper Harlem, valued over half a century ago at $80,000,000. The heirs express cheerfulness over their prospects, asserting that they expect to get possession very soon of the Harlem portion.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

The United States senate had under consideration on the 14th the resolution favoring immediate intervention in Cuba, but took no action. Strong speeches were delivered by Senators Hoar, Fairbanks and Turner. The most radical difference was as to whether the resolutions finally adopted should recognize the independence of the Cuban republic or simply declare for armed intervention with a view to the ultimate freedom and independence of the Cuban people. In the house a bill was passed providing for the relief of residents of the Indian territory.

After another day of debate in the United States senate on the 15th an agreement was reached that a vote should be taken before adjournment on the 16th on the Cuban resolution reported by the committee on foreign affairs. In the house a tilt occurred between Speaker Reed and Mr. Bailey (Tex.) over the unpleasant scene a few days ago in the house. At the evening session pension legislation occupied the time.

In the United States senate on the 16th a resolution was passed by a vote of 67 to 21 which declares that the people of Cuba are and ought to be free; recognizes the Cuban republic as the legitimate government of Cuba; demands that Spain shall withdraw from the island, and authorizes and directs the president to intervene and employ the land and naval forces of this government to carry these declarations into effect. It was sent to the house for concurrence. In the house some unimportant bills were passed.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In Washington the one hundred and fifty-fifth anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated.

Consul-General Lee was called into conference by the naval strategetic board and gave valuable information about fortifications in Havana.

A report in Washington says that the six great powers of Europe have begun the exchange of notes, with a view to prevent war between the United States and Spain.

Gen. Lee said before the senate committee on foreign relations that Spanish officials were responsible for the Maine explosion.

The cruiser St. Paul will be commanded by Capt. Sigsbee, of the illfated Maine.

President McKinley has decided to give Consul Gen. Lee the command of the Virginia volunteers in the event of war.

A plan of campaign for the expected war in Cuba has been mapped out by the war department.

THE EAST.

In the seven days ended on the 15th there were 254 business failures in the United States against 232 the week previous and 207 in the corresponding period of 1897.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 15th aggregated $1,084,959,513, against $1,281,207,682 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week of 1897 was 13.3.

The legislature of Massachusetts has passed an emergency appropriation of $500,000 to increase the efficiency of the militia.

The last survivor of the organizers of the American Anti-Slavery society, Robert Purvis, died in Philadelphia, aged 88 years.

Fire destroyed the elevator at the Hoosac tunnel docks in Boston, containing 350,000 bushels of wheat, causing a loss of $500,000.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 16th were: Chicago, 1.000; Boston, 1.000; Baltimore, 1.000; Brooklyn, 1,000; Pittsburgh, .667; Cincinnati, .667; Louisville, .333; Cleveland, .333; New York, .000; Washington, .000; Philadelphia, .000; St. Louis, .000.

WEST AND SOUTH.

In San Francisco and other California towns severe earthquake shocks were felt but no damage was done.

Fire damaged the Grasser & Brand company's brewery at Toledo, O., and 14 fine draft horses were burned.

The Oregon republicans in convention at Astoria nominated T. T. Geer for governor, adopted a resolution in favor of the maintenance of the present gold standard, and indorsed the national administration.

Twenty-two regiments of infantry, six regiments of cavalry, and the light batteries of five regiments of artillery have been ordered from their present posts and will be mobilized at Tampa, Mobile, New Orleans and Chickamauga.

At Greenwood, Cal., 32 earthquake shocks of unusual severity occurred, and houses were twisted, chimneys fell and crockery was broken.

On the 15th the National league baseball season opened, the games resulting as follows: At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 3; Cleveland, 2. At Louisville—Louisville, 10; Pittsburgh, 3. At St. Louis—Chicago, 2; St. Louis, 1.

Jacob Myers and his wife were fatally burned while burning cornstalks at Marion, O.

Uncle Sam's flying squadron has returned to Hampton roads.

In the First district of Kansas Charles Curtis (rep.) has been renominated for congress.

A story told by Charles A. Crandall, alias Emanuel Escadaro, that, acting under the personal orders of Capt. Gen. Weyler, he planted the mines and torpedoes in the harbor of Havana, is a canard.

Fire swept away the entire business portion of Hopkinton, Ia.

In Peoria, Ill., Grant Lee Masters, an electrician, shot his wife and then killed himself. Domestic trouble was the cause.

In Clay county, Ky., the Howard-Baker feud broke out again, and ten men were killed and three injured.

In St. Louis a plug tobacco trust has been formed with a capital of $50,000,000.

Fire destroyed the grand stand during a ball game in St. Louis, and fifteen persons were burned and otherwise injured.

On the Rock Island road freight trains collided near Fairfield, Ia., and Charles Dibble, engineer; Elmer Blosser, fireman, and William Watterson, brakeman, were killed.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Flames at Sutton, Quebec, destroyed 25 buildings.

Great Britain has declined to join the continental powers in any effort of mediation between Spain and the United States.

The death of Robert M. McLane, a congressman from 1876 to 1880, governor of Maryland from 1883 to 1885, and minister to France in 1885, occurred in Paris, aged 83 years.

The American diplomats and consular agents have been instructed to watch for and report the movements of Spanish war vessels in British waters.

The official report of the Spanish commission of inquiry into the Maine explosion says it was an accident and denies the theory of an exterior explosion.

The people were fleeing from the rebellion which is spreading rapidly in the Philippines and Manila was panic stricken.

The Spaniards made an attack upon the United States consulate at Malaga, but no serious damage was done.

LATER NEWS.

The U. S. treasury the 19th had a cash balance of $219,531,643. Gold reserve, $177,281,736.

CUBA DECLARED FREE

Senate and House Concur on a Compromise Resolution.

After a Hard Fight the Two Houses of Congress Come to an Agreement—Authorize Armed Intervention.

Washington, April 19.—After one of the hardest-fought battles betweeen the two houses known in many years, congress, at an early hour Tuesday morning, came to an agreement upon the most momentous question it has dealt with in a third of a century. The Cuban resolution was passed. There were many roll calls in both houses, and each body held tenaciously for its own resolution. The conferees had great difficulty in agreeing. The first conference showed a determination on the part or the house not to yield a single point, and it was only after long consultations with the house leaders that they agreed to allow the little words "are and" in the first section of the senate resolution, which declares that the people of Cuba are, and of right ought to be free and independent. The resolution, as finally adopted, is that reported from the senate committee on foreign relations, with the addition of the fourth section, known as the Teller amendment, disclaiming any intention on the part of the United States to acquire Cuba.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Their Full Text as Adopted by the Senate and House.

Following is the full text of the resolutions as agreed upon by the conferees and adopted by the senate and house:

"Joint resolution for the recognition of the independence of the people of Cuba, demanding that the government of Spain relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba, and to withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters, and directing the president of the United States to use the land and naval forces of the United States to carry these resolutions into effect.

"Whereas, The abhorrent conditions which have existed for more than three years in the island of Cuba, so near our own borders, have shocked the moral sense of the people of the United States, have been a disgrace to Christian civilization, culminating, as they have, in the destruction of a United States battleship, with 266 of its officers and crew, while on a friendly visit in the harbor of Havana, and cannot longer be endured, as has been set forth by the president of the United States in his message to congress of April 11, 1898, upon which the action of congress was invited: therefore,

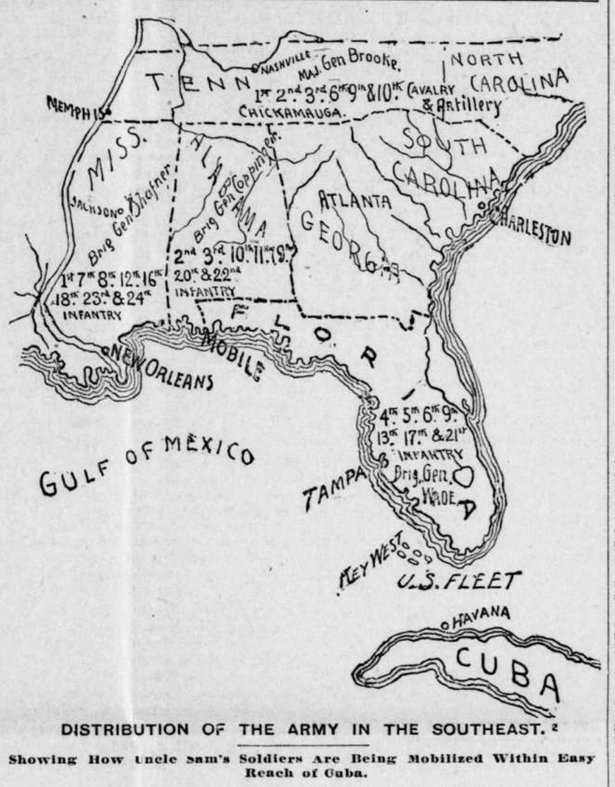
"Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled:

"First, That the people of the island of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent.

"Second, That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the government of the United States does hereby demand, that the government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters.

"Third, That the president of the United States be, and he hereby is, directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states, to such extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect.

"Fourth, That the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island except for the pacification thereof, and asserts its determination when that is accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to its people."



DISTRIBUTION OF THE ARMY IN THE SOUTHEAST.

Showing How Uncle Sam's Soldiers Are Being Mobilized Within Easy Reach of Cuba.

The troops at Chickamauga, with Maj. Gen. Brooke in command, consist of the First, Second, Third, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth regiments of cavalry, and the light batteries of all the artillery regiments. At New Orleans, where Brig. Gen. Shafter has been sent, will be the First, Seventh, Eighth, Twelfth, Eighteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth regiments of infantry. Brig. Gen. Coppinger will have at Mobile the Second, Third, Tenth, Eleventh, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-second regiments of infantry. Brig. Gen. Wade will have at Tampa the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Thirteenth, Seventeenth and Twenty-first regiments of infantry.

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, formerly consul general at Havana, has been appointed major general of volunteers and will be in command of the troops in the field in Cuba. Gen. Lee is a nephew of Robert E. Lee, the famous confederate general, and was born in Virginia in 1835. He was graduated from the United States military academy at West Point in 1856, and served in the cavalry and artillery arms of the service until 1861, when he resigned to enter the confederate army. He was appointed major general of volunteers in 1886, and was consul general at Havana from 1896 to 1898. Gen. Lee is a veteran of the civil war, and has seen much service in the regular army.

Maj. Gen. Brooke, who has been in command of the department of the lakes with headquarters at Chicago, was chosen. The command of the army will devolve upon Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who is now at the head of the military branch of the government.

MAD WORK OF A MOB.

Spaniards Attack the United States Consulate at Malaga—American Shield Wrecked.

Malaga, Spain, April 18.—There was a serious disturbance here Saturday, resulting in an attack upon the United States consulate. The demonstration began with the parading of small crowds through the streets, shouting patriotic cries. But a mob eventually gathered and attacked the United States consulate. Stones were thrown and one of the mob leaders procured a ladder, tore down the shield having upon it the arms of the United States and dragged it along the streets.

The prefect was summoned and he addressed the people, begging them to disperse, which to some degree restored order.

Afterwards the streets were patrolled by gendarmes.

London, April 18.—A special dispatch from Madrid says there was another hostile demonstration outside the American consulate at Malaga on Sunday afternoon. The civic guard dispersed the mob after repeated charges. Three people were injured. Most of the shops were closed.

London, April 19.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Gibraltar, dated Monday, says a telegram received there from Malaga reports a resumption of the riots at Malaga on Monday, that the American consul's negro servant was killed and persons in the crowd were injured.

Denied by Weyler.

Madrid, April 16.—Lieut. Gen. Weyler authorizes the statement that reports published here as to a supposed statement by Consul-General Fitzhugh Lee respecting a letter Gen. Weyler addressed to Senor Guzman as to torpedoes and mines placed in the port of Havana during his (Weyler's) command and respecting a subsequent dispatch from him begging Guzman to destroy the letter, after the catastrophe that befell the Maine, are entirely without foundation.

Two Italians Killed.

Schenectady, N. Y., April 19.—Two Italian laborers were instantly killed and another seriously injured at Fondas Basin, six miles east of this city, Sunday by the breaking of a derrick beam while it was in use lifting stone.

Expelled from Havana.

London, April 19.—The Times announces that its correspondent has been expelled from Havana. Against the expulsion the Times protests editorially, characterizing the act as "another of Spain's efforts to stifle the truth."

Disastrous Dust Explosion.

Boston, April 18.—The roof of the grain elevator at the Hoosac tunnel docks, Charlestown, was blown completely off by a dust explosion at four o'clock Sunday morning, and the fire that followed not only destroyed the remaining portion of the immense structure, but consumed nearly the entire contents, over 400,000 bushels of grain, mostly wheat. The loss is estimated by fire underwriters at nearly $600,000; well covered by insurance.

Found Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 18.—Dr. H. U. Avery, commissioner of health of Minneapolis since 1894, was found dead in bed at Forman, N. D., Sunday morning. Dr. Avery left the city Friday for a rest, but was not ill. Death was caused by heart disease. He was 60 years of age, widely known in medical circles of the northwest.

Troops Reach Key West.

Key West, Fla., April 18.—The arrival of companies A and G, of the Twenty-fifth infantry, late Saturday night roused Key West from tropical lethargy, and Sunday was marked by a stir unwonted here, even in these exciting times.

Another Ship Purchased.

Montreal, Can., April 19.—It is announced that the Allan line steamship Lucerne, of about 2,000 tons, has been sold to the United States.

MOBILIZING THE ARMY.

Orders Are Issued for the Concentration of the Soldier Boys at Four Points in the South.

Washington, April 16.—Decidedly the most warlike step taken by the department in preparing for the possibility of an encounter with Spain was inaugurated Friday when orders were issued for the concentration at four points in the south of six regiments of cavalry, 22 regiments of infantry and the light batteries of five regiments of artilley. At Chickamauga there will be six regiments of cavalry and the light batteries of five regiments of artillery; at New Orleans eight regiments of infantry; at Tampa, seven regiments of infantry, and at Mobile seven regiments of infantry.

Instructions to the commanding officers of the regiments ordered to move were sent out late Friday with instructions that they be put into effect as soon as possible.

Secretary Alger immediately selected the commanders of the divisions of the army that are to assemble at the places named, all of whom are well known by their service in the military branch of the government. For the division at New Orleans Brig. Gen. W. B. Shafter, now at San Francisco, in command of the department of California, was designated; for that at Tampa, Brig. Gen. J. F. Wade, now in command of the department of Dakota at St. Paul, Minn.; for Mobile, Brig. Gen. J. J. Coppinger, who is on duty in command of the department of Missouri, at Omaha, Neb.; while for the post at Chickamauga, Maj. Gen. J. R. Brooke.

THE CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA.

From the Republican, Scranton, Pa.

The primary cause of dyspepsia is lack of vitality; the absence of nerve force; the loss of the life-sustaining elements of the blood.

No organ can properly perform its function when the source of nutriment fails. When the stomach is robbed of the nourishment demanded by nature, assimilation ceases, unnatural gases are generated; the entire systm responds to the discord.

A practical illustration of the symptoms and torture of dyspepsia is furnished by the case of Joseph T. Vandyke, 440 Hickory St., Scranton, Pa.

In telling his story, Mr. Vandyke says:

"Five years ago I was afflicted with a trouble of the stomach, which was very aggravating. I had no appetite, could not enjoy myself at any time, and especially was the trouble severe when I awoke in the morning. I did not know what the ailment was, but it became speedily worse, and I was in constant misery.

In Misery.

"I called in my family physician, and he diagnosed the case as catarrh of the stomach. He prescribed for me and I had his prescription filled. I took nearly all the medicine, but still the trouble became worse, and I felt that my condition was hopeless. I tried several remedies recommended by my friends but without benefit. After I had been suffering several months, Thomas Campbell, also a resident of this city, urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"He finally persuaded me to buy a box and I began to use the pills according to directions. Before I had taken the second box I began to feel relieved, and after taking a few more boxes, I considered myself restored to health. The pills gave me new life, strength, ambition and happiness."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure dyspepsia by restoring to the blood the requisite constituents of life, by renewing the nerve force and enabling the stomach to promptly and properly assimilate the food. These pills are a specific for all diseases having their origination in impoverished blood or disordered nerves. They contain every element requisite to general nutrition, to restore strength to the weak, good health to the ailing.

Love's Labor Lost.

There was admiration and love in his glance, but she did not heed it.

There was a passion and rapturous longing in it, but it did not affect her.

The fact of the matter was that he was cross-eyed and she did not know whether it was all intended for her or the girl on the other side of the room.—Chicago Post.

HELD THE TRAIN.

Until the Old Lady's Good Blue Hen Made Up the Full Dozen of Eggs.

There is no better known local character in Lancaster than Jim Dillon, and he has as many friends as any man in Garrard county. His intimates call him "Old Crow."

"The other day" said he to a party of friends, "I boarded a train on a little jerkwater railroad that runs through a near-by territory, to go over to a neighboring town. You know this line doesn't claim a speed equal to the Empire State express, and the friends of the officers say they are satisfied if the road can clear two dollars a day. On the occasion I refer to the wind-burner was nearing my destination when it came to a dead standstill. I stuck my head out of the window to learn the cause of the stop, and saw the conductor talking to an old woman with bonnet and shawl and Sunday toggery on and a small basket in hand.

"Being curious to know the import of the dialogue between the two, I went forward and learned that the woman had flagged the train for the purpose of getting on board and going on to 'town' to sell a dozen eggs. She told the conductor, however, that she had only 11 in the basket at that moment, but that an old blue hen of hers, then on the nest, was momentarily expected to lay the egg necessary to complete the dozen; that it would be a great accommodation if he would hold his train until this should occur, as it would be a pity to proceed to market with fewer than a dozen eggs. The conductor consented, and then our wait began.

"Finally, after the lapse of about 20 minutes, a furious cackling was heard near the woman's shanty. A moment later a blue hen fluttered into view, followed by the old lady, who came running toward the cars, smiling and holding aloft in triumph the coveted egg. She placed it, while it was yet warm, in the basket with the others, thanked the conductor and clambered aboard. Then the train again got under way."—Louisville Post.

Spring is the Time

When Impurities in the Blood Should Be Expelled

America's Greatest Medicine is the Best Spring Medicine.

In winter months the perspiration, so profuse in summer, almost ceases. This throws back into the system the impurities that should have been expelled through the pores of the skin. This and other causes makes the blood impure in spring. Boils, pimples, humors and eruptions then appear or some more serious disease may take its start. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for impure blood in all its forms, as proved by its marvelous cures of blood diseases. It is therefore the medicine for you to take in the spring. It expells all humors, and puts the whole system in good condition for warmer weather.

A CURE FOR FOOLISHNESS.

How Buffon's Family Got Him to Resign from the Buckers and Kickers.

Buffon is rich and proud. He comes of a good old family and is a recognized society leader of Detroit. He, with some of his swell bachelor friends, organized the "Buckers and Kickers," of which he was made grand high contortionist. The order had no object but fun, yet it maintained a show of mysticism and announced its meetings in a way to arouse general curiosity.

Buffon went east for a rest and change. His immediate family and friends did not like his belonging to a fraternity with such a name and such doubtful aims. They saw an opening and proceeded to get even. The first day at a New York hotel he received a dozen letters, and on the envelope of each, in big type, was his name and his title as grand high contortionist, followed by the address to which the letter was to be returned if not called for. The clerk noticed it, and others who were getting their mail could not but see what was as plain as a hand bill. He was indignant at this use of his official envelope, and indignation became explosiveness when a Gotham theatrical manager called on him, asked if he belonged to the "perfesh," and if he were open to engagements.

Buffon fired a hot letter home, bearing an immediate delivery stamp. He informed the folks that it was in the worst taste to send private correspondence in a business envelope. He wanted no more of it. It had cost him a great annoyance and he was going to change his hotel at once. But that "grand high contortionist" pursued him like an avenger until he returned home, raked all his relatives over the coals, resigned from the Buckers and Kickers and made a bonfire of the stationery which he held as grand high contortionist.—Detroit Free Press.

SHE TOOK THE HINT.

And Then Proceeded to Display Her Immense Ingenuity.

At home stations the private soldiers' washing is usually done by the married soldiers' wives, who are expected to sew on missing buttons and do repairs, for which a small sum is deducted from the private's pay.

Pat McGinnis had a good deal of trouble with his laundress; Sunday after Sunday had his shirt come back with the neck button off, or else hanging by a thread. He had spoken to her on the subject and she had promised to see to it, but still the button was not on properly.

He got out of patience one Sunday when the missing button had made him late for parade, and exclaimed:

"Bother the woman! I'll see if I can't give her a hint this time, anyhow."

He then took the lid of a tin blacking box, about three inches in diameter, drilled two holes in it with a fork and sewed it on to the neck of the shirt that was next to be washed. When his washing came back he found that she had taken the hint: she had made a button hole to fit it.—Detroit Free Press.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. FIBROID TUMOR CONQUERED.

Expelled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Strong Statement from Mrs. B. A. Lombard.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Fibroid Tumor.

The growth of these tumors is so sly that frequently their presence is not suspected until they are far advanced.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice free of all charge if you will write her about yourself. Your letter will be seen by women only, and you need have no hesitation about being perfectly frank.

Read what MRS. B. A. LOMBARD, Box 71, Westdale, Mass., says:

"I have reason to think that I would not be here now if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cured me of a fibroid tumor in my womb. Doctors could do nothing for me, and they could not cure me at the hospital. I will tell you about it. I had been in my usual health, but had worked quite hard. When my monthly period came on I flowed very badly. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did me no good. He said the flow must be stopped if possible, and he must find the cause of my trouble. Upon examination he found there was a fibroid tumor in my womb, and gave me treatment without any benefit whatever. About that time a lady called on me and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; said she owed her life to it. I said I would try it, and did. Soon after the flow became more natural and regular. I still continued taking the Compound for some time. Then the doctor made an examination again, and found everything all right. The tumor had passed away, and that dull ache was gone."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Big Entertainment.

The most stupendous undertaking ever attempted in Minneapolis in the line of public entertainment will be brought to a consummation at the Exposition building the first week of next September. Not only have assurances been given that a half dozen of the greatest orators, theologians and politicians will appear on specified evenings at the Exposition, but a small army of the crack bicycle riders of the world, a large tribe of Indians from a neighboring reservation, as well as American cowboys, famous athletes, and, what is more, the first thorough and complete display of home manufacturers ever attempted in the city. In the latter no goods will be permitted except those manufactured in the state, and it will be an open index to the surprising mannfacturing resources of the community. The Exposition building can be so fitted with power and shafts as to run all kinds of machinery that would tend to show to advantage the exact process by which such goods are made.

The U. Cadets.

If there is a war with Spain the University cadets wish to be counted in, and although certain influences were brought to bear to prevent the holding of a mass meeting, the cadets decided that some action should be taken to express the patriotism of the University of Minnesota. A consultation of the officers of the cadet corps resulted in the following telegram to President McKinley:

"William McKinley, President of the United States: The University of Minnesota Cadet Corps, in the event of a war with Spain, tenders the government the services of a battallion.

"T. W. Burglehaus,

"First Lieutenant and Adjutant."

The medical students are also very anxious to tender their services in case of war, and talk of organizing a hospital corps.

Disappointment.

John Seberger committed suicide at his residence in St. Cloud by shooting himself through the head. He was a candidate for appointment on the police force, and the mayor did not see fit to name him. He worried so much over the disappointment that his mind was temporarily deranged. When found the revolver was still smoking in one hand, and a letter addressed to the mayor in the other, in which he was accused of failure to keep his promise. He also severely denounced him. The mayor claims he never agreed to appoint him. Seberger was 46 years old, married, temperate, and well liked.

Wolf Harvest.

The wolf harvest in Polk county is fairly on, and during the past week the county auditor has paid bounty on 20. The animals are for the most part cubs and the capture generally included an entire litter. In the eastern portion of the county these animals were very troublesome during the latter part of the winter, and became so bold that they frequently carried off sheep, calves and poultry in considerable numbers. In several instances they were successful in worrying deer until the animals were compelled to make a stand and fight them, when they always conquered through force of numbers.

A Lost Son Heard From.

Andrew Forsberg, a Norwegian living in the town of Black River, Polk county, had a son who a number of years ago wandered from home, and was not heard from again until a week ago. The information came in the form of two drafts on St. Paul banks, aggregating the sum of $11,000 and is a portion of the money that young Forsberg has made in Alaska. He was one of the first to drift to that country, and was fortunate in securing a claim from which he has taken a large quantity of gold. He writes his father that he will be home in the fall and that he has enough to make the entire family rich.

Sales of State Lands.

State Auditor Dunn has arranged the dates for the spring sales of state lands, and it is expected that in every case the sales will be large, as they are to be held in counties where the demand for land is especially strong. On this account, the bidding should be lively and good prices will undoubtedly be secured. The first sale will be in Otter Tail county, at Fergus Falls, on Monday, May 16. The second will be at Breckenridge, on Tuesday, May 17; the third at Wadena, Wednesday, May 18; the fourth at Detroit, Thursday, May 19, and the last at Moorhead, Friday, May 20.

Sugar Beet Seed.

Two carloads, or 70,000 pounds, of sugar beet seeds, costing $9,000, was received by the Minnesota Beet Sugar Manufacturing company at its St. Louis Park plant from Domaine Volkstedt, Germany. The seed will be sold to farmers at 15 cents a pound. The machinery will be placed in the plant within a week or two. Meetings to interest farmers in sugar beet planting are being held in all parts of the state with encouraging results. Thus far 3,000 acres of land have been contracted for.

Increased Labor.

Labor Commissioner Powers states that the number of persons employed in the factories of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth had materially increased since the first of the year.

News in Brief.

August Quesne was killed by a Northwestern passenger train at New Ulm.

The safe in the saloon of William Schliep, at Hancock, was blown open and the contents taken.

Secretary Jackson, of the state board of corrections and charities, has issued a statement of the population of the state instutions for March, showing the total to be 5,743, of which number 3,204 are insane. The statement, compared with the population of the preceding month, shows an increase of 159 inmates in all the charitable and correctional institutions in the state.

A military company has been organized at Mankato, with W. L. Comstock, captain.

Forty-seven naval recruits left Duluth for the east. Fifteen of these are seamen and seven are apprentices, the rest machinists and firemen.

Mrs. Smith, an aged lady at LeSueur, was burned to death, her clothing catching from a fire in the yard.

ACTION IN THE HOUSE.

Incidents of the Memorable Struggle Over the Cuban Question—Final Vote Was 310 to 6.

Washington, April 19.—The house, after one of the hardest and most desperate fights in its history, succeeded in forcing the senate to yield the main contention in the war resolutions—the independence of the existing government in Cuba. With that exception the house accepted the senate resolutions. The republicans who joined with the democrats in an attempt to concur in the senate amendments entire rallied 14 votes at one time, and on every vote thereafter the vote dwindled. When the final vote was taken, 310 votes were cast for the declaration upon which we are to go to war, if war it is to be. Six votes only were cast against it. They included five republicans and one democrat.

There was intense excitement on the floor during the balloting. The short adjournment, from 10 o'clock until 12, gave the leaders time to exert pressure on the bolting republicans.

On motion of Mr. Dingley the house voted to concur in the senate resolution, with the exception of the clause recognizing Cuban independence, which was struck out.

The vote was 179 to 156.

The announcement of the vote, 179-156, and the decisive victory was loudly applauded by the republicans.

At 2:40 p. m. the resolutions were returned to the house with the senate's decision to nonoecur. Mr. Dingley, Mr. Bailey and Mr. Bromwell were on their feet asking for recognition. The speaker recognized Mr. Dingley, who moved that the house insist upon its amendment and ask for a conference. Mr. Bailey raised the point that a motion to recede and concur would take precedence. The speaker said he thought not. Mr. Bailey cited a precedent from the Twenty-ninth congress, which, he said, covered the exact case in point. The speaker asked to see it. The members waited with breathless interest while the speaker examined it. When he decided that it would hold the democrats applauded. The speaker then recognized Mr. Bromwell (rep., O.), who formally made the motion to recede and concur.

This time the democrats cheered, and the galleries joined in the demonstration. As the previous question cut off debate, the speaker ordered the roll called.

The responses on the roll call were followed closely for further defections from the republican side, but there were no acquisitions. In fact, two of the republicans who voted against the motion to concur with an amendment on the last vote, Messrs. Johnson (Ind.) and Loud (Cal.), voted with the republicans. They did not, however properly belong to the defection on the other vote, as they voted as they did because they oppose any action whatever. The announcement of the defeat of the motion—148 to 173—was the signal for another demonstration on the republican side.

The following 12 republicans voted for the motion to concur: Belknap, Lorimer, Mann, Warner and White (Ill.), Bromwell and Brown (O.), Colson (Ky.), Cooper (Wis.), Dorr (W. Va.), Johnson (N. D.) and Sulloway (N. H.).

Mr. Dingley's motion to insist and ask for a conference was then agreed to without division, the opposition realizing the manifest uselessness of demanding a roll call.

Just before five o'clock the speaker announced the appointment of Messrs. Adams (rep., Pa.), Heatwole (rep., Minn.), and Dinsmore (dem., Ark.), as conferees on the Cuban resolutions. A recess was taken until six o'clock, and at that hour the house further recessed until eight o'clock.

The house reconvened at eight o'clock. Several of the members of the house were in their dress suits, and in the galleries were many brilliant evening costumes. Nothing was done until 8:45 p. m., when the clerk of the senate announced the disagreement of the senate to the house amendment and the appointment of conferees.

A motion to recede and concur was again lost—144 to 177.

Secretary of War Alger, who entered the hall arrayed in a dress suit while the vote was being recapitulated, joined in the republican demonstration of approval when the result was announced. Mr. Adams' motion for a further conference was then agreed to without division. The speaker again appointed Messrs. Adams, Heatwole and Dinsmore conferees. Mr. Adams moved a recess until 11 o'clock. Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.) antagonized this with a motion to adjourn, but the chorus of noes was so fierce that he withdrew it and Mr. Adams' motion was agreed to.

While the house was awaiting a half hundred of the representatives gathered in the lobby in the rear of the hall nd awoke the echoes with patriotic songs. The battle hymn of the republic was sung by Gen. Henderson, of Iowa. "Dixie" and other songs were sung, led by some of the exconfederates and then in tremendous volume the corridors rang with an improvisation, "Hang Gen. Weyler on the Sour Apple Tree as We Go Marching On." The war spirit was reflected in the songs.

Shortly after one o'clock the conferees presented their report to the house. Mr. Adams moved the adoption of the report, and upon that motion he demanded the previous question. The galleries gave cheer after cheer as the resolutions were read. The demand for the previous question cut off debate, and Mr. Bailey and Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.) appealed for a few minutes time.

Mr. Adams refused to yield time for debate, owing to the lateness of the hour. Mr. Johnson protested indignantly. Mr. Bailey demanded the ayes and noes, and the roll was called.

The following voted against the adoption of the report: Boutelle (rep., Me.), Brewer (dem., Ala.), Gardner (rep., N. J.), Johnson (rep., Ind.), Loud (rep., Cal.), McCall (rep., Mass.).

The vote was announced at 2:43 a. m., and immediately thereafter the house adjourned.

Swelling Spain's Defense Fund.

London, April 18.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Sunday, says: The greatest enthusiasm is manifested everywhere among the people, who are subscribing even more than they can afford to the funds for the national defense. Seven families intend to deprive themselves of one meal a day in order to give their mite to the government. Many officials on small salaries have resolved to offer one day's pay, and even two, to the government. Boys under age are asking permission to serve in the army, their parents having already consented.

Fire Spoils the Game.

St. Louis, April 18.—The second game of baseball between the Browns and Chicagos at Sportman's park was called Saturday afternoon at the beginning of the second inning by the breaking out of a fire which destroyed the entire grand stand, pavilions, one of the bleachers and the club offices and residence of Chris Von der Ahe, who loses everything. The total loss is estimated at about $60,000, with $35,000 insurance. Four or five thousand spectators were present. Fifteen persons were injured during the rush for safety.

Purchase of Mules Ordered.

St. Louis, April 19.—A telegram from Washington states that the war department has just ordered the purchase of 1,800 mules in addition to the 1,000 ordered last week. The mules are to be used as pack animals for carrying supplies over roads in Cuba where the army wagons cannot be drawn. All the mules purchased for the army are to be delivered in this city.

May Quit to Fight.

Washington, April 18.—Hon. Theodore Roosevelt probably will resign his office as assistant secretary of the navy in case of hostilities with Spain, to accept a commission for active service in the army.

The Date Set.

Philadelphia, April 18.—It is learned that May 18 has been fixed as the date for the launching of the United States battleship Alabama, in course of construction at Cramps' shipyard.

THE SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Forced to Abandon the Provision to Recognize Present Cuban Insurgent Government.

Washington, April 19.—At 1:15 o'clock Tuesday morning the senate received the report of the conference committee of the two branches of the congress, and 12 minutes afterward had adopted it. There was a fight to the last minute, however, the advocates of recognition of the independence of the island republic standing their ground until they were fairly knocked down by a vote of 42 to 35. The minority vote was cast by those who wanted radical action and insisted that the resolution should carry with it recognition of the independence of the Cuban republic. Upon this a split developed which very nearly proved fatal to any action at all.

The adoption of the conference report brought to a close one of the most interesting and tumultuous sessions of the senate held in years. Such scenes of confusion and excitement have rarely been witnessed in the ordinarily staid and dignified body as characterized its proceedings from noon Monday until nearly two o'clock Tuesday morning.

Efforts were made to transact the regular business of the senate, but it was with the utmost diffidence that senators performed the work.

Those who were fighting for recognition of the island republic early decided that the senate should not take the initiative in requesting a conference between the two houses. They further resolved that when the senate conferees were finally appointed at least two of them should represent the majority sentiment of that body. The radical advocates of independence slowly, but none the less surely, lost ground, however, being swept back by the powerful and compact minority opposed to them. They yielded only after one of the bitterest contests in the history of the senate.

At 2:53 p. m. the message clerk of the house of representatives appeared at the main entrance of the senate with a package of bills and resolutions in hand. Almost immediately Vice President Hobart, interrupting the debate, recognized the clerk. He presented to the senate several bills and resolutions which had been passed by the house, including that relating to the intervention of the United States in the Cuban rebellion. The last were the resolutions adopted by the senate on Saturday night and agreed to Monday by the house, with certain amendments.

Senator Davis, the chairman of the foreign relations committee, requested that the message from the house concerning the Cuban resolutions be laid before the senate. After the reading of the message Senator Davis addressed the senate. He said that with a few exceptions the resolutions from the house were practically the same as the senate resolutions. The exceptions noted by Senator Davis were the striking out of the words "and are" and the provision in the senate resolution providing for the recognition of the present Cuban republic. Senator Davis then moved that the senate concur in the house resolutions. Senator Stewart (Nev.) opposed concurrence. The motion to concur was defeated—yeas, 33; nays, 46. Ten republicans voted no.

Later in the day the senate decided that the chair should appoint conferees. Senators Davis, Foraker and Morgan were appointed, and a recess was taken until eight p. m.

At 8:15 p. m. the conferees returned. There was a visible stir in the galleries as the chairman of the conference committee, Senator Davis (Minn.), rose to present the report and make his statement to the senate. Senator Davis said that, in conformity with the instructions of the senate, the conferees met a like committee from the house and, after full and free discussion, he had to report that the conferees had failed to reach an agreement. Senator Davis then stated the points of disagreement, and that there had been no difficulty to agree to the house resolution as amended, but the point of contention rose over the insertion of the words "are and" in the first section, which says the people of Cuba "are and of right ought to be free and independent." He said the majority of the conferees had agreed to waive the Turpie amendment providing that the words above mentioned be inserted. But the senate conferees were met with refusal to so agree, and he reluctantly reported the same to the senate.

Senator Cockrell (Mo.) then moved to insist upon the senate resolution. Considerable debate followed. The first part of the motion, that to insist upon the senate amendments, was carried without division. The second part, that requesting a further conference, was disagreed to, 39 to 40.

At 9:15 p. m., on motion of Senator Allison (Ia.), a recess of one hour was taken.

After the recess Senator Morgan presented a joint resolution declaring war against Spain, which was read and allowed to lay on the table.

At 1:14 a. m. Senator Davis presented the conference report, and it was at once adopted—42 to 35. The detailed vote on the adoption of the conference report follows:

Yeas—Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Carter, Chandler, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Faulkner, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Gray, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Kyle, Lodge, McMillan, Mason, Morgan, Morrill, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Sewell, Shoup, Spooner, Warren, Wilson, Wolcott—42.

Nays—Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Caffery, Cannon, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Daniel, Harris, Heitfeld, Jones (Arkansas), Jones (Nev.), Kenney, Lindsay, McEnery, McLaurin, Mallory, Mantle, Martin, Mitchell, Money, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Rawlins, Roach, Stewart, Teller, Turner, Turpie, White—35.

KILLED IN A FEUD.

Ten Men Meet Death in a Kentucky Family Quarrel—Three Wounded.

Louisville, Ky., April 18.—A report comes from Clay county by way of Pineville that the Howard-Baker feud has broken out again, and ten men were on Saturday killed and three injured. This feud is only ten days old. Howard and Baker were partners in a logging enterprise. They quarreled and fought. Relatives and friends joined in, and a week ago three of them were killed. Friday morning Ance and Al Baker, who had been arrested and kept under guard, broke away and hid in the woods, declaring they would exterminate their enemies. The report of the killing is regarded as indicating that they are keeping their word.

Carlists Preparing for Action.

London, April 19.—The supporters in England of Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, headed by the earl of Ashburnham, are actively preparing for emergency. Every detail has been arranged to seize the propitious moment for action. The local Carlists are convinced that the present Spanish dynasty is doomed and that Spain will be forced to choose between republicanism and Don Carlos. They add that the only chance of the present dynasty is a successful war against the United States, the possibility of which is scouted.

Full Force Employed.

Penns Grove, N. J., April 18.—Every available man experienced in the manufacture of powder is being given employment at the Dupont powder mills, to rush the heavy government orders for munitions of war. The company's pay roll aggregates $6,000 per month, which is heavier than at any time in the history of the company. It is understood that the company has contracted to furnish the government with $1,500,000 worth of powder.

Memorial to Jefferson Davis.

Richmond, Va., April 18.—The Jefferson Davis memorial window was unveiled Sunday in St. Paul's cathedral, the church Mr. Davis attended while president of the confederacy. There was an immense crowd present.

OFFICE-HOLDING TAX-EATERS.

Numbers of Persons Included in the Civil Service Lists of Various Countries.

The statement was published recently that the number of persons in the classified civil service of Great Britain, exclusive, of course, of the army, navy, constabulary and elected officers, amounted to 50,000, with annual pay of £7,000,000 or $35,000,000. An official statement made in Washington on March 1 showed that the total number of officeholders in this country was 178,717. The aggregate salaries amounted to $90,589,927. The classified list of officeholders numbers 87,108, leaving in the unclassified list 91,609, of whom about 80,000 are fourth-class postmasters.

In Great Britain the post office and telegraph office employes are not included in the civil service. Figuring the population of the United States as now about double that of Great Britain, it is seen that the number of persons in the civil service of Great Britain is relatively greater than it is here. In France, by a recent computation, there were in the civil service of that country 350,000 persons, or about one per cent. of the population—300,000 men and 50,000 women, a total, however, which included the instructors in and employes of the government schools, which in England and the United States are local, not national concerns. No one seems to know even approximately how many persons in Germany are in the direct employ of the government exclusive of the army and navy.

In Austria-Hungary, where the conditions of government are not much dissimilar from those which prevail in Germany, the civil service includes 200,000 persons, 120,000 in Austria and 80,000 in Hungary. The Austrian method of computation, however, is not one which would be likely to gain much favor here, especially when there was a legislature in session at a state capital. The Austrian division of inhabitants is as follows: Farmers, those engaged in manufacture, those engaged in commerce, capitalists, those in the civil service, those in domestic service, and "various persons." The designation of "capitalist" would never do in the United States. It would prove too elastic—too large when there were no taxes to be paid, too small, perhaps, when there were taxes to be collected—and a subdivision of the population as "capitalists" would be awkward for another reason, because it would be difficult to ascertain what was the dividing line between the penury of the majority and the affluence of the few, and no such subdivision would be permanently popular here. In Spain a considerable number of the population are returned as "vagrants and smugglers," but Spain is the only country which preserves this sinister subdivision of its people, and there is no separate subdivision for those in the public service, though the colonial, maritime and customs interests of Spain require a very considerable number of persons on the national payroll. Italy has a large civil list, but no stated class of "vagrants and smugglers."—Chicago Tribune.

Every Day a Month.

The gradual change in the day and the month now taking place proceeds continuously until the duration of a rotation of the earth is prolonged to 55 of our present days. At the same time the month, or the time of a revolution of the moon round the earth, will also occupy 55 of our days. Since the month here means the period of the return of the moon to the same place amongst the stars, and since the day is to be estimated the same way, the moon must then always face the same part of the earth's surface, and the two bodies must move as though they were fastened together by a bar. The outcome of the lunar tidal friction will accordingly be that the moon and the earth will go round as though locked together in a period of 55 of our present days, with day and month identical in length. —Prof. George H. Darwin, in Atlantic.

Police as Shark Catchers.

FROM HER VIEW.

A Lady Passenger Chats Very Interestedly About Street-Car Etiquette.

A man standing on the back platform of an east-bound Euclid car was much amused by a conversation he couldn't help overhearing between two well-dressed women. It was six o'clock and, of course, the car was crowded. There were several ladies on the platform and the two who talked were close to the involuntary listener.

"Dreadful, isn't it, out here?" said one lady.

"Yes," said the other, but what can you do? I'm dreadfully ashamed to go home at this time of the afternoon. We have no business on these cars. I declare it's too bad. Just see all those men standing up in the car and all the women sitting down. They should be ashamed of themselves—the women, I mean. I'm glad that some of the men don't get up. They serve the women just right. Men are so foolish about such things—I mean giving up their seats. Of course nine gentlemen out of every ten will offer their seats, but I never want to accept one. We have no right to expect such favors. And yet what can you do? It makes a woman look so foolish, hemming and hawing and trying to refuse a seat. I tried it once or twice, and then sat down after all. The trouble is the men don't believe we are in earnest when we refuse a seat—and I guess most of the time they are right. There, look in the car now and see the poor, pale-faced man giving the stout woman his seat. It's too bad. That man has been bending over a desk all day, and I suppose the woman has been out to some afternoon euchre party. These things are unjustly arranged. Perhaps times will even them up. Oh, this is your street? Good night."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SECRETARY OHLEY.

Recommends Pe-ru-na for Catarrh.

As a Spring Tonic It Has No Equal.

Hon. W. A. Ohley, Ex-Secretary of State of West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., March 7, 1898.
To Whom It May Concern:

I most heartily recommend Pe-ru-na, as of great benefit in cases of catarrh; it is especially beneficial wherever the mucous membranes are affected. As a tonic it certainly has no superior.

William A. Ohley.

The national catarrh remedy, Pe-ru-na, is receiving many indorsements from people of national reputation. Governors recommend Pe-ru-na; senators testify to its merits; congressmen speak in the highest terms of its efficacy. The mayor of the city where Pe-ru-na is manufactured praises this catarrh remedy in unstinted terms. The sheriff of the county where Pe-ru-na is made speaks of it with the same enthusiasm; and now comes forward ex-Secretary William A. Ohley, of the great State of West Virginia, who recommends Pe-ru-na.

Everyone should have a copy of a book of testimonials in the language of the people concerning the cures of Pe-ru-na. These testimonials are absolutely genuine and cover a great variety of cases and cannot fail to be of interest to every one. This book will be sent free by The Pe-ru-na Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio. This book contains the testimonials and portraits of a large number of people from the East, West, North and South. Lawyers, doctors, preachers and teachers, farmers and mechanics, are to be found in its pages. The testimonials are preserved in the exact language of the writer, and are therefore absolutely genuine in every detail.

BLOOD POISONING.

A Nurse's Experience.

She'd rather have one than three.

There are thousands of people suffering from blood poisoning who have almost beggared themselves in buying medicines from which they have obtained no help. There are thousands of others who first or last have tried Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and found perfect healing. One of these others, Mrs. A. F. Taylor, of Englevale, N. Dak. relates the following experience:

"About two years ago, I nursed a lady who was suffering (and finally died) from blood poisoning. I must have contracted the disease from her; for shortly after her death, I had four large sores or ulcers, break out on my person. I doctored for a long time, both by external application and with various blood medicines; but, in spite of all that I could do, the sores would not heal. They were obstinate, very painful, annoying, and only getting worse all the time. At last, I purchased six bottles of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, thinking I would give it a thorough trial. Before the first bottle was taken, I noticed a decided improvement in my general health; my appetite was quickened, and I felt better and stronger than I had for some time. While using the second bottle, I noticed that the sores had begun to look healthier and to heal. Before the six bottles had been taken, the ulcers were healed, the skin sound and natural, and my health better than it had been for years. I have been well ever since. I had rather have one bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind."

This is but one example of the remedial value of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla in all forms of blood disease. There is no other blood medicine that cures so promptly, so surely and so thoroughly. After nearly half a century of test and trial it is the standard medicine of the world for all diseases of the blood. Sores, ulcers, boils, tetter, rheumatism, scrofula and every other blood disease is curable by Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The success of this remedy has caused many imitations to be put on the market. Imitation remedies work imitation cures. The universal testimony is that "one bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is worth three of any other kind." If you are interested in knowing more about this remedy, get Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. It is sent free on request by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has just ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trademark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. He will send a sample Free, to anyone who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trademark and common law rights.

Appreciative.

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox, as he put his hands behind and tiptoed complacently; "but that isn't anything. You ought to have seen the outlay it represents."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

There is no better recommendation in the world than a woman's satisfaction; that is one of the reasons why the calicoes and fine prints of William Simpson & Sons are in such universal favor.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Stewart's Auction Saturday, April 23d.

—Communion services will be held at the Presbyterian church Sunday, April 24.

—Rev. Charles Thayer, of Minneapolis. will preach at the Presbyterian church Sunday, April 24, at 10:30 A. M.

—The snow storm Monday was quite up to the record and furnished exercise Tuesday morning. No village in the country keeps its sidewalks cleaner than does Delano.

—Read the Health Offices notice to the public in anothet column and act accordingly. Let everybody help to make this one of the healthest and pleasantest villages in the state.

—Where does the police force keep itself when the bicycle fiend is breaking the record and the village ordinance, riding down the sidewalks? What good is an ordinance unless it i enforced?

—The bicycle craze seems to be loosing its charm. If muddy roads keep people from riding for one summer the good old horse will again be in demand, and bicycles will go along with roller skates.

—Rev. J. S. McCornack, of Howard Lake preached at the Presbyterian church Tuesday. Next Tuesday evening he intends attending a C. E. meeting in Minneapolis, but in two weeks from last Tuesday is to preach here again.

—Farmers who live near town will find lots of fine fertilizer in the alleys of our village this week. In order to secure it they should move it at once out their farms. All alleys must be cleand soon and the manure that is not hauled away before will be dumped some where to fill up holes.

—The Village Council are making arrangements to sprinkle the streets and otherwise make our village pleasant. They should see to it that the alleys are cleaned, gravled, and put in good condition, and kept so. Slops of all kinds should be hauled away from town and not dumped out into the nearest alley.

—Some of our citizens would like to know why our village fathers make a difference in letting out work to be done for the village. Some jobs according to them, are let to the lowest bidder; others are parceled out to individuals before other tradesmen are aware that they are even contemplated. Every body should stand an even chance of bidding for village work; or for supplying the village with implements and materials. That would give the best bargains for the village and most satisfaction to citizens.

—The village council held a regular meeting Monday evening until the lights went out for 11 o'clock. It was voted to paper and paint the council room. Talks were had on painting the hall outside; the building a shed for village tools and implements. The printing was let for the next year to the GAZETTE. A committee was appointed to purchase a street sprinkler and make arrangement for running it on the business streets of the village this summer. The bridge committee was instructed to look over the bridge and see if it needed painting. The committee on sidewalk reported quite a lot of sidewalk in need of repair. A committee was appointed to see what is the matter with the drain from the Eagle office. A number of bills were allowed.

—As the village council don't intend doing much street work this year it would be a good thing to drive all over town with the road grader and make all the streets as smooth as possible, before the ground gets too hard and dry, then people can drive, or ride bicycles or horses about the street with some degree of comfort; and their would be considerable profanity prevented, as compared with the past few years when several of the streets have been kept in about the worst possible condition. It is the hight of foolishness to have rough streets anywhere in town, with a grader like ours sitting idle all summer and $3,500. coming into the treasury yearly, besides other income. Start up your grader gentlemen and lets see what it can do once.

—The surprise party given Saturday evening in the City Hall by the many friends of John Coolen and family was a grand success. Most of the families in town were represented. Mr and Mrs Coolen were persuaded by some friends on some pretense or another to go to the hall where they were much surprised to find the large gathering of people, more so to learn it was a party in honor of themselves. Jas A. Wharton on behalf of the friends presented to Mr and Mrs John Coolen a fine set of China ware. Mrs Coolen was first to get her breath and rose and thanked the many friends for their kindness. After an instrumental number by the orchestra Mr C. was induced to take the platform when he proceeded to enlighten the people on the cause of his departure from Delano and the bright hopes of future prosperty at Smith Lake. He didn,t forget to refer to Old Rip Van Winkle. Everybody wishes the family prosperty and happiness in their new home.

One Dollar for fifty-two papers.

—Yesterday was a cold disagreeable day. Most people that could do so remained near the fire.

—There will be a meeting of the Delano Cemetary Association at Dr Catlin's office on Monday, May 2, at 7 P. M.

—We heartily agree with the Eagles intimation that some other day than Sunday, for baseball games would look more Christianlike.

—Cow feed seems to be much in demand in this vicinity. The creamery men ought to ship some in from some place where it can be bought cheap enough.

—Among the names of soldiers enlisted in Minneapolis Wednesday, appears J. P. Chance, Delano, and Leo Chilton, Howard Lake. Delano has two soldiers now in the war. Jenner Chance and Otto Marr. Surely our quota is full to date.

—Quite a lot of fruit trees have been delivered this spring. Our farmers tempted probably, by the late mild winter have concluded to give orchards another trial. May they have better luck than some of their predecessors have in the fruit raising line.

—Read the inside of this paper for accounts of the House and Senate proceedings on the Cuban question. Also see the map giving the location of U. S. forces and the island of Cuba. Most of the battles are apt to be on the water between the two countries or in Cuba.

—Prof. R. M. Bohn says he is going to secure a commission and raise a company in Delano to help free Cuba. He says he has had some acquaintance in Norway, with Spaniards, and he would like to lead a company in Cuba to assist the people in becoming free from bondage to any such a set.

—Complaints are being made by people who use water from the river, or fish therein, that parties use the stream for a sewer, that all kinds of refuse, manure, etc, are dumped into the river. It seems as if refuse material could be used on the land to better advantage; plowed under it would help level up grounds; spread on marshes it would help hay crop, or it would pay in the corn field much better than in the river.

W. D. Freeman has sufficiently recover from his late illness as to be able to make garden between snow storms.

John Cunningham, of Minneapolis. drove up to his farm Monday in the snow storm He reports his wife as improving.

Col. P. H. Greear, of Old Kaintuck, has returned from his visit to Cincinnatti, and other places. He is looking well.

L. M. Maxfield, A. L. Mealey and Miss Mary Catlin were among passengers on Wednesday morning bound for Minneapolis.

J. T. Hanna returned this week from Missouri. He says he likes Minnesota much better. He has rented a farm near Darwin.

County Cullings.

When all the patriots enlist for the war with Spain it may change the state for some of the political plums to be distributed next fall.

Judges of election, in Minnesota, must see to it that the common council, board of aldermen, or the town supervisors have placed the national flag over the polling place on registration and election days or they are to have no pay for their services as judges of election. The flag will float.

Eagle: If McKinley would listen more to the voice of the people and less to the voice of Mark Hanna and Stephen Elkins, he would be better thought of and more favorably complimented.

The new law requires school districts to hold their annual election of offices on the third Saturday in June, at 7 o' clock, unless the hour has previously been set at a different time. This is a month earlier than heretofore, and newly elected offices take their seats July 1, giving them time to hire teachers for the fall term of school. This is a better arrangement than the old plan, and is apt to ensure more harmony between trustees and teachers, and better schools.

The Republican State convention has been called for Thursday, June 30, at St Paul, the county conventions are to be held on Thursday, June 23.

Among the names of jurors drawn for the term of federal court, to begin at Duluth May 10, appears: Grand jury. C. W. Swanberg, Cokato. Petit jury. John C. Nugent, Jr. Buffalo.

Star News: River men are complaining because the water is so low that it is impossible to drive logs. Unless we get heavy rains there will not be much lumber cut this season.

The Howard Lake Herald says Major McCornack, has 41 names for a military company at that place to drill and be prepared if occasion demands. The Rev. gentleman would make a good looking soldier himself.

The Howard case seems to be having quite a controlling influence in Wright County politics. It seems likely to keep more would be offices seekers out of politics than to get them into office. It is rather a strong electioneering argument.

Judge Canty appears to please Wright County people well, and so far as they are concerned, regardless of politics, to be their choice for successor to himself. A Judge pleases best when he fearlessly discharges his duty regardless of consequences, politically speaking.

The scrap between the editors at Buffalo goes merrily on. Even the "devils" are engaging. It is about time to call a halt boys. If you must continue to fight to the death, join one of the regiments being hurried to Cuba and die for your country. Wright County has too many such as you who have trotted together so long now accuse each other of being.

County Commissioners Meet.

At their meeting last week the County Commissioners transacted the usual amount of business:

School district petitions of Andrew C. Davitt, of Woodland, and of H. T. Moland, of Silver Creek, were granted.

License to sell liquor at St. Michaels, Station was granted to George Vetsch.

Requests for abatement of taxes of B. Mattson, Waverly, and of Edith Lanway, Delano, were recommended.

Of Thomas Wren, Monticello, rejected.

Two New School districts, Nos. 128 and 129 were made by dividing No. 56 into three districts.

School petition of William Henne, of Stockholm to be heard May 20.

School petitions of James McGrath, rejected on the grounds of illegality.

Road appropriations were made as follows: Cokato, $200; Corinna, $100; Frankfort, $200; Franklin, $200; French Lake, $175; Maple Lake, $150; Middleville, $175; Marysville, $175; Monticello, $200; Otsego, $100; Rockford, $275; Silver Creek, $125; Stockholm, $200; Victor, $200; Woodland, $200.

Usual number of claims were allowed.

Claims laid over, W. H. Frazee, Agt. for witnesses; and the quarantine claim of Otsego township.

W. H. Johnson, of Howard Lake, was appointed to look after matter relating to burial expenses of dependent and deceased soldiers in the 5th Commissioner District.

Board adjourned to meet in special session May 20.

Health Officer's Notice.

To property owners and others interested, of the Village of Delano:

You are hereby notified to clean up and put in good shape alleys, vacant lots, back yards, cellars, and other places that may be or become sources of disease, on or before the 22 day of May, 1898, at which time the Health Officer will, in accordance with law. Make his annual spring ihspection. Unless you desire the village officers to see to matters for you at your expense; look after them yourselves at once. We would also call attention to the fact that there are ordinances against keeping hogs inside of certain limits in the village and prohibiting the running of slaughter houses and other nuisances. Keep the ordinances and avoid trouble.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of $225.00, which is claimed to be due, and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by John E. Haley and Sylvia Haley, his wife, mortgagors, to Elias H. Robinson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of April 1893, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Wright, and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of April A. D. 1893 at 4 o'clock P. M., in book 9 of mortgages, page 640, and no action or proceeding having been instituted by law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes in such case provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit:

The northeast quarter of the southwest quarter, and the east half of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot 2 of section 26, in township 121, range 23 in said County of Wright, with the hereditaments and appertenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Wright county at the front door of the Court House in the town of Buffalo in said county and state on the 4th day of June 1898 at 2 o'clock P. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of $225.00 and interest and $25.00 attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in the case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

T. J. CATLIN. Publisher and Proprietor

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE Aitkin Age says J. Adam Bede is coming to Aitkin to speak. After puffing him finely, the article wind up. "We look for a treat, and hope no one will miss the opportunity to hear him." Want J. Adam treat all the people just the same?

JOHN Sherman has retired from the office of Secretary of the Treasury. His assistant, Judge Day, has been appointed to the place. It is given out that Senator Davis, of Minnesota was offered the position but promptly declined to be shelved in Mr. McKinley's cabinet, preferring to take his chances on again being sent back to the Senate.

JOHN LIND, late candidate for Governor has been appointed Quartermaster of the Third Minnesota Infantry. Mr. Lind has but one hand and would not be accepted as a private, but he will do his share of looking after the boys so far as his office will permit him, and if necessity requires, he can fire a revolver with one hand. Mr. Lind is patriotic to enlist in the very first call for troops to fight his country's battles.

STARVATION is the leading mode of warfare now a days. The Spaniards undertook starving the Cubans out of Cuba. Then the United States government established a blockade around Havana to starve out the Spaniards. Volunteers have been called for to free the Cubans. Young men have left their jobs, gone to the cities and joined militia companies to help the suffering Cubans, and they are turned out in the cold without food or shelter to shift for themselves. Something is not run as smoothly as it should be. This starving game should be stopped. We don't believe in it.

UNDER existing circumstances it looks like foolishness for University boys to drop their studies and enlist, simply for the sake of being in the first regiments called out. Their term at school will soon have been completed. Those who are to graduate will have been given their diplomas in regular order. Most of them will be well drilled men and can, if occasion calls for it, on reaching their respective homes, at once begin drilling every man they can induce to take part in drilling. Many of them can thus secure positions as officers, because of their eminent qualifications. By enlisting companies and helping them acquire a knowledge of military tactics they can be of of much more good to their country than by going in a body to Cuba to be killed or die of yellow fever, thus depriving the state of some of its ablest drillmasters. If a rush was to be made, a great victory to be won, and the war wound up with the end of the charge, it would be better to have the best drilled soldiers obtainable, in sufficient numbers to insure success. But if a long time is to be consumed in traveling over barren wastes in Cuba; in digging trenches and throwing up fortifications, and in preparing for defense or assault, young men from the fields and shops and the various walks of life would be as effectual in the ranks by the time the engagements are to come off as would the best drilled men that any University can turn out. And while there are plenty of men willing to fill the quota from our state, unless, as we said before an active, quick termination to hostilities is to be the order, there is no need of forcing or coaxing anybody to join the army.

Ex Post Facto War.

Congress On Monday, April 25, passed a declaration of war: "First that war be, and the same is hereby declared to exist, and that war has existed since the 21st day of April, A. D. 1898, including said day, between the United State and Spain"

Now if they could but declare that the Cubans are free, and the Reconcentradoes fed and happy, and have been since April 21, things might be all right. But if the Cubans are being starved at the rate it was claimed they were being, and it is to be presumed things are not improved with the harbor blockaded, it looks as if there would not be many of them left to enjoy freedom when it comes, if it is to come only when Spain gets ready to give it to them.

To people at this distance from the scene of starvation, and blockade with the knowledge of the situation as learned from newspapers, it looks as if the proper thing to do would be to supply Gomez, and his comrades with enough munitions of war, and subsistance, to equip every man he could get, and let enough of those nearest by, who desire to do so, and can best stand the climate to advance at once near enough to the Spanish strong hold to release all prisoners, and get them where they can be fed; then, if thought best, let the forts alone as long as any one cares to let them alone. It don't seem necessary, in that way to sacrifice the lives of anybody hardly. It looks as if these disirable objects could be accomplished without storming the forts or having our navy destroyed or crippled. Under existing circumstance it looks as if that plan would accomplish the objects of those who want the starving fed, and of the President and others, who want a bloodless war.

It is a terrible thing to think of ordering the modern armored vessels with their mighty guns to open up on fortification where everybody in range must be annihilated, or the vessels be sunk to the bottom of the sea by shots well directed from opposing forces.

It is no wonder the President hesitates to make haste; but if the suffering Cubans are to be helped, it that is the object of this war they should be reached and fed before they all starve. If the soldiers, after weeks of delay, should be premitted to take charge of the island, and find no starving reconcendraes there, they would think they would think they were poorly paid for their patriotism, or that some one had deceived them. If starvation is the plan of battle it should not be allowed to be played upon those the stronger power is supposed to be fighting for. We see no other plan that will meet the want of those desiring that the starving Cubans, be fed and that the war be bloodless. And this plan to be effected should be at once acted upon.

Rustling for a Candidate.

The Republicans have begun to rustle for a candidate for governor as they never rustled before. They have suggested Eustis, Collins, and the present incumbent has tried his cloak on Capt Van Sant, but it don't seem to stay on very well, and Bob Dunn has been talked of. But the latest, is the old time dodge, of nationality, and this time of all others it must be played. John Lind is about sure to be nominated for Governor and supported by everybody that is honesty tired, thoroughly tired of ring rule in Minnesota and John happens to be a Swede. The Swedes have always been claimed as solid for the G. O. P. through thick and thin, and in order to get back into the ranks what votes slipped out, believeing with John Lind, last election, some are claiming now that Hon, A. E. Rice, is just the man for Governor. It seems to have struck the astute politicians all at once that about the only man that would have a show against John Lind would be a Scandinavian. Mr. Rice, would fill the bill. Mr. Eustice, Judge Collins, Mr. Van Sant, and Bob Dunn, don't happen to belong to that nationality. So to speak they ain't in it. That settles the question with some very easily. If we must have a Swede for Governor, let us elect one of our own, "but will that subterfuge pull back Mr. Lind's friends into the ranks? We guess not. Mr. Rice may be the equal of any man in the state for governor. But, why did'nt the G. O. P. find it out before? Why must Mr. Eustis, Mr. Collins, Capt Van Sant, and Bob Dunn, be counted over before Mr. Rice was found? It is a little too transparent gentlemen. If the Scandinavians have become convinced that Minnesota Republicans are not running our state as it should be run, and that all the G. O. P. wants of them is their votes, even if they are obliged to yield up an office occasionally when, like now they can't get it for anybody else, in order to secure them, they surely wont go back on John Lind.

It is of no use, you had as well give it up as a lost case. It is of no use to try to poke the nomination off onto Mr. Rice now. If the case is hopeless let Eustice, Collins, Van Sant, or Bob Dunn or some other tough old warrior have the empty honor of the nomination. Don't put it onto Mr. Rice and thus crush another Scandinavions hope of future political prefferment by getting him defeated in a race that no other aspirant dare to run in. That's hardly fair to the Scandinavions who have so faithfully pulled your old machine out of so many ugly holes. It is a long lane that has no turn and the Scandinavian friends appear to be coming to the end of the lane, so far as training with the gang and playing pack horse is concerned. It wont do at this late date to trot out a Scandinavian simply because he is a Scandinavian to run aganist John Lind. We doubt very much if Mr. Rice would even consider the offer at all.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22, 1898.

Glory hallelujah! The scales have dropped from Mr. McKinley's eyes; Americans are to have an opportunity to avenge the Maine, and Spain is to be whipped out of Cuba. This was made certain when Mr. McKinley signed the joint resolution adopted by Congress authorizing the use of the U. S. army and navy and the militia of the several states to drive Spain out of Cuba, and forwarded an ultimatum to Spain demanding the immediate evacuation of Cuba, and giving notice that unless a satisfactory answer was received by Saturday he should proceed to carry out the provisions of the resolution. The nature of the answer was made known in advance by the Spanish minister's demanding his passports and leaving Washington, after notifying the Department of State that the French Ambassador and the Austrian Minister had been authorized to act jointly in looking after Spanish interests in the U. S. So that no matter when or where the first gun may be fired the U. S. and Spain will be considered by themselves and the rest of the world as at war with each other on and after Sunday.

This is not the time to exploit partisan politics, but it is only a matter of justice to the democrats and populists in Congress to keep the record straight, by calling attention to the fact that the position occupied by Mr. McKinley and his administration and party today has been that of the democrats and populists in Congress since the announcement of the blowing up of the Maine. The latter are not asking any special credit for their thoroughbred Americanism, which has helped the people of the country to force the administration into a fighting humor. Like the brave marine who reported to Capt. Sigsbee that his ship had been blown up, and like Capt. Sigsbee and Fitz Lee, they have only done their duty; but on the other hand, they should not be deprived of the credit due them, by those who allowed themselves to be bamboozled by the trickery of Spanish diplomacy into believing that a peaceful settlement of the account between the U. S. and Spain could be arrived at, until an indignant and aroused public sentiment opened their eyes to the real situation, and who now claim that the present situation has been brought about by their policy when it exists in spite of their policy. Getting himself in a fighting humor is not the only way in which Mr. McKinley has followed the democrats. Although he opposed the recognition of the independence of the present government of Cuba with so much vehemence that he succeeded in having it struck out of the resolution after it had been adopted by the Senate, he has since practically, if not officially, recognized the Cuban republic by treating with its officials, through Gen. Miles.

Owing to the late day in which Mr. McKinley abandoned hopes of peace and the delay in ordering the troops of the regular army south, and in issuing the call for volunteers, the most that this government can do until it has succeeded in getting an invading army ready for embarkation at ports adjacent to Cuba is to blockade Cuba with our warships, and to wait for the army to be got ready. It is too late to find fault now, but the facts are stated in order that it may be understood why Cuba is not at once taken. It will be but a waste of amunition for our ships ito batter down the forts of Havana, until we have an army on shore to see that the Spaniards do not get away to the interior of the island. No half way business is wanted. It is expected that the orders to blockade Cuba will be issued not later than Sunday, and that the fleets in Hampton Roads and at Key West will move at once and begin the work. Meanwhile, the troops are being massed in the South as fast as possible.

The old gold bond scheme cropped up again this week. Those behind it thought it possible to take advantage of the enthused patriotism of Congress to rush through a bill authorizing an issue of gold bonds, but at the first hint of the scheme they discovered their error. The democrats would not go so far as to support the resolution offered by Senator Allen, absolutely prohibiting any further increase in the bonded indebtedness of the country, but they will never allow a bill providing for an issue of gold bonds to pass, war or no war. They can be counted upon to give the administration every legitimate support in raising money to conduct the was, just as they have done up to this time, but they will never be tricked by any gold bond scheme.

Candidate for Congress.

MAPLE PLAIN, April 27th 1898. Mr. Ed. GAZETTE. Dear Sir. I thought I would drop you a few lines, considering you as a dear friend to let you into the secrets of my mind in behalf of the trouble I am in about our war and other matters. I find upon investigation that I am not able to get to the front in the army and so I am very anxious to do something for our country I thought I would announce myself as a candidate for congress on an independent ticket in the next campaign and in so doing I will be at the disposal of my friends. Of course I wish to state that as I now look at our condition as a country, I think we are in a very precarious condition, and unless some very radical changes are made with regard to our laws and rulings of the same we must be lost as a nation.

Now my policy will, when I get to congress, be to have all things put under the government stamp and hence all things will be on an equality in that respect so that pot can't call kettle black. Mr. Ed. as the President of U. S. is stamped with $50,000 a year, and our Congressmen are stamped $5,000 a year and our legislators are stamped so much per diem and our country, town and all other officers are stamp at a certain rate, and all our taxable property being taxed to pay for all this stamping and the product of gold is stamped and silver used to be stamped for money, and those metals being dug out of the earth by the hand of man. I think I, as a farmer, ought to have what I dig out the earth stamped in order to put myself on equal footing with the rest of my fellows, for I do not think it right to give some an undue advantage over others by the process of stamping. I wish to have it distinctly understood when I get to congress I shall work with all my might to inaugurate the above policy of stamping as that. I think, will put all the people on equal footing for life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, according to our Constitution. Again if my friends see fit to send me to the White House on the above principles all right they will certainly be greatfully remembered by me and I will gladly return the favor if possible. Of course it will cost me a large amount of boodle to get there but I can do as the rest do, buy and sell as often as I can and thereby get the stamps. To get there is my only hope as all I have left me is my tongue and lungs, so good by for the present. Now Mr. Ed. do not print this unless you see fit as I do not care a straw.

EARL HOISINGTON.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

(By Hon. B. F. Christlieb.)

Mr. Editor: 1898 up to date is not a year to awaken the most sanguine anticipations in the heart of the average Californian, taking into account its frosts and drouth: the effects of the latter is now beginning to be realized, and it seems to be most apparent in the food supply for domestic animals.

It is the usual custom at the proper time, during the season that rain falls, to sow some kind of grain, as wheat, oats, barley, or some other variety on unused lands, or on lands intended for that purpose, to be grown by the approaching rainfall and to be cured into feed before ripening; so this season, the seed was sown as usual but the rainfall since has not been sufficient to develop a crop; instead, a stunted growth is to be seen which some parties are trying to save. but the ground, after the mower has passed over it, shows only scattering straws, not as plentiful as that which remains on a Minnesota grain field after a crop has been reaped and stacked. On what is known as the "wet lands" which usually grows any crop without irrigation and on which about six crops per year of Alfalfa clover are raised, but three crops of the latter are expected this year without irrigation, and no other crop can be grown this year without irrigation. All food for animals will have to be shipped in from countries that moisture falls at any time during the year. Horses are offered at very low prices, almost for the taking away. There are very few cattle in this part of the state outside of those owned by milk men. No sheep, but plenty of dogs.

The fruit growing regions near the mountains, where they depend entirely on irrigation may pass through with less inconvenience. Their water supply comes from the mountains, on which there was a considerable fall of moisture in the shape of snow, the snow fall in the mountains being apparently greater than the rainfall in the valleys and lower lands, but even the mountain supply will likely be short in places. Localities having artesian wells are likely to fare the best. It seems to be a bad year for every one excepting the "one lungers", and there are lots of them here. The warm, dry air is supposed to be beneficial to them.

As far as I can learn the Klondyke and Alaska gold fields have not attracted many people from this part of California. Quite a number of gold miners, especially those of limited means, prefer to take chances in less promising fields in California and in localities where there is free gold but without water to separate it from the earth, using an apparatus known as the "dry washer". It imitates to some extent the grain fan or grain screen, varying in structure according to the ideas of the miner or inventor.

The one that I had the privilege of viewing was a machine of about four or five feet in length, 4 feet in heighth and about 20 to 24 inches in width, and consists of a riddle, bellows, hopper, and the cog wheels and crank of the grain fan with the addition of a balance wheel; the machine to be operated by one person. In the first place it is necessary that the earth be loose and dry, there being no difficulty in that respect in this arid region. The loose earth is thrown into the hopper, and motion of the machinery causes it to pass over the riddle with one fourth inch meshes, the riddle being in motion and on an incline. the gravel and coarser earth passes over a board making the lower end of the riddle frame, and crosswise of which is a cleat which impedes the flow of this coarser material and is supposed to catch the gold nuggets, if there are any amongst this coarser material on account of their weight, the gravel and earth being lighter will pass over the cleat, leaving the heavier, the gold nuggets, on the upper side of the cleat; and the finer material after dropping through the riddle passes over the upper side of the bellows, which is an inclining surface of canvas or ducking on which are several cleats placed crosswise, and the motion of the bellows causes the air within it to pass through the canvas and blow the earth away, leaving the gold resting against the upper sides of the cleats. With this machine one man can carry on his mining operations within himself.

This process is supposed to separate the free gold from the earth as successfully as the water process, but cannot, it is said, be used so successfully in extensive operations as water, but as the machine is inexpensive and light in weight it is quite suitable to miners of limited means, affording oppertunities for making living wages at least, and avoiding the danger of being frozen or starved to death. It can be used in places where water cannot be obtained in sufficient quantities for mining purposes or from where it is impracticable to ship the material to places where it can be cleaned and separated.

The weather is beginning to warm up some. On the 13th of April the thermometer stood at 99 degree. That period lasted only for a few days and it has become cool and pleasant since, and likewise the war spirit is warning up and some are offering their services since the war has been practicably declared.

MONROVIA April 22, 1898.

Is War Necessary?

ST. JOSEPH, MO., April 25.—Bishop Burke has created a mild sensation in Catholic circles here by declaring war between the United States and Spain unnecessary, and that it will be a calamity to this government, and forever a blot on our national character.

"The difficulties between the goyernments could have been settled by mediation," Bishop Burke said in a sermon at the cathedral, "and there would have been no war if the pope had been heard."

Bishop Burke paid Mckinley high tribute for his efforts to maintain peace, and said the United States senate went mad. He said that Catholics would shed blood in this war as they had in all others. He did not advise them to stay out of it, but told them it was their duty to fight for their country. Bishop Burke believes the war with Spain will lead to international complications that may involve the United States in war with other nations.

Many of the Catholics are severely criticising the remarks of the bishop, and many left the church during the sermon.—Dispatch.

Made Minors Drunk.

Henry Burfeind, who had a saloon at 514 Plymouth avenue this morning, is now without one, his license having been revoked at noon to-day by Mayor Pratt. It was charged against Burfeind that he sold liquor to a minor, the complainant being Embory Worthingham, whose son got the liquor. Young Worthingham is only 16 years old but nearly six feet tall. Burfeind admitted that he had sold liquor to the boy and his mates.—Minneapolis Journal.

Spanish batteries fire on U. S. vessels.

The Monitor Terror and the gunboat Machias captured the Spanish vessel Guido. Her cargo is said to be worth $400,000. Her crew is 36 men.

The batteries at Matanzas, Cuba, fired on the U. S. steamers in the harbor on Wednesday. The New York, Puritan, and Cincinnati returned the fire. About 300 shots were fired and the batteries silenced. No shot struck a U. S. vessel. Pieces of the Spanish embankments flew high in the air.

Today's papers claim Spain has secured a lot of coal from Germany.

MARCH, April and May are the warmest months of the year on the great plateau of Mexico. They come at the end of the dry season. After the rains begin, the last of May, or early in June, the air is pure, there is no dust, and the temperature is always delightful.

WITH an apparatus called the myophone a French scientist has proved that the nerves may live many hours after the death of the body. The sound in the instrument shows that a nerve may act on a muscle, in a state of electric excitability, without producing more than simple molecular vibration.

MISS LONG, eldest daughter of the secretary of the navy, who, several months ago, decided to give up the allurements of Washington society and begin a course of study in medicine at the Johns Hopkins university, has announced to her friends her intention of volunteering her services as nurse in the event of war.

A CURIOUS theory lately revived in Italy is that the sap of a tree ebbs and flows in sympathy with the tides of the ocean. A grower of vines and fruit trees says that no tree should be lopped or pruned except during the hours of ebb tide. He has taken 14 years to come to this conclusion and now always acts upon it.

ADMIRAL BUNCE, of the Brooklyn navy yard, in speaking of women in times of war, said the other day: "A few bright, cheery, good women will do more to keep civilization and chivalry alive in a camp than any number of rules and regulations. Their ministerings will make victory brigther, defeat easier and death less horrible."

MANY young society women of New York have applied as helpers at the Red Cross hospital preparatory to a call for arms. The names of more than 150 applicants have been registered during the past week, including many trained nurses, from as far distant as Illinois, others from New Jersey and Long Island, but the majority from the Presbyterian, New York and Bellevue hospitals.

AT a meeting of ex-confederate soldiers in Owensboro, Ky., the other day one of the speakers, Jerry Small, made a happy hit when he said: "I speak my own sentiments truly, and I believe it to be the sentiments of every ex-confederate soldier, when I say that we tried for four years to whip Uncle Sam, and now we shall refuse to allow somebody else to come here and do what we couldn't do ourselves."

THE famous Bonanza creek and the more famous Eldorado creek, where gold was discovered in the Klondike, are very like ordinary everyday creeks in appearance, "Stick George" Cormack and his squaw's relatives camped on the creek for dinner one day, and somehow got to digging and washed out some gold. He went to Forty-mile and made a claim for discovery, and soon the news spread like wildfire.

WOOLTON WINDMILL, a historic landmark in Liverpool, Eng., was recently destroyed by fire caused by the friction of the sails, which were sent around with terrific rapidity by the heavy gale. The flour mill adjoining, with its valuable contents, was also destroyed. A grand spectacle was presented when the burning sails were whirling around. They ultimately fell on the steam mill adjoining, setting it on fire.

MRS. SADI M. JOHNSTONE, of Woodside, L. I., has six sons, and in the event of war with Spain every one of them will fight for his country. Her oldest boy is ordnance officer on the United States cruiser Raleigh, attached to the Asiatic squadron at Hong Hong. Four others are members of the naval reserve, and the youngest boy, who is assistant postmaster at Woodside, has enlisted in the Seventeenth separate company of Flushing.

THERE are in America to-day two machines that promise to create more stir in American cycle racing circles than will be created by the presence of all the foreign champions now here or on the way. These are the electric pacing machines of the famous tandem team, Jalau brothers—the only two, it is claimed, that are in existence to-day. The speed of the machines is not known, but a mile a minute on a properly banked track, it is claimed, is not impossible.

THE strain upon the nerves of the queen regent is great at present. Her couch is indeed not a bed of roses. The emotion to which for once she gave way told much at the Theater Royal a few evenings ago, when the gratitude of the entire audience burst forth, and the gentle woman who has always done all in her power for Spain and peace received an ovation rarely given to a woman, perhaps never before to a foreigner. The chief amusement of the queen regent is the opera, and she occasionally attends a dramatic performance.

IN the New York supreme court the other day the profit in a 15-cent dinner in the Bowery, Chatham square and such places played an important part in a suit for separation. Catherine Taylor accused her husband, George Washington Taylor, of cruelty. In giving her testimony Mrs. Taylor said her husband had $620,000, all of which had been made in supplying a hungry and not too discriminating public with 15-cent dinners. This great fortune, she said, was amassed solely through her energy and business capacity, after several years of hard labor.

MANY ladies who have a fad for making collection of various kinds, will be glad to know that the republic of Cuba has recently begun the coinage of silver dollars, which are sold as Cuban souvenirs. The faces of the coin were designed by a sculptor of New York City. These are sold for $1 each, with 10 cents additional for postage. There is also issued a set of postage stamps, consisting of two, five, ten and twenty-five centravos.

FORMALLY DECLARED

Congress Says War Has Existed Since April 21, 1898.

Quick Action Taken by Both Houses in Response to a Message from the President—Text of Declaration of War.

Washington, April 26.—The house of representatives on Monday passed the bill declaring the existence of a state of war between the United States and the kingdom of Spain in a manner which cannot fail to impress the world. The representatives of 70,000,000 people voted for it without a word of debate, without a dissenting vote and without a roll call, but with a solemn appreciation of the gravity of their momentous action. It required but one minute and 41 seconds to accomplish this. The house was considering an election case and simply paused to declare war. There was no excitement, no cavil, no word or question. It was only in the great cheer that went up from floor and galleries when Speaker Reed announced its passage that the tremendous import of the act and the suppressed enthusiasm behind it was shown. After the president's message was read the committee on foreign affairs framed the resolution, Acting Chairman Adams wrote the report and it was passed on its way to the senate in an hour and six minutes. The speaker signed it at 4:49.

Following is the text of the declaration of war reported by the house foreign affairs committee:

The War Bill.

"A bill declaring that war exists between the United States of America and the kingdom of Spain.

"Be it enacted, etc.

"First—That war be and the same is hereby declared to exist and that war has existed since the 21st day of April, 1898, including said day, between the United States of America and the kingdom of Spain.

"Second—That the president of the United States be and he hereby is directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states, to such extent as may be necessary to carry this act into effect."

Action in the Senate.

Washington, April 26.—After a debate of an hour and a half's duration, conducted in secret session, the senate passed a bill declaring that a state of war exists between the United States and Spain. The bill was in the same language as that passed by the house. The debate in the senate was based on an amendment offered by Senator Turpie (Ind.) providing for the recognition of the belligerent rights of the insurgent Cubans, the amendment being practically in the following language:

"We hereby recognize the rights of the Cuban army under Gen. Maximo Gomez to be treated as belligerents, the freedom and independence of the Cuban people having heretofore been recognized by an act of congress."

The roll of the senate was called upon this amendment and it was defeated by a majority of 14, the vote standing 24 to 38. There was no division on the passage of the bill.

Signed by the President.

The war bill was brought from the capitol by the clerk of the enrolling division and reached the white house a few minutes before six. The enrolled copy of the bill was laid before the president in his office immediately on its arrival, and he at once went over the phraseology with the attorney general. The presidential signature was affixed at 6:18 and the measure was then the law of the land.

Victims of a Feud.

Little Rock, Ark., April 26.—A bloody tragedy in the Eagle-Booie feud was enacted at Lonoke at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, in which the Booie faction was almost wiped out of existence. The Eagles caught the Booies at a disadvantage and poured a terrible volley of shots into them. W. K. Boodie, the father, a prominent business man, and his two sons, Will and Charlie Booie, were instantly killed. The Eagles came out of the engagement unhurt. All concerned are prominent. The Eagles were closely related to ex-Gov. J. P. Eagle, and W. K. Booie was an ex-member of the Arkansas legislature, his family being one of the oldest in the state. The Eagles are well known in Lonoke county, and their faction has dominated local politics for years. The feud is of long standing and grows out of a political clash between members of the two families.

Proclaims Martial Law.

Havana, April 23.—Capt. Gen Blanco has published a decree confirming his previous decrees and declaring the island to be in a state of war. He also annuls his former similar decrees granting pardon to insurgents, and places under martial law all those who are guilty of treason, espionage, crimes against peace or against the independence of the nation, seditious revolts, attacks against the form of government or against the authorities and against those who disturb public order, though only by means of printed matter.

Nevada—One troop cavalry.
Arizona—Two troops cavalry.
New Mexico—Four troops cavalry.
Oklahoma—One troop cavalry.

Washington, April 26.—It is positively stated that the president does not contemplate a call for additional volunteers for the present.

Canadian Neutrality.

Ottawa, Ont., April 26.—The customary proclamation declaring Canada to be neutral during the war between the United States and Spain was approved by the cabinet Monday, and an extra edition of the Canadian Official Gazette will follow at once with the proclamation, signed by the governor-general. The illegal enlistment act, which will also be proclaimed, forbids the building or dispatching of ships by British subjects to be used in the employment of either belligerents.

HER PORTS BARRED.

Great Britain Issues Neutrality Proclamation—Other Powers May Take a Like Course.

Washington, April 25.—Great Britain served notice Sunday on the governments of the United States and Spain to withdraw their men-of-war from her ports within the next 24 hours. This notification was contained in a neutrality proclamation formally presented to the state department Sunday morning by Sir Julian Pauncefote, British ambassador here.

Of the utmost importance is this proclamation of neutrality issued by Great Britain. It is regarded as being highly favorable to the United States. By her action Great Britain has shown the powers of Europe that she proposes to be strictly neutral, and, having committed herself to this policy, diplomats here say that such influence as nations sympathizing with Spain may have been desirous of bringing to bear upon her with a view to securing her assistance in intervention to end the war will not now be exercised, because it will be appreciated that its employment would be useless.

Further than this, it is believed here that the proclamation will effectually prevent intervention of continental European powers, as they will not take action unless Great Britain is a party to it.

Passed by the House.

Washington, April 25. — The house Saturday passed the army reorganization bill at the urgent request of the president and secretary of war, but the senate did not remain in session as was expected, and the bill will not go to the president until this week.

The bill reorganizes the army into the three-battalion formation and authorizes the 25 regiments of the infantry arm of the service to be recruited up to a total of 31,800 enlisted men. It authorizes the recruitment of ten regiments of the cavalry arm of the service to a total of 12,000 enlisted men, the seven regiments of the artillery arm of the service to 16,457 men and the engineer battalion of five companies up to 752 enlisted men, including two noncommissioned officers, which makes a total for these four arms of the service when at a maximum strength of 61,010.

Prize of Cruiser Detroit.

Key West, Fla., April 25.—The Spanish transatlantic steamer Catalina was captured Sunday 12 miles from Havana by the cruiser Detroit. She has just arrived here under prize crew. When the first shot was fired, her captain made a desperate effort to escape his pursuer, and the chase was prolonged for eight miles. Finally a solid shot brought her to. She is carrying a cargo of 6,000 tons of staves. The gunboat Helena on Saturday captured the Spanish merchant steamer Miguel Jover, valued at $400,000.

Instructions Not for an Attack.

Washington, April 25.—Rear Admiral Sampson's orders respecting the reduction of Havana contemplate no immediate bombardment of that city. The guns which comprise the batteries protecting the city may shoot as much as they please at the ships hovering at the entrance of the harbor, but there will be no return fire at present.

CUBAN PORTS CLOSED.

Blockade of Havana and Other Cities Now in Effect.

Text of President McKinley's Proclamation of the Fact—Blockade Limited to Only Part of the Island.

Washington, April 23.—The following proclamation, announcing a blockade of Cuban ports, was issued Friday:

"By the President of the United States: A Proclamation. Whereas, by a joint resolution passed by the congress and approved April 20, 1898, and communicated to the government of Spain, it was demanded that said government at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba, and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters; and the president of the United States was directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states to such extent as might be necessary to carry said resolution into effect; and

"Whereas, in carrying into effect said resolution, the president of the United States deems it necessary to set on foot and maintain a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including all ports of said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda, and the port of Cienfuegos, on the south coast of Cuba;

Declares Blockade.

"Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, in order to enforce the said resolution, do hereby declare and proclaim that the United States of America have instituted and will maintain a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including ports on said coast, between Cardenas and Bahia Honda, and the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba, aforesaid, in pursuance of the laws of the United States and the law of nations applicable to such cases. An efficient force will be posted so as to prevent the entrance and exit of vessels from the ports aforesaid. Any neutral vessel approaching said ports, or attempting to leave the same, without notice or knowledge of the establishment of such blockade, will be duly warned by the commander of the blockading forces, who will indorse on her register the fact, and the date, of such warning, where such indorsement was made; and if the same vessel shall again attempt to enter any blockaded port, she will be captured and sent to the nearest convenient port for such proceedings against her and her cargo as prize, as many be deemed advisable.

"Neutral vessels lying in any of said ports at the time of the establishment of such blockade will be allowed 30 days to issue therefrom.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 22d day of April, A. D. 1898, and of the independence of the United States, the One Hundred and Twenty-second.

"(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"By the President.

"JOHN SHERMAN, Secretary of State."

The limitation of the blockade in Cuba to a certain part of the island was not officially explained, but one plausible reason advanced for the government's action was that by refraining from establishing a blockade over the eastern portion of the island understood to be practically in the control of the insurgents the way has been left open for them to freely receive all needed supplies and munitions of war.

To Arm Insurgents.

Washington, April 26. — Arrangements have been completed by the government to supply the Cuban insurgents with arms and ammunition. The government is preparing now to land in Cuban from 20,000 to 30,000 stands of improved Springfield rifles, a number of artillery batteries, rapid-fire Maxim guns and an abundance of ammunition for the effective use of them. It cannot now be said when these munitions of war will be placed in the hands of the insurgents, but when the proper time arrives for 30,000 armed Cubans to cooperate with the American forces they will be thoroughly armed and equipped for battle. It is understood that this government will not deliver the arms to any person but Gen. Gomez in person, and he will, as a guarantee of good faith, receive them. Gen. Miles believes that if the insurgents are properly armed and supplied with the artillery they have so long needed they can do more effective work and render the American troops invaluable aid in driving the Spaniards from the island.

Menaced While Leaving Spain.

Hendaye, Spanish Frontier, April 23.—Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, the United States minister to Spain, accompanied by his staff and others, reached the frontier at eight o'clock Friday morning in safety after some exciting experiences. At Valladolid the United States minister's train was attacked and stoned. Windows were broken and the civil guards were compelled to protect his carriage with drawn swords. At Segovia the students of the military college gathered on the platform, cheering for Spain, and there were several similar incidents at other stopping places. It was a great relief to the minister's party when the general finally reached French soil. But Gen. Woodford seemed unconscious of any danger.

Mexico Will Be Neutral.

City of Mexico, April 26.—Senor Mariscal, the minister of foreign affairs, has declared in the course of an interview that Mexico will maintain the strictest neutrality in the Hispano-American war, and that the government has decided to make its decision respected.

A ROYAL DECREE.

By It Spain Recognizes Existence of War with United States—Treaties Are Declared Void.

Madrid, April 25.—The Spanish government has formally recognized the state of war that exists between Spain and the United States. A royal decree was gazetted here Sunday announcing that diplomatic relations between the two nations had been broken off and a state of war begun. The decree is as follows:

"Diplomatic relations are broken off between Spain and the United States, and the state of war having begun between the two countries, numerous questions of international law arise which must be precisely defined chiefly because the injustice and provocation come from our adversaries, and it is they who, by their detestable conduct, have caused this grave conflict.

"We have observed with strictest fidelity the principles of international law and have shown the most scrupulous respect for morality and the right of government. There is an opinion that the fact that we have not adhered to the declaration of Paris does not exempt us from the duty of respecting the principles therein enunciated. The principle Spain unquestionably refused to admit then was the abolition of privateering. The government now considers it most indispensable to make absolute reserve on this point in order to maintain our liberty of action and uncontested right to have recourse to privateering when we consider it expedient, first by organizing immediately a force of cruisers auxiliary to the navy, which will be composed of vessels of our mercantile marine and with equal distinction in the work of our navy."

Following is a summary of the more important of the five clauses outlining the rules Spain will observe during the war:

"Clause 1. The state of war existing between Spain and the United States annuls the treaty of peace and amity of October 27, 1795, and the protocol of January 12, 1877, and all other agreements, treaties or conventions in force between the two countries.

"Clause 2. From the publication of these presents 30 days are granted to all ships of the United States anchored in our harbors to take their departure free of hindrance.

"Clause 3. Notwithstanding that Spain has not adhered to the declaration of Paris, the government, respecting the principles of the law of nations, proposes to observe, and hereby orders to be observed, the following regulations of maritime law:

"1. Neutral flags cover the enemy's merchandise except contraband of war.

"2. Neutral merchandise, except contraband of war, is not seizable under the enemy's flag.

"3. A blockade to be obligatory must be effective—viz.: It must be maintained with sufficient force to prevent access to the enemy's littoral.

"4. The Spanish government, upholding its right to grant letters of marque, will at present confine itself to organizing, with the vessels of the mercantile marine, a force of auxiliary cruisers which will cooperate with the navy according to the needs of the campaign and will be under naval control.

"5. In order to capture the enemy's ships and confiscate the enemy's merchandise and contraband of war, under whatever form, the auxiliary cruisers will exercise the right of search on the high seas and in the waters under the enemy's jurisdiction, in accordance with international law and the regulations which will be published.

"6. Defines what is included in contraband of war, naming weapons, ammunition, equipments, engines, and, in general, all the appliances used in war.

"7. To be regarded and judged as pirates with all the rigor of the law are captains, masters, officers and two-thirds of the crews of vessels which, not being American, shall commit acts of war against Spain, even if provided with letters of marque issued by the United States."

JOHN SHERMAN RESIGNS.

Venerable Secretary of State Steps Out of Cabinet After Long Publis Service.

Washington, April 26.—Another resignation from the cabinet occurred Monday, when the venerable secretary of state, Mr. John Sherman, handed his resignation to the president. Mr. Sherman retires from public life after a service of over 40 years, embracing the house of representatives, the United States senate, the secretaryship of the treasury and the secretaryship of state. The reason for the resignation is the condition of the secretary's health, which is now impaired as the result of years of devotion to the public service and the arduous labors of a lifetime, added to age, the venerable secretary now being within a few days of 75 years of age.

HON. JOHN SHERMAN.

Canton, O., April 26.—William R. Day came to Canton Monday as assistant secretary of state. He is now secretary of state, by action of the president, and will accept the place tendered him.

Landed a Force in Cuba.

Key West, April 26.—The torpedo boat Porter Sunday night landed a force in Cuba—the first during the war. Lieut. Fremont, commander of the Porter, himself led the party, under cover of darkness. The Porter stole in fairly under the guns of the land batteries until she found a suitable landing place near Mariel, hardly a dozen miles from Havana. The party explored the shore for over an hour, going far enough inland to ascertain just what a landing force would have to contend with. The Porter's party were not disturbed, though they were close enough to hear the sentinel at the batteries. Masked batteries at Matanzas fired at the torpedo boat Foote without effect.

Postmaster-General Gary Out.

Washington, April 22.—The president Thursday sent this nomination to the senate: Charles Emory Smith, of Pennsylvania, to be postmaster-general vice James A. Gary, resigned. It is stated at the white house that Postmaster-General Gary's resignation had absolutely nothing to do with our present foreign complications. It was owing entirely, it is stated, to the condition of Mr. Gary's health. The senate has confirmed the nomination of Charles Emory Smith as postmaster-general.

Italy Proclaims Neutrality.

Rome, April 26.—The Official Gazette on Monday published a proclamation enjoining upon all Italian subjects strict neutrality during the war between the United States and Spain.

PROMPTLY MET.

The Boisterous Bully Was Gently But Effectively Called. Down.

There was a big, coarse-voiced fellow, with red face, a superfluity of beef about his head and an insatiable desire to hear himself talk that was nicely come up with in a barber shop the other day. He was flashily dressed and seemed aggrieved that every man employed in the place did not rush to help him get ready for the chair. He had assistance in having himself brought down to the condition for being shaved, declining to handle anything from his hat to his collar and necktie.

While being lathered and shaved he told boisterously and profanely about the degeneracy of the times. Men who had to earn their living didn't know their places and acted as though they were just as good as those who hired them. The greatest mistake this country had ever made was when it did away with slavery instead of extending it to every state and territory in the union.

After he had insisted upon half a dozen additions and extra touches from the knight of the strop the big man stepped from the chair and produced a fat pocketbook, while still holding forth in his offensive vein.

"Nevah mine dat," said the proprietor, who had known life on the plantation in the old days. "We don' make no cha'ge fo' takin' de bris'les off of an' mals like you."

The bully was about to break loose like an unheralded cyclone of destruction, but he saw half a dozen barbers about him, each one whetting a razor on the palm of his hand and looking solemn.

"How do you make money at that price?" he asked with a sickly grin.

"We make it offen ge'men, sah," and it was wonderful to see how soon the big man was dressed and away.—Detroit Free Press.

PHYSICIAN'S LETTERS.

To Dr. Hartman—What the Medical Profession Thinks of Pe-ru-na.

D. P. Niehart, M. D., Nebraska City, Neb.

I am so well pleased with the works of Pe-ru-na in the numerous cases I have been using it during the past two years that I cannot refrain from informing you of the good results obtained. I deem it useless to detail every case (for they are many) in which I have used and prescribed this remedy, but I will say that I have never been disappointed in results. I have used, not dozens, but hundreds of bottles. I am a physician of 58 years' constant practice and always willing to recommend anything of service to suffering humanity. Pe-ru-na stands first and foremost in my estimation of all proprietary medicines.

D. P. Niehart, M. D.

J. W. Sanders, M. D., of Bogue, N. C., writes: "Many proprietary medicines have found their way into public favor, but in my opinion Pe-ru-na is unequaled by any of them. Composed of the best drugs, that act specifically upon the mucous membranes of the body, its range of usefulness is as wide as its benefits are wonderful. In valvular diseases of the heart, especially mitral insufficiency (weakened valves), it is really the only remedy that to me has given satisfaction. A good thing should be praised, and a valuable remedy like Pe-ru-na is a boon to humanity."

TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE.

There are two kinds of people on earth today,
Just two kinds of people—no more, I say.
Not the sinner and saint, for 'tis well understood
The good are half bad and the bad are half good.
Not the rich and the poor, for in counting man's wealth
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.
Not the humble and proud, for in life's little span
Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man.
Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.
No; the two kinds of people on earth I mean
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.
Wherever you go you will find the world's masses
Are always divided in just these two classes;
And, oddly enough, you will find, too, I ween,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.
In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?
Or are you a leaner, who lets others bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?
—Bookkeeper.

HOW PEGGY LISTENED

SOCIETY people might have thought that it was not exactly up to the highest notch of elegance, but since the participants were wholly unconscious of its shortcomings, what did it matter? There is more real weight in the expression of ignorance being the greatest bliss where social matters are concerned than in any other condition of life. The ordinary little girl, who slips into a thin gown and dances all night with "the boys," whom she has known since childhood, in the simple ballroom of a family club finds more unalloyed enjoyment in the entire proceedings than does the veriest brocade-clad, jewel-weighted belle, who glides in stately elegance through the gorgeous cotillon in the most sparkling ballroom of one of society's real leaders. When the little girl has romped her cheeks red through a gay, easy german, or, more frequently, through a hackneyed waltz, she would open her big, blue eyes in amazement if a frigid debutante in the real thing stared at her as decidedly unconventional. But the little girl doesn't even dream that there is any difference between her dance and the one whose details are so exploited in the society columns, so she is a thousand times happier than is her blue-blooded sister, breathing the atmosphere of wealth and all the gnawing envies, rivalries and disappointments pertaining thereunto.

Peggy was very pink after the last dance. Richard always went into that particular waltz with especial fervor. Afterward he explained to her that it was because his first dance with her had been that particular one and she was tease enough to act as though she wasn't at all conscious of the particular significance of the thing. So to-night, when he reluctantly let her slip from his arms, she hadn't quite the necessary courage to refuse his plea that they "go somewhere to rest."

She knew what that meant. Hadn't he carried her off to that particular "somewhere" every night since the little club had begun its informal fortnightly dances? Still, she knew that she would better not go to-night—she had known for weeks that it was coming, and this last waltz had convinced her that it was coming very soon. And Peggy didn't want it to come, at least not just now, for this was Peggy's first winter, and it seemed a shame for a girl to tie herself her first season. Then, too, Richard wanted so much that it should come, and there wasn't anything in the world that Peggy loved so much as to make Mr. Richard wait. It didn't matter whether she delayed him by taking an unusual long time to adjust her veil when he had called to take her some place in the evening, or whether he had to toast his toes before the fire while she dallied over making his cup of tea, or even in telling of his great secret, which poor Richard congratulated himself no one, not even Peggy, knew. To be frank, everybody in the little club had discovered it before he had confessed it to himself. Still Peggy yielded, and was led off to the big chair in the corner of the library, where Richard could perch himself on the window seat beside her, and where the other young people were good enough never to intrude.

Peggy leaned back and let her white lids flutter in happy content over her deep-blue eyes, whereat Richard felt his last bit of common sense leave him.

"Peggy?" he asked, leaning dangerously near her.

Peggy sat up with a little start, and a half-air of rebellion. Then, all at once, she felt his eyes burning into hers, and her courage fled, leaving a very weak, pliant little girl.

"Peggy," he began again, this time laying his hand over hers as it trembled on the arm of the big chair, "I want to tell you something," added Richard.

Peggy closed her eyes again and gathered together her fast-failing courage with one mighty effort. "Don't," she pleaded. "Don't, Richard."

His face grew a trifle paler as he asked: "Why not, little girl?"

Peggy's white cheeks all at once grew fiery, but she said it: "Because I know what you are going to say, and I don't want to hear it."

Poor Richard! So she knew, after all, the secret which he had flattered himself he had kept from all the world, most of all from the tiny, pink-and-white girl whom it most concerned. Then, all at once, it struck him that there was a ludicrous side to the situation, and Peggy was amazed to see a bit of a roguish smile about the corners of his fine mouth, as he asked:

"How do you know that you know what I was going to say?"

It was a mean thing for him to do, and she afterward told him so. Now, however, she put herself on the defensive as much as possible, and answered, valiantly:

"I do know it; no matter how; and I don't want to hear it"—then a little pause, and finally a whispered "just yet."

Richard sprung to his feet, with enough exultation in the movement to startle her.

"When may I tell you, Peggy mine?"

Perhaps he drew her to her feet, perhaps she rose, but all at once she found herself standing before him, with him holding her dangerously close by the two tiny, burning hands.

"Some day," she stammered. Then, noting the happy laughter in his eyes, she cried out: "Oh, Richard, why did you do it? It is almost as bad as if you had really told me, and you've made me say things I had no right to say, and—"

There was a hint of tears in her reproachful, big eyes, and she tugged hard to loose her imprisoned fingers. Instantly, all the teasing fled from his manly face, and he dropped her hands.

"Very well, Peggy; but may I ask you this: Do you realize that it wouldn't be quite—kind, to give me permission to tell you some day, and then not to make me happy by giving me the right answer?"

Peggy's lips quivered helplessly, but she finally lifted her eyes to him bravely and answered: "Yes, I realize, and I'll—be—kind."

For a moment she feared that he was going to kiss her. But after a moment, with a wistful, half-contented sigh, he turned away and with one accord they walked toward the door. At the portal he stopped her and asked again: "Don't make me wait long, little girl. And don't let anyone else tell you the same story in the meantime. I'm not afraid to trust you with the other fellows, but—but I shouldn't be happy to know that they had told you that—told you the story even though I knew you wouldn't care for them."

She answered him only by a look, for some one came up with the frantic explanation that he had been looking everywhere for her, as this was his dance. So she slipped away from the yearning Richard, who made himself ridiculous all the rest of the evening by forgetting that he had left his name on half a dozen programmes before he had carried Peggy off to the library.

When supper time came Richard all at once lost sight of his lady love. He hadn't had a chance to speak to her since the little scene in the big armchair, but he had not for an instant lost sight of the pretty white muslin gown, with its tiny sprigs of pink rosebuds. But in the confusion of the breaking up of the last waltz she mysteriously disappeared, and finally, in sheer desperation, he hunted out her mother, hoping to find the lost maiden under the careful wing of the loving chaperon.

"Where is Peggy?" called the sweet-faced little mother. "I've lost her, and I hoped you would bring her." Poor Richard's heart sunk, and with some murmured explanation that he "would find her in a minute," he plunged off in the midst of the gay little throng. The search was fruitless. Everybody seemed to have drifted into the supper room, and still Peggy was not among them. He plunged into the most impossible corners and hiding places. He even looked into the depths of the big armchair in the library, and still there was no Peggy. At last, when his face was white and his palms were burning where his impatient nails had dug into them, he heard a soft, tearful little whisper from the stairs, and here, in the turn above the landing, he found her sobbing to herself as though her very heart was broken.

"Peggy!" he cried, kneeling on the step beside her and chafing her cold hands between his feverish palms, "Peggy, what is the matter?"

Peggy dabbed her wet little ball of a handkerchief into her eyes and swallowed a sob. "It's—it's that big George Waters," she choked out, and then, with a new fit of sobs, she buried her disconsolate little head in her lap and could go no further.

Richard set his teeth and waited. Then, all at once, he understood, for he had been afraid of Waters all winter. There was no further room for delay. Leaning over he caught the sobbing little figure in his arms and there never was any joy in the world so dear as his when he felt her nestle her face on his shoulder, while her crying grew less violent and finally subsided into an occasional sigh of growing content.

When she had become quiet he gently turned her face to his and said:

"Never mind, little girl, you needn't explain. I know that—that—that impudent cad had presumed to tell you what you didn't want to hear, and I know it wasn't your fault. But don't you think, little girl, that it is time for me to tell you what I had to say a couple of hours ago."

And Peggy actually smiled through her tears while he went off into an elaborate recital of the secret which they congratulated themselves was all their own and had never been so deliciously told by anyone else in the world.—Chicago News.

A Plain President.

The late M. Challemel-Lacour, sent as an ambassador from France to the Swiss confederation, called in due form on his arrival upon the president. The servant who opened the door said that his excellency was in the cellar bottling wine, but that the visitor could come in and wait. The ambassador hung up his overcoat in the hall and went up into the salon. Presently the president bustled in. "An ugly job, monsieur"—drying his hands—"an ugly job! But I always bottle my own wine. Pardon my coat also; it is a poor fit"—glancing down; "it is my son's, to tell the truth—I hurried it on without looking at it." The ambassador bowed and smiled—it was his own coat. The interview being over, he went home shivering, and sent a messenger next day for the coat—"the coat which he hung up in the hall."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Herd of Irish Bulls.

Those fond of Irish bulls may find some amusement in the following letter, which was written by an amorous swain, native of the Emerald Isle, to his lady fair:

My Darlin' Peggy: I met you last night and you never came! I'll meet you again to-night whether you come or whether you stop away. If I'm there first, sure I'll write my name on the gate to tell you of it, and if it's you that's first, why rub it out, darlin', and no one will be the wiser. I'll never fail to be at the trystin' place, Peggy, for, faith, I can't keep away from the spot where you are, whether you're there or whether you're not. Your own, Paddy. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

STATE CALL TO ARMS.

Gov. Clough Responds to The President's Call.

The Various Officers are Named and the Militia Ready to Start—The Powder Mills at Santa Cruz Blown Up By Accident.

St. Paul, April 25.—Last evening the following proclamation was issued by Governor Clough.

State of Minnesota, Executive Department.

Whereas, the congress of the United States has declared that war exists between the United States and the kingdom of Spain; and

Whereas, the president, recurring in this extremity to the only recourse left him, the patriotism of the people who through four great wars have ever proved themselves true to the cause of law and free institutions, has issued a requisition to me as the governor of the state of Minnesota for three regiments of infantry to support the governor;

Now, Therefore, pursuant to the authority in me vested by law and to the requisition of the president of the United States. I D. M. Clough, governor of the state of Minnesota, do hereby give notice that volunteers will be received at the city of St. Paul for three regiments of infantry, twelve companies each. In making the above call, preference will be given to the National Guard of this state. The term of service is for two years unless sooner discharged.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state at the capitol, in the city of St. Paul, this 25th day of April, A. D. 1898.

By the Governor,
(Great Seal) —D. M. Clough.
—Albert Berg,
Secretary of State.

The folllowing officers will be tendered commissions by Gov. Clough, as follows:

For One Regiment—Colonel, C. McC. Reeve, Minneapolis; lieutenant colonel, W. W. Price, majors, Fred W. Ames, Minneapolis; Edward S. Bean, St. Paul; John H. Fredrick, Redwing.

Another Regiment—Colonel, Charles A. Van Duzee, St. Paul; lieutenant colonel, C. E. Johnson, Mankato; majors, Francis H. Bidwell, Duluth, E. S. Persons, Zumbrota; Charles M. Schaeffer, Minneapolis.

Another Regiment—Colonel, Joseph Bobletter, New Ulm; lieutenant colonel, Frank B. McCoy, St Paul. majors, George W. Mead, Mankato; A. W. Wright, Austin; George S. Whitney, Faribault.

WILL BUY HER.

The Navy Department Takes the Holland Torpedo Boat—The Inventor Will Command Her Himself.

Washington, April 27. — Secretary Long has announced his intention of purchasing the Holland submarine torpedo boat on Assistant Secretary Roosevelt's recommendation, notwithstanding an adverse report made by three naval officers, who who were delegated to make an examination of the vessel. The department is convinced that if the boat was allowed to go the French government would purchase it.

Mr. Holland proposes to place the boat in immediate service at Havana. He has offered his services to the to the government as commander, and says he can have a picked crew on on board and be in Havana within ten days.

His proposition is to utilize his boat in blowing up Morro castle. Owing to the location and peculiar construction of the fortress, he says his boat can do also be used to great advantage in destroying submarine mines in Cuba harbors.

CHASED BACK.

A Spanish Gunboat Ventures Out of the Havana Harbor, but is Chased Back by Our Boats.

Havana, April 27.—The Spanish gunboat Pinzon, which tried to creep out of the harbor yesterday morning, was pursued by a cruiser and a torpedo boat and was glad to get back in safety.

Starvation stares the people of this city in the face if the blockade lasts three weeks longer.

Their only hope is in the Spanish flotilla forcing the blockade and relieving the horrors of the situation.

Blown Up.

Santa Cruz, Cal., April 27.—Three explosions about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the California Powder Works caused a greater loss of life than any of the previous accidents in the history of these works. The wildest rumors are prevalent regarding the number of killed and injured, and the exact number cannot now be ascertained. It is known that seven were killed and four seriously injured.

Must Fight.

Washington, April 27—The action of Great Britain and China has made it necessary for Commodore Dewey to take a port in the Philippines as a base of supplies.

With Hongkong and Mioz bay closed to his squadron, there is nothing left for him but to attack the Spanish fleet near Manila. All Americans but one are now safely out of Manila.

A statute requiring railroads and transportation companies to turn over to storage companies or public warehousemen all property not called for by the consignees within 30 days after notice of its arrival, is held, in state vs. Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company (Minn.), 38 L. R. A. 672, to be unconstitutional, because it is not necessary to promote the public welfare and would impose an unreasonable burden upon carriers and an effectual way to absorb the property with unnecessary costs and charges.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Enthusiasm.

Seldom have larger crowds assembled on the streets of Minneapolis than were gathered when the University battalion escorted the field gun which has been used by the University battery, to the M. & St. L. station, from whence it was shipped to the Rock Island arsenal. Enthusiasm in astonishing quantities was shown by the people who thronged the sidewalks and extended into the street a dozen deep. The students themselves kept up a continual cheering, and as every flag suspended above the streets was passed, the old Ski-U-Mah yell rang out with a vengeance.

A Lynching Probably Averted.

Sheriff Ningaard reached Popple postoffice with Thomas Burns, the murderer of Jerry Root, late in the evening. Learning that a lynching party was on its way to the jail he quietly slipped out of the back door of the jail building with his prisoner and put in the night with him in the timber west of Bemidji. The next morning he hired a team and took the prisoner to Fosston. The prisoner will be taken to the Polk county jail for safe keeping.

Conventions.

The republican state convention will be held this year in the Auditorium building, St. Paul, June 30. The convention will consist of 1,178 delegates, or one for each 250 votes cast for President McKinley in 1896, together with five at large from each county.

Chairman Gibbs has issued the call for the meeting of the populist state convention at Normanna hall, Minneapolis, June 16. The Owen vote of 1894 is the basis of representation, and a delegate is allowed for each 100 votes or major fraction cast.

A Spaniard Whipped.

The war fever was high at Owatonna a few days ago. A Spanish blacksmith, C. Zanetti, had a dispute with a popular traveling man, C. Allen. He said Allen, like all Yaukees, was a coward and couldn't make Spain show the white feather. Allen hit him once and disabled him. Allen paid a fine of $10 and costs and says he would hit the president himself if he talked like that.

Colored Boy's Honor.

The state board of pharmacy, which has been holding the usual quarterly examinations at the university, completed its work and adjourned. The class numbered 83, three being young women. The highest rating was awarded Fred L. Shelby, a colored boy from Lake City.

Elk River Blaze.

Fire destroyed a row of business places on Depot street, Elk River, including the postoffice. The aggregate loss will be fully $55,000, on which there is an insurance of about $22,000. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

News in Brief.

Carl M. Iverslie has been commissioned postmaster at Belgrade, and Brown Duckstad at Fertile.

The postoffice at Yarington, Houston county, has been discontinued. Mail will go to Houston.

The third annual session of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was held at Little Falls. At the close a ball and banquet was given.

Sheriff J. E. McKelvy says that he will organize a company of the national guard in St. Cloud. He has the indorsement of Adjutant General Muehlberg, who has promised to send an officer to aid in getting up the new company. Sheriff McKelvy says that if the company is called out he will resign the office of sheriff.

DOCTORS DON'T DENY IT.

The frank testimony of a famous physician.

When Dr. Ayer announced his Sarsaparilla to the world, he at once found the physicians his friends. Such a remedy was what they had looked for, and they were prompt to appreciate its merits and prescribe it. Perhaps no medicine—known as a patent medicine—is so generally administered and prescribed by physicians as Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood diseases, and diseases of the skin that indicate a tainted condition of the blood. Experience has proved it to be a specific in such diseases, and sores of long standing, old ulcers, chronic rheumatism, and many other like forms of disease have yielded to the persevering use of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla after other medicines had utterly failed. The testimonials received from physicians to the value of this remedy would fill a volume. Here is one leaf signed by Rich'd H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

"It affords me pleasure to bear testimony to the success which your preparation of Sarsaparilla has had in the treatment of cutaneous and other diseases arising from a vitiated condition of the blood. Were it necessary, I might give you the names of at least fifty individuals who have been cured of long-standing complaints simply by the administration of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. One very remarkable instance was that of a quite old woman who had lived at Catonsville, near this city. She had been afflicted with the rheumatism for three years, and had taken as she had informed me, more than one hundred dollars' worth of medicine to obtain relief, yet without any beneficial result. I advised her to try a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and told her that if it failed to do her good, I would refund the money. A short time afterward, I learned that it had cured her, and a neighbor of hers similarly afflicted was also entirely relieved of his complaint by its use. This is the universal result of the administration of your Sarsaparilla. It is without exception, the best blood purifier with which I am acquainted."

There is no other similar medicine can show a similar record. Others have imitated the remedy. They can't imitate the record. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the friendship of the physician and the favor of the family, because it cures. It fulfills all promises made for it. It has healed thousands of people of the most malignant diseases that can mutilate mankind. Nothing has ever superceded it and nothing ever will until a medicine is made that can show a record of cures greater in number and equal in wonder to those wrought by Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured, is sent free on request by the J. C. Ayer Company, Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS ABOUT "CHANGE OF LIFE."

Women are Urged to Prepare for this Wonderful Revolution in the Economy of Their Life Blood—Mrs. Watson Tells How She Was Helped.

At no time is woman more liable to physical and mental dangers with hours of suffering than at the "Turn of Life."

The great want in woman's system is ability to properly adjust itself to the new conditions. The outlet, monthly, of blood is now being diminished and carried into the body for the supply food of its later years.

Daughters, you can now to some extent repay your mother's early care. She must be spared every possible exertion. You must help her bear her burdens and anxieties. This critical time safely over, she will return to renewed health and happiness.

That so many women fail to anticipate this change thus happily, is owing not merely to lack of care, but to ignorance. There is, however, no excuse for ignorance when experienced advice can be yours free of all cost. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., she has helped great numbers of women successfully through the Change of Life, and she will help you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best tonic for uterine changes. It works harmoniously upon all these overwrought organs, invigorates the body and drives off the blues.

Read this letter from Mrs. DELLA WATSON, 524 West 5th St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time during the change of life, and it has been a savior of life unto me. I can cheerfully recommend your medicine to all women, and I know it will give permanent relief. I would be glad to relate my experience to any sufferer."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, May 9.

—Mrs Kurpes is having a new kitchen built on her residence, on the West Side.

—Quite a lot of wheat was marketed here this week. Prices were away up regular war prices. $1.07.

—We have some poetry, on the Cuban war, by a Franklin Miss, but it arrived too late for this issue. Look for it next week.

—Al Hitzman sold a car load of Nebraska corn from the car this week at 35 cts a bushel. He says he didn't have near enough to supply his customers.

—The case of Wasaka vs Sturman for damage by the Sturman dog biting Wasaka's boy is being settled out of court. Viscious dogs have a poor defense when it comes to trial.

—Wheat went above the dollar mark at Delano this week, and the driveway into the elevator was crowded from morning till night. The teams sometimes extended half a block from the elevator.

—Rev. Charles Thayer, of Minneapolis held communion service at the Presbyterian church, Sunday. And met many old friends. He used to preach for the congregation here a quarter of a century ago.

—Miss Julia Richel was very pleasantly surprised, Wednesday evening, by a number of her young friends and school mates. The evening was spent in playing games and other amusements and a very enjoyable time was had.

—On Monday the doors of the Delano Furniture Company were closed, and notices posted by F. H. Lindsley that an assignment had been made in favor of the creditors, and that the store would not open again until futher notice.

—Private George Kurtz, of Co. I, M. N. G., visited home on a reconnaitering expendition last night. He was warmly welcomed. He returned this morning, carrying with him a supply of tin ware, under clothes etc., etc., for himself and mess mates.

—The Delano creamery is putting in a new boiler and engine, and expect soon to put in some other new machinery to bring the outfit up to date, and then they don't propose to be behind anybody in turning out first class creamery butter.

—Rev. J. L. Farber preached a war sermon Sunday evening. He is bound to keep up to the times and war at present seems to be the theme most discussed. He took Paul's plan of likening the Christian life to that of a warrior, and made some good applications.

—Editor Buckley is again to take charge of the quills of the Old Bird up street as James A. Wharton is moving to Willmar where he will run the Argus. It is to be hoped the Argus and Eagle won't get to quarreling as badly as some of the Wright County papers have been.

—Earl Hoisington, of Independence, was a GAZETTE caller yesterday. He says the Tribune has an article concerning his candidacy for Congress. If Earl takes the stump Uncle Loren will immediately be in about as hot water as he was once upon a time when he visited Manitoba.

—The Delano Crickets are to play a match game of ball at Lester Prairie to morrow. The managers have arranged to hold a dance at the City Hall tonight. The girls must see that the Crickets are home early from the dance or they will most likely hear of a defeat at Lester Prairie next day.

—Wheat continued to pour into the Delano elevator at a lively rate this week. Over a dollar a bushel brings out lots of wheat several years old. Farmers have sold uncommonly close and must see to it that they make the most of the coming crop in order to have on hand a supply for next season.

—A couple of fights are reported for Sunday. One had several participants on each side. Another was to occur just out side the city limits, where report says, an attorney, and an editor went to witness the affair; but on reaching the field of battle neither combatant would strike first, and they marched down hill again.

—A number of Delanoites visited the cities Wednesday to see the soldier boys march out of town. They were as much disappointed as were the boys when they learned they would not go that day, and there was no telling when they would go. Many recruits, young men from the country have been members of the militia companies, as provisional volunteers, sworn in, and asked to drill hard several hours day and night, and to come again while they had neither friends nor money in town and were oblige to get their living where, and how they could. There should have been some provision made to take care of such from the time they signed their names to the militia rolls. It repuires considerable patriotism for young men to leave work, loose their jobs, and drill for a week while paying their own expenses not knowing whether or not they will finally be taken into the service of their Uncle Sam. It is to be hoped that the State authorities who are offering troops to the Government will provide some thing to eat and places to sleep for their troops until the time when they are accepted by Uncle Sam.

—The Catholic choir are preparing a play which they contemplate putting on in the near future, probaly May 12

—Prof. Dewey, formly Principal of our school, has joined the company being raised at Litchfield. The Prof. will make an ideal soldier.

—James A. Blacketer, of Battery B which has not yet been ordered out, came home this morning from Minneapolis. He says he is tired of soldiering at his own expense.

—Editor Wharton and family, who intend moving to Willmar, were given a suprise party last night at the City Hall, by the citizens of Delano. A number of presents were presented.

—Rev J. S. McCornack, of Howard Lake is drilling 46 men. If any Wright County boys are anxious to go to war they should go and take lessons from the Major. He can drill all that comes, and in case of another call for troops is likely to enlist with his men.

—A controversy occurred yesterday about the depot where several men hauling flour from Watertown undertook to move a car with a team, another car was being unloaded by other parties and the cars were coupled together and a wagon wheel was deprived of its spokes. The trouble was settled by those at fault buying a new wheel.

—Gardening has been in order this week. A few of the early ones planted before, and now have lettuce, radishes, and other vegetable above ground. Fields of wheat are getting quite green and animals are able to find considerable of a treat where they can nibble the tender grass now growing quite luxuriantly considering the cold weather we have been having all spring.

—The Village Council held a special meeting Monday evening. At their previous meeting they had charged the renting rates for use of the City Hall, and the special meeting was called at request of Rev. Savs, to talk over the subject. The council finally reconsidered the motion charging rates and agreed that the old rates stand. Councilman J. E. Borsch tendered his resignation from the board; giving as a reason that he felt that, owning to business affairs he could not give proper attention to the duties of the office.

—The street commissioner under direction of the committee on streets repaired the sewer leading from Gutzwiller's and Roosen's property on Third Street, into the Bridge street sewer. What sewers the village authorities put in, should be large enough, and deep enough, and have drain enough to serve for all the sewerage likey to be required for years, even though it is but a short piece, then when it is necessary to lengthen it out it will not be necessary to dig up the whole length of the street for every individual's benfit. That seems to have been done in the present instance.

—At 11:45 P. M. Wednesday night the fire bell brought Delanoites to their doors and windows to find a big blaze in the rear of the meat market of Speckle & Schaust, on River Street. The fire seems to have started from the smoke house where some meat was being smoked. The wind was blowing a gale and the flames shot up high into the air, and sparks fell on neighboring building. Mat Fautch,s barn soon became the main center of conflagration, the loft full of hay furnishing food for fire kept the fire laddies quite busy. The roof of Stone's blacksmith shop, was set near the peak by flying cinders. A well directed dash from the hose squelched it at once. The firemen did the best job we have seen them do for years. Two full streams kept directed where they would do the most good. There was none of the boy's play of turning water onto the crowd to see it run, nor trying to see how high the shingles could be made to fly or how many panes of glass could be knocked out of windows where there was no danger of fire, etc., etc. Everything passed off in a business like manner. Half an hour sufficed to suppress what threatened to be a big fire. A good fire apparatus is a handy thing in town. And Delano has now learned that it is necessary to have it intelligently handled in order to get the greatest good from it.

Teeth: Dr. Niven will be in Waverly Monday, May 9. Dentistry in all branches.

County Cullings.

A big fire at Elk River, Sunday evening destroyed a good share of the town. Editor Dare lost his printing office but immediately took steps to secure a new outfit and have the Star News out on time Thursday. Dare is a rustler.

Economy Versus Indigestion.

In some houses the one good meal of the week is on Sunday. What is left from that day has to be warmed, rewarmed, hashed, and stewed till one is weary of the very sight of it. The result is a loss of appetite, followed by iliness, and finally a resort to medicine and the doctor, which is surely not economy. There should be changes in the kind of food as well as in the method of cooking. For this reason, if it can be avoided, no more should be cooked at one time than is intended to be eaten at one meal. The real art lies, not in cooking large pieces of meat, or in baking a cake, bread, or pastry, but in preparing one kind of food in many different ways, and in utilizing everything so that there is no waste. To do this the housewife must know how to convert all that may be left from one meal into savory and palatable dishes for the next; she must know how to combine herbs and spices in such a way that all the ingredients are harmoniously blended and no one thing predominates; to cook vegetables so that they will retain their natural flavor, and meat so that nothing of its nutritive value is lost.—From "Wise and Unwise Economies," by Gesine Lemcke, in Demorest's Family Magazine for May.

Roosen; lots 10 and 11 owned by Bernard Blatz; lots 12, 13 and 14 owned by Albert Riewatt; lots 15 and 16 owned by C. M. Conzet; all being in block seven, and lot 1 in block 10, owned by Kasheimer.

PIECE OF WALK NO. 3. Commencing at south west corner of lot 1, in block 15 Litchfield's addition to said village, extending thence North, to and including the north west corner of lot six in said block fifteen, said walk to be a wooden sidewalk and the abutting lots are owned and described as follows, to wit:

Lots 1 and 2 owned by Andrew Kittock; lots 3 and 4 owned by ; lots 5 and 6 owned by Anna Dyer.

PIECE OF WALK NO. 4. The hereinafter described walk shall be built of artificial stone and the same shall be laid and extend as follows:

Commencing at south east corner of lot 36 in block 8 original townsite, extending thence west to River St. said walk being on Railroad Ave. and to be laid seven feet wide; the same to connect with walk on River St. and to be continued thereon, eight feet in width and to terminate at the north west corner of lot 34 in said block 8, and all the lots abutting on said piece of walk being owned by the Bruggeman estate, the same being lots 34, 35 and 36 in said block 8. Said artificial stone walk shall be made of sufficient thickness so that it shall be strong and durable and constructed in the usual manner, and in compliance with orders of said committee on sidewalks, and to their satisfaction.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby served upon the owners of said lots that if they neglect to lay the said walks within twenty days after the publication of this notice, then in that case, said walks will be laid by the Street commissioner of said village pursuant to the instruction of the committee on sidewalks and the cost thereof taxed upon the abutting property pursuant to law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of $225.00, which is claimed to be due, and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by John E. Haley and Sylvia Haley, his wife, mortgagors, to Elias H. Robinson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of April 1893, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Wright, and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of April A. D. 1893 at 4 o'clock P. M., in book 9 of mortgages, page 640, and no action or proceeding having been instituted by law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes in such case provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit:

The northeast quarter of the southwest quarter, and the east half of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot 2 of section 26, in township 121, range 23 in said County of Wright, with the hereditaments and appertenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Wright county at the front door of the Court House in the town of Buffalo in said county and state on the 4th day of June 1898 at 2 o'clock P. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of $225.06 and interest and $25.00 attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in the case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

Good Advice.

If ever the time shall come for the citizens of Wright county to free themselves from political rings of which they so bitterly complain, that time will be next fall, and the way to it is for every voter to attend primaries and see that machine delegates are elected to stay at home. If machine men are allowed to pack caucuses and select delegates at will, a vote at the polls against machine candidates will avail nothing, if indeed there be any better than machine candidates up to vote for in any party.—Maple Lake Messenger.

"MY MEN" is a much more enthusiastic battle cry than is, "my policy".

FIRE consumed the Bank block at Excelsior Wednesday morning Quite a loss for that village.

COL. KEIFER was elected Major of St. Paul, last Tuesday. Democrats were divided and lost the day. A lesson has been learned. Democrats should place only the best men in nomination and not have a division of force.

TWO changes in the President's cabinet have been made. Post master Gary resigned and Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia, has been appointed. Secretary Sherman has resigned and given place to Judge Day, his assistant.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN is said to be in consultation with some old army officers as to his enlisting in the war with Spain. Some of the Republican papers are criticising him for this. Who would they have him consult? Hanna? Heh?

EDITOR DARE'S paper, the Sherburne County Star News, came to our table last Friday morning in a bran new dress. It has been purged by fire. The editor certainly showed an enterprising spirit in coming out on time under the circumstances.

COMMODORE DEWEY, at Manilla, Philippine Islands, won a complete victory over the Spanish fleet and forts, Sunday, May 1. This was one of the grandest naval battles ever fought, from the meagre reports received. The cables seems not to be working, and no news is being given out.

SOME of Minnesota's recruits have already learned a very large share of the business of soldeering, and proven themselves capable of acting on their own resources. They provided themselves with food, shelter, and then with an outfit to go into camp with, acting commissary, quartermaster, and private all at once.

SOME of the Republican and "gold bug" organs are taking on terribly because John Lind has become Quartermaster in the Minnesota volunteers and is busy taking care of "my men". But they needn't worry; "my policy" isn't in it with "my men" for an electioneering argument, and the latter won't need so much explaining.

THE St. Paul Dispatch has admitted itself wrong in its attack on Mr. Towne, by publishing the following as we copy from the Broad Axe: "That the accusations against the honor of Mr. Towne contained in the article complained of were not based on fact, and in our opinion the same were and are untrue." Mr. Towne had commenced a suit against them.

THE St. Paul Globe says Maj. John Espy was first to suggest a home for traveling soldiers whether in companies or squads even singly and alone. It is the proper thing. Many men have enlisted and kept themselves about the cities for a week or ten days, in necessarily a bad frame of mind and body, without money or friends. A place as suggested by Maj. Espy through the Globe would add much to their comfort and happiness. Could the new recruit or the sick and wounded veteran returning from the front be sure of a hospitable reception at a home as suggested how much it would be appriciated could only be told by those receiving or extending the courtesy.

IT is plain to be seen who will get the big majority for Governor next fall. The men who have been standing candidates for years, and whose policy is to dine, wine, and make flattering speeches to the officers, while the men are roaming about town getting what they can, and where they can to live on until the mustering officer comes, certainly can't secure the votes against the candidate who has the combined cry of the people to become their candidate, and who though having but one arm has that constantly in use for the welfare of the regiment to which he belongs, and who already has obtained a record as quartermaster in providing to the very best of his ability for his men."

Public Examiners.

Public Examiner West of Hastings audited the accounts of auditor Hensel and Treasurer Webster, on Tuesday. He found everything O. K.—St. Peter Herald.

Just how a Public Examiner can audit the accounts of County Auditors and Treasurers in different counties and find them all "O. K." when one county pays out of its Treasury $3, another $5, and another $7.80 apiece to its members of boards in lunacy proceedings, as shown by their financial statement, just beats us. That is, it is a great wonder to us that no one seems to have objected to such a mode of doing business, until quite recently; and even now when attention has been called to the matter the "O. K." seems to be forth coming just the same. The laws of the state are supposed to fix the fee for this service and it surely must be the same in each county. The examiner, M. D. Kenyon, in a letter published by us April 22, claimed that $5, was the fee decided upon by the Attorney General at two different times. Yet, so soon after calling our attention to the fact his assistant is reported at St. Peter, where $7 80 appears, from the last financial report of Nicollet County, to have been the prevailing fee paid, and according to the Herald, finds "everything O. K." If this is the regular way of doing business as regards fees for Examiners in lunacy, possibly it is the plan in regard to other matters. If the State Public Examiners are to report such differences in accounts in different counties "O. K." it is about time somebody report the Public Examiners. We are not personally acquainted with Mr. Kenyon nor his assistant Mr. West, but would most respectfully submit to an intelligent and honest reading public if they consider such things right.

Atkin Republican:—"J. Adam was scheduled for a lecture at the court house on Tuesday evening, but he failed to put in an appearance. On account of the war fever, all his engagements have been canceled. Many people herewere disappointed including several who came in from the country especially to hear him.

Is J. Adam going to enlist? If he has the war fever so bad, and it is a good fever why don't he fill his engagements? Its more catching than the gold fever, but not more fatal to the country. Mr. Bede has been peddling that fever about to the best of his ability, and he is a good talker..

Republican County Convention.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Wright will be held at the Court House in the village of Buffalo in said County on the 28th day of May 1898, at 11 o'clock A.M., for the purpose of electing 23 delegates to represent the County of Wright at the Sixth District Congressional convention to be held at Anoka, in the County of Anoka, on the first day of June 1898, to nominate a candidate for member of Congress for the Sixth Congressional District, and for the further purpose of electing a Republican County Committee for the said County of Wright.

A primary election in each election district in said County, to elect delegates to said County Convention, will be held in each election precinct in said County on the 26th day of May 1898, at 7 o'clock P. M., and continue open one hour, at a place to be designated by the repective precinct committee. Each election district will be allowed in said County Convention one delegate at large and one delegate additional for every 40 votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for Page Morris for Congress in 1898, as follows:

St. Cloud Times: A large number of the sons of men of former prominence have applied for staff positions, but how many of them have enlisted as privates? We haven't heard of one.

Alex Fashant went to St. Paul, Tuesday morning, but returned in the evening much saddened because he could not enlist. Most of the men who were so anxious for war are very quiet and far more likely to go to Canada, but Alex is the clear grit.—Annandale Post.

Aitkin Age: We do not subscribe to the creed that it is rank heresy to criticise anything or anybody labeled "Republican." If the Republican party, or its representatives, err—and they are but human,—it becomes the duty of the Republican press to point out the mistakes, comdemn the wrong, and lead back to the right That is not heresy.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29, 1898.

Complaints of tardiness on the part of the administration in pushing the war against Spain are growing louder each day, as indications increase that the administration is expecting a very long war, instead of a very short one. The speech of Representative Dingley, who probably voiced the sentiments of Mr. McKinley, on the bill to provide war revenues for the government, which has just passed the House, indicated his belief that the war would last for years. He could not be properly answered, because nobody cared to get up and say things they knew to be true that would be construed by Spain and Europe as meaning that there was a division of sentiment among Americans as to this war. The same feeling has prevented public criticism of the remarkable state of unreadiness in which the War Department was found to be when Mr. McKinley finally gave up his jack o'lantern hope of securing the freedom of Cuba through peaceful negotiations. The people do not want a long war, and do not believe that there is any occasion for one. Fitz Lee who is good military authority, and who has carefully been over the ground, has said that with 20,000 men and the co-operation of the navy Havana could be taken in 15 days. That many troops, three-fourths of them regulars, could be landed in Cuba in 48 hours after an order was issued, and the navy is already there. But there is no such order. Instead there is a lot of talk about the necessity of the 125,000 volunteers just called out remaining several months in camps of instruction, and of the probability of the Spaniards being allowed to remain in Cuba until fall, unless the insurgent army can drive them out, or the blockade starves them out. Mr. McKinley calls this a war for humanity, but a continuation of the blockade of Cuban ports without capturing them will result in starving as many women and children to death as butcher Weyler's policy did. The Spanish army in Cuba isn't suffering for food—they prepared for the blockade—but non-combatants are.

Under the law for the reorganization of the regular army, which went into effect this week, the total will at once be enlisted up to 60,000 men, and the war pay of privates and non-commissioned officers will be increased 20 per cent.

One of the strongest points in our system of government is emphasized by the present situation in Washington. In the State, War, and Navy Department building, in which are located the fighting branches of the government, the hurry and bustle of war is seen on every hand, while the other department buildings, in which business relating to the industrial and commercial progress of the country, such as the management of our great postal system, the granting of patents, looking after public lands etc., is going on just as though there never was such a thing as a war, and so they will continue to go whether the war lasts three weeks or three months. The fighting branches of the government will attend to the war without encroaching upon the business of the other branches.

In announcing by proclamation the principles upon which he will wage the war, which Congress has authorized, Mr. McKinley has certainly carried mild treatment of Spanish interests to an unnecessary extreme—an extreme that will wipe out the expectations of prize money entertained by the brave sailors that man Admiral Sampsen's blockading squadron, by releasing nearly if not all of the Spanish vessels they have captured since the blockade was established. This proclamation gives all Spanish merchant vessels in American ports or bound to or from American ports immunity from capture until May 21, inclusive. It would be possible to make some nations surrender by treating them and their interests with consideration, but Spain is certainly not one of them. What Mr. McKinley doubtless intended to be an act of extraordinary generosity and forbearance will be charged to his fear of them by the ignorant Spanish. There is only one way to deal with a Spaniard—fight him and lick him; then he will be ready to entertain the idea of a foe displaying magnanimity towards him.

Republicans in their absurd attempt to monopolize all the patriotism are charging that because some democrats oppose the issue of $500,000,000 in bonds provided for in the war revenue bill the House has passed they are opposed to giving the administration all the money it will need to conduct the war. Nothing could be further from the truth. There is not a democrat in either branch of Congress who is not in favor of voting all the money that may be needed to vigorously fight the war to a successful conclusion. That many of them agree with the populists and silver republicans in believing an issue of bonds to be unnecessary, and that it would be better to raise the money by an income tax and other ways of direct taxation, is true. The bond issue is likely to be fully discussed in the Senate, and, although it will probably not be made a party question by the Democratic Senators, it will not be surprising if most of them vote against bonds, unless the nature of the war news changes their present opinions.

Catholics Indignant.

Baltimore, May 3.—Leading Catholics here are indignant at what they call an effort on the part of the London Daily Mail to place the Catholics in this country in a false light. Cardinal Gibbons said to-night:

"These statements of the Daily Mail are entirely misleading. I receive the leading Catholic paper of England, the Tablet, in which expressions from bishops and prominent clergy constantly appear. Such expressions show general sympathy with the United States. The Irish Catholics are mostly entirely in accord with this county, notwithstanding the statements contained in the Daily Mail as cabled to this country last night. Catholics in the United States have but one sentiment. Whatever may have been their opinions as to the expediency of the war, now that it is on they are united in upholding the government."—Pioneer Press.

Ruralistics.

Mr. Editor. Was much interested in reading a letter in last weeks GAZETET from my old time friend, Hon. B. F. Christlieb. now of Monrovia, Cal. It seems that they are suffering from drouth in that part of the country and it will be necessary to ship into that part of the country provinder and feed for stock. Better depopulate that country and come to Minn. where feed grows spontaneously in great profusion. Also see a letter in the GAZETTE from my neighbor and friend, Earl Hoisington, in which he announces himself an independent candidate for Congress. In the early days of the state of Tenn., Davy Crockett represented his district in Congress for two terms, but in the third contest for the position, was beaten. Crockett was a frontiersman and so was my friend Hoisington, coming to Minnesota in the early spring of 1855 and I see no reason why Mr. Hoisington's chance for being elected to Congress would not be equally as good as that of Davy Crockett's, but it will take a great amount of boodle to get him there. In the days of Crockett, he could run a strong campaign on coonskins and 40 rod whiskey, but now days it must be spot cash on a gold standard basis.

Rev. M. Hamilton preached at Armstrong A. C. church last Sunday afternoon, there was quite a good many in attendance. Mr. Hamilton's discourse was very able and well delivered. Preaching again in two weeks in the afternoon.

Last Saturday your correspondent went to the county seat (Minneapolis) to attend assessors meeting. The county was well represented; about every assessor in the county being present. The meeting was called to order by W. S. Chowen, chairman, and Auditor, J. C. Minor, acted as Secretary. Surveyor Cooley was also present and gave us some valuable instructions in regard to land bounderies, etc. We agreed upon a basis of assessment for personal and real estate, and after a session of one hour and a half adjourned for dinner.

About all of Minneapolis is in the same place, but her foundation is to big. Her architects, in laying the foundation, made a mistake. They laid it according to the plan of 16 to 1, when times were good, but made no calculation for a single gold standard, when gold would go up and property values and produce would go down. The plan works well for millionairs and bond holders, but breeds destruction to the producer and hod carrier.

Candidates for office in Hennepin county are coming up as thick as mushrooms on an old rotten lot. While in the city, saw three or four that were docketed for Sheriff of Hennepin county and there is more to follow. Mr. Conroy will be a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hennepin county on the Democrat ticket. At present Mr. Conroy is one of the County Commissioners, and is an A No. one man.

The State Auditor, Robert Dunn, sent out a circular to all the Assessors in the state, instructing them to make a very close assessment; let no one escape; if necessary, must make an arbitrary assessment. If the depositors of banks would pay on their money there would be no lack of funds. But taxes must come is the watchword. Bleed the people. Get money. Every thing now days is done on the Mark Hanna plan. But if Mark Hanna would give his heart to God and his riches to the poor, he might come in as a third grade philanthropist.

There seems to be great difference of opinion in regard to the war between the United States and Spain. Some think it was unnecessary and should not have been, while others seem to think it a righteous act. Should we come of victorious in a short time with little loss of life and property, most everyone will say the United States done just right, but if, on the other hand the war should continue for a long time with destruction of life and property it will prove to be an unpopular war among the people of the United States. War is cruel and it would seem that christian and civilized nations could get along without the shedding of blood. There should be an international code of laws whereby all differences between countries could be settled by arbitration. Alexander and Napoleon fought to gratify their own ambition and to gain conquest. If men must fight for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, then fight, but destroy as few lives and as little property as possible.

Now, Mr. Editor, I frankly confess that this war we are just entering into, bothers me more than anything I have come in contact with for many years, that is to know just the right course for the United States to take in the matter.

I remain yours most respectfully,
16 TO 1.

HUMAN beings have six muscles to each eye, that they may move it on either side; but horses, cows, sheep and other quadrupeds, which habitually incline their heads to the earth in search of food, have a muscle by which their eyelids are suspended and supported, and which we do not need.

IT is a curious fact that the higher the civilization of a race the slower the action of the senses. At any rate, actual experiments have shown that, whereas the ear of a white man responds to a sound in 147-1,000 of a second, that of a Negro responds in 130-1,000, and that of a red Indian in 116-1,000.

THE great nutritive powers of chocolate are now so generally recognized that it has been adopted for campaign use in the armies and navies of almost every European government. The increased consumption in Europe within four years is 35 per cent., and American consumption has during the same period increased 50 per cent.

IT has hitherto been the custom of the children attending the public schools in Austria and Hungary to kiss the hands of their teachers on arrival and departure. This has now been forbidden by a ukase just issued by the imperial board of education, which bases its decision on a declaration of the sanitary council.

A MANUFACTURER of chafing dishes recently made the statement that he believed gas and coal consumption in New York would soon be very materially reduced by use of that convenient means of cooking light meals. "Where one was sold a year ago scores are sold now," he said, "and the demand is increasing at a remarkable rate."

THE Boston subway work is nearly completed. According to present prospects, the total cost of improvement will fall considerably within the engineer's estimate. The total cost of the subway to date is $4,043,312, the original estimate being $5,000,000. A tunnel under the harbor of East Boston is again being discussed, at an estimated cost of $2,406,600.

THE pope does his private writing with a gold pen, but his pontificial signature is always given with a white-feathered quill which is believed to come from the wing of a dove, although persons who have seen it say it must have come from a larger bird. The same quill has been in use for more than 40 years. It serves only for important signatures, and is kept in an ivory case.

ORANGE juice is one of the best dressings for black shoes or boots. Take a slice or quarter of an orange and rub it on the shoe or boot; then, when dry, brush with a soft brush until the shoes shines like a looking glass. This is an English recipe. Another fruit dressing is for tan shoes, the inside of a banana skin. Rub the skin over the shoe thoroughly, wipe off carefully with a soft cloth briskly.

THE United States has won a signal diplomatic triumph, which can not fail to exert a powerful influence upon the duration and eventful result of the Spanish-American war. This country and England, at the proposal of the United States, have entered into a convention whereby coal is declared to be contraband of war. This agreement puts Spain at a tremendous disadvantage, as compared with America.

THE Canadian government is sending out a military force to the Yukon to establish the capital of the district, which, it has been decided, shall be placed at Selkirk, instead of at Dawson City. Lady Aberdeen has recently established a new order of nurses in Canada, known as the Victorian Order, and four of the women who belong to it are going with the expedition. Miss Faith Fenton, a well known Canadian journalist, will also be a member of the party.

JOHN WANAMAKER, the merchant prince of Philadelphia, offers to raise a regiment and go with it to the front, but he proposes to his employes that if they wish to enlist against Spain their positions shall be reopened to them when they return; that in the meantime their salaries shall continue, and that an insurance of $1,000 will be carried on each one of them while they are engaged in military service. Rich men may not be experts at going through the eye of a needle, but they are not totally depraved, nevertheless.

A CURIOUS custom at the Havana theaters is the throwing of doves at the performers by the audience. The birds have their feet tied with ribbons, and the people have become so dexterous in tossing them that they go straight to the person for whom they are designed. So great is the destitution there now that rich people passing into the theater with these tokens to bestow upon their favorite artists, are frequently entreated by the starving populace, who crowd about the doors, to give the birds to them for food for the sick ones at home.

THE rubber tree is usually tapped four times during the first year of its maturity, and the intervals of rest are gradually diminished until it can be tapped monthly. The rubber tree is the milch cow of the vegetable kingdom; its yield continues to increase with frequent and skillful milking until it reaches its maximum. Properly cared for, a tree will yield steadily up to its fortieth year; in some instances, as long as 50 or 60 years. The yield of gum, as well as the market price, is variable; but a healthy tree should yield a revenue of $15 to $20 per annum.

ONE vice president of the United States took the oath of office in Havana. Wm. Rufus King, who was elected with Franklin Pierce in 1852, fell sick, and directly after the election he was ordered to Cuba by his physicians. He failed to recover in time for the inauguration. It was believed the trip to Washington would prove more than a failing old statesman could stand, and congress passed a special act enabling him to take the oath of office in Cuba. Mr. King returned to the United States in April, 1853. He passed away at his estate, in Alabama, April 18, 1853.

DEWEY'S GREAT VICTORY.

Spanish Fleet Utterly Annihilated Off Manila by America's Asiatic Squadron.

FORTS ON SHORE OPENED THE FIRING.

Some Details of the Brilliant Naval Conflict — The Spanish Admiral's Flagship Is Burned—Fate of Other Vessels of Enemy's Fleet—American Craft Said to Be Uninjured.

London, May 3. — The details of the battle of Manila have been received at the British colonial office. They came in two cable messages, received Sunday evening, the substance of which has just been furnished by the officials of the colonial office.

The first cable dispatch announced that the United States fleet entered Manila harbor at daybreak Sunday, stationing itself opposite the city. A fort opened fire on the American ships, whereupon they shifted their position to one near Cavite, in Manila bay, engaging in a fierce fight against both the forts and the Spanish fleet.

The engagement here lasted two hours and resulted in the annihilation of the Spanish fleet.

The Spaniards fought bravely against superior force and suffered heavy losses. Four hundred Spanish are reported killed, including two commanders. Their loss by fire is also probably very great. The Spaniards would not give in, and when the American fleet returned to Cavite some shots were fired from the forts on shore, but our ships poured in such a terrible cannonade that further resistance was impossible.

The American ships were apparently uninjured. Commodore Dewey's attack was well carried out. The maneuvers of his squadron were a beautiful sight, and the navigation of the bay by our ships was a remarkable feat of seamanship, avoiding, as they did successfully, the numerous shallows.

Commodore Dewey requested the British consul, E. E. Rawson Walker, to convey a message to the Spanish governor-general demanding the surrender of all the torpedoes and guns at Manila and the possession of the cable offices, saying that unless these terms were complied with he would proceed to bombard the city.

The second cable dispatch received by the colonial office announced that the Spanish governor-general had refused to surrender the torpedoes, guns and cable offices and that he had prevented the agent of the telegraph company from conferring with Commodore Dewey.

Spain's Losses at Manila.

Washington, May 2. — Just when Spain needs ships of war, and needs them worse than she needs anything else, save perhaps money, she literally loses a fleet—and a fleet, too, acknowledged to have been of a very superior quality. As near as can be estimated, Spain's loss will not be far from the following table. In giving the crews of the boats lost, however, it is not stated that all these men were sacrificed with their ships. The table, which is self-explanatory, is as follows:

Reina Christina, 3,090 tons, 21 guns, 370 men, burned; Castilla, 3,340 tons, 14 guns, 400 men, burned; Don Juan de Austria, 1,152 tons, 9 guns, 173 men, blown up; Ulloa, 1,130 tons, 12 guns, 180 men, shelled; Mindano, 142 tons, 10 guns, 50 men, shelled; Duero, 500 tons, 12 guns, 60 men, shelled; Manileno, 142 tons, 6 guns, 50 men, shelled; Paragua, 137 tons, 6 guns, 50 men, shelled; Samen, 137 tons, 6 guns, 50 men, crushed; Pampagne, 137 tons, 6 guns, 50 men, burned; Valasco, 1,152 tons, 16 guns, 300 men, crushed; Elcano, 528 tons, 9 guns, 100 men, shelled; Lozo, 528 tons, 10 guns, 90 men, crushed.

There are five or six other boats in the squadron, some of them unprotected cruisers, the others gunboats. How these will fare before Dewey gets through with them is a guess now, but as near as can be learned from the roundabout advices, the table shows fairly well what happened to Montejo's fleet.

A Bank Plundered.

Springfield, Mass., April 30.—Savings Bank Examiner Locke and National Bank Examiner Ewer Friday closely examined the books of the Hampshire County national bank and Hampshire County savings bank, both of Northampton. The result shows that there is a shortage of about $18,847 in the savings bank, and one of probably much larger proportions in the national bank, estimated outside at $250,000. Lewis Warner, president of the national bank, and treasurer of the savings bank, is missing.

To Be Made Major-Generals.

Tampa, Fla., May 3.—Brig. Gens. J. F. Wade and J. R. Shafter received telegrams from Washington informing them that the president would to-day send in their names as major generals of volunteers. Both will, however, it is said, accompany the United States troops to Cuba.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

Story of the Battle as Told at Madrid —American Ships Enter Manila Harbor by Night.

London, May 3. — The Spanish correspondent of the Times, describing the engagement at Manila, says:

"The Olympia, the Boston, the Raleigh, the Concord, the Petrel and the Monocacy entered the bay under cover of darkness by the smaller and safer Bocachica channel. The forts at Corregidor island gave the alarm by firing on the intruders, but they seem to have inflicted no serious damage. The American squadron moved up the bay and at three o'clock in the morning appeared before Cavite. Here, lying under the shelter of the forts, was the Spanish squadron.

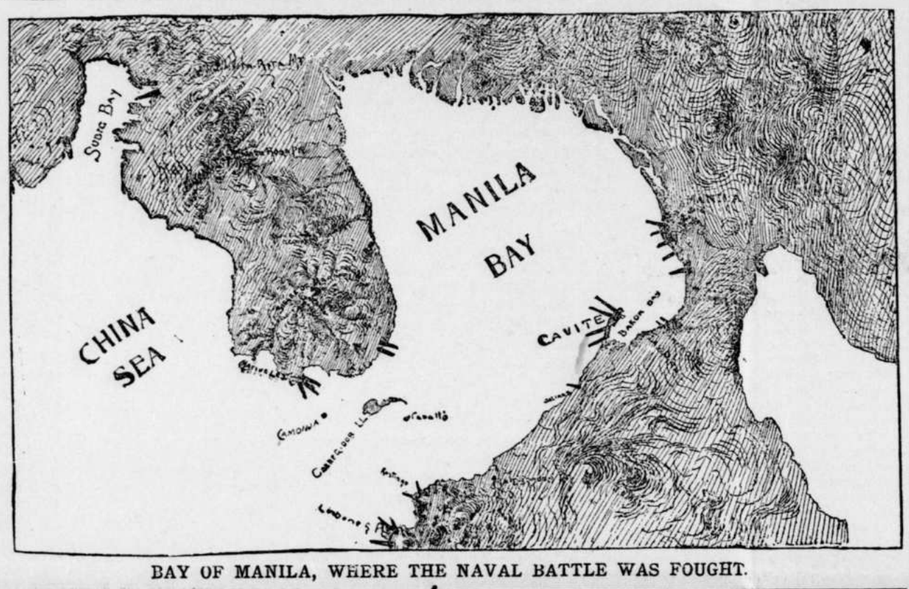
"Admiral Montejo a few days before went to Subic bay to look for the enemy, but learning that they were vastly superior in force, had prudently returned and placed his ships under the protection of the forts. This was his only chance of meeting the enemy on something like equal terms; and it did not suffice.

"Soon the Americans opened fire. The Spaniards replied vigorously and the combat continued without interruption for four hours, during which the Don Antonio de Ulloa was sunk, the Castilla Maria Christina and the Don Juan de Austria were seriously damaged. One or two of the smaller craft were scuttled by their crews to escape capture. Others took refuge in a small neighboring creek emptying into Baker bay where, presumably, the American ships were unable to follow them. But not one surrendered."



BAY OF MANILA, WHERE THE NAVAL BATTLE WAS FOUGHT.

Gage's Mission.

Washington, April 29.—Secretary Gage returned Thursday morning from New York, where he had a conference with prominent bankers in regard to the proposed bond issue for raising a war fund. In speaking of the conference the secretary said that the principal purpose of his visit to New York was to obtain from representative financiers and capitalists their views on the proposed bond issue. He had no definite proposition to make, and none was expected from the bankers. The result of the conference, however, was eminently satisfactory. All seemed disposed to do anything and everything possible to give any needed financial support to the government in the present emergency, although there would be no financial inducement for capitalists to invest in three per cent. bonds, when time loans were bringing six per cent. and even more, the question of profit would be put to one side, and whatever assistance the government needed would be forthcoming. All favored the popular loan idea, and thought that the people should be given an opportunity to invest in the new issue.

Asks for Millions.

Washington, April 30.—The secretary of the treasury Friday received from the secretary of war estimates of the deficiencies in the appropriations required for the use of the war department for the remaining two months of the present fiscal year aggregating $34,019,997. In his letter Secretary Alger says that the acts of congress approved April 22 and 26, 1898, authorizing the enrollment of a volunteer army and placing the regular army on a war footing, will necessitate this increased appropriation for the organization, support and maintenance of the new forces.

Killed in a Storm.

Hnmansville, Mo., May 3.—At Jerico, in Cedar county, 20 miles from this place, a tornado killed 13 persons outright and fatally injured five or six more. The Methodist church and several other houses were totally destroyed. Twelve houses were blown over at Walnut Grove, 25 miles south of here, and one woman fatally injured. Waubleau, a village eight miles from here, in Hickory county, suffered seriously from the same storm. Telephone wires are down.

Status of Spanish Residents.

Washington, May 3.—The president has in course of preparation a proclamation which will be issued within the next day or two fixing the status of Spanish subjects in this country. Generally speaking, the proclamation will make it known that such subjects are under suspicion, and it is believed will announce that stringent measures will be taken to prevent their hindering a speedy and successful conduct of a war against the kingdom of Spain.

MARTIAL LAW IN MADRID.

Feeling of Spanish People Against the Government Causes Formidable Mob Demonstrations.

London, May 3. — The Madrid correspondent of the Standard, telegraphing at midnight, says: Senor Aguilera, the civil governor of Madrid, has just posted on the walls of the home office the customary proclamation intimating that the civil authorities consider that the circumstances justify the handing over to the military authorities of the mission of keeping order. Lieut. Gen. Daban, captain general of Madrid, has assumed charge, and the first military patrols have just appeared in the Puerto del Sol. The measure has been taken in consequence of the attitude of certain political parties since Sunday. The whole garrison is ready in barracks.

Just before martial law was proclaimed a mob tried to break into the Apollo theater to hold a demonstration against the government. The police charged the mob and dispersed it, not daring, however, to make any arrests. The mob threw stones at the theater and adjoining buildings, breaking windows, but doing no further damage.

The feeling of discontent prevails everywhere. The military feel equally with the civil elements the effects of the disaster, in which, according to one announcement, "our inferior war craft, although they fought pluckily, perished through lack of foresight in responsible quarters."

IN CONGRESS.

House and Senate Pass the War Emergency Bill and Other Measures.

Washington, May 3.—The passage of the emergency war appropriation bill was the feature of Monday's action by the house. The naval appropriation bill with the senate amendment providing for the payment of officers of the navy for the use of their inventions by the government stricken out was reported from the conference and passed.

Several war measures were passed by the senate. Notwithstanding their importance, not one of them elicited the slightest debate. Probably the most important measure passed by the senate was the emergency war deficiency bill, carrying $35,720,945. Not more than ten minutes were consumed in passing it, that time being occupied in reading the measure. Mr. Hawley, chairman of the military affairs committee, secured the passage of a bill providing for the enlistment of a volunteer brigade of engineers and of 10,000 men in the south who are immune to yellow fever, these enlistments to be in addition to those provided for in the president's call for 125,000 volunteers. The men will enlist "for the war."

Blanco's Report.

Madrid, April 30.—The following is the substance of the official report made by Capt. Gen. Blanco on the subject of the bombardment of the forts of Matanzas by ships belonging to Rear Admiral Sampson's squadron on Wednesday last:

"Three American cruisers fired on the batteries of Fort Morillo, at Matanzas, without doing any damage. We fired 14 shots, to which the Americans replied with a multitude of mitralleuse (quick-firing guns) shots, which did not do any injury.

"The American squadron also fired 14 cannon shots at the Abanilla battery, only one mule being killed, to which the Spanish battery only replied with four shots, as the squadron was beyond range.

"The whole squadron of five ships then threw several shells into the town, without doing any damage.

"The French and Austrian consuls have protested against the bombardment, as it was commenced without any previous warning to foreign subjects.

"The troops manning the stations are full of fight.

"It appears that our shots did some damage to the American ships."

Says 100 Were Slain.

Key West, Fla., April 29.—One hundred Spanish soldiers are believed to have been killed or injured during Wednesday's bombardment of the fortifications that were being erected to protect the harbor of Matanzas against invasion from the sea. Obedient to peremptory orders from Blanco the military commander of the post is suppressing all news concerning the result of the deadly marksmanship of American gunners upon his own forces. Blanco evidently wants to minimize the effect of the first report of the victory of American ships and American guns that reach Madrid.

Train Held Up.

El Paso, Tex., April 30.—The westbound Southern Pacific passenger train No. 20 was taken in charge of by four masked men at Comstock, Tex., at midnight Thursday night, and two miles west of the station the express car and engine were detached and run a short distance. The robbers wrecked the through safe and took the entire money contents, amounting to $20,000.

A German View of the Situation.

Berlin, May 3.—It is believed in political circles here that America has gained the point she really had in view, having promised not to annex Cuba, but giving no promise as to the Philippines.

TROOPS ON THE MOVE.

Break Camp and Are Rushed on to Tampa, Fla.—Busy Scenes at Chickamauga Park.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 30.—The entire eight batteries of artillery besides the Twenty-fourth infantry and four companies of the Ninth cavalry, broke camp Friday under orders to proceed to Tampa, Fla., at once. As fast as possible men, guns, horses, caissons, ammunition and camp paraphernalia were loaded on the long line of cars waiting for them at Battlefield station and started on their journey south. Though no intimation of the ultimate destination of the troops has been given out here there is no doubt in the minds of the officers and men that an immediate invasion of Cuba, or at least the capture and occupation of some Cuban seaport, is in contemplation, in order to open up a line of communication with the Cuban forces under Gens. Gomez and Garcia and act in cooperation with these forces in the immediate relief of the starving reconcentrados and the driving of the Spanish forces from the island.

Mobile, Ala., April 30.—The Tenth and Twenty-second regiments left camp here late Friday afternoon, bound for Tampa. They were all day getting off from camp, beginning after drill at ten o'clock.

New Orleans, April 30.—The first regiment left here Friday night for Tampa, waiting over for Gen. Shafter's staff, who were also ordered to meet the commander in Florida. The impression among army men is that the first army corps sent into Cuba will be for the purpose of cooperating with the insurgents.

FIGHTING FOR BREAD.

Serious Disturbances in Italian Cities —Several Rioters Are Killed— —Bakeries Sacked.

Rome, May 2.—The bread riots continue in many places. At Rimini Sunday the anarchists took part in a meeting of German bakers. Several arrests were made. At San Archangelo a farm was pillaged and eight arrests were made. While the persons in custody were being taken to the police station the mob interfered and a hand-to-hand fight ensued, several carbineers being wounded and several rioters killed. At Naples the riots were led by women carrying long staves upon which were loaves of bread or red flags. Saturday a number of bakeries were sacked by riotous crowds. Women carrying banners inscribed with "Down with the taxes on flour!" marched to the town hall, where the troops dispersed them. All the streets were guarded by troops and the railway station by artillery.

The municipality has posted a notice reducing the price of bread ten centimes per kilogram and voting a large sum for the purpose. Ravenna, Ferrara and Rosaro all report more or less violence and cries of "Give us bread!" "Down with the starvers of the people!" and the like. Bakeries have been sacked, windows and lamps smashed and attempts made to liberate prisoners. In some cases cavalry has had to be used to restore order. At Foggia a crowd set the tax office on fire. The flames spread to the city hall, which was completely destroyed, with all the archives. At Bari many public offices have been set on fire. The fort was attacked and captured and its solitary cannon was thrown into the sea.

PRIZE OF THE TERROR.

American Monitor Captures Big Spanish Steamer Guido—Had a Rich Cargo on Board.

Key West, Fla., April 29.—The United States monitor Terror captured the big Spanish steamer Guido, bound from Corunna, Spain, for Havana, early Wednesday.

The prize had on board a large cargo of provisions and money intended for the Spanish troops in Cuba. The capture took place ten miles off Cardenas, after a desperate chase, during which the Terror and the gunboat Machias fired, blowing the Spaniard's pilot house into the water.

The Terror was alone when the Guido was sighted and she immediately gave chase. After a blank shot had been fired, to order the steamer to heave to, the Spaniard put out all her lights and fired up in an attempt to run away.

The big monitor, plowing after her, brought her six-pounders to bear on the steamer and fired shot after shot at the latter, nearly all of which took effect on the Guido's pilot house.

The Machias, which was some distance away, heard the sound of the firing, came up and brought her four-inch rifle into play, firing one shot, which failed to hit the Spaniard. This, however, brought her to, and Lieut. Qualta and a prize crew were put on board of her and brought the prize in here Thursday morning.

Will Not Intervene.

London, May 3. — The Vienna correspondent of the Times says: "In well-informed circles it is positively denied that the powers will intervene at the present juncture, nor has any agreement been arrived at for mediation at any future time. The disparity of views is considerable, enough to render highly improbable the cooperation of all six powers in any diplomatic step, either at Madrid or Washington."

London, May 3. — A special dispatch from Madrid says all classes, especially politicians, hope for intervention of the continental powers, especially Germany and Russia.

Death of a Veteran.

Omaha, Neb., May 3.—Gen. Charles C. Walcutt, of Columbus, O., died at St. Joseph's hospital Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Gen. Walcutt came here about six weeks ago to visit his sister, Mrs. F. P. Mills. He was attacked by acute gangrene in the leg, the outcome of a wound received in the civil war. His leg was amputated about two weeks ago, but the disease was too far advanced. Gen. Walcutt was the youngest of the major generals of the volunteer army.

Have Declared Neutrality.

Washington, May 2. — The state department has announced that up to date the following governments have declared their neutrality: Great Britain, Italy, Netherlands, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, Colombia, Mexico, Japan, Russia, France, Corea, Argentine Republic, Portugal and Uruguay. No notice has been received from Germany and Austria.

Fabulous Wealth.

The "incalculable mineral wealth" of newly found mining regions largely run by syndicates and promoted by transportation companies is in too many instances really a fable. The products of industry in legitimate fields of enterprise nearer home are far surer and promise more stable rewards. No one will go unrewarded in the matter of improved health who use regularly Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for malaria, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, &c.

From Two Sides.

"My son," said the philosopher, "you know the adage, don't you? Never put all your eggs in one basket. Then if an accident happens only a portion of them will be broken. So with your money. Don't put it all in one bank."

"Yes," returned the son, who knew a few things, too, "but in scattering your money around among banks you only increase the chances of getting left by cashiers."—Chicago Evening News.

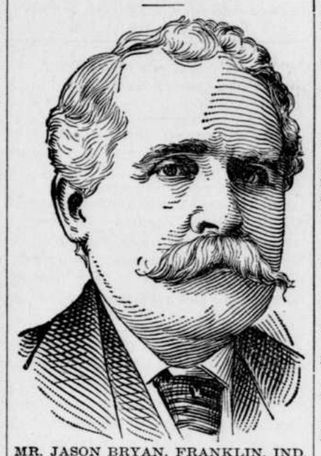
MR. JASON BRYAN,

As an Experienced Nurse, Recommends Pe-ru-na.



MR. JASON BRYAN, FRANKLIN, IND.

"My friend is improving, thanks to you and Pe-ru-na. I am called on to nurse the sick of all classes, though I am not a doctor. I recommend Pe-ru-na to such an etxent that I am nicknamed 'Pe-ru-na' by nearly everybody. I am going to have my photo taken soon, and if my photo or anything else I can say about your medicine will benefit you or anybody else, I will gladly allow you to use them."—Jason Bryan, Franklin, Ind.

The nurse is often brought to a closer observation of the effect of any medicine than the doctor himself. In constant attendance upon the patient day and night, he observes the effect of every dose of medicine, while the doctor only sees the patient occasionally and must rely, more or less, upon the reports of the nurse. Pe-ru-na is in high favor with the nurses. It is a specific for catarrhal diseases of all varieties. It cures catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the kidneys, and that form of catarrh so common among women, known to the profession as pelvic catarrh, ordinarily called female complaint. Pe-ru-na cures these troubles promptly and permanently.

Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on female catarrh, entitled "Health and Beauty." Sent free to women only by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

A FEW REQUISITES.

What Was Wanted of a Girl in One Household.

The hired girl out of a job cast her eagle eye over the want notices of the newspaper. "Wanted, Wanted, Wanted," she read in one or two-line ads, straight down the column, shaking her head at intervals as if disappointed in her search. Finally her face lightened as she saw a leaded notice in another column of more pretensions than its fellows.

She turned to it and read eagerly. Then she threw the paper from her.

"What's the matter?" asked the girl with her.

"Read that," and she gathered up the sheet and handed it over to the other one, who read this notice:

"Wanted—A young and strong woman of good disposition and habits, obedient and knowing her place, willing and ready, active and efficient, to cook, wash and iron, do general housework and take care of children. Evenings and afternoons off when possible. Apply, with references, etc., etc."

"Well?" said the reader.

"It's not well at all," responded the one looking for work. "That man, whoever he is, is advertising for a wife, I should say from the advertisement, and I'm not looking for that kind of a job. Just a plain hired girl's place is good enough for me."—Washington Star.

HE MEANT WELL.

But His Carelessness Got Him Into Trouble with His Girl.

A young gentleman, whose gallantry was largely in excess of his pecuniary means, sought to remedy this defect and save the money required for the purchase of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes.

It thus happened one day that he received a bunch of the most beautiful roses, which he at once sent off to his lady love. In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome he called at the house of the lady the same evening and was not a little surprised at the frosty reception he met with.

"You sent me a note to-day," the young lady remarked, after a pause, in the most frigid tones.

"I—a note?" he inquired, in blank astonishment.

"Certainly; along with some flowers."

"To be sure I sent you some flowers."

"And there was a note inside—do you still mean to deny it?"

With these words she handed the dumfounded swain a scrap of paper, on which the following words were written: "Don't forget the old trousers you promised me the other day."—Tit-Bits.

HORRIBLE DEPRAVITY.

The Shameless Creature's Husband Worked for a Living.

"I didn't see Mrs. Tavistock at your party," Mrs. Highrocks.

"No," replied Mrs. Waddington, "I didn't invite her."

"Why, I thought you used to be such good friends."

"There was a time when I thought she was rather nice, but I was deceived. I wish to forget her."

"Indeed, your words surprise me very much. I wish I had known all this before I called on her."

"It was unfortunate. Still, there's no use worrying about it now. We are not the only ones who were deceived. The only thing we can do is to ignore her hereafter, and in that way show her that we have found out the truth."

"But you have not told me what the shameless creature did. I do hope there will be no scandal in which our names will have to figure."

"Oh, no, there isn't likely to be a scandal. I supposed, at first, that her husband was wealthy."

"Yes?"

"And now it turns out that he is merely working on a salary, and a small one at that."

"Merciful heavens! And she has my card in her basket!"—Cleveland Leader.

He Was Waiting.

A young theological student who is about to depart for the missionary fields told an amusing story on himself the other evening that gives an insight to the cause that led to his determining to preach the Gospel to the heathen. He had called on a young lady, and her little brother posted himself in an armchair facing a handsome gilt clock. He had been there half an hour, when the young lady said: "Robbie, why don't you go to the nursery?" "I am waiting," replied Robbie. "What are you waiting for, my dear?" "Why, for his face to stop the clock. You know what you said."—Philadelphia Call.

"Say, Hiram, be you agoin' to town to-day?"

"Yes, Uncle Bill, I got to git the mare shod and do some high old shoppin' fer the wimmen folks besides. Can I git anything fer you?"

"Well, yes, you see your Aunt Lucy says she wants a heap of stuff to the store, but she don't reckon she'd trust me nor no one else to buy her the new caliker dress she's bent on havin', so she's got ter go and do the selectin' of it herself and if you just give her a lift there and back it'll save me hitchin' up."

"All right, Uncle Bill, I'll be mighty glad of the opportunity, fer I promised Mandy and all three of the gals a ginuine surprise all around if things panned out satisfactory on the sale of that wheat, which they did, and now I propose to keep my promise in good shape and Aunt Lucy, she knows just the very kind of colors the gals like in print goods and what ter select and how much fer each dress and I want them and Mandy to have the very best there is; the kind of dress goods I heerd Aunt Lucy say was always marked on the tags with the name of William Simpson & Sons. She says that's the kind that always looks bright and wears well and don't fade. I tell you what, Uncle Bill, they ain't nobody enjoys seein' well dressed wimmen folks around the house no better than me and when Aunt Lucy and I get through buyin' print goods and calico today I guess William Simpson & Sons 'll think this town ain't no slouch for well dressed gals and wimmen."

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Fullness of Health Makes Sweet Dispositions and Happy Homes.

[EXTRACTS FROM MRS. PINKHAM'S NOTE BOOK.]

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill health, painful menses, pains in the side, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and begin its use. This truly wonderful remedy is the safeguard of women's health.

MRS. MABEL SMITH, 345 Central Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can hardly find words with which to thank you for what your wonderful remedy has done for me. Without it I would by this time have been dead or worse, insane; for when I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a terrible state. I think it would be impossible for me to tell all I suffered. Every part of my body seemed to pain some way. The pain in my back and head was terrible. I was nervous, had hysterics and fainting spells. My case was one that was given up by two of the best doctors in Brooklyn. I had given up myself; as I had tried so many things, I believed nothing would ever do me any good. But, thanks to your medicine, I am now well and strong; in fact, another person entirely."

If you are puzzled about yourself, write freely and fully to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and secure the advice which she offers free of charge to all women. This is the advice that has brought sunshine into many homes which nervousness and irritability had nearly wrecked.

A Judgment By a Lion

WE HAD come down off the mountains near Fremont's peak—the six of us, who had been prospecting for three months—and we had scarcely struck the trail when we ran upon a mountain outfit. There were three white men, two half-breeds, a Mexican and a negro, and the party had six pack mules with them. They had just gone into camp for the night, and after hearty greetings all around we pitched our tents alongside and cooked our suppers at the same camp fire. The strangers were bound up to Little Squaw mountain on a hunt for gold. The leader was Jim Williams.

There would have been no trouble between the two outfits but for the cards which were introduced after supper. And, as it was, only a portion of the men dared to play, as the day had been a tiresome one to all. Our chief, Frank Johnson, of Nevada, sat down with Williams, and both were in great good nature as I wrapped myself in my blanket and fell asleep. I had slept for two hours when aroused by the sounds of a quarrel. I was the last man of the 13 to roll out, and I found every one of the 12 with a gun in his hand. It seemed that the two leaders had begun playing for money and, luck being with our man, he had won heavily. Then there came a dispute as to some point, the lie was passed and the men of both outfits were ready to open fire on each other. It was the other crowd which backed down. Williams realized that he could not depend upon the Mexican and the negro and was, therefore, overmatched. After a moment, he flung down his gun and said to Johnson:

"The crowd has nothing to do with this row, and I reckon we are men enough to settle it between ourselves."

"In any way you choose," replied Johnson.

"Well, then, I'll tell you my plan in the morning. One of us has to go under for what has passed, but to-morrow will be a long day. Let's call it off for to-night."

The two leaders shook hands, and I for one believed that it would be the end of the quarrel. I said as much to one of our men as we lay down again, but he whisperingly replied:

"You don't know the men. There is an old grudge between them. They will fight to-morrow, sure, and they will fight until one of them is dead."

"A duel with rifles, pistols or knives?" I asked.

"I can't say. Both are square men, and it will be a square fight. Jim Williams is one of the gamest men in all the west, and as he has found his match there'll be a fight worth talking about for the next 20 years."

The men of both camps slept peacefully during the remainder of the night and as we prepared and ate breakfast nobody had a word to say about the trouble of the night before. The two leaders gave each other "good morning" and chatted about the weather, and I would have wagered my all that the hard words had been forgotten and forgiven. I was looking for the order to pack up and move on as soon as breakfast was over, when Williams took a seat beside Johnson and quietly observed:

"You are in no hurry, I take it, and a day or two will make no difference to our men."

"We can stop here a week as well as not," was the reply.

"Just ahead of us, to the north, is Jackson's basin."

"Aye. I've passed through it," said Johnson. "It is a natural sink, which was once the bed of a lake, but is now grown up with a perfect tangle. What's your plan?"

"One of us is to leave here at nine o'clock. It will take him an hour to reach the far side. At ten o'clock the other will leave. We will hunt for each other in the basin. The one who lives to get out will return here and notify the camps. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly. We are to hunt for each other in the basin and to shoot on sight. One of us will be left there. The one who goes first turns on his trail and returns. We can stick to the trail or take to the woods. We may be hunting each other for half a day or half a week."

"That's the idea, and now we'll toss up to see who goes first. Is it heads or tails?"

"Heads," said our leader.

The coin which Williams tossed into the air fell tail up, and he rose up and said:

"It's for me to go first. Boys, you all understand this matter. Only one of us is to come back, and there's to be no hard feelings about it. If I'm left behind you'll push on with Bill here for your leader. What I've got in my packs you are welcome to divide between you. I've got 15 minutes to get ready in."

I heard every word of the above, as had every other man in camp, but it was hard for me to realize that the men were in sober earnest. It was to be a man hunt to the death, and they had talked it over as coolly as if the subject was a bear or deer. Williams took with him a rifle, a revolver, a knife, 50 extra cartridges and some bread and meat. When ready to go he shook hands with the two white men of the party, nodded to the others and to us and said to Johnson:

"In an hour I shall reach the far side and be ready to turn back. Sorry the earth isn't big enough for both of us, but we happen to be built that way. It's a fair show for both, and there'll be nothing to kick over."

During the hour allowed him Johnson cleaned his firearms, overhauled his pack and gave some instructions as to what should be done with certain interests in case he did not return. When the hour was up he shook hands with all around, had a word with the men of the other camp, and he was whistling as he disappeared from view. It was at once agreed between the two camps that there should be peace, and each man found something at which to busy himself. The general idea was that the affair in the basin would be over before noon, but those who argued thus made a mistake. While both men meant to kill, neither proposed to take any chance. Life was the stake to be played for, and the game was to be drawn out.

When Williams had crossed the basin he turned and headed back south, but not on the trail. He knew Johnson too well to suppose that he would make his way to the center of the basin on the trail. He entered the woods on his right and made his way along through the tangle and over the bowlders with the stealth of an Indian. As our leader entered the basin he also entered the woods to his right. The two men thus made a half circle and were as far away from each other as the limit allowed. The basin contained about 500 acres of land and was walled in on every side. The trees were not large, but the undergrowth was very thick, and there were also a great many bowlders lying about.

As Williams circled to the south and Johnson to the north, each made a half circle before finding the other's trail. The distance covered by this half circle was about two miles, and such was the caution with which the men moved that it was afternoon before they came upon "signs." Each one's plan was now plain to the other, and both at once changed. That is, each returned over his own trail, or within reaching distance of it. This change simply prevented a meeting. When one man reached the north end of the trail the other was back at the south end, and it was four o'clock in the afternoon. Then each took the trail and held it to a point within 200 feet of the center, and Williams left it for the woods to his right. Without suspecting each other's presence they crept carefully forward until only 50 feet separated them. Then a wolf dashing out from the space between them gave both men the cue, and each man began working for a shot. Johnson had before him three or four vine-covered bowlders, and he crept under the vines and was so well hidden that even the eyes of a fox could not have made him out. Half an hour passed, and it was growing dark in the forest, when Williams rose up alongside a tree and began peering about. His uprising was like that of a shadow, and for ten minutes he did not expose a finger as a target. Then he either became impatient or figured that Johnson was not at hand, and his head left the shelter of the tree to get a better look. It was too dark for Johnson to take accurate aim, and the bullet meant for Williams' eyes passed through and knocked the cap off his head. In a second Williams had fired in return, taking a snap shot at the flash, and his bullet tore through the cloth on Johnson's shoulder.

These were the first and best shots fired. Each man drew away after firing and they were probably a mile and a half apart as they made camp for the night. Had they been Indians they might have hunted each other in the darkness, but each lay down to sleep, feeling as safe as in camp. As the sun came up the hunt was again on. They were now east and west of the trail and more than a mile apart. They seemed to locate each other by intuition, and one moved to the right and the other to the left to make a rear approach. At nine o'clock in the morning they had simply changed places. It was then that each threw away a portion of his woodcraft and began a bolder advance. At 11 o'clock as Johnson crept forward on hands and knees and started to lift himself up beside a tree he came face to face with Williams, who was about to do the same thing from the opposite direction. Both sprang up and began firing. The range was too close, and the sudden encounter had also upset them. Each man fired five or six bullets, each had his clothing perforated and then each retreated. Taking the tree as a common center, they began circling around it, and must have passed each other at least twice. Then the circle was broadened until the tree was half a mile from its outer edge, and it took in a mass of rock which both men had marked for a strong position.

At about one o'clock in the afternoon Johnson was creeping toward the rocks from one direction and Williams from another, but Williams gained the shelter first. Johnson caught a glimpse of him as he crouched among the shadows of the rocks, but waited to get a better view of him before firing. He lay on his stomach, his rifle over a stick on the earth and his eye at the sights, and he felt sure of his man. Let Williams move but a foot one way or the other and a bullet would find him. For ten minutes stillness reigned throughout the basin. Then, as sudden as a thunderbolt, there was an angry scream from a wild beast and Johnson saw some object cross his line of vision and descend upon the crouching man. It took him full half a minute to understand what was happening and that it was not a trick of his adversary. There were growls, shouts and screams, with two bodies rolling over and over in the undergrowth, and Johnson at length made out that a mountain lion had sprung upon the man who was watching and waiting for him. As soon as this became clear he dashed forward, got in two shots and then flung away his rifle and attacked the lion with his knife. The beast had received seven stabs from Williams and two bullets from Johnson, and yet the latter was severely clawed before the beast gave up its hold on life. In lighting upon its victim it had seized him by the throat, and, though the man had made a wonderful fight of it, he died ere Johnson had finished the lion.

Half an hour before dusk our leader came staggering into camp, his clothing in rags and his body bleeding from a dozen wounds. We rushed forward for an explanation, and, bracing his back against a tree, he said:

"It was a mountain lion. He killed Williams and almost did for me. Thank God, I am no murderer!"—N. Y. Sun.

Advantages of Teaching.

Returning from school with a pumpkin seed in her hand a little girl informed her mother that her teacher had taught her that the seed was white but the pumpkin was yellow. The mother asked: "What is the color of the vines?" The five-year-old said that her teacher had not taught her that. "But," said the mother, "you know, for you have seen the vines in the garden." "Of course I have, but we are not expected to know anything until we have been taught."—Philistine.

MINNESOTA SOLDIERS

Three Thousand Minnesota Boys Now Awating Orders at Camp Ramsey

Thrilling Scenes as the Boys March Away From Home--Camp Ramsey is Now Their Home---A Great Day in the North Star State.

St. Paul, April 29.—St. Paul woke up early this morning, with a new brightness about his halo that astonished the sedate old fellow not a little. As early as 6 o'clock the local volunteers put in an appearance at the armory and completed preparations for their departure. When the first outside companies, those from Duluth and Princeton, put in an appearance shortly after 7 o'clock thousands of citizens lined the streets and bade them welcome with tumultuous cheers. During the night the appearance of the city underwent great changes, patriotic citizens and business men decorating their places with flags and bunting, and the scene presented more the appearance of a gay holiday than the prelude of grim war.

The Third regiment was first on the ground, notwithstanding the fact that they had the greatest distance to come. By 9 o'clock all the companies of the Third had formed on Sibley street opposite Smith Park, and, headed by Seibert's Third regiment band, took up the line of march to the state capitol.

Co. K, of the First, was next to arrive from Stillwater over the St. Paul and Duluth in a special train. The K boys were given a royal send-off by their fellow townsmen. The city of Stillwater turned out en masse to bid them Godspeed, and the patriotic ladies nearly smothered them with roses and carnations, which the boys affixed to their caps.

The Minneapolis companies came in on the Northern Pacific at 9:30 and were received at the foot of Fourth street by the St. Paul companies. This completed the regiment, with the exception of the Crookston company, which did not arrive until Saturday, and, headed by Watson's First Regiment band, they marched up Sibley to Sixth, to Wabasha and thence to the capitol through a crowd of admiring people who cheered them lustily.

The appearance of the recruits, who brought up the rear, was a surprise. They marched like veterans, and carried themselves in a splendid manner.

The last regiment to arrive was the Second, and they were all on hand promptly at 10:35, when the last of them came in over the St. Louis road from Albert Lea. They were marshaled by Maj. Head at Smith Park, and immediately commenced their march on the capitol.

It is a strange coincidence that it was just 37 years ago, April 29, 1861, that the First Minnesota was inspected by Gov. Ramsey and assembled at Fort Snelling amidst the waiving of flags, the cheering of a multitude, and the soul stirring words of the then great man of the state. It was April 16 that Mr. Donnelly, governor ad interim, called for 10 companies of volunteers to report to the adjutant at St. Paul. The call met with enthusiastic response from every part of the state, and in 13 days the muster was complete, 10 companies assembling.

At noon, April 29, up went the stars and stripes over the fort, the cannon thundered, dinner was served on tables of rough boards, crowds of visitors sharing. Capt. Anderson D. Nelson inspected the men and mustered them into the service.

Gov. Ramsey was present April 29, and announced the field officers, colonel, Willis A. Gorman; lieutenant colonel, Stephen Miller. Drilling at once began, but it was May 3 before any of the companies were ordered away, having been put in good condition by that time. May 9 the government uniformed the men in red flannel shirts, black pants and black felt hats, which was the uniform complete at that time.

The camp at the fair grounds is named "Camp Ramsey," in honor of Hon. Alexander Ramsey.

The camp will be under command of Col. Joseph Bobleter.

The departure of almost the entire membership of the Minnesota National Guard in the Minnesota volunteer regiments leaves the state without military protection, and Governor Clough will take immediate steps to organize new militia. Details have not been arranged, but it is said that there will be one less regiment than before, and that there will be a large allowance of companies to country towns. One object of the organization will be to have men ready and drilled in case the president should make a second call for volunteers for the war with Spain. Adjutant-General Muelberg will recruit the new Minnesota guard. The equipment of the present National Guard will be used as far as possible in fixing out the new companies, and as it is expected that the general government will equip the volunteers from this and other states, the new guard will have a fairly good outfit to start with.

The march to Camp Ramsey did not commence until 11:30 o'clock, when the troops passed in grand review before the governor and staff. They were two hours en route.

When the last company had passed, the column was halted to give the governor and his staff an opportunity to gallop to the head, which was then resting at University avenue and Rice street. From then on they were frequently halted in order that they might "rest up." And bending under the weight of guns and outfits weighing seventy pounds, they certainly needed relaxation. At intervals along University avenue the marchers were greeted with patriotic songs from groups of school children. They entered the grounds at 1:40 and went at once to the locations assigned to them.

On reaching the ground, the troops again passed in review before the governor and his staff, and were then directed to their quarters. The Second regiment took up its stand on the old Gun Club grounds, and within an hour's time a tented city marked its location. The First and Third regiments were assigned to the buildings in which prize horses and cattle are quartered during fair time. They were soon converted into very comfortable barracks. Before getting things into ship shape the men took time to partake of the one day's rations with which they had been instructed to provide themselves, and to which their sharpened appetites did full justice.

Quartermaster John Lind of the Second regiment was being praised on all sides for the efficiency with which he discharged his duties. With admirable forethought, he had secured all of the necessities of camp life, and commenced issuing rations at once, the result being that all of the men of the regiment fared very well for supper.

This is the list of articles receipted for by each company:

Tents, 29; tin cups, plates, knives and forks, 100 of each; axes, hatchets and spades, 2 of each; bed ticks, 100; kettles, 4; water barrel, 1; straw, 3,000 pounds; wood, 1 cord; coffee, 40 pounds; pickles, 20 quarts; vinegar, same; soap and salt, 20 pounds each; pepper, 20 ounces; potatoes, 500 pounds; beans, 75 pounds; candles, 7½ pounds; bacon and lard, 75 pounds each; fresh bread, 100 loaves, weighing 18 ounces each.

Colonel Bobleter established his brigade headquarters at the club house, and soon after the occupation of the grounds issued general orders No. 1, as follows:

Headquarters Camp Ramsey, St. Paul, Minn., April 29, 1898.—General Orders No. 1.

(1)—In pursuance with general orders No. 10, C. S., adjutant general's office, state of Minnesota, Colonel Joseph Bobleter hereby assumes command of Camp Ramsey.

(2)—The following daily routine will be observed: Reveille, 6 a. m.; breakfast, 6:45 a. m.; fatigue, 7:30 a. m.; sick call, 7:45 a. m.; special brigade guard mounting, 8 a. m.; squad and company drills, 9 a. m.; first sergeants' call, 11:30 a. m.; dinner, 12 m.; officers' school, 2 p. m.; squad and company drills, 3 p. m.; supper, 5:45 p. m.; guard mounting, 6:45 p. m.; retreat, 7:30 p. m.; tattoo, 9 p. m.; taps, 9:30 p. m. Until further orders, parades and regimental and battalion drills will not be held.

(3)—Each regimental commander will establish his own camp guard.

(4)—Officers will not absent themselves from camp without permission from their respective regimental commanders.

One field officer with each regiment and one company officer with each company must be in camp at all times.

(5)—To not exceed twenty-five enlisted men from each company leave of absence from 5:30 to 11 p. m. may be granted by company commanders; but they will be held strictly accountable for the conduct of their men during such absence.

(6)—Captain E. A. LeMay, Second regiment, is detailed acting assistant adjutant general, and will be obeyed and respected accordingly.

—By Order of Colonel Bobleter.

A meeting of the field, staff and company commanders was held at headquarters during the evening and a vote of thanks tendered to the jockey club for their kind action in donating their building to the governor and brigade officers during the present camp. The question of what is to become of the national guard when it is mustered out of the service of the state and mustered into the service of the government was also taken up and the field officers of the brigade were appointed as a committee to wait on the governor this morning at 9 o'clock and ask that he refrain from organizing new companies to take their places in the national guard, as it would be an injustice to the boys who have now volunteered to go to the front to come back and find their old company letter and quarters gone, and no place for them in the old organization.

The opinion was generally expressed that when the governor thoroughly understood their position he would not hesitate a moment to grant their request. In St. Paul the armory building is owned by the present national guard companies, and should they object their armory could not be taken by new organizations. The same state of affairs exists in several cities. Every national guardsman has a deep interest in this question, and they all hope that the matter will be satisfactorily settled. No objection is made to new companies being organized for a second call using the present armories so long as their rights are not interfered with.

Winona, Minn., April 29.—All Winona turned out this morning to see companies C and E of the Second regiment start for the place of rendezvous of the state troops at St. Paul. All the factory whistles were blown and bells rung at 4 o'clock, arousing people pretty generally from their slumbers. The militia slept at their armories, and shortly after 4 o'clock, headed by brass bands, marched to Pythian hall, where a farewell banquet had been arranged by leading citizens and ladies.

New Ulm, Minn., April 29.—This morning just as the clock struck six, Captain Steinhauser gave marching orders to Company A, consisting of 140 men. The company was escorted to the depot by the G. A. R. and about 2,000 citizens with a band.

Red Wing, Minn., April 29.—The citizens of Red Wing turned out en masse last evening and gave the volunteers of this city and the Zumbrota company a rousing reception. The Zumbrota boys arrived shortly before 8 o'clock and spent the night in the city. They were met at the depot by the local company and the training school band.

Buffalo Lake, Minn., April 29.—At 3 o'clock this morning the citizens of Buffalo Lake were all up, and the streets were alive with people, preparing to see and meet Company H of the Third regiment which passed through here at 4:30 o'clock this morning on its way to St. Paul.

Camp Notes.

Capt. Sweigert, Second cavalry, who will muster in three regiments, was a caller at the camp.

The guardhouse has been established in the Duluth building, and has had occupants.

The tents on the hill withstood the storm in good shape, and the men, who crept into them for shelter, fared much better than might have been expected,

There was more enthusiasm at the camp Monday than any day thus so far, as the news from Manilla stirred up the companies everywhere. Bulletins were read in the different barns and at the Second regiment tents, and the grounds resounded with cheers all day long.

Co. I, of Minneapolis, is feeling about as frisky as any company at camp, and its members have the idea that they are a little better than any others at camp. They would probably accept a challenge to a football game if any company in the Second regiment feels to incline to issue a challenge.

Two things have been established in the first regiment. One of them is that there is to be no playing at war, and that the officers who are in command under Colonel Reeve, who may have imagined that they were out for a quiet little playspell and that they would be allowed to cool their heels down town while their men were getting along as best they may, are apt to have their little dream very rudely shattered. The other is that the colonel will expect the comforts of the men to be looked after by his subordinates, and that he will tolerate no dereliction of duty in this respect.

The United States engineer corps is preparing to begin the survey of the upper Mississippi river from Minneapolis north. The major of engineers located at St. Louis has advertised for bids for 350 tile marks for that work and the use of a two-horse wagon for the assistant engineer who will have the work in charge.

Burglars robbed the Dayton postoffice during the night. One hundred and fifty dollars in stamps and money were taken.

An old man named Wendell, who lived on an island in Fox Lake, near Sherburn, was found dead.

HIS TERRIBLE SUSPICION.

It Spreads a Thick Smear of Opaque Gloom Over His Correct Young Life.

Reginald Ashcroft was the son of rich but refined parents, and yet he was not happy.

There was a pained expression upon his handsome countenance, and ever and anon he walked to the window and looked out over the beautiful prospect that stretched away toward Wilton manor.

At last he mounted his favorite cob, which had for two hours been hitched in front of the stately old mansion, and dashed down the broad highway.

Upon reaching Wilton manor the young man dismounted and rushed in.

Geraldine Huddlethwaite, who had seen his coming, met him at the door.

There was a fond clasping of hands, a long, long look that was more eloquent than words could have been, and then the handsome pair entered the drawing-room.

"Something troubles you, Reginald," the beautiful girl said at last. "Ah, do not try to keep it from me. My love tells me that you are in trouble. Tell me all, sweetheart, and let me share your burden."

"Dearest little one," he answered, as her fair head was pressed against his breast, "I suppose I have done wrong to come here and cast my gloom over you. But I knew you would worry if I stayed away. Forget that I am not myself to-day. I am unwilling that you should suffer simply because I must."

"Reginald," she cried, drawing away, "you do not love me as you should or you would not have said those words."

"There, there, darling," he replied, drawing her to him again, "I will tell you all. I will be frank with you."

Then he sighed, and after a brief silence resumed:

"You know I am to take part in the match game of golf to-morrow."

"Yes, yes," she answered, and a startled look came into her eyes.

"Well," he went on, "I am almost sure that I am to be made the victim of a conspiracy—that somebody has been tampering with my sticks. I examined them this morning, and one of them looked as if it had been sandpapered. I am almost sure, too, that it weighs at least half an ounce less than it did before!"

Geraldine Huddlethwaite was so badly shocked that she could only stare at him, and they both sat there in dumb silence.—Cleveland Leader.

A WOMAN'S BURDEN.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

The women of to-day are not as strong as their grandmothers. They are bearing a burden in silence that grows heavier day by day; that is sapping their vitality and clouding their happiness.

Mrs. Alexander B. Clark, of 417 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, is a typical woman of to-day. A wife with such ambition as only a loving wife can have. But the joys of her life were marred by the existence of disease.

Suffering as thousands of her sisters have suffered, she almost despaired of life and yet she was cured.

"I became blind."

"For five years I suffered with ovarian trouble," is Mrs. Clark's own version of the story. "I was not free one single day from headache and intense twitching pains in my neck and shoulders. For months at a time I would be confined to my bed. At times black spots would appear before my eyes and I would become blind. My nerves were in such a state that a step on the floor unsettled me.

"Eminent doctors, skillful nurses, the best food and medicine all failed. Then I consented to an operation. That, too, failed and they said another was necessary. After the second I was worse than ever and the world was darker than before.

"It was then I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I heard that they had cured cases like mine and I tried them.

"They cured me! They brought sunshine to my life and filled my cup with happiness. The headache is gone; the twitching is gone; the nervousness is gone; the trembling has ceased, and I have gained twenty-six pounds. Health and strength is mine and I am thankful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for the blessing."

These pills are a boon to womankind. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, they restore the requisite vitality to all parts of the body; creating functional regularity and perfect harmony throughout the nervous system. The pallor of the cheeks is changed to the delicate blush of health: the eyes brighten; the muscles grow elastic, ambition is created and good health returns.

Even Up.

During the summer of 1896 a handsome New England woman paid a visit to one of the North side society queens of Wichita. In due time a swell lawn party was given by the hostess at her home, to make the visitors acquainted with her western friends. Among those invited was Will Beatty. He was presented to the eastern lady, and it happened to be his good fortune a little later in the evening to have her on his arm promenading over the velvety lawn. In the course of the conversation Miss Blank asked Mr. Beatty what business he followed, and he replied: "I'm a commercial traveler." The visitor, possibly in a moment of mental aberration, made this remark: "In the east commercial travelers do not go in the best society." Before the last word had hardly left her lips Mr. Beatty replied: "They don't here, either." Conversation was carried on after that in entirely different channels.—Wichita Eagle.

ASTHMA'S PROGRESS.

From Cold to Cure.

No relief in other remedies.

There are many medicines that palliate asthma. There are few that do more than relieve for a time the oppressed breathing of the sufferer. There are few diseases more troublesome and more irritating than asthma. It interferes alike with business and with pleasure. It prevents enjoyment of the day and makes the night a terror. A remedy for asthma would be hailed by thousands as the greatest possible boon that could be offered them. There is a remedy for asthma. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has cured hundreds of cases of this disease, and testimonials to its efficacy from those who have tried the remedy are multiplying with every year. The cases presented in the testimonials that follow, may be taken as exemplifying the quick and radical action of this great remedy.

"About a year ago, I caught a bad cold which resulted in asthma so severe that I was threatened with suffocation whenever I attempted to lie down on my bed. A friend recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I began to take it, and soon obtained relief, and, finally, was completely cured. Since then, I have used this medicine in my family with great success for colds, coughs, and croup."—S. HUTTER, Editor "Rolink" (Polish), Stevens Point, Wis.

"While on the Gasconade River, Ga., I caught a severe cold which resulted in asthma. After taking doctors' prescriptions for a long time without benefit, I at length made use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was completely cured."—H. G. KITCHELL, Greenwood, Miss.

"Some time since I had a severe attack of asthma, accompanied with a bad cough and a general soreness of the joints and muscles. I consulted physicians, and tried various remedies, but without getting any relief. Finally I took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and in a very short time was entirely cured."—J. ROSELLS, Victoria, Tex.

Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is known the world over as one of the most effective medicines for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, asthma, bronchitis, and all affections of the throat and lungs. It is not, as are so many cough medicines, a mere "soothing syrup," a temporary relief and palliative, but it is a radical remedy, dealing directly with disease and promptly healing it. In response to a wide demand Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is now put up in half size bottles, sold at half price—50 cents. More about Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in Ayer's Curebook. A Peculiar Feeling.

The sensation of homesickness has been variously described, but never more graphically than by a little girl, who, miles away from home and mamma, sat heavy-eyed and silent at a hotel table.

"Aren't you hungry, dear?" asked her aunt, with whom she was traveling.

"No."

"Does your head ache?"

"No."

"What is the matter?"

The child's lip quivered, and she said, in a tone to grieve the heart: "I'm so seasick for home!"—Albany Argus.

A New Alaska Line.

St. Paul, May 2.—Travel in Alaska is picking up again, owing to the opening of the Yukon river route, for which steamers will begin leaving Seattle early in May. The newest and most important addition ever made to Alaskan service is the Empire Line, which includes five ocean steamers, the "Ohio," "Indiana," "Pennsylvania," "Illinois," and "Conemaugh," formerly of the American Line between Philadelphia and Liverpool. These will connect at St. Michael with river boats for Circle City and Dawson. The river boats in the "knock down" passed through here last week on the Great Northern for Seattle.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, May 6.

—Arbor Day seems to have been very little observed here. Perhaps because this is a woods country.

--Excursion rates will be given on most of the railaoads Sunday to St. Paul and Minneapolis, to allow people from a distance to visit Camp Ramsey. A big crowd is expected.

—Members of the High School are begining to figure on examination for the close of the school year. It is to be hoped that our scholars will obtain marking well up to the front.

—A new industry has come to town. Albert Pittsley, has opened up a shop in the rear of the old Post Office for the manufacture of rustic work. He turns out good chairs, tables, picture frames, etc.

—Complaints are frequently made that hogs are being kept in different parts of our village. There is a hog ordinance. Our Village Father should instruct the police force to see that it is observed.

—The committee on streets did a good job last week cleaning up River Street. Now if they will just continue the good work up and down a few alleys. And give some of then a little drainage, our town will begin to be noted for being clean instead of dirty.

—Rev. J. S. McCornack, of Howard Lake, was here last week looking over the chances for getting Rockford and Delano into one charge and supplying them with a Presbyterian minister to hold services every Sunday. That ought to work successfully, and give us another resident minister.

—The Delano broom factory, on Third Street is turning out some fine brooms. Messrs Strauch & Benner, are kept busy. The capacity of the factory is five dozen per day. The firm raised some broom corn last year but not enough. They are planting several patches this year. Their trade is steadily increasing.

—The Village Council should make arrangements to have all slops and offensive debris from the alleys and lots removed from the village durmg warm weather, at least. A pile of rotting apples, potatoes, cabbage or other decaying vegetables or putrifying meats makes a source of disease. These should be taken out of town; they are worse than pig pens.

—The Delano Crickets Base Ball club went to Lester Prairie last Saturday and played their first game of the season. The score was a tie, 5 to 5 in five innings, when the game was called on account of rain. The Lester boys will return the game one week from tomorrow, Saturday, May 14. They have a good club, and everybody that likes to see a good game of ball should be present.

—Other towns are arranging to observe Memorial Day with appropriate cermonies this year. Our country is again at war. This time with a foreign enemy. It is a time when the memory of those who have died since enlisting in their country's defence in the sixties, will be vividly recalled. It is an appropriate time for a strict observance of Memorial Day. Let Delano not be behind on this occasion.

—People who try to have flowers or vegetable gardens, or even a few berries or currants in their yards in town, find neighbors chickens and dogs great nuisances. One gardener, we understand fired four times at a flock of chickens one day this week, perhaps he was too mad to kill any. If the chickens and dogs were taken care of we dare say many yards would present a much better appearance, and the general beauty of the village would be much enhanced.

—Delano is having a good steady growth, no boom, but a gradual enlargement. So soon in the spring John Naslund, C. J. Buckley and Tom Lanway have begun work on good substantial residences on Third street. Henry Bock, has completed a fine big barn on his hill top property on the west side. George Horsch is getting his new house ready to move into. C A. Brunkow, is making extensive improvements to his hennery, and other people are fixing up for spring.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Delano Cemetary Association was held at Dr. Catlin's office Monday evening. The committee on fixing up the grounds reported progress and was continued. The fence is to be fixed up, owners of cattle notified to keep them out of the cemetary, grass cleaned off, stakes reset, etc., etc. A couple of copies of the plat of the grounds were made by Mr. Freeman, and his bill of $2.50 for the same allowed. The next meeting will be June 6.

—Delano's contingent mostly joined the 1st Reg. M. N. G., with them expecting to volunteer for regulars, in Uncle Sam's army. The boys say Will Steffes looked queer running around in a coat with the end of the sleeves half way up to his elbows; some one suggested that he could get enough cloth from the lower end of George Dyer's trousers to piece them out. Jenner Chance, Elmer Erickson and George Kurtz were candidates for admission in the same company. Alva Catlin, in Co, B. says he learned to order arms, all right once, the gun came down on his foot.

--Delano Fair Day tomorrow.

--There is a fine opening for a furniture man in Delano, at once.

—A. F. Corey and Adam Horsch have rented the residence of Miss Rebecca White, and will live there.

—Read inside of this GAZETTE for an account of Dewey's great victory. Also of Minnesota's three regiments now at Camp Ramsey.

--J. H. McArthur & Co. have sold out to Brooks & Co, of Minneapolis. Robert Bullen, and Ed Schimid, are to attend to the business in Delano.

--Editor Wharton, left last night, and his family this morning for Willmar. Mr. W. will conduct the Willmar Argus. He will not let his paper be behind in the race. The good wishes of Delanoites go with them to their new home.

--The Delano boys are mostly in the 1st Regiment of M. N. G. Gov. Clough has given it the number 13 for Minnesota volunteers giving the second Reg. No 12 The Reg. is to be examined by the medical men today and those who pass sworn in, and others sent home.

--Alva Catlin has the proud distinction of being the finest looking soldier boy in Camp Ramsey.--Delano Eagle.

He is the GAZETT's special artist and will doubtless favor us with short accounts of what's going on at the seat of war from time to time if he succeeds in becoming one of Uncle Sam's soldier's.

—An entertainment will be given at the City Hall, next Thursday evening, by home talent under the auspices of the Catholic choir. If you want to patroinze entertainments give home talent the preference. The young people have been practicing faithfully for several weeks and will doubtless render "Tatters" in good style.

—The Health Officer has made a trip around town and found the alleys are being cleaned pretty well, of big piles of manure and rubbish. The ground and the weather are favorable to a thorough cleaning up, and time has been extended until May 16, when those who have not done their own cleaning up may expect the village authorities to do it for them. See Board of Health notice in another column.

—A meeting of the Sunday School Board of the M. E. church was held Monday evening; Rev. J. L. Farber in the chair. Prof. Charles S. Hawker was chosen Secretary. Officers and teachers were elected for the ensuing year, as follows:

Superintendent, Dr. T. J. Catlin.
Asst. Superintendent, Mrs. Mary E. Hawker.
Secretary, John J. Catlin.
Treasurer, Fred F. Farber.
Librarian, Miss Vinnie Chance.
Organist, Miss Mollie Maxfield.
Teachers, Bible Class. Mrs. A. Farber, Mrs. Mary E. Hawker, Mrs. M. A. Chance, Mrs. E. B. Strickland, Miss Hattie Gross, Miss Grace Farber.

WAR.

When we from daily toil do rest,
And gather around our hearth to bless
Our love of freedom, peace at home.
Alas! We think of what's to come.

When but just one short year ago,
We little thought we'd meet our foe
Between that great and mighty stram,
That separates Cuba from the Spanish land.

But now, Alas! our end has come,
And we with Cuba must fight or run;
But look out ye Spaniards both far and near.
For we are powerful. Ye all need fear.

In the last few years your work has begun
To murder the Cubans one-by-one;
U. S. thinking "neutral" was the best plan,
Until our Maine was blown up by those Spanishmen.

And so our soldiers all over the land,
Are forming themselves into one great band,
They are scheming and planing every device
To relieve Spain of a nice big slice.

And now ye enlisters all over the land,
Be sisure and blister those Spanish men;
And when war is over return to your land
And tell us the story of those Spanish men.

—AMANDA E. STURMAN.

County Cullings.

A gold bug has no place as chairman of the Democratic County Committee in Wright County. The Democrats don't want that kind of a chairman. See to it that we don't get that kind. Turn out and vote for delegates who will see that a man in harmony with the party fills that important place.

The Annandale Advocate asks. "Who in the name of human consanguinity edits the Eagle, any way?"

She is moulting; shedding her feathers. The last issues seem to have been the work of the old and the new. Apparently she is to again fall into the old rut, so long traveled, and be a genuine party organ, regardless of the interests of the people.

The war with Spain is crowding out politics considerably just at present; but the elections will probably be held just the same in this country. Don't forget to be at the primary election and send the best delegates possible to Buffalo. The chairman of the County Committee, on whom much of the work of the compaign depends, is to be chosen at the convention to be held this year. Before he used to be chosen at the convention for nominating County officers but things have been changed. Look out that a man who will, and has favored the leading issue of the day be chosen for that office.

The Republican congressional convention for the Sixth District will be held at Anoka, on June 1. Wright County has 23 delegates.

A. W. L. Alniquist, of Cokato, was adjudged insane and sent to Fergus Falls, last Thursday.

Montrose voted against organizing an Independent school district.

M. W. A. are to conduct the 4th of July celebration at Monticello.

In mentioning a visit to the county seat of assessors of the different towns of the county the Standard refers to Joe Reems as an active aspirant for nomination for Sheriff, and says: "Mr Reems is among the original silver men of the county and is meeting with a great deal of practical encouragement from the members of his party in his candidacy for that office."

Lamson, French, and Eaton are still devoting their talent and space to personal abuse. It would be better for their readers if they would give them something more edifying.

Personal.

Health Officer's Notice.

To those whom it may concern: You are hereby notified that the time for cleaning up alleys is hereby extended until Monday, May 16, at which time those who have not finished cleaning up may expect the village authorities to clean up for them. Most of the hogs have been taken out of view. Dogs are numerous as ever. The ordinances are against these animals, and slaughterhouses are prohibited from being inside the village limits. Look out for these offenses against village ordinances and be on the safe side.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of $225.00, which is claimed to be due, and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by John E. Haley and Sylvia Haley, his wife, mortgagors, to Elias H. Robinson, mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of April 1893, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Wright, and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of April A. D. 1893 at 4 o clock P. M., in book 9 of mortgages, page 640, and no action or proceeding having been instituted by law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes in such case provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit:

The northeast quarter of the southwest quarter, and the east half of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot 2 of section 25, in township 121, range 25 in said County of Wright, with the hereditaments and appertenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Wright county at the front door of the Court House in the town of Buffalo in said county and state on the 4th day of June 1898 at 2 o'clock P. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of $225.00 and interest and $25.00 attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in the case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

HOCH, DER KAISER.

Der Kaiser auf der Vaterland
Und Gott on High all things gommand.
Ve two; Ah! don'd you understand?
Meinself—und Gott.

While some men sing der power divine,
Mein soldiers sing der Wacht am Rhein,
Und trink der helt in Rheinish wein,
Auf me—und Gott.

Dere's France dot swaggers all aroundt,
She's ausgespielt—she's no aggoundt,
To much, ye thinks, she don'd amoundt—
Meinself—und Gott.

She will not dare to fight again;
But, if she should, I'll show her blain
Dot Elsuss und (in French) Lorraine,
Are mein, by Gott.

Dere's grandma dinks she's kein small bier,
Mit Boers und dings she interfere—
She'll learn none owns dis mighty sphere
But me—und Gott.

She dinks, good frau, some ships she's got,
Und soldiers mit der scarlet coat—
Ach! Ve could knock dem—pouf—like dot!
Meinself—und Gott.

In dimes auf peace brebared for wars,
I bear the helm und spear of Mars,
Und care nicht for ten dousand czars—
Meinself—und Cott.

In short, I humor every whim,
Mit aspect dark and visage grim;
Gott pulls mit me, und I mit him—
Meinself—und Gott.

—Montreal Sun.

MINNESOTA again claims the proud distinction of having the first brigade, the 12th, 13th, and 14th, Regs. of Vol. Inf. mustered into the service of the U. S. on the Presidents recent call for 125,000 men. Surely when it comes to war, as well as in times of peace, our state is the North Star state.

WE believe no finer lot of young men ever trained in soldier clothes than those going through the military maneuvers at Camp Ramsey this week. And Minnesota has reason to be proud of her sons who have patriotically gone at their country's call to battle for liberty, and for peace.

CONFLICTING reports about war matters, placing the Spanish fleet all along the American Atlantic coast in one column, in the next having it at Cadiz, Cape Verde, or Canaries, in the next hurrying to the Philippines; giving out that the Minnesota boys will go to Tampa, to Chattanooga, then one regiment will be taken to Washington, one to Chicamaugua, the other to the Philippines, may help sell newspapers for one month, but we predict that unless the truth is adhered to a little closer by some of the dailies they will be spotted by readers, and their circulation will decrease rapidly. What people want is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about these affairs.

THE crowd at Camp Ramsey, on the State Fair Grounds, where the 12th, and 13th and 14th Regs., Minn. Inf, Vol. were camped, on Sunday last is said to have been the biggest ever brought together in the state. Excursion trains were run from every direction, and the soldiers coming from all over the state were visited by numerous relatives and friends. The soldier boys say the crowd was so large it was impossible to find the 3000 soldiers among so many people. The worst feature of the business, to those having boys there, was to hear of the large quantities of intoxicating liquors used on the ground that day. Boys whose breasts are filled with patriotism, a love of home, friends and humanity make more trusty defenders of life, liberty and happiness if the intoxicants are not placed before them. It is no honor to the state, to its soldiers, or to its civilians for any body to desecrate the Sabbath day with drunkenness and rioting in the presence of the coming men of our country on the eve of their departure to fight their country's battles. King Alcohol is to day one of our country's greatest enemies, and should be as carefully watched and as closely guaded as any other foe.

From the Front.

Mrs. Rev. J. L. Farber, of Delano, received a letter form her son Bert who as a member of the 2nd cavalry lately left Nebraska, and journeyed to Ga., on his way to the front. Mrs. F. kindly allowed us to make a few extracts from the letter, which tend to bring to our minds how the many young men who are leaving home and friends to fight their countrie's battles feel about the matter.

"CHICAMAUGA PARK, Ga., April 25, 1898.

My Dear Mother: Your very welcome letter of the 19th was received on Friday evening after I had gone to bed. I understand that I am soon to be transferred to the signal corps. I hope it is true. Proud! who should not be proud of such a country as ours? As to being proud of me, I have done nothing as yet, that you might have reason to be proud of me. I am going to do my best when I get the chance. Thank you for sending that paper to Edna. Poor girl, I received such a heart rending letter from her this morning. But then such things must be in time of war. Many people do not thoroughly realize that their country is engaged in war. We are expecting to be moved into Cuba as soon as the navy can protect us on the high seas. Of course this is only a rumor."

Mr. F. then gives a minute description of receiving orders Friday, at Fort Riley, to move to Chicamaugua; of how early Saturday morning everybody was busy packing up, Sunday, was also used as a packing day, and Monday. He was placed in charge of rations, at the depot, and had to stay from 12 M. till 8 P. M. without any lunch. A lot of girls came down to see the soldiers off; passing through Kansas City, where coffee was brought from a coffee house.

He says; "Our breakfast consisted of coffee, cold boiled eggs, bread and cheese. From Kansas city to St. Louis, everything went very well. At Sedalia, Missouri, we stopped for dinner, and to water and feed the stock. They must all be unloaded, to accomplish this. Only one car at a time could be unloaded. By the time five hundred head of horses were thus unloaded, fed, watered and reloaded on to the cars it was 5:30 P. M.

We passed through St. Louis sometime about 1 A. M. My "Bunkie" awakened me and told me that we were in St Louis. I was too lazy to get up, so of course I did not see any thing of St. Louis."

The regiment then passed through Southern Illinois, which he thought appeared mostly under water, crossed the Ohio river traveled over about six miles of trussel work. Railroads in Kentucky, are stone. Many people at the stations greeted the soldier boys. Many would weep, more especially the older people. The girls would throw flowers and Cuban flags on the same staff with the "Stars and Stripes." The boys would, in the background yell until their throats gave out, bands turned out, and guns. One place an arch had been erected American and Cuban flags floated over it and it bore the inscription. "Remember the Maine" "just as we passed the arch a large cannon was fired. My! what a cheer went up. First by the soldiers and then followed the citzens until the train was well out of hearing."

They passed through Nashville then to Chattanooga, where the yards were over run with trains loaded with soldiers, delaying them, saw Look out Mountain, passed on to Chicamaugua Park, where the poor horses that had not been out of the cars for some forty hours were unloaded and cared for. The train had to be unloaded in a hurry to make way for others coming.

This Park is surely a "Paradise." I know you would enjoy living here, or even visiting. The ground is very hilly with some (yes lots) of the beautiful springs I ever saw. There are many nice trees. There are very many monuments here erected by the several states, in honor of their noble dead."

The climate is fine. Warm rain on Saturday.

"Please write soon. Do not always wait for me, as it may so happen, sometime that I cannot answer immediately. Please do not worry about me, God will take care of me, at least I hope he will. What a pretty little girl Lola is. Thank for the picture. Good bye with love to all.

Your loving son,
BERTH B. FARBER.

From Camp Ramsey.

Friday, May 6th, 1898.

Editor: Friday at 8:30 we started to the Capitol. Among things we saw, and perhaps one of the best, was the intense enthusiasm and patriotism shown in Minneapolis; very much different in St. Paul.

About 3,500 men marched to the fair ground from St. Paul (where we arrived, about 9:30 by way of the Milwaukee). We halted on the grass around the Capital until the line was formed, 2nd. first in line, then the 1st reg., then the 3rd reg; each regiment headed by their regimental band.

Al Eppel gave the boys a hearty cheer as they passed him.

The company formed at St. Cloud arrived Sunday afternoon and marched through the rain.

Monday the Co., of Lester Prairie, arrived filling the third.

Every day there is 3 hours drill 1½ in the forenoon and 1½ in afternoon.

Gov. Clough is almost a daily visitor.

Examination was today. Everybody as soon as accepted, gave a yell, they were so glad

Capt. Diggles of Co. B. 13th inf. U. S. V. is very proud of his Co. he is trying to maintain the head of the reg. A. G. C.

A Democratic Congressional Convention for the Sixth Congressional District of the State of Minnesota, will be held at the city of St. Cloud, Minnesota, on Tuesday, June 14th, 1898, at 9 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Democratic candidate for Congress to be voted for in said District at the Congressional election in 1898, and to transact such other business as may be properly brought before said convention.

All the counties in said Sixth District shall hold their respective county conventions for the election of delegates to said congressional convention on Thursday, June 9th, 1898.

The basis of representation to which the several counties shall be entitled is fixed at one delegate at large to each county, and one delegate for each one hundred and fifty votes, and major fraction thereof cast for Hon. Chas. A. Towne for Congress in the congressional election in 1896.

The several counties being entitled to the following number of delegates:

Aitkin	4	Lake	4
Anoka	7	Mille Lac	5
Beltrami	2	Morrison	14
Beaton	8	Pine	8
Carlton	6	St. Louis	59
Cass	4	Sherburne	7
Cook	3	Stearns	36
Crow Wing	8	Todd	14
Hubbard	4	Wadena	5
Itasca	6	Wright	18

All electors who voted for William J. Bryan for President in 1896, or intend to support the principles enunciated in the platform adopted by the Democracy in national convention assembled in Chicago in 1896 are invited to participate in the primary elections called to select delegates to said county conventions.

By order of the Democratic Congressional Committee, Sixth District, Minnesota.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6, 1898.

Mr. McKinley's fighting blood has been aroused by the great victory won by our Asiatic squadron under Commodore Dewey. It would have been strange, indeed, if it has not been, for nothing more daring in the annals of naval warfare has been recorded than Dewey's action in taking his ships into an enemy's harbor, supposed to be heavily mined, for the purpose of attacking a fleet nearly his equal in strength which was supported by heavy land batteries, and succeeding in destroying the Spanish fleet, silencing the batteries and planting the American flag on the Philippine Islands. It was an achivement worthy of the American navy, and one that every American commodore is anxious to try to duplicate. They are apparently going to be given opportunities, too. In fact, the orders have been issued that will give the rest of our navy an opportunity to share in avenging the Maine by doing some fighting. Porto Rico is to be taken. Our soldiers also are to be allowed to do some fighting. The air of hesitation, which was so aggravating, has entirely disappeared, and everything is now apparently bent on fighting. Admiral Dewey's official report has been received, and he can not possibly be prouder of it than is every American who reads it. Millions of Americans yet unborn will thrill with pride and patriotism when they read of the victory won by the daring and gallant Dewey, who will be made an admiral and who will receive a vote of thanks from Congress.

Congress has authorized the enlistment of 10,000 yellow fever immunes, in the south, for service in Cuba, in addition to the 125,000 volunteers.

It is always more or less dangerous to interrupt Representative Champ Clark when he is making a speech, but Representative Lacey, of Iowa, had to get squelched before he would believe it. Mr. Clark was making a vigorous talk against the six democrats who voted for the republican war revenue bill, which authorizes an addition of $60,000,000 to the country's interest bearing debt, and incidentally against the democratic party being held responsible for the acts of the Cleveland administrations, which he declared were democratic only in name, when he said there were only two worse names in history than that of Grover Cleveland—the names of Judas Iscariot and Benedict Arnold. Just then he was interrupted by Mr. Lacey, who asked if Judas Iscariot was not the original silver man. Mr. Clark turned upon him and retorted: "The first silver speech ever made in the American Congress was by William B. Allison, whom you all worship. Now, some of the rest of you ask me questions." The challenge was not taken up. In the same speech Mr. Clark ridiculed the claim of some of the republicans that they were responsible for the war with Spain, and addressing the republican side he said: "We took you by the scruff of the neck and dragged you into it. It's our war." Mr. Clark closed with a glowing and patriotic reference to the brilliant achievement of Commodore Dewey in Manila harbor.

The administration is not allowing the war to cause it to forget the need the republicans have for help in the Congressional campaign. The patronage of the government printing office is to be turned over to the republican candidates for Congress, by an order declaring that establishment never to have been legally under the civil service rules. It will be remembered that an opinion declaring that the placing of the G. P. O. under civil service rules was illegal was prepared by an official of the Department of Justice last year, but was never adopted by Attorney General McKenna as his own and was never made public. Attorney General Griggs, doubtless under pressure from the Republican Congressional Committee, has agreed to the promulgation of that opinion as his own, and democrats in the G. P. O. who are wise are on the lookout for other jobs.

Mr. McKinley deserves credit for standing out against the enormous pressure brought to bear upon him by politicians of his party in favor of incompetent applicants for general's commissions in the volunteer army. He has sent the nominations of eleven major generals and twenty-five brigadier generals to the Senate. Thirty-two of them are officers in the regular army, and the other four, all major generals, are ex-officers, equally divided between the blue and the gray. Fitz Lee and Joe Wheeler representing the gray, and Senator Sewell, of N. J., and Gen. James H. Wilson, of Delaware, representing the blue.

MAPLE PLAIN NEWS.

A few weeks ago a petition was signed by about sixty farmers from this vicinity to have a state farmer's institute held at Maple Plain, Minn. Dr J. C. Curryer, of Mankato, Minn., the Assistant Superintendent of the institute to whom the petition was sent, responded promptly and informed us that they would favor us with an Institute on Tuesday, May 24, 1898. The work is to begin at 9:30 A. M. sharp, at Maple Plain school house hall.

It is all free. No charges. No collections. This institute is conducted by an able corps of state instructors for the improvement of the actual work on the farm and care of stock, so much needed in many localities.

Now as we will be favored by having an institute held at our place we ought to appreciate it, and every farmer within reach ought to turn out and take advantage of the free institutions and information offered by this institute.

Come yourself, urge your neighbor to come and so make the institute a success and surely nobody will regret to have the day spent for that purpose.

Some day last week thieves broke into our creamery and secured about 140 lbs of butter. An arrest may follow.

Jos. Murray, who recently bought the beautiful Loverin's farm on Lake Independence is moving onto it.

The Odd Fellows intend to have a glass front put into their hall this week and have it painted.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

(BY HON. E. P. CHRISTLIEB.)

Mr. Editor: At the writing of my last letter another warm period was about commencing which continued through four or five days and in certain localities further from the ocean than Los Angeles, the thermometer indicated about 100 degrees as the daily maximum during that time. This was unusual weather for April in California. It was followed however by a cooler temperature and rain, the latter falling more or less during several days and the result has been quite a beneficial, saving one process of irrigation, increasing the water supply in the mountain and reservoirs, releiving apprehensions as to a water famine, enabling those living on moist lands to raise a crop of corn or sorghum to be harvested while green for food for animals, and reviving the pasturage on hills and mountains where there is some stock, as cattle and sheep, pastured.

Pasturage on these elevations seems to be of a growth of vegetion peculiar to California and different from that growing in wild and uncultivated places in the states east of the Rockies, some of which are mosses of a large growth. But a small percentage of the surface of the mountain of the mountains of South California, at the present time is covered with large timber. The wood growth being mostly of a low or brush varity.

As stated in my last letter there are no cattle or sheep kept in the orange growing districts of Southern California, excepting cows kept by milkmen, I would now add however that there are a limited number of cows kept by some families, residing both in the country and towns, the latter keeping them enclosed or tethered on a vacant and barren lot during summer time and feeding them there; but the poor creatures object to this kind of imprisonment and often make both day and night hideous with their lowing.

The greatest benefit of this last rain is to localities raising sugar beets, where previously their prospects were apparently hopeless. The beets are usually raised on moist lands requiring little, if any, irrigation; so now there is a prospect for a fair crop of beets and for a considerable amount of sugar being produced in California during the present year. A sugar making establishment is located at Chino, a town situated in the midst of a beet growing district. In all probability this is the last rain of the season and likely there will be no rainfall of any consequence previous to next autumn.

War has been declared, and patriotism is rampant in California; the state already having sent one regiment of volunteers to the front. The cooler heads, however, think that California troops should be kept at home for the defense of the Pacific Coast. Since the reported victory of Admiral Dewey over the Spanish fleet in Manilla harbor, it is suggested that the troops furnished by the far western and Pacific States be sent to aid the Admiral in his operation against the Philippine Island.

Mr. Bryan Awaits Orders.

W. E. Gooding yesterday received a letter from W. J. Bryan, in which he referred to the fact that he tendered his services to President McKinley the day war was declared, but that up to May 4 he had heard nothing from the president in regard to the matter. "My future," Mr. Bryan wrote, "therefore depends upon the action he takes."—Minneapolis Tribune.

SAMPSON HAS A BATTLE.

This morning's dispatches state that Sampson bombarded the fortifications at San Juan de Purto Rico. The New York, Iowa, Indiana, Terror, Amphitrite, Detroit and Montgomery being in the engagement. Not an American vessel damaged nor an American man killed. The Iowa fired the first shot.

Names of those killed on the Winslow are: Ensign Worth Bagley, John Varveris, Oiler; John Denfee, Fireman; Geo. H. Meek, Fireman; Elijah B. Tunnell, Cabin Cook.

Admiral Dewey, powerless to keep order is to be reinforced. Has orders to sink all Spanish war vessels and destroy fortifications.

The first loss of life to the American fleet on Cuban waters occurred May 11. The gunboat Wellington, the torpedo boat Winslow and revenue cutter Hudson, in chase of Spanish gunboats, were drawn into range of masked shore batteries. The Winslow was disabled and had four men killed and her commander and one man wounded. The Wellington shelled the town; set it on fire; sank the boat and silenced the batteries.

The 13th Minnesota Reg. is ordered to Fargo, probably bound to San Francisco, and possibly the Philippine Islands. Leaves Camp Ramsey to day at 4 P. M.

The Yale captured the Spanish boat Reta.

NEARLY one-half of the wheat imported by Spain during 1891-1895 came from Russia. The average value per annum of the imports from that country amounted to $4,340,573, or 47.10 per cent of the total. After Russia the most important sources of supply were Turkey, Roumania, the United States, France and Argentina.

THE leaf tobacco importep into Spain comes chiefly from the Philippine islands, Cuba and the United States. Of the imports during 1891-1895 the Philippines alone supplied 50.29 per cent. Cuba furnished 23.74 per cent, and the United States 21.58 per cent. Imports were also received from Puerto Rico and the Canary islands.

IT is said that telephones are to be placed in the wards of one of the Paris hospitals, within reach of the bed-ridden patients, so as to enable them to communicate with their friends outside. There will also be an arrangement whereby the telephones may be switched on to a wire connected with a concert hall, so that the performance may be enjoyed by the invalids.

KAISER WILHELM carries with him a small but serviceable revolver, either in his pocket or in his belt when in uniform. The threats of the anarchists have caused him to have recourse to this measure of security. His majesty is extremely skillful in the use of the weapon, and the chasseur who accompanies him everywhere has had orders to inspect it every morning in order to make sure that it is in working order.

GERMAN law holds a man to his bargain when he has agreed to give up his name. A young count, Fink von Finkenstein, in order to marry a girl of whom his family disapproved, consented to change his name and petitioned the emperor to be allowed to call himself Stein instead. After obtaining permission however, he kept on using his former name and has just been fined "for illegal use of a title of nobility."

THE statement of the exports and imports of the United States, issued by the bureau of statistics, shows that during the month of March last the exports of domestic merchandise amounted to $110,944 664, an increase of nearly $25,000,000 as compared with March, 1897. The imports of merchandise during the month were $61,507,437, of which nearly $27,000,000 was free of duty. The loss in imports of merchandise was about $15,000,000.

HUGO GENTHE, the English traveler, who recently visited the grave of Dr. Livingstone, under the old Mpundu tree, in Africa, found that an ornamental fence had been erected around the tree. When Mr. Genthe asked the native who had done it he was told that "a white man and his donna," who had come from the northwest of the Laupula, had caused the fence to be made. Mr. Genthe's discovery has excited great interest among the European community at Zomba and Blantyre.

IN the year ending December, 1897, there were 19,304 immigrants who declared their intention of residing in Canada out of a total of 27,209 entering its ports. The arrivals this year to date give ground for the belief that part entirely from the rush to the gold fields, from 25,000 to 30,000 bona fide settlers will be added to the agricultural population of Canada. The homestead entries made in the northwest during 1897 numbered 2,406. There was but a single Italian settler in the northwest during 1897.

A LAW has just been enacted by the legislature of Massachusetts, authorizing fire insurance companies to write policies covering "bombardment risks." The bill was put through both houses and signed within a week. There is also what is called the "exposing risk," which means the danger of fire resulting from a bombardment. Having got the necessary legislation, the insurance companies are divided in opinion as to the policy of writing such insurance at all, and also to the rates that should be charged, if written.

AN examination into the character of the goods imported into Spain shows that products of agriculture occupy a position of considerable importance. The principal agricultural imports, are cotton, wheat, tobacco, sugar, hides, skin, coffee, cocoa, wool and live stock. Cotton, is the leading item of the entire import trade. During the five years 1891-1895 it was imported to the extent of $15,730,667 per annum. The average annual value of the wheat imported amounted to $9,214,895, while the yearly imports of tobacco, including manufactures of, were valued at $6,809,823.

SPAIN'S commercial transactions with the rest of the world amount annually to more than $300,000,000. In 1895, the latest year for which official statistics are available, the merchandise imported into Spain was valued at $161,829,516, and that exported at $155,555,759, making a total valuation for the combined import and export trade of $317,185,275. This valuation, although exceeded in 1889, 1890 and 1891, was somewhat larger than the annual average for the ten years 1886-1895. The highest value attained during the decade was that for 1891, amounting to $376,545,996.

THE Erie canal, on account of its situation and length, of course, transports the greatest amount of freight. On this canal, which is owned and kept up by New York state, the boats, which are worth from $2,000 to $3,000 each, are owned entirely by the canalmen. The cabins of some of the boats on this canal are comfortably, almost luxuriously, furnished. One canalman, who is known to be worth over $100,000, lives with his family on one of his boats, the cabin of which is furnished with taste and has every convenience and comfort which money can purchase.

THE BATTLE OFF MANILA.

Detailed Account of Commodore Dewey's Bold Dash Against the Spanish and Its Results.

NEATLY PLANNED AND CARRIED OUT.

Spaniards Fire the First Shot—Submarine Mines Explode Near the Flagship But Cause No Consternation—Enemy's Fleet Destroyed in Two Brief Engagements.

Hong Kong, May 9.—The following dispatch, containing a detailed account of the battle, was brought here by the McCulloch:

"Manila Bay, May 1.—Last night Commodore Dewey arrived off Manila bay, and without consulting his officers decided to make a dash into the inner harbor. From his flagship, the Olympia, he signaled the commanders of the fleet to follow him, and with all lights out the squadron of sea fighters steamed into the bay with the crews at their guns. As they passed the fortifications at Corregidor the order of the vessels was as follows: Olympia, Baltimore, Raleigh, Petrel, Concord, Boston.

"Eight o'clock had just struck when the stately flagship steamed silently past the frowning batteries that command the entrance to the bay and in spite of the fact that the moon was shining brightly the fleet was well up the harbor before the Spaniards on watch were aware of its approach. Corregidor lay a mile behind them when the first gun boomed its warning that the enemy was at hand.

First Shot from Spaniards.

"One heavy projectile screamed over the inflioating ships and plunged into the water far away. This was followed by a second, which dropped astern. Instantly the Raleigh, the Concord and the Boston accepted the challenge. A shell from the Concord described a long curve and apparently landed exactly inside the shore battery, which fired no more. Slowly the squadron edged its way toward Manila and the men, worn with long watching, were allowed to drop beside their guns for a nap on deck. So closely had the arrival of the fleet been timed that at break of day Dewey was within five miles of Manila.

"Here he sighted the Spanish squadron. Admiral Montejo's flag was seen fluttering from the cruiser Reina Christina. Just ahead of it was moored the Castilla, a protected cruiser of 3,200 tons. Astern and to seaward in line of battle were arranged the cruisers Don Juan de Austria, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon, Quiros, Marquis del Onero and General Lezo. With the flagship, they remained under way in anticipation of the action that followed. The vessels moved down to the attack in single file at a uniform speed of eight knots, and as they passed in front of Manila three great batteries mounting powerful guns opened up at a distance of five miles. Suddenly the Concord's guns boomed out a reply. For a moment there was silence and expectation. Commodore Dewey signaled not to attack these batteries, for fear of sending his shells into the crowded city.

Mines Explode.

"Veering up the bay, he passed slowly in front of Cavite, where two powerful submarine mines were exploded ahead of the flagship. The commodore coolly glanced at his watch as he stood impassively on the bridge and called the attention of one of his officers to the fact that it was exactly six minutes past five o'clock. As the mines let go a smile flitted across his face, because of the fact that the Spaniards in exploding the mines had misjudged the position of the flagship. As it was, tremendous volumes of water were hurled into the air. But there was no hesitation. Dewey evidently had no fear of the mines. He signaled the ships to steam ahead, and in a moment he was within range of the guns of the batteries at Cavite. By this time the Spanish gunners had got the range and the shells began bursting close aboard.

Flagship the Target.

"The Spanish vessels also opened up with their guns, and the missiles flew all about the flagship, which was evidently the mark at which they were directing their fire. Aboard the American fleet the heat was intense. The men, stripped to the waist, stood at their guns waiting for the signal to open up. All was silent aboard the Olympia except the whirr of the blowers and the steady throb of the engines. All at once a shell screeched through the air and burst directly over the deck of the flagship. Then came the signal from the boatswain's mate.

"Remember the Maine."

"'Remember the Maine!' was the defiant cry that rang out in the American ships. On the forward edge of the flagship stood Admiral Dewey, with his chief of staff, Executive Officer Rees, and Navigator Lieut. Calkins. Capt. Gridley, commander of the ship, from the conning tower awaited the order to begin the engagement. Dewey looked at the batteries, from which puffs of smoke were rising, and said, grimly: 'Shoot whenever you get ready, Gridley.'

"At 19 minutes of six the starboard eight-inch gun in the forward turret of the Olympia belched forth a welcome to the dons at a distance of 5,500 yards. The firing was taken up by the Baltimore and Boston in turn, and shell after shell from their great guns was sent hurtling toward the Castilla and the Reina Christina. At first it was all guesswork. The Spaniards, knowing the exact distance, fired rapidly.

"Their guns, ashore and afloat, were making it warm for the American squadron. Shot plunged and screamed about the vessels, while the shells burst in the air, their fragments lashing the water till it splashed all about their hulls. One shot struck the Olympia nearly abreast of the wardroom gun, but burst without doing much damage. Another entered the Boston's port quarter, exploding in the stateroom and starting a fire, which was quickly extinguished. Capt. Wildes, of the Boston, a moment later had a narrow escape. A shell from a Spanish gun tore through the vessel's foremast, passing just in front of him.

"Encouraged by the small amount of damage that was being done by the guns from the Spanish ships and batteries, the flagship turned and steamed majestically up within 2,000 yards of the enemy's vessels. At this range even the quick-firing six-pounders were found to be effective, and a perfect storm of projectiles was poured in upon the unfortunate Spanish fleet.

Vessels Burning.

"Three vessels were set on fire and their men were forced to abandon the guns. Satisfied with the work thus far accomplished, Commodore Dewey gave the signal and the fleet steamed slowly out of the range of the batteries, in order that the crews, which had been continuously at the guns for more than two hours, could go to breakfast. There was a lull in the firing, and shortly before eight o'clock the fleet steamed past the flagship, the men cheering lustily. For three hours they remained out of range of the enemy's guns, and then the signal for action fluttered at the halyards of the flagship.

Attack Renewed.

"This time the Baltimore was given the place of honor. She opened up with her guns on the Spanish ships and batteries as coolly as if at target practice. The replies were slow and irregular. The Raleigh, the Boston, the Concord and the Petrel were directed to break into the inner harbor and destroy every hostile ship in sight. The gunboat Petrel, with her light draft, was enabled to move up within 1,000 yards. With her guns going as rapidly as they could be fired, she created awful havoc among the vessels still flying the Spanish flag.

"In the meantime the Reina Christina had been burning fiercely and had been abandoned. The Ulloa, which had also been deserted, lurched suddenly and sank beneath the waters of the bay.

"A few minutes later the Spanish flag on the arsenal disappeared and was replaced by a white ensign that fluttered bravely in the wind. The signal was then made to the Petrel to finish the destruction of the vessels in the inner harbor. The Don Juan de Austria, the Marquis Duero, the Isla de Cuba and the Correo were set on fire. The Manila, a large transport, and a number of tugboats were seized before they could be sunk and passed into the hands of the Americans."

PRAISE FOR DEWEY.

Congress Gives a Vote of Thanks to the Hero and His Men—The President's Message.

Washington, May 10.—The greater part of Monday in the house was consumed by war measures. The recommendation of the president that a vote of thanks be tendered Commodore Dewey and his associate officers and men was followed quickly with a unanimous vote, and with equal concert the house passed the bill creating an additional rear admiralship for the hero of Manila.

So soon as the journal had been read the president's message was presented and read. The message is as follows:

"To the congress of the United States:

"On the 24th of April I directed the secretary of the navy to telegraph orders to Commodore George Dewey, of the United States navy, commanding the Asiatic squadron, then lying at the port of Hong Kong, to proceed forthwith to the Philippine islands, there to commence operations and engage the Spanish fleet.

"Promptly obeying that order, the United States squadron, consisting of the flagship Olympia, Baltimore, Raleigh, Boston, Concord and Petrel, and the revenue cutter McCulloch as an auxiliary dispatch boat, entered the harbor of Manila at daybreak on the 1st of May and immediately engaged the entire Spanish fleet of 11 ships, which were under the protection of the fire of the land forts. After a stubborn fight, in which the enemy suffered great loss, these vessels were destroyed or completely disabled, and the water battery at Cavite silenced. Of our brave officers and men not one was lost, and only eight injured, and those slightly. All of our ships escaped any serious damage.

"By the 4th of May Commodore Dewey had taken possession of the naval station at Cavite, destroying the fortifications there and at the entrance of the bay, and paroling their garrisons. The waters of the bay are under his complete control. He has established hospitals within the American lines, where 250 of the Spanish sick and wounded are assisted and protected.

"The magnitude of this victory can hardly be measured by the ordinary standards of naval warfare. Outweighing any material advantage is the moral effect of this initial success. At this unsurpassed achievement the great heart of our nation throbs, not with boasting or with greed of conquest, but with deep gratitude that this triumph has come in a just cause, and that by the grace of God an effective step has thus been taken toward the attainment of the wished-for peace. To those whose skill, courage and devotion have won the fight, to the gallant commander and the brave officers and men who aided him, our country owes an incalculable debt.

"Feeling as our people feel, and speaking in their name, I at once sent a message to Commodore Dewey, thanking him and his officers and men for their splendid achievement and overwhelming victory, and informing him that I had appointed him an acting rear admiral.

"I now recommend that, following our national precedents, and expressing the fervent gratitude of every patriotic heart, the thanks of congress be given Acting Rear Admiral George Dewey, of the United States navy, for his highly distinguished conduct in conflict with the enemy, and to the officers and men under his command, for their gallantry in the destruction of the enemy's fleet and the capture of the enemy's fortifications in the bay of Manila.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

"Executive Mansion, May 9, 1898."

The congressional resolution of thanks to Admiral Dewey and his officers and men is as follows:

"Joint resolution, tendering the thanks of congress to Commodore George Dewey, U. S. N., and to the officers and men of the squadron under his command.

"Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that in pursuance of the recommendation of the president, made in accordance with the provisions of section 1,508 of the revised statutes, the thanks of congress and the American people are hereby tendered to Commodore George Dewey, U. S. N., commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station, for highly distinguished conduct in conflict with the enemy as desplayed by him in the destruction of the Spanish fleet and batteries in the harbor of Manila, Philippine islands, May 1, 1898.

"Section 2. That the thanks of congress and of the American people are hereby tendered through Commodore Dewey to the officers and men under his command, for the gallantry and skill exhibited by them on that occasion.

"Section 3. Be it further resolved, that the president of the United States be requested to cause this resolution to be communicated to Commodore Dewey and through him to the officers and men under his command."

Washington, May 10.—Fitting tribute was paid by the senate Monday to Commodore Dewey for the magnificent victory he achieved in the battle of Manila bay. Without a word of debate and without a dissenting voice the senate agreed to the resolution carrying into effect the recommendation of the president.

The senate went farther even than that. A bill was presented increasing the number of rear admirals in the navy from six to seven, in order that the president might nominate Commodore Dewey to the highest position in the navy within his gift, and that, too, was passed without dissent. In addition a joint resolution was unanimously agreed to directing the secretary of the navy to present to Commodore Dewey a sword and medal of honor, and to have struck, in commemoration of the battle of Manila, a bronze medal for each of the officers and men who participated in the gallant fight. The resolution appropriates $10,000 to enable the secretary to carry its provisions into effect.

Woodford Arrives.

Washington, May 9.—Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, United States minister to Spain arrived in Washington from New York Sunday evening shortly before nine o'clock. He went almost directly to the white house, where he was given a most cordial reception by the president.

ITALY'S BREAD RIOTS

Hundreds of People Slain in the Streets of Milan.

Troops Unable to Restore Order and Compelled to Retire—Rioting at Monza—More Reserves Ordered Out.

Lugano, Switzerland, May 9.—About one o'clock Sunday afternoon a veritable battle occurred in the Via Somtraire. Thousands of tiles and chimneys were hurled from the roofs upon the troops, who were compelled to retire. A similar fight took place in the Via Torino, and it is believed that no fewer than 300 were killed and 1,000 injured.

The gates of the town were held by the troops in the evening, and throughout the night, so that workmen employed outside were unable to return to their homes. In this way the rising was deprived of additional help from without. During the night the city was in complete darkness and funereal silence. Artillery, cavalry and infantry bivouacked on the Plaza del Duomo, where reenforcements were constantly arriving.

Rioting at Monza.

Milan, May 9.—A proclamation has been issued, calling upon the people to remain tranquil, and reenforcements of troops continue to arrive here. They will guard the outskirts of the city. At Monza, nine miles from here, there was a demonstration Saturday against calling out the reserves. Troops charged three times and three people were killed and 16 wounded. The queen and the queen regent of Holland, who were expected here, have been advised by the government not to proceed to Milan.

More Reserves Ordered Out.

Rome, May 9.—Another portion of the 1873 reserves and a portion of the reserves of 1874 have been ordered to be under arms by Tuesday. Generally speaking the agitation continues, but it is less intense. The authorities have ordered all socialist and republican clubs to dissolve. There is a rumor current that the rioters have driven back a train under the impression that it was conveying soldiers.

Hundreds Slain.

London, May 10.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Milan, Italy, says that it is extremely difficult to speak with accuracy of the numbers killed and wounded during the rioting. Any estimate would only approximate the truth. Probably it would not be exaggerating to state that the number of deaths was little short of 1,000. What the number of wounded was, it would be impossible to say. Many of the casualities will probably never be known.

Close Call for American Boats.

Key West, Fla., May 9.—Only poor marksmanship on the part of the Spanish gunners saved the Vicksburg and the cutter Morrill from destruction off Havana Saturday morning. For over half an hour they were under the fire of the guns of the Santa Clara water batteries, but both escaped without material injury, although shrapnel shots from eight-inch guns exploded all about them and both now show the pitted scars of the Spanish bullets. The wily Spaniards had arranged a trap to send a couple of our ships to the bottom. A small schooner was sent out from Havana harbor shortly before daylight to draw some of the Americans into the ambuscade. The Vicksburg and the Morrill, in the heat of the chase and in their contempt for Spanish gunnery, walked straight into the trap that had been set for them.

To Assemble at Chickamauga.

Chickamauga National Park, Ga., May 9.—It was given out officially Sunday that 40,000 men of the volunteer army would be mobilized here just as soon as they have been mustered into the government service. With the ten regiments of regulars now here filled to war strength the army at this point will number 50,000 men. It is also announced that Maj. Fitzhugh Lee and Maj. Joe Wheeler and Maj. Gen. Wilson would be in command, the purpose being to form the volunteer men into three army corps.

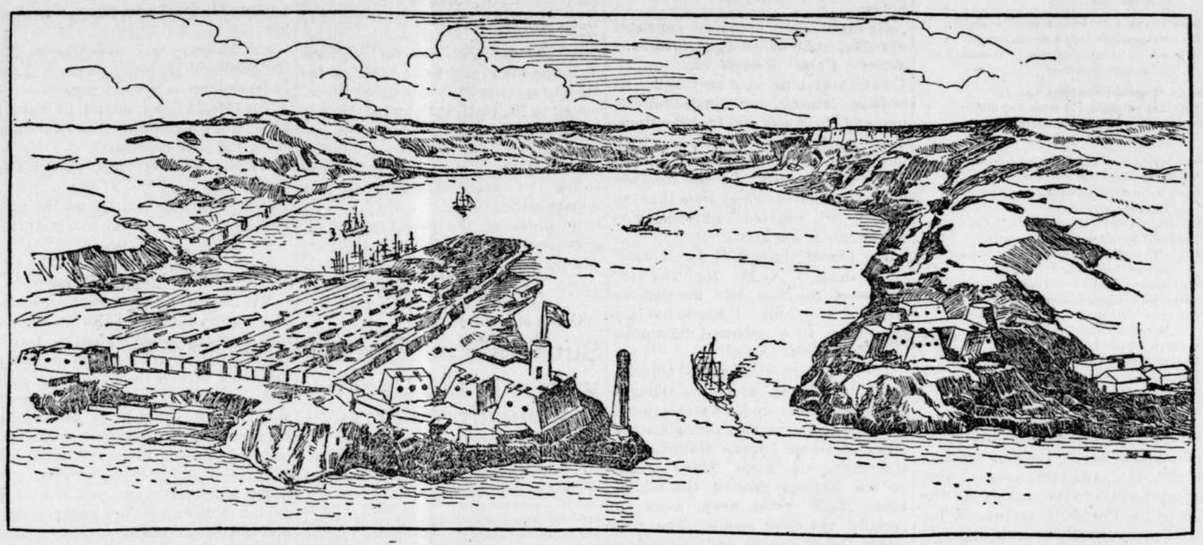
To Resist to the Death.

London, May 10. — It was announced Monday in a special dispatch from Madrid that the Spanish ministers of war and marine, Gen. Correa, and Admiral Bermejo, declare they do not expect Manila to be attacked before the arrival of reenforcements for Rear Admiral Dewey from the United States. The dispatch adds that orders have been sent to Gen. Agusti, the governor-general of the Philippine islands, to resist to the death any attack on Manila.

Cuban Congress Opened.

Havana, May 6. — The Cuban congress elected under the autonomist government was formally opened Wednesday with great ceremony. Capt. Gen. Blanco made a speech, in the course of which he said that if the declarations of the United States had been sincere its guns to-day ought to be saluting the first Cuban parliament, instead of threatening the lives of the members.

SAN JUAN BAY, PUERTO RICO, SHOWING FORTIFICATIONS.



CAPTURE OF FRENCH LINER.

La Fayette Attempting to Enter Havana Is Taken by American War Vessels—Her Release Ordered.

Key West, Fla., May 7.—Commodore Watson has received orders from Washington instantly to release the French mail steamer La Fayette and to send her to Havana under escort. The capture of the Frenchman by the gunboat Annapolis turned out to have been an unfortunate incident, resulting from mistakes, but no protest has been made to the representatives of the French government in the Unietd States.

The United States authorities who examined the La Fayette Friday say that so far as the ship's manifest shows she carried no contraband of war, but with such an immense cargo it was impossible to make a thorough inspection. They saw nothing in the nature of arms or ammunition aboard.

The Associated Press dispatch boat Kate Spencer, has brought in the following account of the capture of the La Fayette:

The La Fayette, of the French General Transatlantic company's line, a vessel of 3,390 tons, gross register, bound from Corunna, Spain, on April 23, for Havana, was captured Thursday evening off the latter port by the United States gunboat Annapolis, commander J. J. Hunker, while trying to run the blockade after having previously been warned off. She has on board a large number of passengers and a valuable general cargo, possibly containing contraband of war.

The La Fayette, which hails from St. Ignarico, France, is a fine vessel of the old type. She is 344 feet long, has 44 feet beam and is 28 feet deep. She was built in 1864 at Greenoch of iron.

Her capture was effected shortly before sundown in the following manner:

The La Fayette was heading for Havana and was boarded by an officer of the Annapolis and warned not to enter port. She afterwards made an attempt to do so and was captured after an exciting chase. The Wilmington, Newport and Morrill took part in the capture of the Frenchman.

After an examination of the La Fayette's papers had been made a prize crew from the Annapolis was placed on board and she was sent to Key West, escorted by the Wilmington.

Previous to this step being taken, Commander Hunker of the Annapolis, the temporary flag officer, and Commander C. C. Todd, of the Wilmington, exchanged signals for over an hour. A delicate international question is thought to be involved in the capture of the French steamer, but it was seemingly finally decided to send her to Key West.

SKIRMISH IN CUBA.

Tug Leyden Safely Lands a Quantity of Supplies—Is Attacked by Blanco's Troops.

New York, May 6.—A Key West special says the tug Leyden has returned there after having landed two parties on Cuban soil, one of them having had subsequently a sharp engagement with Spanish forces. One of the parties consisted, according to report, of a commission from Washington to Gen. Gomez, which was debarked on the north shore of Santa Clara province, whence an immediate start for the interior was made. The other party, which landed near Mariel, west of Havana, was under the command of the Cuban leader, Gen. Baldomero Acosta. Before this company went ashore the cruiser Wilmington shelled some Spanish cavalry assembled in the vicinity, and when the landing was effected Acosta's detachment charged and routed the Spaniards, who in their retreat took with them about 60 wounded, but left 16 dead on the field. The American and Cuban colors were hoisted side by side on Cuban soil.

Sagasta Defends Spain's Position.

Madrid, May 10.—In an interview Premier Sagasta deplored the defeat at Manila, and insisted that it was due to the superiority of the American fleet, and, while it brought sadness, it did not produce despair. He denounced the enemies of the monarchy at home, and said the greatest danger to the government lies in the intrigue and opposition of unpatriotic factions, who continue to plot against the ministry. He said war was deliberately forced by America's greed, and declared that the United States, taking advantage of Spain's financial weakness and her troubles with her colonies, declared war in order to secure for herself the long-coveted possession of Cuba.

Troops for Dewey.

Washington, May 10.—At Monday's special cabinet meeting the leading subjests of discussion were the measures to be taken to reenforce Admiral Dewey at Manila and the probable movement on Cuba. As to the former there has been no material change in the plans. Approximately 5,000 troops will be dispatched on the City of Peking and other transports. The Charleston will act as convoy.

St. Louis to Honor Dewey.

St. Louis, May 10.—Mayor Zeigenhein has officially proclaimed Saturday, May 14, a public holiday in honor of the victory of Admiral Dewey. A mammoth celebration will take place at Forest park. The programme of exercises will include speeches by the mayor and representative citizens, music and a parade.

War Measures Adopted.

Madrid, May 10.—Both chambers of the cortes have adopted the war measures proposed by the government.

RIOT AND BLOODSHED.

Disorders in Spanish Provinces Increasing—Encounters of Mobs with Civil Guards.

Madrid, May 10.—The disorder in the Spanish provinces is increasing. Riots have now broken out at Cadiz and Alicante, and the troubles are expected to spread to parts of the country which have hitherto been quiet.

There was serious rioting at Linares, 23 miles from Jaen, Sunday. The mob assembled in front of the town hall and, finding the doors locked, tore out the windows, swarmed into the building and threw everything movable into the streets. The civil guards intervened and a desperate struggle followed in the passages of the building. The rioters were finally driven out by the civil guards, who frequently fired into the mob. Some of the rioters procured guns and returned the fire. Fourteen persons are said to have been killed and about 60 wounded. The local forces are not considered strong enough to cope with the disturbance and reenforcements of troops have been asked for.

Later the mob made another attack on the town hall and drove out the civil guards. The rioters were well supplied with ammunition and kept up a galling fire, while shouts of "Down with the taxes," were raised on all sides.

After forcing an entrance into the town hall, the rioters pillaged the building; subsequently they captured the residence of the tax collector by assault. They demolished everything in sight, stole 2,100 pesetas and a box of jewels and attempted to set fire to the house.

Serious disorders have occurred at Brones, near Seville, at which place the village priest has been stoned to death.

Revised figures show that 12 men were killed and 50 wounded. The bodies of the killed and the wounded persons were allowed to lie in the streets, the fusillade from the town hall being so incessant that it was impossible to rescue the wounded.

FOOD FOR FLAMES.

Fire Sweeps Away Fifty Buildings at Duluth, Minn.—Two Thousand Homeless People.

Duluth, Minn., May 9.—Fifty frame buildings on Minnesota Point, just above the ship canal, were burned Sunday afternoon. There was a lazy puff of smoke, a burst of flame and then a long row of ramshackle buildings sprang into a blaze. An hour later 2,000 people were homeless. The fire took 12 frame store buildings fronting on Lower Lake avenue, just below the "Under-the-hill" district, and swept from there back to the lake shore. The district was populated by the poorest people in the city. Many of the upper parts of the two and three-story store buildings were occupied as tenements. They were inhabited as closely as the people could cluster, and back of the line of buildings fronting on the street were shacks huddled all too close for health and safety. There are no particularly large individual losses. The total is thought to be over $100,000. Among the sufferers were 50 families of Jews, members of a colony, who were at a mass meeting praying for the success of the American army in the war with Spain. There were many narrow escapes from death, but it is believed that everybody was rescued.

Failure of a Grain Firm.

Chicago, May 10.—One failure was recorded Monday as a result of the fluctuations in the wheat market, and the man to go under was Robert Lindblom, one of the best known operators on the board of trade and president of the civil service commission. Immediately after the close of business Monday afternoon he made an assignment in the county court to the Royal Trust company as assignee, the assets and liabilities being fixed at $100,000 and $125,000, respectively.

Dewey Was Promptly Honored.

Washington, May 9. —By direction of the president, Secretary Long sent the following cable dispatch to Admiral Dewey:

"Washington, May 7, 1898. Dewey, Manila: The president, in the name of the American people, thanks you and your officers and men for your splendid achievements and overwhelming victory. In recognition he has appointed you acting admiral, and will recommend a vote of thanks to you by congress.

"(Signed) LONG."

To Arm Insurgents.

Washington, May 6.—Just before adjournment Thursday the senate passed an important war measure authorizing the president and general officers of the army to supply the Cuban insurgents with arms and munitions of war, and empowering officers of the army serving in Cuba to supply needy inhabitants of the island with medicines and subsistence.

Is Unconstitutional.

Washington, May 10. — The supreme court, in the case of H. Rhodes, railroad agent at Brighton, Ia., versus the state of Iowa, held that the Iowa law forbidding the sale of liquors in the state and making it a crime to transport them was unconstitutional as an interference with interstate commerce.

Bad Eruptions

Sores Broke Out and Discharged But Hood's Cured.

"My son had eruptions and sores on his face which continued to grow worse in spite of medicines. The sores discharged a great deal. A friend whose child had been cured of a similar trouble by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it. I began giving the boy this medicine and he was soon getting better. He kept on taking it until he was entirely cured and he has never been bothered with eruptions since." MRS. EVA DOLBEARE, Horton, Ill.

SOMETHING HAPPENED.

A Bit of Excitement in the Nevada Desert.

The town of Galt, in the middle of the Nevada desert, contains 11 houses, and you step out of the First precinct of the First ward into boundless alkali-covered space. For two hours we had been lying on the main track waiting for the engineer to find out just what was the trouble with his locomotive and to remedy the disability, and there was little prospect of a resumption of the journey short of half a day of lingering. Every passenger had already investigated the half-acre of town at least six times, and the delay was becoming so monotonous that complaint rose and traveled in waves.

"For heaven's sake!" cried a stout wine dealer from California, "doesn't anything ever happen in such a town as this? Can't somebody think of something to do to pass the time? What interesting occurrences have you here, anyway?" The last question was addressed to a thin, lazy-looking young man, the only male adult resident in Galt who was visible among the 12 or 14 women and children gathered at the railroad tracks.

"Don't nothin' much ever happen here," said the local dweller. "Blame it all, ev'ry goin's on is up at Podiga, the county seat, where there's as many as 17 houses. They've got a trial up there this week, an' all our men folks has been drawed on the jury. That's why I'm the only one here. I'd a gone, too, but I got a sore knee, an' the shurreff wouldn't take me. Always my luck. Never see nothin' nor have no experience. Them six men that went from here'll come back an' talk for two years about bein' on that jury. Plagued shame. A man with a sore knee'd make as good a feller for a jury as anyone else."

"Well, can't we get up a fight or something diverting to pass time away?"

"I ain't agin fightin', but I don't fight only with Ben Hackbarth, fer I can lick him easy. But Ben's on the jury. He'll come back an' blow about it, too. Dog him."

"I'll give a dollar if you'll wrestle or run a race or dance a jig or—or—or—by thunder, anything!"

"Ain't never rassled with anybuddy but Ben Hackbarth, 'cause I can throw him; an' I don't care to run a race, either, unless with Ben, an' he's on the jury. Wisht I was up there havin' experiences, too."

"Well," desperately pursued the tired-out passenger, "isn't there something you can do without Ben Hackbarth? Anything? Anything, I say. I'll make up a purse of $10 for any—"

"Mister, did you say $10?" one of the younger of the bystanding women interrupted. The wine dealer said "Yes," and the girl called the disappointed youth aside and the two talked for a few moments. The proprietor of the lame knee then approached the knot of passengers and said:

"We've decided we'll take you up, mister. That is, if there's any preacher with you."

"Preacher? You bet your life! We've got a bishop!" yelled the New York business man of berth 7. And he rushed for the sleeper, for he understood the purport of the remark of the Galt man.

"The idy is this here," said the latter. "Ben Hackbarth an' me both been kind o' tryin' around fer this young lady to marry us, an' Ben bein' a kind o' traveled an' experienced man seemed like it'd be natcherl fer her to take him, as she told me in our talkin' just now."

"He'd been as fur as Elko once," said the girl.

"But when you spoke of givin' $10 fer anything, from gittin' married to shootin' at a mark, just so it was done right here and now, she took a notion—"

"Ten dollars is $10," said the girl, succinctly.

The bishop was not averse to uniting two loving hearts, and the whole train turned out to celebrate the occasion. The marriage took place on the rear platform of the sleeper, and some of the women passengers lent effects to deck the bride out regardless. The festivities continued up to the time when the engineer announced that he had patched the defect in the locomotive and was ready to proceed, and then the wine dealer took up a fund for the new family. The conductor even agreed to carry the couple on to the next station for a bridal tour and the Pullman conductor welcomed them to the fine furnishings of his domain. The two left the train at El Boco, being in a sort of daze of delight. The last observation we heard from the bridegroom was this prophetic remark:

"I'll bet when them six fellers git back from Podiga they'll be sorry fer thinkin' that nothin' ever happens at home. They'll be sorry they was ever called onto that jury. 'Specially," with a grim smile, "Ben Hackbarth."—Chicago Record.

A CHEERFUL WOMAN.

From the Democrat, Brazil, Ind.

Every woman cannot be beautiful, but a cheerful face often supplies the deficiency. But no one can be cheerful and bring joy to others unless they have perfect health. Fortunately, science has placed this priceless boon within the reach of every woman as the following incident proves:

Mrs. Amanda Robinson, wife of William Robinson, farmer and stockman, near Howesville, Clay County, Ind., is thirty-two years old and had for several years been in declining health and despondent. For three months she was not only unable to attend to her domestic duties, but too feeble to be up and about. To-day she is in good health and able to attend to her household affairs. She relates her experience as follows:

"I was afflicted with female troubles and was in a delicate state of health. I lost my appetite, grew thin and was greatly depressed. After taking various remedies without being benefited I was induced by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

A Priceless Boon.

"Early in the summer of 1897 I procured five boxes of them and before finishing the second box I began to improve and by the time I had taken the five boxes I was able to go about my usual work and stopped taking the pills.

"Our daughter Anna, twelve years old, was also afflicted with decline and debility. She lost flesh, seemed to be bloodless and had no ambition. She took two boxes of the pills and they restored her appetite, aided digestion and brought color to her cheeks. She is now in the best of health. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People the best medicine we ever had in our family and recommend them to all needing a remedy for toning up and rebuilding a shattered system."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to women as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They restore strength and health to exhausted women when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. These vegetable pills are everywhere recognized as a specific for diseases of the blood and nerves.

GROWTH OF A GREAT MAN.

Step by Step He Won His Way from Obscurity to a Proud and Affluent Position.

The man who had come to Washington after an office was talking over old times with Col. Stilwell.

"Do you remember Mr. Gowans?" asked the visitor.

"Puffeckly well," replied the colonel; "puffeckly."

"I believe he settled in your city, did he not?"

"Yes, suh."

"He didn't seem to have a great deal of ambition when I knew him."

"There's where you show yourself a pore judge of human nature, suh. I nevvah saw a man get along fastuh in our community, suh."

"Perhaps I did him an injustice."

AN EASY ONE.

Not the Way Husbands Laugh When with Their Wives.

A woman of fashion in a checked dress and a great dahlia-colored velvet hat, accompanied by a man in modish garments, was tripping along Fifth avenue. She was chatting with marked animation, and he was laughing flatteringly. The attention of the passers-by was attracted by the happy couple.

Behind the pair chanced to walk a lassie—the one yet living at home with mamma—and an older woman, a friend of mamma. The lassie spied the mondaine in checks and dahlia velvet on ahead and puckered her brow, saying: "Oh, I know that woman—have seen her often at Newport—she is dreadfully rich—now I remember, she is Mrs. Morris Blankly."

The friend of mamma was interested. She asked:

"And is the attentive man with Mrs. Blankly her husband?"

The lassie shrugged her shoulders and scorned the very idea.

"Ridiculous," she replied. "You dear, old-fashioned thing, don't you know that women's husbands never laugh in that good-natured way when they are with their wives."—N. Y. Press.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON

Has Faith That Pe-ru-na Will Eradicate Catarrh.

HON. DAVID MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

It is to Congress that our nation must look for all power. Every volition of the government must originate in this body of representatives. The President simply executes the will of Congress. Congress is supposed to carry out the will of the people. Congress is the brain of the nation. The people are the blood of the nation. Good blood makes good brain. Good brain makes success, contentment and happiness, whether of a nation or of an individual. A man with poor blood cannot succeed. His nerves are weak, his brain fogged and his will paralyzed. Good blood is simply well digested food. A stomach with the slightest catarrhal impairment cannot properly digest food. Pe-ru-na quickly procures perfect digestion. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh whether of the head, stomach, throat, lungs or kidneys. A man perfectly free from catarrh is nearly always a well man.

Washington, D. C., April, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Drug M'fg Company, Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—I have used several bottles of Pe-ru-na and feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head, and feel encouraged to believe that the continued use will fully eradicate a disease of thirty years' standing. Yours respectfully,

D. MEEKISON.

JIM TRENBAR'S LUCK

In the strong, clear light of the August morning the sheriff of Bandera county and his deputy rode out from the timberland that skirted the river bottom and drew rein. Before them lay the prairie burned brown by the sun stretching away to meet the faint gray lines of the horizon.

The sheriff's face was lean and dark with the sharpened, watchful look of a timber wolf on the trail of its prey. His eyes glanced keenly from underneath the hand which he had raised to shade them, as he scanned the prairie long and attentively.

The deputy shifted to an easier position in the saddle and pushed the sombrero back from his heated forehead. He was a young man with a heavy, stolid cast of features. The curling ends of his red-brown hair reached almost to his shoulders. His long, muscular throat rose like a column from the loose collar of his coarse wool shirt.

The stout little broncho upon which he sat pulled peevishly at the bridle and blew the foam from its nostrils. They had traveled far and fast since sunrise and there was still the prospect of a long, hard gallop before them. The deputy felt that his strength needed reenforcement. This fact was the more vigorously impressed upon him since the means of reenforcement was at hand. He drew a flat, black bottle from his hip pocket and held it up to the light. It showed a little more than half-full. He put it to his mouth and drank with evident zest of the contents. The sheriff took his hand from his eyes and eyed him thirstily.

"Have some, Bill?" the deputy said, speaking with his soft, lazy drawl and extending the bottle toward the sheriff, who received it without comment and drank deeply in his turn. The deputy wiped his mouth on his wrist and gave a hitch to his cartridge belt.

"Well, what's the next move?" he asked, when the bottle had been restored to its former security in his pocket.

The sheriff leaned forward, resting his elbow upon the pummel of his saddle and rubbing his prominent, unshaven chin thoughtfully with the palm of his hand. His narrow, deep-set eyes were contracted until only a tiny gleaming line of light showed between the lids.

"Our man's gone north," he said, at length. "Struck out straight for the Rio Grande. He's got a good horse under him and five hours the start; but—" He straightened up suddenly and thrust his feet farther into the stirrups, "we're after him, and it's a good man that can git away from the sheriff of Bandera county with a hull skin. I reckon he'll make for the North fork. He won't trust himself to the open prairie in broad daylight. If I can head him off before he gits thar—" He looked at his deputy, who answered with a look that said plainly they could and would.

The sheriff touched his wild-eyed little mare with the spur. She plunged forward, with the deputy's broncho close upon her track. A fine yellowish dust lifted itself from the withered grass stalks and weeds and hung about them as they rode. The sun poured its level rays full upon the parched and lifeless prairie and upon the two men galloping with grim set faces in the pursuit of justice.

All day long the man upon the black horse had been steadily making for the Mexican border. It was nearing sunset now. The man's slight figure drooped wearily in the saddle. His head had sunk upon his breast and the reins lay loosely in his relaxed fingers. The black horse still galloped, but slowly. His nose was thrust far forward and either wide nostril gave a glimpse of the red within. Great flakes of foam dropped from his bit or floated back upon the wind of his motion against his quivering shoulders.

All day long he had galloped—galloped almost without pause, under the burning southern sun, across the scorched earth toward the creek there, whose sluggish shallow tide the sunset had reddened until it had looked like a trail of blood. They had long since left the open prairie behind them. Here the ground was newer, broken by sloping hillocks and clumps of chaparral and here and there a scrub oak, affording excellent advantages for hiding. He must be keen of scent indeed who would ferret out a man in such a place—keen of scent and sharp of eye, with a long and efficient training in thief-catching.

With a deep-drawn breath of relief Trenbar brought the black horse to a standstill in the shadow of a clump of chaparral and slipped heavily down from the saddle. He was all but spent with hunger and weariness and nervous tension. His face was pale and his knees shook under him. Yet his first thought was not for himself, but for the animal beside him.

He removed both saddle and bridle and rubbed down the tired limbs. Then he led the horse by the mane down to the creek, and they drank together—Trenbar throwing himself prone upon the sand with his lips laid to the water. It was so still there in the low western light. The ripple washing faintly, the horse's heavy breathing as he drew the water in in long thirsty draughts—these were the only sounds, but they smote the air with thrilling distinctness.

Once the horse flung up his head with a start and thrust his head sharply forward in the attitude of listening. In that moment Trenbar's heart seemed to stand still, but he smiled when the horse dropped his nose again upon the water.

"Poor old Chief," he said; "I reckon you're as nervous as I be."

A single long-drawn bird note came plaintively from a tangle of weeds on the farther bank. Trenbar turned the horse about and led him up out of the water. Then leaving him to crop the grass, which grew fresh along the stream, he drew some corn cakes and bacon from the saddle pocket and proceeded to break his long fast.

Lower and lower sank the sun until it rested a globe of fire upon the rim of the horizon. Soon it would drop from sight and night would be upon the prairie. Trenbar at full length on the grass in the shadow by the chaparral watched it drowsily, thinking that before it set again he and Chief would be safe beyond the Rio Grande. Five hours the start and the fleetest horse in southwestern Texas to carry him had given him an advantage which even the sheriff of Bandera county would find it hard to cope with, and yet—

To use his own expression, Trenbar had been born under an unlucky star. He had drifted down to Bandera county from a point far north a year before, bringing with him all he possessed in the way of goods and chattels—the black horse Chief.

Chief soon won for himself a reputation both for beauty and speed and Trenbar received many offers to sell him, one and all of which he put aside, for the horse was dear to him beyond anything on earth. Many and many a time he had gone hungry that Chief might be fed, and well-nigh barefoot that Chief might be shod. Dire indeed would be the necessity which would bring about a separation between them.

For a time Trenbar worked with a fair amount of industry at whatever he could find to do. He had tried pretty much everything in the money-making process, and nothing to success, for the reason perhaps that his restlessness and natural idleness would not allow of his remaining long in any one place. Then he fell into evil ways among the ranchmen and cowboys. He drank freely and when he had money gambled recklessly, so that he was soon reduced to the lowest depths of poverty and despair.

One night when he had been drinking more than usual he sold the black horse to a ranchman by the name of Cronwright for $100 in gold and a shaggy little broncho with a heavy brand on the left flank and an execrable tendency toward bucking. He came to his senses the next day and marched back to Cronwright with both pony and money, demanding his horse in return. The ranchman laughed in his face and as Trenbar broke out into fierce maledictions against the injustice of the thing had drawn a revolver bidding him sternly to begone; Trenbar went, but he left Chief's purchase price behind him. Then and there he resolved that come what would he would have his horse again at any cost. Cronwright, anticipating his purpose, threatened him with lynching—the common fate of the horse thief.

True to his word, two weeks later Trenbar entered the corral at dead of night and took Chief out. The horse was a willing captive. He knew his master and loved him as perhaps Trenbar had never been loved by anything, brute or human, since his half-breed mother died, leaving him still a child, to shift for himself. Trenbar remembered his mother but vaguely. Yet as he lay there beneath the chaparral watching, while the cool purple shadows drifted over the hot earth filling all its hollows to brimming over, he wished that he had been born with more of her traits and less of those that had characterized his weak, dissolute father.

It was so still and warm. Lower and lower sank the sun until only a slender arc showed above the horizon. Presently that, too, disappeared, and it was dark. The horse was feeding near by. Trenbar called him still nearer; then because the quiet was so soothing and he so dead tired he rolled over on his face and went to sleep.

He was awakened by the quick thud of hoofs and opened his eyes just in time to see Chief fly past him on the wings of the wind. At a little distance the horse wheeled and paused with his head thrown up, snorting and palpitating with excitement.

Trenbar sprang to his feet with his revolver in his hand. The moon had risen full and clear, and by its light he saw not a dozen rods away two men riding cautiously toward him.

"Halt!" shouted a voice. "Throw up your hands, Jim Trenbar. I know yer and we've got the drop on yer."

"Gentlemen!" cried Trenbar, "I—"

"Throw up your hands, I say."

The sheriff dismounted from his spent pony and came forward. The moonlight glanced from the polished barrels of the two revolvers which he held, one in either hand, leveled at Trenbar's breast.

"I ain't no horse thief," Trenbar said, earnestly. "Before God, I ain't. That horse is mine. I never had one cent for him. Cronwright's got the money and the broncho that he gave me to pay for him. I took them back the very next day."

"See here, Trenbar," said the sheriff, grimly, "I didn't come here to waste words. I come here to do business. My orders are to take you and the horse, dead or alive. Cronwright's got witnesses to the hull transaction, and Cronwright ain't a man to fool with. Throw up your hands!"

"Never!" cried Trenbar. His wild, black eyes met those of the sheriff unflinchingly. His slight, straight figure was drawn to its fullest height. But the sheriff had faced too many desperate men to be afraid of this one.

"Throw up yer hands, curse yer," he snarled. "I don't hanker after doing any shooting, but I shall let daylight into yer in less than two seconds, if yer don't surrender peaceably."

Trenbar made a feint of throwing up his hands, but the sheriff was too quick for him. Though both men fired almost simultaneously, it was the sheriff's bullet alone that took effect. Trenbar reeled, clutched at his breast and fell heavily forward face downward in the moonlight.

When the smell of the powder had cleared away, Chief, feeling instinctively that something was wrong with his master, advanced timidly to his side and sniffed suspiciously at his clothing. So it was that the sheriff was able to catch him.—Detroit Free Press.

The Wood Oil Tree.

Mr. Augustine Henry tells the American druggist that the famous wood oil of China is expressed from the seeds of Aleurites cordata. It belongs to a family of oil and gum-producing plants, euphorbiaceae, of which our castor oil plant is a familiar representative. Like most trees from Japan and China, it ought to thrive in our country. Wood oil is prized from the fact that it excels all other for wood varnishing.

Discovered Just in Time.

Robert Wood, Charles Wood and Theresa Wood, two brothers and sister, registered at the Merchants Hotel, St. Paul, from Mattoon, Wis., and were assigned two rooms. The three were young and seemed in the best of spirits. Early the next morning the night watchman detected the odor of escaping gas coming from the rooms occupied by the trio, and managed to awake the young men by knocking at their door. The young woman could not be aroused, and the watchman crawled through the transom, assisted by the night clerk, and dragged the unconsciaus form of the girl to an adjoining room. A doctor was summoned and by hard work got te girl out of danger.

It was discovered that the gas jets in both rooms were open, and the gas must have escaped for several hours.

An Old Feud Breaks Out.

An old feud between ex-Mayor John Ludwig and Martin Stadleman of Winona came to a climax on Third street Monday and resulted in Mr. Stadleman receiving a severe caning at the hands of Mr. Ludwig. His head was cut in several places. It seems that the trouble between these two well-known citizens is of long standing. Mr. Ludwig says that Mr. Stadleman has insulted himself and family for years, and only a few days ago insulted Mrs. Ludwig when they met on the street. Mr. Ludwig told Mr. Stadleman that these doing would have to stop. Mr. Stadleman retorted by using an opprobrious epithet and Mr. Ludwig used his cane. Mr. Stadleman states that it was Mr. Ludwig who used the language which provoked the assult.

Robbed the Mail.

The United States mail was robbed at Grove City. Two pouches are received there every night and Agent Wilson, who was alone and very busy, did not take them in as soon as they were thrown off the train. When he looked for them, after the train had pulled out, the pouch containing the letters was missing. It was thought that but one pouch was thrown off, the other being carried by, but the next morning the missing pouch was found by a brakeman beside the track in an old shed. It was ripped open and robbed, not a scrap being left. Two suspects have been arrested at Litchfield, and it is believed they are the right men. They evidently are tramps. Nothing is known as to the value of the contents of the pouch.

Only Johns Can Join.

Articles of incorporations of the Progressive Order of Johns were filed with the secretary of state. The birth place of the order is at Austin, Mower County, and ex-Representative John J. Furlong, of Mower county, is the father of the association. In order to be a member of the society it is imperitive that the member's given name be "John." The membership fee is $1, and it meets once a year—St. John's day. The following are the members: J. M. Grienman, J. M. Rustad, J. J. Corneveauz, John A. Gies, John H. Anderson, J. F. Fairbanks, John Robertson, John C. Johnson, Jr., John E. Schwan, John W. Scott, John F. Cook, John E. Robinson, John J. Hayes, John H. Skinner, John P. Anderson, John J. Furlong.

Annual Registration of Milkmen.

The State Dairy and Food commission has just begun its annual registration of milkmen in towns of over 1,000 population. For the past six years the milkmen have been licensed and under the supervision of this commission. The number in the state has been steadily increasing. Last year there were 1,932 licenses issued, and it is thought that this year there will be 2,500 of them. The licenses are of two kinds—one for the use of wagons and one for other dealers. The commission is well pleased with the working of the law in improving the quality of the milk sold.

Blew His Own Head Off.

A 15-year-old lad named Knut Moe, whose home is in Austin, but who was visiting near Remidji, blew nearly the entire head off himself a few days ago by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. He had gone to neighbors, and in setting the gun down to rest at the door it was discharged.

is the name to remember when buying Sarsaparilla. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been curing people right along for nearly 50 years. That's why it is acknowledged to be the sovereign Sarsaparilla. It is the original and the standard. The record of the remedy is without a rival,—a record that is written in the blood of thousands, purified by its healing power.

"I nursed a lady who was suffering from blood poisoning and must have contracted the disease from her; for I had four large sores, or ulcers, break out on my person. I doctored for a long time, both by external application and with various blood medicines; but in spite of all that I could do, the sores would not heal. At last I purchased six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, thinking I would give it a thorough trial. Before the six bottles had been taken, the ulcers were healed, the skin sound and natural, and my health better than it had been for years. I have been well ever since. I had rather have one bottle of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind."—Mrs. A. F. TAYLOR, Englevale, N. Dak.

"I think," said the lady with the sharp nose, "that it was—" "Never mind what you think," interrupted the lawyer. "We want facts here. We don't care what you think, and we haven't any time to waste in listening to what you think. Now, please tell us where and when it was that you first met this man." The witness made no reply. "Come, come," urged the lawyer. "I demand an answer to my question." Still no response from the witness. "Your honor," said the lawyer, turning to the court, "I think I am entitled to an answer to the question I have put." "The witness will please answer the question," said the court in impressive tones. "Can't," said the lady. "Why not?" "The court doesn't care to hear what I think, does it?" "No." "Then there's no use questioning me any further. I am not a lawyer. I can't talk without thinking." So they called the next witness.—Cleveland Leader.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

When Dr. Hayes, Buffalo, N. Y., announced nearly twenty years ago, that he could cure Asthma so that the sufferer would stay cured, few believed him, for they doubted the permanency of the cures which he established. For many years Dr. Hayes has been issuing annually his "Thesis with Reports of Cases," each recurring season strengthening his position; and it is a remarkable fact that many of the first cases reported are still represented in his book, for they have stayed cured—some for nineteen years, some for sixteen or more years, others for twelve, ten, eight and six years. The names and addresses of the patients are given in full, so that anyone who now doubts may consult the former sufferers freely. Dr. Hayes' practice now extends not only to Great Britain and the continent of Europe, but to India, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa as well. Each patient is treated individually by separate prescriptions varied from time to time as frequent correspondence shows is needed and in this way success is attained in even the most difficult and obstinate cases. Any sufferer or person interested can obtain the latest edition of Dr. Hayes' book on application on a postal addressed to him at Buffalo.

THE DAWN OF WOMANHOOD.

Earnest Words From Mrs. Pinkham to Mothers Who Have Daughters, and a Letter From Mrs. Dunmore, of Somerville, Mass.

The advent of womanhood is fraught with dangers which even careful mothers too often neglect.

One of the dangers to a young woman is belated menstruation. "The lily droops on its stem and dies before its beauty is unfolded;" or she may have entered into the perfection of womanhood with little apparent inconvenience or disorder of health. But suddenly the menses entirely cease.

Mother, puberic malady is taking hold of your daughter, and quick consumption may follow! Take instant steps to produce regular menstruation.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certain to assist nature to perform her regular duties, procure it at once; there are volumes of testimony from grateful mothers who have had their daughters' health restored by its use. If personal advice is desired, write quickly to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. It will be given you without charge, and it will be the advice of abundant experience and success.

Read the following from Mrs. CHARLES DUNMORE, 102 Fremont St., Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass.:

"I was in pain day and night; my doctor did not seem to help me. I could not seem to find any relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had inflammation of the womb, a bearing-down pain, and the whites very badly. The pain was so intense that I could not sleep at night. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a few months, and am now all right. Before that I took morphine pills for my pains; that was a great mistake, for the relief was only momentary and the effect vile. I am so thankful to be relieved of my sufferings, for the pains I had were something terrible."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—A few fine fish have been seen in the hands of some of our local sports.

—Porkers continue to come to the Delano market. This is already one of the leading live stock markets of the county.

—The Epworth League will give an entertainment, entitled "A Festival of Months," at the City Hall, Tuesday eve, May 26th.

—The Eagle still flops though her newest head has been exchanged for her old one. Her appearance last week was all right. Let her flop as often as she pleases.

—Christian Rutt, of Buffalo, supplied some of our citizens last Saturday with some fine potted flowers, geraniums, fucias, etc. They look nice in the windows of the purchasers.

—What has become of the Delano cornet band. It seems there is too much discord among those who have been members. This ought not to be. Harmonize boys; harmonize.

—The Delano soldier boys are thankful to Ignatius Gutzwiller, Jr., of Delano, for a visit and a present of $1 each. Most of them were shy of funds and welcomed the generosity.

—Miss Maud Conzet is one of the most graceful young bicyclists in town. She doesn't go as if she thought the Sioux Indians were after her scalp, but enjoys her ride in a dignified manner.

—The new 18 barrel street sprinkler made its appearance on the street this morning for the first time. She is a daisy and will add very much to the appearance of the village and to the comfort of denizens of Delano.

—Miss Alice Arnold accompanied the remains of her friend Mrs. Bradly who died Sunday, to Minneapolis, Monday, where deceased was buried. Miss Arnold has the sympathy of the villagers in the loss of her friend.

—Assessor Herman Otto, with his knapsack was about town Tuesday looking for stray farmers from Franklin to interview as to how many dogs and how few sheep they keep and to take down how much they are worth.

—Last excursion to Camp Ramsey next Sunday, May 15th. Excursion train leaves Delano nine twenty three (9:23) a m., arrive Mpls. 10:25, St. Paul 11:00. Returning, leave St. Paul 7:45, Mpls. 8:15 p. m. same day. Round trip 85 cents.

—Among prosperous farmers taking advantage of war prices for wheat this week we notice William Ziebarth, Joe. Muckenheirn, Fred Zabel, Uncle Joe and Thornt Bland, and others. Most of them seem to have No 1 hard when it is unnsually high priced.

—If the patriots in our State all join the army and quit eating butter it will have a tendency to lower the price of that article. If Uncle Sam would butter the bread for his soldiers it would have a tendency to raise the price, and make the creamery men happy.

—The bosom of a Delano boy swells the biggest of all with patriotism. Alva G. Catlin suprised the examiner for Co B. of the 13th Reg., and was made the subject of comment by having a chest expansion of over eight inches, and he is not yet out of his teems.

—We understand Watertown officials propose to enforce the cigarette law. That's right. It is given out that cigarette smoking prevented a good many young men from joining Uncle Sam's army. The law is very strict and people have only themselves to blame if they allow people to go unpunished for violating the law.

—Otto Marr has written a few lines to his parents, from Key West, where the Mayflower, a dispatch boat on which he is engaged, put in for coal. He says he is enjoying life and his health is excellent. As they never know where they will be next, letters should be addressed to Washington, D. C. from where they will be sent to their vessel.

—War and rumors of war take up the attention of our citizens more than anything else at present. Some one or more visits Camp Ramsey nearly every day to see the boys in blue and to acquaint themselves with military duties. The wheat market is next most exciting. Prices have jumped up so high as to make farmers think wheat is the thing to raise after all.

—Rev. Farber came home from Montrose Sunday evening considerably under the weather and did not hold evening services. The Epworth League had a good meeting; elected four applicants to membership. The League will, next Sunday evening, celebrate the anniversary of their birth as a league. A special programme will be rendered. Everybody invited.

—General Adams, of Minneapolis, preached last Sunday morning and evening at the Presbyterian church. His morning sermon was a war sermon. He said there are worse things than war. He thinks, now that wat has begun, that there will be a general breaking up of evils throughout the world; that nations will be liberated from the bondage of sin. He paid his respects to King Alcohol as one of the most dangerous of all our foes. Arrangements are being perfected to supply Rockford and Delano with a pastor for every Sunday service.

—All the fire companies were out on drill Tuesday evening.

—The Delano Crickets will cross bats with the Lester Prairie, boy nine tomorrow afternoon. Every body should see it.

—Within a few days of warm weather trees have leaved out, and grass has sprung up at a rapid rate. Pasturage is now fine and many animals are being turned out to hunt their own lying.

—Services are to be held at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath at 10:30, A. M. A supply from the city will preach. Rev. J. S. McCornack preached Tuesday evening. Rev. McCornack will fill his appointment here next Tuesday.

—Maple Plain is to have a Farmer's Institute, commencing at 9:30 A. M. on Tuesday, May 24, in the old school house hall. Good instructors. Free. Everybody turn out and get the benefit. Read what our Maple Plain correspondent has to say about it.

—The wheat market has been very wild this week. No 1 selling for $1.45 while No 2 sold for $1.17. Here is where you see the effects of wheat gambling. If people must gamble they should be obliged by law, not to gamble on the staff of life.

—The entertainment given by the Catholic choir at the City Hall last night was excellent for local talent. The cash receipts was about $34.

Some of the boys are indignant at the criticisms of a nickle novel reader who claimed the play was taken from a nickle novel. City chaps shouldn't look for star performances for 25 cts admission.

—John Longosh, is preparing to establish a brick yard on his farm within the village limits. He says he has worked at the business in the old country and understands it, and that he has lots of the finest clay he ever saw, free from gravel, and he thinks he can make the best kind of brick. He will try a kiln for his new house, if they are not good he can use them for inside work, if they prove up to his expectations he will continue the business. This will be a good addition to the industries of Delano. Most of the brick and stone used here have been shipped in from abroad.

—Those wishing to address letters to the soldier boys from Delano can reach them by writing on their letters as follows:

Alva G. Catlin, Company B. 13th Reg., Minn. Vol. Inf.

Jenner Chance, George Dyer, Elmer Erickson, George Kurtz, and William Steffes, Co. I. 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. Inf.

James Murphy, Co. E. 14th Reg. Minn. Vol. Inf.

We visited all the boys last Monday found them happy and very much interested in drilling and making themselves proficient in the movements and in the handling of arms. Some of them could almost be mistaken for veterans, already from their appearance on drill. Alva Catlin was on guard when we arrived on the grounds, but came into camp about the time we did.

At 9 o'clock the boys went out to drill. We followed company B and saw it go through its drill. They practiced considerably on loading and firing, fixing and unfixing bayonets, and the regular movements over the grounds. Alva was the only man with whom we were acquainted in Co. B.

We hunted up Company I. They were being charged around over the hillside in great style. We couldn't tell one from another for a long time but finally picked out Erickson, Steffes, and Dyer as they passed single file where we stood. Afterwards the company was at rest and we discovered Chance with a gun parading around after his fashion while the other boys were resting. Kurtz was on guard so was not drilling. We next found James Murphy, in Co E 14th quarters with some of his comrades playing cards. We went to the guard headquarters to ask where Kurtz was, not wishing to leave without having seen all the boys. The officer told us that guards could not talk while on duty but he would send out and have him relieved so he could see us. As the boys were there to be drilled, and we had no opportunity to see Kurtz march we made no objection: but waited near by while a corporal marched with another soldier out to the post where Kurtz was and returned in a few moments with George, his head high in air and stepping in stately style. After he had stacked arms and been turned loose he came over and shook hands, said he was well pleased with things in general, was guard at Col. Reeve's headquarters, about all he had to do was to salute the officers; of course the officers all had to return the salute. After a few minutes the corporal returned Kurtz to his post and brought his substitute in. We took dinner in camp with Alva. The beef, potatoes, and coffee were good and well cooked. We always liked butter but didn't see any. But the grub was good all the same. George Dyer says he helps cut the meat. Chance and Murphy both claim to belong to the hospital corps. The rest of the boys are, so for as we learned plain privates. All the boys seem to enjoy soldiering and are anxious to be on the march to the front. John Lind, on horse back hunting about the field for headquarters of the 1st Reg., was a conspicuous figure. Mr. Lind is quartermaster of the 12th Reg., and things about their quarters look more soldier like, from the fact that they are living in tents, than any of the others. Captain Diggles of Co B. and Captain Corriston, of Company I. are two of the most popular officers in the 13th.

—Notice the change in John Brandser's add.

Personal.

M. A. O'Hair visited the cities on Wednesday.

John Lohmiller took a trip to Minneapolis, Monday.

Hon. C. G. Halgren, of Watertown, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

County Attorney Pidgeon went west on the G. N. Monday evening.

Mrs. Minnie Staples, of Howard Lake, visited her mother this week.

Mesdames T. B. Rader and J. S. Shrader visited Camp Ramsey.

Miss Mary C. Catlin visited Minneapolis and Camp Ramsey, Wednesday.

Emil Wiese says the road to New Germany from Watertown is very rough.

Henry Parslow drove over to Hassan Wednesday. He reports his uncle quite feeble.

Horace Goodhue, Dean of Carlton College, Northfield, was a GAZETT caller Tuesday.

L. M. Maxfield and C. H. Green now occupy Mrs. C. M. Johnson's Third street residence.

Gus Brown, of Watertown, returned home yesterday evening via Delano from the cities.

Mrs. Lou Kohler and four sons are enjoying a visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eppel.

Senator Theiden, of Minneapolis, was in town Thursday looking after the sugar beet business.

John McGary was in yesterday. He is at sea on the war question, but don't want U. S. to be licked.

Messrs. Wm. Sturman and At Welker were summoned before the pension board at Buffalo, last Wednesday.

Privates, George Dyer, and Will Steffes, of Co. I. 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. Inf. came home Wednesday morning for a short visit.

Dr. Catlin visited Camp Ramsey, Monday. He found Delano's contingent to the volunteers happy, and anxious to get to the front.

Miss Rebecca White went to Hassan Wednesday to visit relatives. From there she will return via Minneapolis to her home at Albert Lea.

Mrs. A. Hambach, (nee Minnie Finkner) and daughter, of Seattle, were in town, Saturday, with her cousin Miss Katie Brandes, of Leudeman.

Ed Schmidt has moved into C. W. Kerrick's house for the summer. It is a little lonesome yet, but after June 22 he expects to settle down to regular housekeeping.

Mrs. C. E. Dickey visited at A. W. Wittman's this week. C. E. is in Seattle, and reported as having thoroughly satisfied himself as to that country and has been cured of Klondicitis.

Among those attending the Fair Saturday, were W. C. Hawk, and James Stoddart, of Rockford; Ed Nagle, R. Sproul, and C. Rutt, of Buffalo; Sylvanus A. Merriman, of Minnetrista; W Stacy, A. Stevens and John Belden, of Montrose; Joseph May and wife, of Hanover; Mr. Eleason, of Wayzata.

County Cullings.

The Herald says Gov. Briggs and wife of N. Dak. expect to spend Decoration Day with friends at Howard Lake.

An Epworth League Convention is to be held at Buffalo, Friday, May 20. Those notifying the committee before the 15th will have free accommodation.

On Tuesday the barn of Mr. Hesse near St. Michaels burned. Several calves, hogs and other animals perished or were injured the horses were scortched some.

A State Farmer's Institute is to be held at Buffalo, on Tuesday, June 14. These institutes are paid for by the State and every farmer in reach should be on hand and get whats coming to him.

Aug. Ziebarth and Frank Sprogue son and son-in-law of Ed. A. Ziebarth of Seattle, who is brother of William Ziebarth, of Franklin are reported as among the killed in the snow slide in the Chilkoot Pass Alaska.

Maple Lake Messenger, reports the settlement by Albion town and Maple Lake village, of their lawsuit over the keeping of a pauper named Lindmark. Each town pays about half the expenses to drop the case, and call it quits.

Don't forget the primary election, for electing delegates to attend the County convention and the Congessional Convention, to be held at Buffalo June 9. The primaries will be held in everyprecinct on a few days before that date look out for the notices. A chairman of the county committee is to be elected at Buffalo, on the 9th of June. Delegates to the State Convention to nominate state officers at Minneapolis, June 15, will also be chosen.

If you are foreign born and have not yet taken out naturalization papers, do so at once. You will want to vote this fall, and even next month at the primary election. If you have not had your citizenship papers for 90 days you can't vote at any election. Attend to it at once. A man who hasn't patriotism enough to take out his papers is hardly possessed of enough to vote intelligently and honesty,

School meeting will be held next month, in June, the law having been changed. Don't forget to be out and elect to the boards men who take an interest in education. Don't put men in school offices because they wish to make a few cents out of the office, and who care nothing for the welfare of the school nor for the advancement of education. If you want good schools be at the school meeting and see that the best officers in your district are put into the offices.

Mr. Lamson in the P. O. organ intimates rather strongly that not all the G. O. P. candidates have acted fairly since their election: "The Standard proposes in the coming campaign to support all worthy nominees of the party but it will not support treachery in the candidates of its party and while it may not be able to compass the defeat of any "Judases" who may perchance receive a nomination from the party it will not contribute to their victory by its support."

FREEDOM.

They are slaves who fear to speak
For the fallen and the weak,
They are slaves who will not choose
Hatred, scoffing and abuse
Rather than in silence shrink
From the truth they needs must think:
They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three.

Is true freedom but to break
Fetters for our own dear sake,
And with leathern hearts, forget
That we owe mankind a debt?
No, true freedom is to share
All the chains our brothers wear,
And with heart and hand to be
Earnest to make others free.

—James Russell Lowell.

THE Supreme Court has decided that the Anderson bill taxing railroad lands is valid. That gives Lamson a chance to lan A. Y. Eaton for opposing its passage. Why shouldn't railroads pay taxes on lands as well as the rest of the people.

THE United States under existing circumstances seems to construe at once, as quite a long time. Uncle Sam asked Spain to free Cuba at once. And it has been about a month and Cuba is still unders Spanish control. Why hasn't Uncle Sam put Spain off the island before now.

NOTICES of the Democratic County Convention, to be held on June 9, throughout the state for the election of delegates to the State Convention and delegates to the Congressional Convention are being published. Don't fail to attend the primaries and elect proper delegates to the County Convention.

THE Northwestern Editorial Association will hold its Third annual outing June, 2 to 6 at St. Cloud and on an excursion to Walker on Leech Lake. This will undoubtedly be one of the finest outings of the season. We are in receipt of an invitation to be there, but fear we can not attend. We wish those who take the trip the full enjoyments of a Minnesota excursion at this time of the year.

THE would be war Governor of Minnesota has, from reports, gained nothing with liberty loving people in his state by, while in charge of Camp Ramsey allowing a saloon run on Sunday, or anyother day, to tempt the flower of our country to a worse enemy to our nation than even the Spanish army and navy can be. While foes without are being hunted for at those home should be carefully cared for.

THE Spanish gunboat Callao steamed into Manilla harbor May 12, not haying heard that Admiral Dewey was keeping house there. She was all spick and span for the Admiral's inspection when she arrived. Several shots were fired at her before she realized the situation. When she came to know, she surrendered, crew 35. She is an iron gunboat of 208 tons and the Stars and Stripes were run up, and she is one more ship of Admiral Dewey's fleet.

TARIFF IS A TAX, now the time has arrived when even the most obtuse and obstreporous of those who formerly denied the fact are willing to admit it, and are willing to arrange the schedules to produce revenue to furdish armed protection to our country, rather than longer vote protective tariff to deplete the nations Treasury for individual aggrandizement. Surely the world do move.

SHALL the U. S. government issue interests bearing bonds or non interest bearing greebacks with which to carry on the war is again a question. Take Old Abe's plan and stick to it, this time issue greebacks, good anyhow and for any purpose that any money is and that bear no interest, and that are subject to taxation the same as any other money. Then will the poor man not be ground down by the money loaner.

County Conventions.

Wright County's Conventions will be held as follows:

REPUBLICAN, Saturday, May 28, to elect delegates to Congressional convention.

PEOPLES PARTY, Tuesday, June 7th, to elect delegates to State Convention.

DEMOCRATIC, Thursday, June 9, to elect delegates to State Convention, and to elect delegates to the Congressional Convention. Also to elect a County Committee.

Armed Intervention.

People supposed when Congress and the President were so particular to arrange the wording of the resolution connected with our going to war with Spain to free the suffering and starving Cubans that it was their intention to at once occupy the island sufficiently to feed the hungry. But after these weeks of delay it does appear considerably queer that the Gussie, under the protection of Uncle Sam couldn't land a few men, and some munitions of war and food. The filibusters beat that record all to smash, they evaded Uncle Sam and the Spaniards and landed, often, in spite of both governments. What can it mean now when Havana harbor is blockaded and the reconcendoes nearly all starved and the Spanish suffering for food that one of our vessels can't find a place to land? Has the insurgent government that our President wouldn't recognize joined hands with the Spaniards in keeping the coasts guarded from intrusion by our soldiers: even with supplies for the starving? This seems a fair question under existing circumstances. Had the troops and supplies that could have been got together soon, been sent to Cuba and ended the war there, they might have returned home by this time from what people were led to believe at the time. Or had Fitz Hugh Lee been told to get together what men he wished, and gone into Cuba, and in his own way and time to have dealt with the Spanish and Uncle Sam had furnished the munitions of war, few people but believe that the Cuban question would now have been about settled by its people becoming free and independent. But now here we are with the hot season fast approaching when people from this country prefer to remain on their own land, and Cuba more strongly fortified than ever and a formidable fleet of vessels coming to their assistance. If we couldn't stop the Cuban war, and feed the huugry two monthes ago how are we to do it now?

If Cuba was in our hands or in the hands of its inhabitants wouldn't it be safer for our sailors and soldiers than with it in the hands of the Spaniards?

The Conflict Deepens.

For several years strained relations have existed between many of the nations of the earth. Most peoples have kept large armies and navies for public defense. These have, from time to time been added to, and made more mordern by arming and equipping with the latest improved guns, armor, ammunition and impliments of warfare. The time has arrived when, like a lot of growing boys, nations have become auxious to learn which is the stronger. They want to ascertain whose ships are the fastest; the strongest; whose men are most active and most skilled. After several years of growling at each other. Spain who was supposed to be on a good war footing, and the United States with only 25,000 soldiers and whose navy was not considered adequate to the needs of so much sea coast as Uncle Sam possesses have become involved in war.

The people of the United States tired of the way Spain treated her people right along side our shores, and one thing after another occurred. The Spanish Minister at Washington alluded, in a letter, in no flattering terms to the President of the United States, and was sent home. The Maine was sent into the Havana harbor, and on the 15th of Feb. was blown up with the loss of 266 lives. Congress declared that the Cubans are and ought to be free, and that on April 21, war had begun between this country and Spain. President McKinley called for 125,000 soldiers: entistments began, and now, one month after the call, thousands of the young men of our country are marching to the front to battle for the cause of humanity. Men who one month ago were pursuing the even tenor of peaceful citizens now shoulder muskets as trained soldiers and feel themselves the equals of trained soldiers of any country.

Ships have been added to our navy, men have been trained as seamen and mariners, until our proud fleet under, then Commodore (now Admiral) Dewey, has achieved one of the greatest naval victories that up to date adornes the pages of the history of the world. Our Atlantic squadrons are on the highseas looking for a chance to overhaul the proud Spaniards armada: Cannons thunder tones have been heard, speaking for Uncle Sam. The stars and stripes have been planted on the Philippines and now the sun never sets upon the United States; she extends well around the Globe, and her soldiers are looking after her interests. As yet there seems to haye been little concert of action, or real head to the movements of the goyernment in warfare. But now the conflict deepens; Japan is said to be backed by Russia, Germany and possibly France in demanding that the United States do not hold the Philippine Islands: England and America are spoken of together as an Anglo American Alliance including many smaller countries which will possibly be opposed by the other European nations; and war and rumors of war are rife on every hand. Now comes the news that President McKinley will assume command of the army and navy himself, that he has concluded that the sooner over the better, that he proposes to stop trying to fight a bloodless war. Instead of a quiet, unobtrusive blockade of Havana harbor he proposes that our war yessels shall batter down all the fortifications it can, and sink, or destroy as many yessels belonging to the enemy as possible; that hence forth the war is to be an aggressive war. Fewer lives will be lost and less property wasted by the latter plan, perhaps, than by the undicided plan that has been in yogue.

If in the present confict, Uncle Sam is to maintain his rights it looks as if he must fight for them; let the nations of the world know that if his persuasive eloquence and statemenship can't prevail, can't secure peace, har, mony, and freedom for himself and neighbors the boom of his cannon and rattle of his musketry can and will.

Sixth District Democratfc Congressional Convention.

A Democratic Congressional Convention for the Sixth Congressional District of the State of Minnesota, will be held at the city of St. Cloud, Minnesota, on Tuesday, June 14th, 1898, at 9 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Democratic candidate for Congress to be voted for in said District at the Congressional election in 1898, and to transact such other business as may be properly brought before said convention.

All the counties in said Sixth District shall hold their respective county conventions for the election of delegates to said congressional convention on Thursday, June 9th, 1898.

The basis of representation to which the several counties shall be entitled is fixed at one delegate at large to each county, and one delegate for each one hundred and fifty votes, and major fraction thereof cast for Hon. Chas. A. Towne for Congress in the congressional election in 1896.

The several counties being entitled to the following number of delegates:

Aitkin	4	Lake	4
Anoka	7	Mille Lac	5
Beltrami	2	Morrison	14
Benton	8	Pine	8
Carlton	6	St. Louis	59
Cass	4	Sherburne	7
Cook	3	Stearns	35
Crow Wing	8	Todd	14
Hubbard	4	Wadena	5
Itasca	6	Wright	18

All electors who voted for William J. Bryan for President in 1896, or intend to support the principles enunciated in the platform adopted by the Democracy in national convention assembled in Chicago in 1896 are invited to participate in the primary elections called to select delegates to said county conventions.

By order of the Democratic Congressional Committee, Sixth District, Minnesota.

T. T. HUDSON, Chairman.
FRED SCHILPLIN, Secretary.
Dated May 3d, 1898.

Willmar Tribune, W. C. T. U. column: Thomas Alva Edison was once asked why he was a total abstainer. He says: "I thought I had better use for my head." The answer is worth remembering by any young fellow who means to use his brains.

Examining physicians make the startling announcement that over ninety per cent of the volunteers for army service rejected are habitual cigarette smokers. Examiners who also served in that capacity during the civil war say that aside from cigarette smokers a smaller per cent is found incompetent than during that war, only about thirteen per cent being rejected now.—Era, Ida Grove, Iowa.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6, 1898.

When it comes to fighting we can whip the Spaniards just as fast as we can get at them, but when there is a chance for trickery Spain can give this government seven points in a game of ten and win out every time. This was proven again by the wild goose chase upon which Admiral Sampson and the strongest vessels of his fleet have been for more than a week—hunting for the Cape Verde Spanish fleet, which instead of being headed for Porto Rico has turned up on the coast of Spain, 3,000 miles away. Now, when everybody is disgusted and disappointed, some officials have the nerve to say that they never believed the Spanish fleet was coming this way at all.

This Spanish fleet has been the bugaboo given by the administration as an excuse for the delay in invading Cuba. As soon as it was known that it was on the other side of the Atlantic it was announced that the invasion was to begin at once, Gen. Miles, who was to command, engaged a Pullman berth on a train for Florida and hotel quarters for himself at Tampa. Then, presto change! the engaged Pullman berth was not used, and Gen. Miles postponed his trip from Washington. Still the public is assured that there has been no doubt or hesitation on the part of the administration; that Mr. McKinley is not waiting to give Spain a chance to sue for peace, and that the invasion of Cuba will be an accomplished fact in the next few days. The men will be in Florida ready to do the invading, as they are being rushed there as fast as steam can carry them, and there will certainly be no good reason for further postsonement. It is the opinion of such men as Fitz Lee, who know what they are talking about, that the campaign in Cuba need not last longer than thirty days, if as many as 53,000 men are sent over.

There has been no room to find any fault with the promptness of the administration in sending Admiral Dewey the rank of Rear Admiral was formally conferred upon him by the President and Senate this week—reinforcements to aid him in holding and governing the Philippine Islands. The Cruiser Charleston has already started for Manila from San Francisco, and other ships are being prepared to start. It will take the Charleston about three weeks to make the trip.

There is no truth in the charges so persistently being made in republican papers that democratic Senators are responsible for the delay on the war revenue bill passed by the House. The fact is the bill as passed by the House was a very crude and imperfect measure, and the Senate committee on Finance has been trying to whip it into a more satisfactory shape by amending it. More amendments have so far been offered by republican Senators than by democrats. The democrats are too anxious to see this war fought to a speedy and successful close to refuse to do their part towards furnishing the government all the money it needs, but there is money enough on hand for all present needs and they do not intend being stampeded into supporting obnoxious methods of raising money just because the bill is labeled "war measure".

Major General Joseph Wheeler ("Fighting Joe Wheeler") was the first one of the new major generals to take the field. He bade his many friends in Congress goodbye and left for Chattanooga, where he will take his command. He took no steps concerning his seat in the House, and will probably take none until it becomes apparent whether the war is to be a matter of weeks or months. Many lawyers contend that the acceptance of a commission by any Federal official vacates the other place. There seems to be a doubt about it. At the request of Senator Sewell, who, as major general has been ordered to command the camp of instruction this week established on the Virginia side of the Potomac, several miles from Washington, Attorney General Griggs will give an official opinion on the subject. Major Generals Fitz Lee and James H. Wilson have been ordered to report at Chattanooga for active service.

The concurrent resolution offered by Representative Dockery, of Mo., providing for a recess of Congress from June 6, until July 19, which is now in the hands of the Ways and Means committee, was not the result of a party conference, but merely Mr. Dockery's idea of what would be the proper thing to do. Czar Reed hopes to have Congress adjourned before the first named date. As a rule democrats think it would be unwise to adjourn while the war is in progress. While there is no disposition among them to have Congress interfere with the conduct of the war, they think that Congress ought to have some say about the terms of peace, and if it isn't in session it cannot.

With only eleven negative votes the House passed the bill providing for a constitutional amendment for the election of Senators by the people.

Republican Judicial Convention.

A Republican Judicial Convention for the Eighteenth Judicial District of the State of Minnesota will be held at the Court House in the village of Elk River in Sherburne county on the 16th day of July A. D. 1898, at 12 o'clock m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Republican candidate for Judge of District Court from the above named District and doing any other business that may properly come before the convention.

The county conventions to elect delegates thereto will be held in the respective counties on the 23rd day of June A. D. 1898, at a place to be designated by the respective county committees.

All electors who believe in the principles of the Republican party as enunciated in the platform adopted by the National Convention of the party in 1896 are cordially invited to participate in the election of delegates.

Each county will be allowed one delegate for each 200 votes or major fraction thereof cast for William Mc Kinley for President in the year 1896, as follows:—

Prophetic War.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., May 16, 1898.
BUFFALO GAZETTE,
MR. EDITOR:—I have been quoted as being undecided as to my opinion of the war between the United States and Spain. This is true. There has no issue come up before this country during the last thirty years that seemed to so entangle the minds of the people as has this question of war between the United States and Spain it seemed to bother the administration to know just what policy to pursue in this matter.

The blowing up of the Maine in the Havana harbor and killing 266 seamen, was a gross insult to our flag, and Spain should pay indemnity for our ship, and recompense for the lives of those men as much as is possible in the nature, and power of flesh; yet money will not pay for those men.

They say, revenge is sweet, but many times it is obtained at great loss of life and property. We read in ancient history of the rise, and fall of nations. Armies went forth to conquer, and to be conquered. They mostly fought to acquire more territory or for ascendency to power, and the destruction to life and property even in those days with such rude implements of war was very great. And what must it be in these days, with such mordern destructive implements of war. I am for peace first, last and all the time, if it can be obtained by any honorable means, if not then defend our homes, our country, and our flag, by the sword. The opinion of many is that this difference between the United States and Spain will be short, and in a few weeks or months at farthest, the difficulty will be properly adjusted and we will again be at peace. Alexander and Bonapart fought for conquest and to gratify their own ayaricious disposition, but both of them died early in life and had but little of this life's comfort.

It seems, according to sacred and profane history and the prophets of old, that there is to come upon the earth great distress of nations. There shall be wars and rumors of wars and perilous times shall come, and it would seem to a casual observer that these times are near at hand, even at the door, according to biblical history. I am not surprised at the great events now before us. Just what the outcome of this war will be, I am not long enough in the head to give an intelligent opinion, but I hope it will come to a speedy end and the result will be the freeing of Cuba, the loss of none of our men, and the honor of our country and flag maintained unsullied. War is very exciting to most people, and during such excitement men are apt to loose their better judgement and drift beyond where they can find no anchorage.

Our Minnesota regiments rendezvouted at Camp Ramsey (fair grounds) between St. Paul and Minneapolis for the purpose of consolidation, drill, etc.; and on Sundays, excursion trains are being run to the rendezvous gsounds and many thousands of people go there on that day to see the soldier boys in blue. For those who have relatives that have enlisted, this is all right, but others who have no relatives in the army have their imagination so excited that they too must go and see the little army; and so when you begin war you begin to spend money and very often it is a prodigal waste. Corporations know how to excite the imagination of the people and get their money.

The daily papers come out in great headlines on the first page telling of some great event just happened or will happen that afternooon or on the morrow, and perhaps on the second page will be contradicted. The people want reliable news but we do not always get it. A good deal of the business of the press seems to be to raise h—and sell papers, and make money. We have to read a column as long as from here to Texas to find out little or nothing. Too superfluous.

Carlton College.

Carleton College is a Christian, coeducational institution, founded at Northfield, about thirty years ago. It has seven educational buildings, a campus of thirty acres, a faculty of twenty-one members, and an attendance of 332 students. It maintains, in addition to the college proper, an academy for preparatory instruction and a school of music. The college department has increased eight per cent within the year, and has doubled within eight years. Of those in the college and the preparatory departments this year, exactly one half are young women. Its patronage is widely extended, thirteen states being represented among its students, and thirty percent coming from outside of Minnesota. Its alumni are largely engaged in professional and educational work. Twelve of them hold college positions, four hold positions in prepatory schools, four in state institutions, two in normal schools, eighteen are school superintendents, nearly fifty are teachers in public schools, nearly sixty are in the learned professions, nine are foreign missionaries, not a few are successful business men. The college pays much attention to physical culture, having an excellent gymnasium, and employing a regular instructor. The military spirit has been recently revived, a company has been organized and twelve of the students have enlisted in the army.

Cavite is pronounced Ca-vee-tay, with the accent on the vee, but Dewey's fighters rechristened it Dennis with the accent on the eight-inch guns.

Of the ten soldier presidents of the United States whose services in that office cover practically 40 years of the existence of the republic, William McKinley is the first to call the nation to arms.

A British expert reports to his admiralty that the Maine, according to the best obtainable evidence, was blown up by a mine freshly placed. He is unable to reach any conclusion as to how the plot was carried out.

Capt. Gridley, of the Olympia; Capt. Coghlan, of the Raleigh, and Capt. Wildes, of the Boston, who fought together at Manila, were classmates at the naval academy, graduating in 1863. Gridley and Wildes roomed together.

There is no need of a court of inquiry to ascertain the cause of the recent disaster in Manila harbor, where several Spanish war vessels are sunk. The explosions came from the outside, all right, and the exploder pleads guilty.

When we stop to think of it, it seems surprising that the Klondike could be so completely forgotten in so short a time. It is seldom now that it can find a more prominent place in the newspapers than the fifth page of a four-page paper.

The Knoxville pension agency is creating interest by the astonishing revelation that there are 37,000 invalids and 18,000 widows in that territory who draw pensions. The district includes all the southern states except Kentucky and Maryland.

Turkey and Greece are the only European countries into which the telephone has not yet been introduced. Sweden has the largest number of telephones per capita of all the countries in the world, having one to every 115 persons, and Switzerland comes next, with one to every 129.

The authorities of a church at Hanford, Cal., have entered into an agreement with their pastor whereby he will be equipped for a two years' sojourn in the Klondike, on condition that if he makes a rich strike he shall pay off the church debt. The congregation will take care of his family during his absence.

It may not be known generally that the wife of Maximo Gomez, commander in chief of the insurgent forces in Cuba, is an American woman, but such appears to be the fact. Representative Gibson claims to represent the district in Tennessee where she was born. Her former name was Miss Pink Martin, a daughter of Henry Martin, who lived on Nail's creek, in a county of East Tennessee.

Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia, is not the first newspaper man to become postmaster-general. Benjamin Franklin, the first man to occupy that position, belonged to the grand army of writers. Amos Kendall left an editorial desk to become postmaster-general in Van Buren's cabinet. Montgomery Blair, Lincoln's postmaster-general, was an editor, and Thomas L. James began life as a newspaper man.

The United States is now shipping steel rails to Russia as well as to Australia. A recent announcement from Australia shows that American bidders were successful in obtaining a contract for the delivery of a large lot of steel rails for use in that country even against bids coming from England and Germany, and now come reports that the new Siberian railroad is to be metalled with American steel.

The extent to which ball bearings are now employed is shown by the importation of at least 200,000,000 balls a year. Last season most of them were imported from Schweinfurt, Germany, where the largest manufactory of steel balls in the world is located. Recently, however, a company has been formed in Allentown, Pa., and capital has been subscribed for the erection of large works at that place for the manufacture of steel balls. The plant is to have a capacity equal at least to the importation demand of last year, namely, 200,000,000.

Congress thanked Commodore Dewey for his splendid victory at Manila and the senate confirmed his nomination as rear admiral. When a naval officer is lucky enough to receive that highest of all American distinctions open to the navy, the thanks of congress by name, he achieves besides the rare honor certain substantial rewards. Instead of retiring compulsorily, for example, when he has attained the age of 62 years, or when he has completed 45 years' service, he is entitled to remain upon the active list until he has had 55 years' service.

The death of Adelaide M. Ide, the daughter of Henry C. Ide, ex-chief justice of Samoa, recalls a pretty incident of her childhood. When she went with her father to Samoa she was a little girl and became a great favorite with Robert Louis Stevenson, the author, who lived there. She was born on February 29, and consequently she grieved greatly because she did not have birthdays as often as other girls. Mr. Stevenson, noting her disappointment, declared that he would give her his own birthday, and drew up a legal document deeding it to her.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

The nomination of Commodore George Dewey to be rear admiral was confirmed by the United States senate on the 11th and the railway arbitration bill was discussed. In the house a resolution to submit to the states a proposition to amend the constitution so as to provide for the election of senators by a direct vote was adopted. Consideration of the senate bill restricting immigration was refused.

Bills were passed in the United States senate on the 12th to remove all disabilities imposed on persons on account of the rebellion, the railway arbitration bill and 53 pension bills. Senator Allison reported the war revenue bill In the house a favorable report on the Newland resolutions for the annexation of Hawaii was made and the senate bill providing for a volunteer signal corps, consisting of a separate command under a colonel and a full compliment of officers, was passed.

No business was transacted in the United States senate on the 13th. In the house 46 pension bills and six bills removing charges of desertion unjustly charged against old soldiers were passed. Adjourned to the 16th.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A dispatch was received in Washington from Admiral Dewey telling of the rescue of sunken Spanish guns and war munitions at Manila and of the sinking of another Spanish warship in a battle.

In Washington George Downing, alias Henry Rawlings, who was imprisoned in the marine barracks, as a Spanish spy, hanged himself in his cell.

Invasion of Cuba by the United States army has been postponed pending the expected battle between the American and Spanish fleets in the West Indies.

The death of Mrs. Ruth Swan Morrill, wife of the venerable senator from Vermont, occurred at the family residence in Washington.

Orders were issued by the war department for the assembling of 29,087 volunteers at Chickamauga.

The secretary of war issued an order calling to new camps 65,000 volunteers from the states.

During April the exports of gold amounted to $1,319,384 and the imports to $32,788,674. The exports of silver aggregated $4,040,031 and the imports $544,092.

In the ten months ended with April there was an increase of $124,929,202 in the exports of domestic merchandise as compared with April, 1897, and a loss of $89,008,058 in the imports, free and dutiable.

THE EAST.

In the United States there were 250 business failures in the seven days ended on the 13th, against 240 the week previous and 265 in the corresponding period of 1897.

During the week ended on the 13th the exchanges at the leading clearing houses in the United States aggregated $1,378,016,748, against $1,176,728,109 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week in 1897 was 37.6.

At Pittsburgh, Pa., Philip Hill (colored) was hanged for the murder of George Lawrence on April 10, 1897.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Admiral Dewey strictly maintains the blockade of the capital of the Philippine islands and the cable is aboard an American vessel.

Advices from Havana say the Americans have bombarded Bahia Honda, province of Pinar del Rio, west of Cabanas.

The Spanish armada sailed from Curacoa island for an unknown destination. The ships are believed to be sailing northward. Admiral Sampson's fleet is watching for the armada in the Windward passage.

Advices from Cuba indicate that there are few reconcentrados left, the most of them having starved to death.

Admiral Dewey in a dispatch to the navy department says he has reason to believe that the rebels are hemming in Manila and it is probable that the Spanish government will be obliged to surrender soon. Says he can take Manila at any moment and that he captured the Spanish gunboat Callao attempting to run the blockade.

AT SEA.

Not Only the Warships, but the Officials as Regards the Exact Location of the Spanish Fleet.

New York, May 18.—A Washington special to the Journal says: Sampson is waiting in Windward passage for the Spanish fleet. Schley's squadron is at Havana. The information given out at the navy department that the Spanish fleet is loitering at the entrance of Maracaibo bay, on the north coast of South America, is not believed. It is thought the Spaniards are making for the south coast of Cuba.

As soon as the navy department can communicate with Sampson it is understood that the monitors Puritan and Ampritrite will be ordered to Havana to maintain the blockade and help the vessels of the blockading fleet should Cerevera escape Sampson and Schley, and reach Havana.

Curacoa, Dutch West Indies, May 18.—The Spanish fleet is now supposed to be off the coast of Columbia. Only a portion of the fleet was allowed to enter this harbor to obtain provisions, cattle and coal, which were purchased here.

Confirmation is obtained of the report that the Spaniards left one of their torpedo gunboats at Fort De France, Island of Martinique.

SHELLED SAN JUAN.

Sampson Attacks the Batteries Defending the City.

Retires Without Attempting Capture of the Town—Two of Our Men Killed and Seven Wounded.

Washington, May 14.—At 7:20 Friday morning the navy department received the following dispatch from Admiral Sampson. It was dated at St. Thomas, May 12, and was as follows:

"A portion of the squadron under my command reached San Juan this morning at daybreak. No armed vessels were found in the port. As soon as it was sufficiently light I commenced attack upon the batteries defending the city. This attack lasted about three hours and resulted in much damage to the batteries and incidentally to a portion of the city adjacent to the batteries. The batteries replied to our fire, but without material effect. One man was killed on board the New York and seven slightly wounded in the squadron. No serious damage to any ships resulted.
"(Signed) SAMPSON."

Admiral Sampson's statement that he attacked with only a portion of his fleet is taken to indicate that he did not find it expedient to take the entire squadron into the harbor, though it is not believed he has separated his fleet. The navy department officials were at a loss to know how his dispatch reached St. Thomas until the press dispatch announced the presence of the Yale at St. Thomas.

The Bombardment from the Flagship.

On board the Flagship Iowa, Off San Juan de Puerto Rico, May 12 (via St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, May 14).—The forts of San Juan de Puerto Rico were bombarded by part of Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet Friday morning. The enemy's loss is believed to be heavy. The American loss is two men killed and seven men injured. After three hours' firing the admiral withdrew the fleet, and, heading for Key West, he said: "I am satisfied with the morning's work. I could have taken San Juan, but I have no force to hold it. I only wanted to administer punishment. This has been done. I came for the Spanish fleet, and not for San Juan."

Killed and Wounded.

The men killed were: Seaman Frank Widemark, of the New York, and Gunner's Mate ——, of the Amphitrite. The latter died from effects of the extreme heat.

Of the injured men three were on board the Iowa and four on board the New York. The names of those slightly injured on the Iowa are: Seaman Mitchell, Private Marine Merkle, Apprentice Hill. The injured on the New York are: Seaman Samuel Feltman, seriously; Seaman Michael Murphy, two other enlisted men, slightly injured. All the above-named were injured by the bursting of a shell on the New York. This is a complete list of the killed and wounded. The American ships were uninjured.

Story of the Battle.

The engagement began at 5:15 a. m. and ended at 8:15 a. m. The enemy's batteries were not silenced. The town in the rear of the fortifications probably suffered. The ships taking part in the action were the Iowa, Indiana, New York, Terror, Amphitrite, Detroit, Montgomery, Wampatuck and Porter. The enemy's firing was heavy but wild, and the Iowa and New York were probably the only ships hit. They went right up under the guns in column, delivering broadsides, and then returned. The line passed thrice in front of the forts, pouring tons of steel on shore.

Morro Battery the Target.

Morro battery, on the eastward arm of the harbor, was the principal point of attack. Rear Admiral Sampson and Capt. Evans were on the lower bridge of the Iowa and had a narrow escape from flying splinters, which injured three men. The Iowa was hit eight times, but the shells made no impression on her armor. The weather was fine, but the heavy swells made accurate aim difficult. The broadsides from the Iowa and Indiana rumbled in the hills ashore for five minutes after they were delivered. Clouds of dust showed where the shells struck, but the smoke hung over everything. The shells screeching overhead and dropping around showed that the Spaniards still stuck to their guns.

At three o'clock in the morning all hands were called on the Iowa, a few final touches in clearing ship were made, and at five "general quarters" sounded. The men were eager for the fight. The tug Wampatuck went ahead and anchored, her small boat to the westward showing ten fathoms, but there was not a sign of life from the fort, which stood boldly against the sky on the eastern hills hiding the town. The Detroit steamed far to the eastward opposite Valtern. The Iowa headed straight for the shore. Suddenly her helm flew over, bringing her starboard battery to bear on the fortifications. At 5:15 a. m. the Iowa's forward 12-inch guns thundered out at the sleeping hills, and for 14 minutes she poured starboard broadsides on the coast. Meanwhile the Indiana, the New York and other ships repeated the dose from the rear. The Iowa turned and came back to the Wampatuck's boat and again led the column, the forts replying fiercely, concentrating on the Detroit, which was about 700 yards away, all the batteries on the eastward arm of the harbor. Thrice the column passed from the entrance of the harbor to the extreme eastward battery.

Ships Retire.

At 7:45 a. m. Admiral Sampson signaled "Cease firing." "Retire" was sounded on the Iowa, and she headed from the shore. The Terror was the last ship in the line, and, failing to see the signal, banged away alone for about half an hour, the concert of shore guns roaring at her and the water flying high around her from the exploded shells. But she possessed a charmed life and reluctantly retired at 8:15.

Inflicted Much Damage.

As at Matanzas, the unsatisfactory condition, the smoke and the distance prevented any important conclusions being drawn. The town of San Juan must have suffered, although protected by the hills, as the high shots must have reached it. No traces of the bombardment were discernible on the forts except small fires, which were apparently extinguished before the fleet left.

It is impossible to judge of the amount of damage done to the buildings and forts. They appeared to be riddled with shot, but the Spaniards were plucky. After the first passage before the forts the Detroit and the Montgomery retired, their guns being too small to do much damage. The Porter and Wampatuck also stayed out of range. The smoke hung over everything, spoiling the aim of the gunners and making it impossible to tell where our shots struck. The officers and men of all the ships behaved with coolness and bravery. The shots flew thick and fast over all our ships.

Cost Seven Lives.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., May 17.—A disastrous fire occurred here early in the day when the Materie St. Joseph was burned, causing the loss of seven lives and injury of a number of inmates, of whom there were 200 in the institution, by jumping from windows. There are also five unaccounted for. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Washington, May 16.—A cablegram has been received from Admiral Dewey thanking the president for his promotion and complimenting his chief of staff and the commanders of all the naval vessels.

MARINES SHOW THEIR PLUCK.

Cut Cable at Cienfuegos Harbor Under a Heavy Fire from the Enemy—Two Killed.

Key West, Fla., May 16.—Amid a perfect storm of shot from Spanish rifles and batteries the American forces cut the cables at Cienfuegos Wednesday morning. Four determined boat crews under command of Lieut. Winslow and Ensign Magruder, from the cruiser Marblehead and the gunboat Nashville, put out from the ships, the coast having previously been shelled. The work of the volunteers was perilous. The cruiser Marblehead, the gunboat Nashville and the auxiliary cruiser Windom drew up 1,000 yards from shore with their guns manned for desperate duty.

One cable had already been cut and the work was in progress on the other when the Spaniards in rifle pits and a battery in an old lighthouse standing out in the bay opened fire. The warships poured in a thunderous volley, their great guns belching forth massive shells into the swarms of the enemy. The crews of the boats calmly proceeded with their desperate work, notwithstanding the fact that a number had fallen, and finished it, returning to the ships through a blinding smoke and a heavy fire. One man in a Marblehead boat was killed and six were seriously wounded, one of whom, Robert Boltz, is now at Key West and is expected to die, a bullet having passed through the base of his brain. Harry Hendrickson, who also may die, was shot through the abdomen.

More than 1,000 infantry on shore kept up a continuous fire, and the bullets from the machine guns struck the warships a hundred times, but did no great damage.

Ernest Suntzeneech, one of the American seamen wounded at Cienfuegos last Wednesday, died at the marine hospital Saturday night and was buried Sunday. He was a first-class seaman apprentice and belonged to the United States cruiser Marblehead. He was shot through the left leg, in a boat, while assisting in cutting the cable off Cienfuegos. He died after his limb had been amputated.

WAR REVENUES.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, Opens the Debate on the Measure in the Senate.

Washington, May 17.—The debate upon the war revenue measure was begun in the senate Monday. The opening statement for the committee on finance was made by Senator Allison (Ia.), the ranking member in the absence of Senator Morrill (Vt.). It was estimated that the bill as it came from the house of representatives would raise about $100,000,000 a year. As reported from the senate committee Senator Allison estimates that it will raise $151,597,066. Appended is a recapitulation of the amount of revenue to be derived by the government under the present law and under the bill as it was reported from the senate committee on finance. It will be noted that the estimates include the amounts raised under the present law and the increases proposed in the pending bill:

The Baptist Anniversaries.

Rochester, N. Y., May 17. — The national celebration of the Baptist anniversaries was begun in the Second Baptist church of this city, prominent Baptists from all over the country being present. The anniversary meeting of the Home Missionary society was held Monday. The address of welcome to the visiting delegates was delivered by Mrs. F. I. Smith, of New York, and responded to by Mrs. J. N. Crouse, the president of the society. The report of the treasurer, Miss M. G. Burdette, showed the finances of the society to be in the best condition in its history. At the meeting in the afternoon the work of the society for the ensuing year was outlined and officers were elected.

Will Not Proclaim Neutrality.

Honolulu, May 10, via San Francisco, May 17.—The Hawaiian government will not proclaim neutrality. This stand is taken on account of the existing relations between the United States and Hawaii. The executive considers that a proclamation of neutrality would be a breach of good faith. The government made known its position yesterday at a secret session of the senate. It is understood that the senators favored the stand taken by President Dole.

The Death Rate.

While it is quite true that the proportion of deaths from malaria as an immediate cause is proportionally small as cited in annual mortuary statistics, yet physicians are thoroughly convinced that it causes maladies of a fatal character, and begets dangerous nervous prostration. This malady is eradicated and prevented by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which also cures biliousness, constipation, rheumatism and dyspepsia.

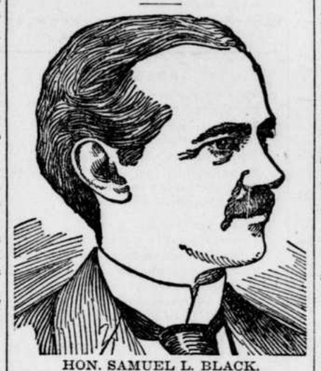
MAYOR OF COLUMBUS.

The Executive of the Capital City of Ohio Speaks.



HON. SAMUEL L. BLACK.

City of Columbus,
Executive Department,

To Whom It May Concern:

I can most cheerfully recommend Pe-ru-na as of the very greatest possible benefit in cases of catarrh and other diseases of the mucous membrane. This remedy has established itself in the minds of the people as of the greatest possible worth and genuineness.

I have known Dr. Hartman for a number of years and am pleased to say that he is one of the leading citizens of this city, a man of the very highest standing and character in the community.

Respectfully, SAMUEL L. BLACK.

The old saying that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country," does not hold true of Dr. Hartman's great catarrh remedy—Pe-ru-na. Pe-ru-na is in great repute, not only in the city of Columbus, where it is made, but in the county and the state. The city officials, county officials, state officials of Ohio have given Pe-ru-na the highest endorsements that words could convey. It is the greatest known catarrh remedy. It cures catarrh wherever located. Send for a free copy of the National Witness, which is filled with home testimony concerning Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Answers to Correspondents.

Student—Certainly, bookkeeping can be learned at home. All you have to do is not lend them.

Reader—No, it is not an uncommon thing for the good to go to the bad; otherwise there would be no demand for missionaries.

Inquirer—Yes, there are bookcases made from lawsuits relating to copyrights, but we wouldn't recommend them for your library.

Sentiment—We don't know why the lily is recognized as the emblem of purity, unless it is because man has been unable to adulterate it.

Athlete—Yes, a porous plaster will sometimes remove the effects of a strain or wrench, but you'd better keep the wrench to aid in removing the porous plaster.—Chicago Evening News.

THE REAL CULPRIT.

He Kept Quiet and Let the Poor Letter Carrier Take All the Blame.

"Hi there!" called a somewhat excited woman to the postman who was passing on his morning round. "Where's that letter I sent three weeks ago to my sister in Buffalo? She never got it and has written to know whether I'm mad at her or some of us are sick."

"I know nothing about it, madam."

"Of course you don't. I suppose the postmaster-general would say the same thing. My own private opinion is that this government is running at mighty loose ends. I put a stamp on that letter to pay for having it sent. It was directed as plain as print. It is lost or stolen and my own sister is blaming me for neglecting her. It's all politics, that's what it is, putting in a lot of raw hands every four years, and I don't propose to stand it. I'm going to find out whether you mail men can defraud your customers and make family trouble just because you don't know enough to look after your business."

"But I never saw your letter, my good woman."

"I don't care anything about that. Neither did my sister ever see it. I'll not sleep till I write the president and give him a piece of my mind. The idea of paying an army of men to lose letters. It's ridiculous. It won't be long before some of you are looking for other jobs, or I miss my guess."

During this conversation the woman's husband dove frantically into his pockets, ran hatless through the back gate, put that letter into a mail box and made a fine show of temper while helping his wife abuse the government.—Detroit Free Press.

PUT TO ROUT.

How a Well-Known Maine Man Succeeded in Flooring an Englishman with a Hard Name.

Probably the most widely known and the most popular man in Maine is Payson Tucker. A good story told by him is by no means a rarity, but it is not often that he tells one involving his own personality. The following is an exception. "I was returning from Europe a few weeks ago," said Mr. Tucker, "and saw more or less of an Englishman who was exceedingly loud and coarse in his denunciations of American institutions.

"I stood it as long as I could, and then I decided to politely remonstrate with that Englishman and show him wherein he erred in his opinions of Americans.

"'Have you ever been in the United States?' I asked him one evening when he was on one of his strains.

"He looked me over and then said: 'No, my good man, I have never been in America.'

"'That angered me, and I said:

"'What in sheol do you know about what you are talking of?'

"Said he to me: 'Aw, I see what you are—another of those impudent Americans.'

"'I see what you are, too,' I said to him. 'You're a dizzle-dazzle whick-a-whack; that's what you are.'"

That floored the son of Albion, and thereafter he gave Mr. Tucker a wide berth.—N. Y. Herald.

COULD NOT BE DONE.

It Was Utterly Impossible for That Boy to Respect His Father's Gray Hairs.

"Boys," began the Sunday school superintendent, impressively, "I hope none of you will ever get into the reprehensible habit of alluding to your father as 'the old man.' When you grow up, no matter how big or old you may be, you should always look up to and respect the silver hairs of your father, who has grown bent and gray working for you in your helpless infancy. Now, all of you who think you can do this please raise your right hands."

Up went every hand except one.

Sternly eyeing the delinquent, the superintendent solemnly observed:

"Why, young man, I am horrified—absolutely horrified—as well as astonished at your behavior. Don't you wish to raise your hand and put yourself on record as being willing to respect the gray hairs of your father when you grow up to be a man?"

"No. No use tryin'; can't do it nohow," unblushingly responded the lad.

"Why not, sonny?"

"'Cause he ain't liable to have no gray hair. Dad's bald," chirped the youthful philosopher, triumphantly, and amid a general titter the discomfited superintendent gave it up and passed on to something else.—Tit-Bits.

Nimble Enough.

TRIALS OF SALESWOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham Says Standing Still is One of Woman's Most Trying Tasks.

Have you ever thought why it is that so many women or girls rather walk for an hour than stand still for ten minutes?

It is because most women suffer from some derangement of their delicate organism, the discomfort from which is less trying when they are in motion than when standing.

So serious are these troubles and so dangerous to health that the laws in some states compel employers to provide resting places for their female employees.

But no amount of law can regulate the hard tasks of these women. Customers are exacting, and expect the saleslady to be always cheerful and pleasant. How can a girl be cheerful when her back is aching, when she is assailed by lassitude and bearing-down pains? No matter how sweet tempered she is naturally, her nerves give way under the pain after a while. Employers, however, don't want cross and snappy saleswomen. Cheerfulness is very important capital, and no one can be amiable when racked with pain.

If you are ill or suffering, write without delay to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and tell her all about yourself. Your story will not be new to her; she has heard it many thousand times and will know just what you need. Without doubt, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, it has done such wonderful things for suffering women. Do not hesitate to write her all the little things that make you feel miserable. Your letter will not be seen by any man, and Mrs. Pinkham's advice will cost you nothing.

Read this letter from Mrs. MARGARET ANDERSON, 463 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Me.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For years I had suffered with painful menstruation every month. At the beginning of menstruation it was impossible for me to stand up for more than five minutes, I felt so miserable. One day a little book of Mrs. Pinkham's was thrown into my house, and I sat right down and read it. I then got some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills.

"I can heartily say that to-day I feel like a new woman; my monthly suffering is a thing of the past. I shall always praise the Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me."

NEWS FROM MANILA

City Practically at the Mercy of Admiral Dewey.

Can Capture It at Any Moment—A Strict Blockade Is Being Maintained—Rebels Hem In the Town.

Washington, May 16.—Dispatches from Hong-Kong brought welcome news Sunday from Admiral Dewey to the president, and particularly to Secretary Long and the naval officials who are watching the admiral's movements with so much interest. The telegrams indicate that Dewey has lost none of the prestige gained in his memorable fight of two weeks ago, and that, while he refrains from taking the city of Manila, he has it practically at his mercy. The admiral expresses the belief that the rebels are hemming in the city by land, but the fact that he says explicitly that they have made no demonstration seems to disprove thoroughly the published reports that they had already entered Manila and had begun a career of bloodshed and rapine. The best evidence of the effectiveness of the blockade maintained by the American admiral and also of the work of the insurgents in surrounding the city is shown in the statements in the dispatches that provisions are scarce in the city of Manila, which seems to indicate to Admiral Dewey an early surrender by the Spanish authorities. The dispatch, as given out by Secretary Long, is as follows:

Dewey's Dispatch.

"Cavite, May 12.—Hong-King, May 16.—Maintaining strict blockade. Reason to believe that the rebels are hemming in the city by land, but have made no demonstration. Scarcity provisions in Manila. Probable that the Spanish governor will be obliged to surrender soon. Can take Manila any moment. Climate hot and moist. On May 12 captured gunboat Callao, attempting to run blockade. Have plenty coal. One British, one French, two German, one Japanese vessel here observing.

"DEWEY."

Aid for the Admiral.

The officials are making all possible haste to rush troops to supplement Admiral Dewey's forces, so that if the Spanish governor does not surrender the former will not be dependent upon the small number of marines which he can illy spare from his ships, but will have the assistance of soldiers in holding his position and maintaining order.

SHUT OFF IMPORTANT NEWS.

Vaulting Ambition of Some Journalists Overreaches Itself—Imprudent Publications Are Made.

Washington, May 17.—An order posted Monday morning and signed by Secretary Long relative to the publication of news emanating from the navy department had the effect of considerably curtailing the supply of information that heretofore has been rather freely given out. The secretary's order was directed to Capt. Crowninshield, chief of the navigation bureau, and he, in turn, gave it effect by making an order in his own name that no person connected with his bureau in any capacity should have any conversation whatever upon subjects in any way pertaining to the navy with representatives of the press. As an offset it was ordered that bulletins of such facts as have actually occurred and are proper for publication, and are not connected with existing or projected movements, shall be prepared and posted on the bulletin boards.

In explanation of the issue of this order the naval authorities say that some of the leading American newspapers have been so far lacking in patriotism as to print plans of campaign and projected movements of naval ships, with the result that the war board has been obliged to completely revise its plans in the knowledge that the Spaniards had promptly taken notice of the publications and were prepared to profit by them.

Will Be Exchanged.

Key West, Fla., May 17.—Under a flag of truce the United States government tug Uncas visited Havana. Lieut. Brainard, U. S. N., and Mr. Knight, correspondent of the London Times, were on board. They went to negotiate the exchange of prisoners, there being two American newspaper correspondents, Charles Thrall and Hayden Jones, imprisoned in Fort Cabanas. Thrall and Jones are safe and being treated with every consideration. Capt. Gen. Blanco is willing to release them the moment the United States authorities send him two Spanish prisoners in exchange.

Japan Will Protest.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from St. Petersburg says: Japan intends to protest vigorously against America seizing the Philippines. She has already sought the assistance of Russia, and conferences are occurring between Count Muravieff, the Russian foreign minister, and the Japanese ambassador, Baron Hayashi Tadasou. It is believed that France and Germany will support Japan.

FIVE OF OUR MEN SLAIN.

Spanish Batteries Disable Torpedo Boat Winslow In Battle Off Cardenas on Cuban Coast.

Key West, Fla., May 13.—When the United States gunboat Hudson came up to the government dock at eight o'clock Thursday morning, the bodies of five dead were lying on her afterdeck. They were the remains of Ensign F. Bagley and four members of the crew of the torpedo boat Winslow, who were killed in an engagement in Cardenas harbor Wednesday afternoon. The bodies were covered by the Stars and Stripes.

In the cabin of the Hudson was Capt. John B. Bernadou, of the Winslow, who is slightly injured in the left leg, and several others of the Winslow's crew, who are slightly wounded.

The engagement took place inside the harbor of Cardenas. The gunboat Wilmington, the torpedo boat Winslow and the gunboat Hudson were the only vessels engaged. They entered the harbor for the purpose of attacking some Spanish gunboats which were known to be there. These latter, however, were not discovered by the American force until the Spaniards opened fire. The land batteries of Cardenas supported the fire of the Spanish gunboats.

The engagement commenced at 2:05 p. m. and lasted for about an hour.

The Wilmington and the Hudson were ahead and opened fire on the Spanish boats, which were lying at the docks. The firing began at a range of 3,500 yards. A few minutes later the Winslow came up and also opened fire. In an instant the entire attention of the Spanish gunboats and land batteries was directed upon her.

From all sides shot poured in on the little torpedo boat. The Wilmington and the Hudson still kept up their fire, but they could not turn aside the terrible storm of fire and death pouring in upon the torpedo boat.

The crew of the Winslow, however, never faltered for a second. At 2:35 p. m. a solid shot crashed into the hull of the Winslow and knocked out her boiler. In an instant she began to roll and drift helplessly.

Then there was a moment of awful suspense. A fierce cheer of triumph went up from the Spaniards on the gunboats and in the batteries and again a storm of fire was opened up on the helpless boat.

The gunboat Hudson, which was lying near by, started to the assistance of the Winslow. She ran alongside the torpedo boat and tried to throw a line to the imperiled crew.

Up to this time, with the exception of the one shot which disabled the boiler of the Winslow, the firing of the Spanish gunboats had been wild, but as the Winslow lay rolling in the water the range grew closer and shells began to explode all about her.

It was difficult for the Hudson to get near enough to throw a line to the Winslow's crew, so terrible was the fire all about her.

Finally, after about 20 minutes, the Hudson approached near enough to throw a line.

Ensign Bagley and six men were standing in a group on the deck of the Winslow.

"Heave her! Heave her!" shouted Bagley, as he looked towards the commander of the Hudson and called for a line.

"Don't miss it," shouted an officer from the Hudson, and, with a smile, Bagley called back: "Let her come. It's getting too hot here for comfort."

The line was thrown and about the same instant a shell burst in the very midst of the group of men on board the Winslow.

Bagley was instantly killed and a few others dropped about him. Half a dozen more fell groaning on the blood-stained deck. One of the dead men pitched headlong over the side of the boat, but his feet caught in the iron rail and he was hauled back.

Bagley lay stretched on the deck, with his face completely torn away and the upper part of his body shattered.

The torpedo boat, disabled and helpless, rolled and swayed under the fury of the fire from the Spanish gunboats.

When the shell burst in the group on board the Winslow another wild shout of triumph went up from the Spanish boats and batteries and again a heavy fire was opened on the torpedo boat.

Finally the Hudson succeeded in getting a line on board the Winslow, and was towing her out of the deadly range when the line parted and again both boats were at the mercy of the Spanish fire.

At 3:50 p. m. the Hudson managed to get another line on the deck of the Winslow, but there were only three men left at that time to make it fast.

The line was finally secured and the Winslow was towed up to Pedras Island, where she was anchored, with the dead and wounded on her decks. There some men from the Hudson went on board the Winslow and took the most seriously wounded men off. Three who were taken on board the gunboat Machias died shortly afterward.

WITHOUT A CABINET.

All Spanish Ministers Resign—It Is Alleged New Cabinet Will Continue to Prosecute the War.

Madrid, May 16, via Paris.—All the members of the Spanish cabinet have resigned. It is officially denied that the cabinet changes are connected with a peace movement. On the contrary, it is declared that Premier Sagasta's ministry, when the new cabinet is formed, will continue to prosecute the war with the full resources of the country.

Madrid, May 17.—Premier Sagasta on Monday presented to the queen regent of Spain the resignations of the cabinet. Sagasta was requested to retain office and organize a new ministry, which he will do.

Brush Fires Around Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., May 17.—Small brush fires that have been burning on all sides of Duluth north of the Wisconsin line are rapidly becoming more threatening. Monday 1,000,000 feet of Norway pine ten miles south of Tower was burned by flames that crept up from the undergrowth. The mills, which, with the lumber, belonged to Alex McLaren, of Chippewa Falls, were saved. Conditions are most promising for large forest fires.

Cartloads of Dead.

Key West, Fla., May 16.—News just received here from Havana says the reconcentrados are dying of starvation, cart loads of dead being taken daily through the Spanish lines.

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

Brief Telegram to the Secretary of the Navy Announcing the Battle and Its Results.

Washington, May 13.—Sad news came to the navy department on Thursday morning from the blockading fleet on the Cuban coast, telling of the death in action of five American sailors, the first to shed their life blood for their country since the outbreak of the war. At 10:30 a brief telegram came addressed to the secretary of the navy. It read as follows:

"Key West, Fla., May 12.—Secretary of the Navy: In an action in Cardenas harbor yesterday between Spanish gunboats and shore batteries and the blockading vessels, the following named men were killed on the torpedo boat Winslow:

"Worth Bagley, ensign, U. S. N.; John Varveres, oiler; J. Denfee, fireman, first class; George B. Meek, fireman, first class, and Elijah B. Tunnell, cabin cook. The wounded are: J. B. Bernadou, lieutenant, commanding Winslow; William Patterson, seriously but not fatally; Daniel W. McKeown, quartermaster, first class, slightly hurt. Dead and wounded arrived on United States ship Hudson this morning. Dead will be buried to-day.

"(Signed) REMY."

It is known that the American boats made furious havoc with Cardenas harbor and town. The captain of the Hudson said: "I know we destroyed a large part of their town near the wharves, burned one of their gunboats, and I think destroyed two of her torpedo destroyers. We were in a vortex of shot, shell and smoke, and could not tell accurately; but we saw one of their boats in fire and sinking soon after the action began. Then a large building near the wharf, I think the barracks, took fire, and many other buildings were soon burning. The Spanish had masked batteries on all sides of us, hidden in bushes and behind houses. They set a trap for us. As soon as we got within range of their batteries they would move them. I think their guns were field pieces. Our large boats could not get into the harbor to help us on account of the shallow water."

Reason for the Gussie's Failure.

Tampa, Fla., May 17.—The steamer Gussie, which sailed from Port Tampa last Tuesday laden with arms, ammunition and supplies for the use of Gen. Gomez' army and with the two crack companies of the First infantry, returned Monday bringing most of her cargo back. The army officials are strongly inclined to lay the blame of the failure of the Gussie expedition to the wide publicity given to the sailing. The Spanish forces in Cuba were undoubtedly kept fully posted on every detail of the movement, and made preparations to meet the Gussie when she appeared off the coast. It is intimated a press censorship at Tampa may be established should a movement of troops take place from here in the near future.

May Lead to Trouble.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to the Standard from Corunna says: The presence of the British channel squadron at Villagarcia is likely to lead to some unpleasantness. The idea of an Anglo-American alliance has so inflamed the Spaniards that the postmen from the fleet when on shore to collect letters have been hooted at and stoned. Threats have been made to stop the supply of provisions to the fleet. The British consul protested to the alcalde, who explained that the popular resentment was due to a belief in the existence of an alliance and to the further impression that the fleet took wheat that properly belonged to the poor.

Volunteers Now Number 81,000.

Washington, May 17.—Reports received by Adjt. Gen. Corbin up to ten o'clock Monday night indicate that 81,000 volunteers have been mustered into the United States service. Several of the largest states—Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin among the number—have mustered in their entire quota of troops, and many of them have either arrived at or are en route to the permanent camps to which they have been assigned. It is expected now that unless something unforeseen occurs all of the 125,000 volunteers will have been mustered into the service and be in their permanent camps or en route thereto by the end of the present week.

Asks for $33,000,000.

Washington, May 17.—The secretary of the navy sent to the house Monday an estimate for the appropriation of $33,000,000 in round numbers to cover the war expenditures of the navy for the first six months of the next fiscal year. This is supplemental to the estimates heretofore received and is expected to cover one-half of all the expenditures the war will impose on the naval service next year.

Thousands Killed.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to the Standard from The Hague says: According to a private telegram from India a terrible cyclone has destroyed a great part of Bima, a seaport town of the island of Sumbawa, Malay archipelago. The shores of Sumbawa bay are covered with the bodies of thousands of victims. The town of Kupang, island of Timor, escaped the force of the hurricane.

Prefers Senate to Army.

Washington, May 16.—Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, has declined the appointment of major general of volunteers, presumably because he would have to forfeit his seat in the senate.

Camp Ramsey Is Deserted. The Minnesota Boys Depart For the Front.

Camp Ramsey, May 17.—As early as 7 o'clock yesterday morning privates in heavy marching order passed through the camp to the train where they made preliminary preparations for the main body of men.

A string of Minneapolis and St. Louis cars had been run up on the side track near the 13th infantry barns, and Quartermaster John Lind took possession at an early hour. Huge piles of snow white tents were dumped on the platform, and a large force of assistants commenced throwing them into the cars. Col. Bobleter's horse was walked down by a private, with a meal bag, blanket and a bandaged tail, all ready for a long trip in a stable car. The other horses soon followed, and more drays heavily loaded came thundering down, each load carefully guarded by soldiers with rifles. The scene where once stood the picturesque tented city was almost a shock, as everything appeared to be rack and ruin, and all that remained of the camp were a few soldiers, smouldering fires in the kitchens, and heaps of rubbish, each marking where a tent was once pitched.

Gov. Clough was conspicuous until the last man had boarded the cars and the last car had disappeared from view. In every possible way the governor tried to show the boys that thoughts of their welfare and comfort were uppermost in his mind, and his labors to that end were appreciated by them.

The liveliest scene of the camp came about 11 o'clock, when all the companies of the 13th regiment were gathered near Col. Reeve's headquarters to receive the delegation of Minneapolis citizens. There was a long wait, and just to cheer the boys up some of the girls commenced to throw peanuts and oranges at them.

It was 12 o'clock when the delegation arrived from Minneapolis. W. E. Steele was in command, and they moved in a column of threes, Col. Ames, Mayor Pratt and William Regan bearing a flag in the front rank.

Col. Reeve shook hands with his visitors, and Gen. Washburn made the first speech. He assured the members of the 13th regiment that they had the heartfelt congratulations and sympathy of the people of Minneapolis. Gen. Washburn said he well remembered a similar scene 37 years ago, when the gallant 1st Minnesota went forth, and he did not believe there was a man, woman or child in the state but who loved the old 1st. The contribution was all from free hearts that bade them godspeed.

There was continued cheering during Gen. Washburn's remarks, and when he closed W. E. Steele was called for. Mr. Steele said he was not a speech maker, and what he had done had been because of his love for the boys of the 13th. He knew they would come back with honor. They had collected $3,980, and there was more coming.

With its usual promptness the 12th regiment turned out shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning, eager and anxious for the start for Chickamauga. Breakfast was over at 6 o'clock and tents struck immediately. The rapidity with which the white canvas city disappeared from sight would have done credit to a regiment of veterans. At 7:30 the tents were packed ready for shipment and wagons began carting the baggage to the trains. While that was being done the boys packed up their personal luggage and at 9 o'clock were ready for the start, except that the baggage had not yet been loaded on the trains.

At 10:30 came the welcome order, "Fall in!" The men responded with alacrity and vented their enthusiasm in hilarious shouts. A last hand clasp, a hurried adieu, and in two minutes the 12 companies were each lined up in double column formation. Then followed roll call by companies, showing that every man was accounted for.

It was a beautiful and inspiring sight. More than a thousand men drawn up in the open field in precise military order, each man carrying himself as though he thought the success of the regiment was dependent upon him. The sun, which had been obscured all the morning, managed to make a brief appearance through the clouds, as if to give a benediction to the scene.

Then came a few short, sharp orders from Col. Bobleter, the regiment "about faced," marched 20 paces to the rear and "about faced" again.

At 11:40 came the final command, "Right face, in columns of four, to the left, march!" and the gallant men of the 12th shook the dust of Camp Ramsey from their feet for good and aye.

Col. Bobleter led the men, followed two paces to the rear by his adjutant. Surgeon Chase came next and then the 12th regiment band. Company A led the troops and Company C carried the colors.

The line of march from camp was direct to the main entrance to the fair grounds, thence down Snelling avenue to the Northern Pacific tracks, where the trains were boarded.

The first section of the 13th, which left at 6 o'clock, contained Col. Reeve and staff, the band, Major Fitzgerald, of the hospital corps, and Companies K, of Stillwater, G, of Red Wing, and L, of Minneapolis. The second section was in charge of Major Fredierich, of Red Wing. In it were Battalion Adjutant Conrad, Lieut. Law, of the hospital corps, and Companies H and E, of St. Paul, and Company F, of Minneapolis. The third section was in charge of Maj. Bean, of St. Paul, who had with him Chaplain Cressey, Battalion Adjutant Mead, Sergeant Graw, of the hospital corps, and Companies C and D, of St. Paul, and M, of St. Cloud. Companies A, B and I, all from Minneapolis, brought up the fourth and last section at 9:10 o'clock. Major Diggles was in charge, and with him were Battalion Adjutant Ritchie and a member of the hospital corps.

The 14th pulled out in three sections. In the first, which left the grounds at 4 o'clock, were Col. Van Duzee, the headquarters' staff, the band and the 3d battalion under Major Schaeffer. The 3d battalion comprised Companies A, F, I and M. The 1st battalion, in charge of Major Bidwell, followed in the second section. It carried Companies B, G, E and K. In the last section was the 2d battalion, comprising Companies C, H, D and L, Major Person commanding.

DEVIOUS DEFINITIONS.

Duty—The thing a man tries to avoid doing by asking advice.

Uncertainty—The only thing that is certain about love making.

Indulgent—A wife's idea of a husband who never comes home sober.

Policy—Something that's more often to blame for a man's honesty than principle.

Cupid—A little fellow who laughs at the locksmith and smiles at the goldsmith.

THIS MAN WANTS WAR.

He Is Extremely Anxious for Something to Happen Before Moving Day Comes Around.

"There's one thing about this war business," said the man with the indeterminate mouth, "that sort o' consoles me. It may put a stop to my wife's annual moving agitation, which always becomes something fierce as the first of May draws closer. Between going to a war, anywhere or under any old circumstances, and moving, gimme war every time! I'm living in hopes that the thing'll break out bigger'n a bunch of coyotes before May 1. When we moved into the house we're occupying now, my wife was enthusiastic over it. She called it the cutest little bijou of a wickieup, or something like that, that she'd ever seen, and said she'd be perfectly willing to live and die in such a love of a little home. But she's been hedging more or less all winter, and the other day at dinner she came out flat-footedly and made her declaration that with us it was a case of move on May 1. It seems that some woman friend of hers down in the next block had a porcelain bathtub and one or two other confixin's put in her house, and victoriously showed them to my wife. My wife went to our landlord and gave him a bad quarter of an hour, I'll bet, from what she told me of it, and when he told her that the porcelain bathtub scheme would have to follow a little later she told him he could have his old ancient Aztec house after the first day of May. When we first moved into the house we've got now my wife couldn't talk enough about the idyllic quietude that reigned in the neighborhood. Now she talks day and night about the yelling of the kids on the block. She says they're the noisest mavericks this side o' the Pan-Handle, but I never hear 'em. The bathtub we've got looks all right to me, but my wife says it's chock full of typhoid and death, and what she says goes, I s pose. Now, if this here war'll only get a move on and break out in time, why, I may get a show to pack a musket wherever it's going to happen along with the rest of the gang, and thereby sneak out of the moving business this year anyhow. As between packing a musket and juggling with piano legs, gilded milking stools, and 79-cent frosted vases, gimme the dogs of war every trip!"—Washington Star.

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM.

From Republican Traveler, Arkansas City, Kan.

Pilgrimages to some shrine of St. Vitus, to cure the disease known as St. Vitus' dance are no longer made. The modern way of treating this affliction is within reach of every household, as is shown by the experience of Karl A. Wagner, the eleven-year-old son of George Wagner, of 515 9th St., Arkansas City, Kan. The father tells the story as follows:

"Over a year ago," he says, "Karl was taken with St. Vitus' dance and continued to grow worse during five months he was under a physisian's care. His tongue became paralyzed and we could not understand a word he said. He became very thin, lost the use of his right leg and seemed doomed to become a hopeless invalid. We had about given up hope when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were recommended to my wife by a lady whose daughter had been cured of a similar affliction by the pills.

"I bought a box of them at once and soon noticed a change for the better in Karl's condition. I was so well pleased that I bought more of them, and when he had taken five boxes the disease disappeared.

A Hopeless Invalid.

"That was six months ago and there has been no return of the disease. The cure was effectual and permanent, and I feel satisfied that no other medicine could have produced so marvelous a result. We feel rejoiced over the restoration of our son, and cannot help but feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the most remarkable medicine on the market."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to mankind as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health in the exhausted patient when every effort of the physician proves unavailing.

These pills are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A Flow of Language.

A well-known public lecturer is fond of telling how he was once introduced to an audience by a man manifestly unaccustomed to performing duties of that sort. Stepping to the front of the platform before the large audience, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen, we have with us this evening Prof. Blank, who, I understand has a finer flow of language than I have, therefore I will not continue my remarks, but will ask the professor to come forward and consume the time." And he sat down, having quite exhausted his own "flow of language" and leaving the professor to begin as best he could after such a dazing introduction.—Detroit Free Press.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE.

And what it led to.

It is not a common occurence that a friendly word should be the means of giving nearly forty years of happiness and health to the person heeding the advice it carried. This was the case with Mary Lingard. At twenty-five she was dragging out her days in misery. At sixty-one she finds herself so active and strong she can do work that would shame many a younger woman, and looks back on thirty-six happy, healthful years of industry. But let her tell her story:

"Thirty-six years ago I had great trouble with my liver. The doctors allowed that there were tumors growing on it, and they blistered my side in an effort to give me relief. I was at that time earning my living as a tailoress, but for five years, between the pain in my side and the blisters I was in constant misery, and work was a drag to me, with no prospect of relief; fortunately for me, however, a friend advised me to take Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and finally persuaded me to take a regular course of it. When I first commenced taking the Sarsaparilla my side was so painful that I could not fasten my dress, and for a time I did not get any relief, but my friend advised me to persevere and relief was sure to come, and come it did. This happened, as I say, thirty-six years ago. My liver has never troubled me since, and during these years I have passed through the most critical period of a woman's life without any particular trouble, and to-day, at sixty-one years of age, I am active and strong, and able to do a day's work that would upset many a younger woman. Ever since my recovery I have taken a couple of bottles of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla each spring, and am quite satisfied that I owe my good health to this treatment. I give this testimonial purely in the hope that it may meet the eye of some poor sufferer."—MARY LINGARD, Woodstock, Ont.

Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its way to every corner of the world by the praise of its friends; those who have tried it and who know they were cured by the use of the remedy. There is nothing so strong as this personal testimony. It throws all theories and fancies to the winds and stands solidly upon the rock of experience challenging every skeptic with a positive "I know." Ayer's Sarsaparilla with its purifying and vitalizing action on the blood is a radical remedy for every form of disease that begins in tainted or impure blood. Hence tumors, sores, ulcers, boils, eruptions and similar diseases yield promptly to this medicine. Some cases are more stubborn than others, but persistence with Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla usually results in a complete cure. Mary Lingard began with a bottle, and went on to a course of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. When she was cured she realized that a medicine that could cure disease could also prevent it. So she took a couple of bottles each spring and kept in perfect health. There are thousands of similar cases on record. Some of these are gathered into Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a little book of 100 pages which is sent free by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 20, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Mr. Frank Yantes intends to build a new residence in N. W. Delano soon.

—Consult the inside of this paper for war news and maps of Cuba and other islands.

—Fishing is the sport now. Most everybody has been trying his luck with the rod and line, the past week.

—John Borsch has bought the stock of furniture and Stacy Redmond the undertaking business of the late firm of Coffin & Babb.

—The members of the German Lutheran church held their services, last Sunday, in the Swedish church. The German church is being plastered and repaired.

—Mrs. M. A. Chance received a card from her soldier son, Jenner at Norfolk, Neb. He said the train was getting along nicely. That was before they had met the Nebraska cyclone, and hail storm.

—Epples flag pole has been straightened up and the large flag now waves beautifully to the breezes. The stars and stripes look nicer this spring than for many years to many. In times of peace we are apt to forget what they mean, and what blood it cost to get them.

—It is a fine thing for the 13th Reg. Minn, Inf. Vol. U. S. A. that Manilla is a warm country and that undress uniform is fashionable. The newspapes report that Nebraska ladies cut most of the buttons off of the boy's clothing for souvenirs, on their passage through that state.

—F. C. Shepherd, formerly of Watertown, late seargent in the 2nd Minnesota is getting up a cavalry company for the next call of troops. Those desiring to join can do so by addressing 2631, Girard Ave., N. Minneapolis. Nothing like being ready when the call comes, to arms.

—James C. Dunn, of Independence, lost a turkey hen about six weeks ago and has hunted the place over throughly for her; this week he came across her in the straw stack where he thinks she was imprisoned for all that time with only straw to live on. She is still alive and picking up in flesh after her release from so long a fast.

—The Buffalo Journal says: "Jos. VanEman received a telegram last Sunday evening, announcing the death of his daughter, Mrs. Isabella Titus, at her home at Keokuk, Iowa, which occurred at about 5 o'clock of that day." Mr. Van Eman and family were formerly Delanoites, and have the sympathy of many friends.

—The base ball game between the Crickets and Lester Prairie boys last Saturday resulted in a victory for the former; score 10 to 17. For the first few innings the score stood about even. But in the fifth inning the Crickets scored eight runs, thus placing the result, without a doubt, in their hands. In the latter part of the game our boys became reckless and allowed their opponents to score four unearned runs.

—Mrs. C. H. Green's funeral in charge of the Sisters of Rebekah Lodge, was held at the M. E. Church Tuesday at 1 P. M. The house was filled with friends. Rev. Farber preached the funeral sermon. Many mourning relatives and others followed in teams, the remains to the cemetery near Long Lake where the burial took place.

Flowers in abundance covered the casket in which rested all that remained on earth of the departed one. The sympathy of the community goes out to those who are left behind.

—Rations for six days were issued to the 13th Reg. on Sunday. The boys have drawn their shoes; and every thing was ready for a start on Monday; cars being in waiting at St. Paul since Saturday. Friends visited the boys and picnic dinners were spread for soldiers and friends all over the grounds on Sunday. Snap shots were being taken by the many comers on the grounds. Towards evening good byes were said and the hundreds of people on trains, street cars, in carriages, buggies, on horse back, on wheels, and afoot left for home, expecting the next days sun to shine on their loved ones as they pulled out for San Francisco, or for the Southern rendezvous as the case might be.

—The Delano boys who have gone to help Uncle Sam keep the peace were the last to leave Camp Ramsey. On Monday the 12th and 14th Regiments left for the South. After most of them were well on their way the first section of the 13th, at about 6 P. M. started via the Omaha road for San Francisco, thence expecting to go to the Philippine Islands, to aid Dewey. The last section of the 13th reg, in charge of Maj Diggles, consisted of companies A. B. and I. in which the Delano boys are, left Camp Ramsey, about 9 P. M. The first section was received in grand style at Shakopee, Kasota, Mankato and other points, 10,000 being out at Mankato, according to reports. Of course when the rear guard came along about 1 A. M. Tuesday the good citizens of that burg were quietly dreaming of the grand reception they had given the 13th, and it is supposed our boys were allowed to pass quietly through the town without even having their peaceful slumbers disturbed. The Reg. is expected to reach San Francisco, Friday and go into camp to await further equipments and orders.

—Notice the change in John Brandser's add.

—Services at the Presbyterian church on Sunday, at 3 P. M.

—The Epworth League will hold a Festival of Months in the City Hall Thursday, May 26.

—The Epworth League anniversary exercises were postponed until next Sunday evening at 7 P. M. Everybody come. Preaching at 8 at the M. E. church.

—Mrs. M. A. Chance received a card from Jenner this A. M. The train was then at Ft. Larimie, Wyoming. He says they are all well and happy and all say, Hello!

—The committee for arranging a programme for Memorial Day appears to be so absorbed in business affairs as to have completely forgotten their duty to the brave boys of the sixties who have died.

—A Dispatch report of the trip of the 13th Reg. says: "Kearney Neb., May 18.-The one cry as the last section passed rapidly through Iowa and Nebraska was "Remember the Maine." The cars were all banked with flowers and the boys were travelling bouquets."

Delano's boys were a part of the last section.

—Fifty two people from Delano visited Camp Ramsey last Sunday on the excursion to see the soldier boys off. Our people seem to be in for 13 as much as the rest of the folks, 52 is 4 times 13. The boys are in the 13th Reg and 13 seems to be connected in some manner with about everything they do. The father of their Col. C. McC. Reeves was even Col. of the 13th Reg. U. S. Inf in the war of the Rebellion.

Personal.

George Swadner, of Waverly, spent Sunday in Delano.

John and Charley Coolen, of Smith Lake, visited friends here Sunday.

Miss Addie and John Cameron, of Minneapolis, were in attendance at Mrs. Green's funeral, Tuesday.

L. W. Laton, one of Dassels' business men, was a visitor with William Lewis and family, Wednesday night.

Editor Teas and two sons and Archie Halgren of Watertown witnessed the defeat of the Lester Prairie boys Saturday by the Delano Crickets.

Among Lester Prairie people to witness the game of ball between the Delano Crickets and the Lester prairie boys on Saturday, were Prof. William Veith, John Bradford, Peter Swanson, Gus Erickson, and Mrs. Wm. Kohler and boys.

Dr. Catlin and son John, Mrs. M. A. Chance and Mrs. M. J. Mulford; John, Maggie, and Veronica Steffes; Wash Rader and wife; A. W. Wittman, Oscar Erwig, Oscar Eppel, Carl Hildebrandt, Merel Jones, Mamie Dedrick, Leonard Dedrick, John Tischler, Erma and Bessie Wilder, Rosa Eppler, Will Hellman, Mabel Young, Dr. J. S. Shrader and wife and daughter Beth, Mrs. J. W. Lindsley, Mrs Geo. Goodrich, Eb Brandon and wife, C. G. Roosen and wife and two daughters, Wm. and Willie Mowatt, Peter Nolan and wife and others visited Camp Ramsey boys before they left.

County Cullings.

Prof. Babcock formerly of Cokato, goes to Howard Lake for the next school year.

Do our Republican friends intend furnishing its voters a chance to vote for Judge Woolley or Tarbox, is now a leading question.

Waverly has a company of 61 who are to offer their services to Uncle Sam at the next call. Dave Flanigan Captain. The company is to drill at 2 P. M. Sunday.

Cokato has engaged A. P. Ritchie of Annandale, as principal of their school. We believe they will find in him a capable and conscientious instructor.

Judge Woolley is a candidate for nomination for District Judge and Ed Nagle for Register of Deeds on the Republican ticket. Who their Democratic opponents may be, hasn't yet developed. Probably two good men.

Delano's soldier boys in the 13th Minnesota Reg. Vol. will probably sail for Manila before ten days. Rations are being rushed to San Francisco for 13,000 men for three months. Gen. Wesley Merritt is to be in command

A. G. Lano's new building has been at a standstill for the past week. Not only are his entire family on the sick list but owing to a severe injury to one of his fingers he has been unable to work. He expects to resume building operations, Monday.—Annandale Post.

O. W. Crawford, a veteran of the late war is a candidate for Register of Deeds. He is quoted as having suggested that the ranks of candidates might be thinned by some of them enlist in the war against Spain. This suggestion might apply to candidates for several other offices.

Judge Tarbox, says the Enterprise, will hold a term of court at Cokato, June 4, for the issuing of second papers to those desiring them. If you have neglected to get yours don't miss this chance. If you do not have your papers 90 days before election you can't vote.

Editor Tanner favors hoisting the stars and stripes and the English colors together on Queen Victoria's birthday. And it has only been half a dozen years since the country was flooded with Republican literature containing pictures of the two country's emblems, and the question. "Under which flag?" derisively printed to induce people to vote for a protective tariff.

We understand that Judg Tarbox has not pleased all the lawyers in his district and that a strong opposition is at work against his re-nomination, and that he will hardly be able to succeed himself in office. Judge Woolley has been prevailed upon to enter the race for nomination and is in the hands of his friends. Judge Woolley has made a good judge of Probate and seems to be a fair man and his friends will doubtless make a determined fight for his nomination.

The Buffalo Journal is most as ignorant of the movements of Minnesota troops as the papers claim Spain is of American affairs generally. Witness the following from the Journal: "The 13th Minnesota troops left for the south last Monday. Jim Hill gave the Regiment $7,500 for expenses."

The 13th left Monnday for Manilla, via San Francisco. It is a little south but much farther west. Jim Hill is not reported as having given anything for expenses to the regiments going south. Jim is working up the trade across the Pacific.

The question of how the State Public Examiner can go from one county to another and pronounce county affairs "O. K." when one county is paying $3.00, another $5.00 and another $7.80 for physicians who examine insane persons is liable to be answered soon by the decision of the courts. It seems Judge Woolley sent a patient from Otsego lately, to Fergus Falls, where it was claimed that for irregularity in the examination, there being but one physician on the board, the patient was refused admission. The attendant had a new examination at Fergus Falls and the $7.80 fees were charged up to Wright County where the Judge claims that all the law allows is $3.00. Of course Wright county is not going to pay illegal fees to outsiders, any more than to insiders, and the question will have to be determined by the courts. In the meantime we think from developments up to date the Public Examiners might as well be given a rest until they can O. K. bills alike in every county under the same law. If, as the Examiner claims $5.00 is the proper fee certainly he shouldn't O. K. county officials accounts who pay only $3.00 nor those who pay $7.80. This matter must be settled.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION AND PRIMARY ELECTION.

The Democratic County Convention for the county of Wright, Minnesota, will be held in Dudley's Opera House in the Village of Buffalo, in said county, on Thursday, the 9th day of June, 1898, at 12 o'clock, m., to elect 24 delegates to the Democratic State Convention to be held at the City of Minneapolis on Wednesday, June 15th, 1898, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the next general election to be held in said State, for the office of Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, State Auditor, and Attorney General.

Also for the purpose of electing 18 delegates to the Democratic Congressional Convention for the 6th Congressional District, to be held at the City of St. Cloud, on Tuesday, the 14th day of June, 1896, for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for Congressman from said 6th Congressional district of Minnesota, to be voted for at said General Election, and to do such other business as will regularly come before said convention.

The several election districts in said Wright county will be entitled to representation in said Democratic Count Convention, as follows:

One delegate at large for each election district, and one delegate for every 40 votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Democratic nominee for Governor of said State at the General Election for 1896, to wit:

HENNEPIN County has again got a chance to elect or reject Congressman Fletcher. He was nominated by the Republicans for reelection last week.

THAT bottle the Spanish fleet was reported to be in must have been on some reporters table, and not off the coast of Santiago de Cuba either.

THAT war strategy board that President McKinley has been listening too seems to have been more strategy than war. He did well to take things into his own hands.

WE acknowledge the receipt of an invitation from the Regents and Faculty of the University of Minnesota to attend the Commencement Exercises from May 29, to June 2.

THE Catalogue of Gustavus Adolphus College at St. Peter, for 97 and 98 and the announcements for 98 and 99 is at hand. This college is forging to the front among our institutions of learning.

THE Spaniads are after President McKinley in great shape. Mot satisfied with calling him a pot house politician, it is claimed that newspapers are now trying to make their readers believe he is a naturalized Chinaman, born in Canton.

COL. WILLIAM J. BRYAN'S regiment in Nebraska is said to have had fifteen companies reported the next day after Mr. B. made it known that he wanted a regiment. As twelve companies make a regiment. Mr. Bryan has a regiment and a quarter to start on. What's the matter with making it a brigade?

ON Wednesday, May 25, the first American army to sail for a foreign land started out of San Francisco, for the Philippine Islands. General Anderson on the Australia accompanied by the City of Pekin and the City of Sydney, left with 2,500 men to assist Admiral Dewey. Four companies of regulars: the 1st Cal. vol., the fat. Organ vol., a battallion of 50 heavy artillery about 100 sailors and 11 naval officers made up the number sailing.

They expect to catch the Charleston at Honolulu and accompany or precedent to Manilla. The next men to go expect to start in a week or two and the 13th Minn. vol., expect to be a part of them.

Fees Need Regulating.

It seems from the stirring up of the Fee question that instead of a Public Examiner to go around over the state and O. K. officer's accounts who pay from $3.00 to $5.00 and even to $7.80 for the same work in different counties that it would be well to have an Examiner to see what the present one is working at, or one to look over the fee bills, salaries, etc., etc., and ascertain what fees and salaries the law allows and who pays them. Such things are entirely too blind.

Everybody who has had anything to do with Quarantine, or even with justice, or constable fees in our own county know how the county commissioners consciences act something like a rubber band stretching and contracting as they feel the necessity of pleasing this or that constituent or set of constituents, apparently. To say nothing of the way the poor printers are depriyed of their 75 cts per folio which the law explicitly provides for. It seems Judge Woolley don't propose to pay Fergus Falls folks there O. K. rates for examining and committing an insane person sent there by him and re-examined, but will adhere to the Wright county fees as O. K'd by the Public Examiners. Below we give a couple of opinions bearing on the subject.

Attorney General's Office,
HON. G. N. EDWARDS, Judge of Probate.

Dear Sir:— "The amendatory law of 1895 makes no provision regulative of fees in matters pertaining to the committment of insane persons. The provisions of General Laws 1893, chapter 5, section 49, so far as applicable, must therefore be deemed in force. The person authorized to convey an insane person to the hospital is entitled to two dollars per day for the time necessarily employed in so doing, and necessary disbursements. Witnesses in such proceedings are entitled to fees as provided by General Statutes 1898, chapter 70, section 8.

It is doubtful if the county from which a resident of another county is committeed to the hospital for the insane, is entitled to remuneration from the residence county for expenses thus incured. The better practice would be to return such person to the residence county, to be dealt with by the authorities thereof.

No fees are expressly provided for the conveyance of an insane person to another state, but as the law expressly provides for such conveyance, the county commissioners may properly allow reasonable compensation for services thus performed and expenses necessarily incured."

Aug. 5, 1895.

H. W CHILDS, Att'y Gen'l.

Buffalo, Minn., May 21st 1898.

DR. T. J. CATLIN,

Dear sir: The above is a true copy of the opinion of the Att'y Gen'l on the question as to the fees allowed to the person who conveys to the hospital an insane person. In May 1893 the Attorney General wrote a similar opinion in answer to a question covering precisely the same ground, viz: The fees allowed to the person conveying a person to the hospital.

You will observe that these opinions do not in any respect refer to the fees for examiners in lunacy, which fees were fixed under the laws of 1883, chapter 5, section 49 of said law. The Supreme Court of this state in the "Billings case" decided the law of 1893 (or certain sections of the law) to be unconstitutional and void, See State Ex Rel, vs. Billings, 55th Minn. 467.

Sec' 18, laws os 1893, simply prescribes certain qualifications which the physician who certifies to the insanity of a person shall possess, while Sec' 19 prescribes the manner of examination, and both of these sections were held to be unconstitutional and void in the Billings case.

Now it is my opinion that all that portion of section 49, of this act which provides for the fees of the examiners in lunacy, would necessarily fall with sections 18 and 19 of the act, since the fees were fixed for services rendered under these sections. I fail to see how the state examiner could construe these opinions of the Attorney General, as applying to fees of examiners in lunacy, nor do I consider such to be the law.

Very truly,
J. J. Woolley,
Judge of Probate.

War and Taxes.

Maple Plain Minn., May 23.

MR. EDITOR: "The idols of Babylon could not save themselves."

Should the Lord be with Spain in this great conflict he is more than all else that can come against her but it hardly seems that the Lord would be with such a cruel and barbarous nation as Spain. It even seems cruel in her to sacrifice so much treasure, life, and property for so little gain. She cannot hope for conquest unless some other nations join with her, and should the United States bring this war to a close in a few weeks or months it will be very expensive. The poor man will fight the battles and pay most of the freight. It seems that Cuba and the reconcentrados are not free yet. Two months ago Congress was red hot to have this thing done, but they are as far from it as they were two months ago, but perhaps all things are working for the best; and I hope things are working so as to bring the war to a speedy close. Even if our soldiers are never engaged in a battle there will be many lives lost by sickness and accident. We are not recovered from the effects of the Rebellion and I am sorry to see our nation engaged in another war. I think it was the policy of the President to keep out of it if he could. But, for the sake of humanity, Congress says we must free Cuba; and I hope this may come to pass, and that very soon, and our young men return home with laurels on their brow. War has a terror for me for I know it brings lots of distress and suffering.

I am just in receipt of a letter from a friend in New Mexico, in which he says the Spaniards are 3 to 1 here; says there are no arguments or controversies got up on either side; none of the whites talk war with the Spaniards; all carry guns. Says both sides are prepared for an outbreak and should it come there will be lots of blood spilled. Secret meetings are being held on both sides and a line is gradually being drawn. In closing this subject he says: "I wish we had a lincoln at the helm, for he was far seeing".

It seems that Spain was taxing Cuba so much that she could not stand the drainage and this proyoked a war of rebellion with the mother country.

"And the King Ahasureus laid a tribute upon the land, and upon the Isles of the sea."

Now when men fight we say they act like dogs. Then why should nations fight? Why not settle by arbitration, mutual agreement? It is rather bad to get into a war with so ignorant and superstitious a nation as Spain, for they have no rule of warfare; they are bloodthirsty and cruel.

Our country is getting deeper and deeper in debt.

Mr. Dingley, Chairman of the Ways and Means committe of the House of Representatives, thinks it necessary to increase our revenue on account of the war with Spain, and yet our revenue tax is now higher on an average than it was during the war of the rebellion. But perhaps we do not have so much internal revenue. Then increase our internal revenue. Put more on whiskey and tobacco and also create an income: let the money power pay part of the freight.

Mr. Dingley's bill consists of 44 pages and reaches every branch of industry and trade, carefully avoiding the levies upon accumulated wealth. It proposes to increase the revenue by taxation from ninety to one hundred millions annually and also provides for issuing $500,000,000 of twenty years three per cent bonds, and an additional $100,000,000 of short time three per cent bonds. If Congress does this iniquitous thing God pity the people for the bond holders will not. If we must have more money why not coin our silver bullion, and do as Lincoln done durinfi the Rebellion, make money (greenback) non interest bearing notes, the best paper money this country ever had, but this would not pay tribute to the bankers and money power.

The national bankers want to furnish the rolling stock of this country and have the people pay all the freight by giving them long time, which will consume all the surplus earnings of the producer and he will have nothing left but the tail and hide. A man does not have to have an eye strong enough to see half way into a mill stone to see this scheme. It is all on the surface and does not need a torch light procession to look it up.

It is said we have $220,000,000 in the trsasury and $55,000,000 of silver bullion; then coin the bullion and trot out the money. Gold never fought a war. To issue greenbacks and coin the silver bullion will mean money for the poor, but to issue $600,000,000 or $800,000,000 of bonds will mean money for the rich. Must our country become a ponbroker's shop, and above the shop doors in gold gilted letters: "Money to loan on good collateral security." People should economize; live more within their means. They will enjov more, live longer, and die happier.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20, 1898.

Under the secretive policy that was this week put into operation the administration can change its war plans even oftener than once in every forty eight hours, and the Naval Strategy Board can keep our fleets on a continuous wild goose chase, without being criticized. Under this policy Secretary Long is the only man who is allowed to give out a scrap of news concerning the movements of our warships, and nothing indicating their movements is to be allowed to be telegraphed from any place any of these vessels go to. The reason given for all this secrecy is that the Spanish have been regularly furnished with everything printed about the moyements of our ships and that the knowledge thus acquired enabled the admiral of that Spanish fleet to avoid Admiral Sampson's fleet. This may be true, but had there been less criticism of recent movements of our warships it is probable that the new policy would be less strictly enforced. The policy is better than the motive which caused it to be adopted.

It is learned unofficially—there are always leaks, you know—that the Oregon, the Marletta, and the Buffalo, the dynamite cruiser brought from Brazil, have joined Admiral Sampson's fleet; that the swiftest vessels in the fleets of Sampson and Schley are to be sent after the Spanish fleet, while the monitors and the slower ships are to maintain the Cuban blockade; that the plans for the invasion of Cuba are to be again taken up and carried out within a short time; that another call for volunteers is probable in a few days, and that orders have been issued to cut all the cables from Cuba, except the two to the U. S., which are now under government control.

Senator Jones, of Ark., about stated the position of the democratic party towards the war revenue bill, now before the Senate, in his speech this week on the bill. He opened by saying that he doubted whether there was a man in the Senate who was not ready to vote all the money and taxes necessary to carry on the war, but he would consider it a neglect of duty to vote for too much money. He criticised the estimates made of the amount that would be needed, and quoted the Secretaries of War and the Navy to show that he was right in calling them excessive, and said that even if they were not, there was no good reason why this session of Congress should provide for all of it. In reply to Senator Aldrich's questions, Senator Jones said: "I am willing to fix the amount that ought to be produced by the pending bill at $150,000,000; but I believe it would be better and wiser for us to levy even more taxes rather than increase our interest-bearing obligations. If I had to take my choice between an issue of bonds and an increase of taxation, I would prefer to increase taxation."

The state delegation in Congress and a number of others prominent in public life accompanied the Alabama Press Association, which had been in Washington several days, over to Philadelphia to witness the launching of the battleship Alabama. Senator Morgan's daughter christened the ship.

Mr. W. Godfrey Hunter, of Ky., knew what he was about when he accepted the position of U. S. Minister to Guatemala. His contest for the seat in the House occupied by Hon. John S. Rhea was disposed of in two minutes without a word of debate, by the House adopting the report of the committee stating that Mr. Rhea had been legally elected.

Numerous state officials who have been in Washington this week would have strongly resented the intimation of War Department officials that state officials were responsible for the delay in getting the volunteer army into service had they not feared that to do so would make it appear to foreign countries that the state and Federal authorities were wrangling over the formation of our army. Inasmuch as the greater portion of the volunteer army that have been regularly enlisted under the U. S. are to-day without proper equipments, it would seem that the War Department officials ought to keep very mum about the responsibility for delay.

Now that Secretary Alger has successfully pulled off an important family event—the marriage of his daughter—and has asked Congress to provide for an additional Assistant Secretary of War, it is hoped that he intends moving things a little faster in his department. That things connected with the army have not been satisfactory may be judged by Senator Chandler having openly expressed the opinion that influences were operating to prevent the army taking any part in the war, by retarding its preparation until our navy had destroyed the Spanish navy and Spain had sued for peace, and that the reason was to make it as easy as possible on the Spanish bond-holders. Had Chandler been a democrat such talk would have been regarded near kin to treason.

Candidate for Congress.

Maple Plain, May 19th, 1898.

Mr. Ed. Gazette,

Dear Sir: Having offered myself as a candidate for Congress thought it proper to let the people know what my principles are so the people can know who and what they are voting for in supporting me for a position wherein the people should be very much interested as to their welfare in the pursuit of life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness. When I get to to Congress I shall labor very hard to get this government to issue all the greenbacks needed to educate all the people in political economy. That education shall be compulsory. I shall try to have a school established in every town and ward in the United States and have good and efficient teachers hired to teach all the good and wholesome principles that are in the hands of the voters of this country so that when a man goes to the polls to cast a vote he will be able to know what he is voting for and the effect of the vote he casts and unless he knows what he is voting for he shall not cast a vote. Now people do not like to go to the polls and cast a vote, and know what they are voting for, and when they have cast their vote see perhaps a dozen step up to the ballot box and cast their votes, and lots of people know such persons do not know what they are voting for any more than an old cow would. People do not like to see their liberties destroyed by a lot of ignorance. People do not risk their business in other matters in the hands of ignorance. Now those greenbacks used to pay for these instructions shall be paid for all debts due public and private without the interyention of banks, direct to the people. Thus you see we will have a circulating medium that will not cost us 12 or 15 per cent to get a dollar in circulation as it does at this time, for we know that all the money we get in circulation under our present laws has to go through the bank quill to get it in circulation. I do not blame the bankers; it is the system I oppose. Of course, if the bankers wish, they can shake us to death in 24 hours if they wish for money; but they are not fools enough to kill the hen that lays the golden egg. Well, we must educate. We must educate; or short will be our race from the cradle to the grave. I hope my friends will appreciate my efforts and hearts desire as I am getting well along in years and can't go to the war but I wish to do something for the welfare of my country.

E. HOISINGTON.

Among Our Exchanges.

Waseca Herald: When asked how they expected to fare down south the boys invariably replied "John Lind will look out for us, and don't you worry." Hence it is that the name of John Lind is on every man's tongue for the next governor of Minnesota. It makes no difference whether Van Sant, Collins or any other corporation man is nominated by the machine—Lind will be elected if he lives, we think.

Courier Journal: There is no such thing on this earth as rightful property in people or their possessions based upon the denial of their own sovereignty and maintained by cruilty and oppression. That is the truth upon which this republic was founded, and it is the truth which it is destined to perpetuate for three continent.

The American who does not comprehend this—who does not understand that we are not only free ourselves but that it is our right and our duty to help our neighbors to freedom, to drive out despotism from all our shores—has a poor conception of the meaning of the name he bears and of the Government he acknowledges.

Republican Judicial Convention.

A Republican Judicial Convention for the Eighteenth Judicial District of the State of Minnesota will be held at the Court House in the village of Elk River in Sherburne county on the 16th day of July A. D. 1898, at 12 o'clock m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Republican candidate for Judge of District Court from the above named District and doing any other business that may properly come before the convention.

The county conventions to elect delegates thereto will be held in the respective counties on the 23rd day of June A. D. 1898, at a place to be designated by the respective county committees.

All electors who believe in the principles of the Republican party as enunciated in the platform adopted by the National Convention of the party in 1896 are cordially invited to participate in the election of delegates.

Each county will be allowed one delegate for each 200 votes or major fraction thereof cast for William Mc Kinley for President in the year 1896, as foilows:—

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Some Citizens. Rainy Weather Appriciated. Fruit Raising. Patriotism. 13th Minnesota.

(BY HON. B. F. CHRISTLIEB.)

MR. EDITOR: Friend McGary's suggestion to depopulate this country and remove to Minnesota may be a good one but likely objectors to that project would be found here if it was undertaken.

For instance there are the adventurers who came here under the gold excitement and became rich and are now living in comfort and luxury and they of course would be loth to leave here, and there are the kidney, invalids and the one lungers who have to stay here to keep alive, and last but not least there are the tramps who do not want to leave, for this country is just suited to their business. The temperature at any time of the year is so moderate that they suffer but little discomfort sleeping out of doors under a live oak or an orange tree with a small fire near them, often finding sustenance from the fruit of their shelter, a few ripe oranges are to be found at almost any time of the year, and besides tramps are about as successful here in forcing a living from the rest of the population as anywhere else. People come here for climate and air and they come the nearest living on wind of any place within my knowledge.

The rainy and cloudy weather which appeared at the closing of my last letter, strange to say, still continues, and while it is unusual weather for California, it is getting in good work in the way of making pasturage so that the short of hay will not be so keenly fell. Fruit in Southern California has not been so seriously damaged by drouth and frost as in the more notherly parts of the state. The prospect for good orange and lemon crops the coming season are good, and while deciduous fruit raising is not carried on so extensively in this part of the state, the orchards that are here, however promise well for the coming crop; the varieties being, apricots, peaches, plums, prunes, pears and others. One crop of strawberries has been on the market for some time. Grapes are raised abuudantly on the large ranches, but the occupants of the smaller ranches or tracts, especially people of American origin are opposed to raising grapes to be made into wine on moral and temperance principles, so that grape raising in many parts of Southern California is not given attention.

Patriotism remains unabated in California, and many who were refused by Uncle Sam on the recent call for troops are awaiting patiently the next oppertunity to serve their country. All feel jubilant over Admiral Dewey's victory at Manilla, and over the fact that troops and munitions of war are being embarked from the shores of California to reinforce the Hero of Manilla; and I notice by the Minneapolis Times of the 14th inst. that the 13th Minnesota Regiment under Col. Reeve started from Minnesota for San Francisco to join the command of General Merritt which is to be sent to the Philippine Island to cooperate with Admiral Dewey in subjugating the Spanish forces and relieving the inhabitants of those islands from Spanish misrule and tyranny which has existed there for centuries and I am gratified to learn that the GAZETTE is represented in that noble work in the person of A. G. Catlin and I have faith that he and his regiment will acquit themselves with honor under their brave commander Col. Chas. M. Reeve, whom I know from my association with him as a member of the Legislture and as an old acquaintance to posses that kind of energy and courage that brings men to the front.

ON THE TRAIN, MAY 19th, 1898.

FATHER: We boarded the train at Camp Ramsey at about 7 o'clock and left shortly after 8 P. M. We received supper at St. James, at about 2 A. M. saw Pat Greear at that place. About 40 miles from the state line dawn overtook us. We obtained breakfast at Northfork, a rather late breakfast; supper at Grand Island, went to bed at Sheldon, woke up at Bushnell next morning; received breakfast at Cheyenne, dinner at Laramie, supper at Rawlins. By the way I may say that, the smaller the town the more the patriotism; even the farm houses turned out in force.

The fertile plains extend nearly across Nebraska, then it begins to be barren, cattle take the place of crops.

We have been trying to keep up to a rain cloud, and have done pretty well, about a day ago we lost it, but found it jammed up against a mountain waiting for us.

This morning found us nearly to Ogden, Utah; mountains all around us, except where the Great Salt Lake is accompanying can be found the outline of a snow covered mountain which took us about five hours to pass.

The scenery is too fine to miss so must close.

Mr. and Mrs. De Wolf Hopper have been divorced, and De Wolf is now a grass Hopper.

More than 8,000 varieties of postal cards have been issued. This almost equals the number of different makes of bicycles.

So many streets are being named for Admiral Dewey that when he returns he will be at home in almost every city in the union.

A calamity that will be felt more keenly at home than in the field is the explosion of a chewing gum factory in the Buckeye state.

Hostilities have been resumed at the old stand between those sandal-footed cruisers of the turf, Robert Fitzsimmons and James J. Corbett.

Everybody now knows the location of Bahia, Subig bay, San Juan and Cape St. Vincent. The American promises henceforth to be deeply versed in geography.

An international congress of medical women will be held in London this year. This is remarkable, considering the fact that it is only about 50 years since the fair sex broke into the medical profession.

Turkey has consented to evacuate Thessaly "by zones." The last Turk will be out of Greece ten years from now, provided the concert of Europe keeps on sending identical or collective notes.

The term "infantry" soldier originated with the Spanish and was first applied to the military force employed by an infante, or young prince of Spain, to rescue his father from the Moors.

The queen of Greece is the only woman admiral in the world. She holds this rank in the Russian navy, an honorary appointment conferred upon her by the late czar, because her father held the rank of high admiral.

Men and women who had the good fortune to be schoolmates of George Dewey are making the fact known wherever a newspaper is printed in the English language. That old Vermont schoolhouse must have been an immense structure, or else young Dewey spent the first 25 years of his life in accumulating schoolmates.

The mayor of Fogia, Italy, recently granted a public holiday to the villagers of the old town in honor of the baptism of the chilren of a Signora Rosa Zurlo, who has presented her husband with four sons, all born on the same day, and who are to be called Dante, Petrarch, Tasso and Ariosto, after the four great Italian poets.

The large number of rejections of volunteers has caused much comment in the army medical corps. However, the physicians who have conducted the examinations say that outside of the ranks of cigarette smokers there are even fewer rejections than there were in the days of the civil war. Among habitual users of the cigarette the rejections are about 90 per cent.

Admiral Dewey entered the naval academy at Annapolis in 1854. As a young ensign he was in the service of the United States during the civil war and was part of the naval operations at Mobile and New Orleans. But he had to wait 44 years for the great opportunity which came to him recently. He was at the time of the battle a commodore, but he was in fact an acting rear admiral.

A correspondent having asked where are all the girl violinists who started out in the profession with such high promises ten years ago, the Chatterer of the Boston Herald replies: "Well, we don't know where all of them are, but the best ones have married, and the fiddle and bow are hung up until the children are old enough to be taught to play as well as their mammas once did."

A New York detective says there are probably at least 1,000 men in that city living under names assumed after reaching the age of 21 years, many of them respected and trusted citizens. He adds: "Men who have been unfortunate in other cities, who have committed some petty crime, and want to hide from the world, come here to begin life anew, leaving their old names and reputations behind."

The alarms of war are punctuated at increasingly shorter intervals by the sound of merry marriage bells. Engagements by the score are giving place to nuptial ties and hurried ceremonies are augmenting the number of prospective widows, whose patriotism and blessing to their departing husbands will inspire to deeds of glory. This romantic tinge is inseparable from every actual war, and it is a tribute to the patriotism of American womanhood that so many brides are ready and eager to share the vicissitudes and dangers of an uncertain strife.

Before long we will be quite independent of foreign countries for those fruits which we have been in the habit of importing. Fig culture is a pronounced success in Louisiana and Mississippi and is also being carried on in Texas, Alabama, Florida and California. Our raisins and prunes now surpass anything produced abroad. Southwestern Texas in oranges, limes and lemons has already eclipsed the most successful efforts of West India planters. The pineapple, alligator pear and mango thrive in Florida, Texas and around Los Angeles.

A woman in Paris has conferred a boon on humanity in the discovery of a new science called "Linguistologie." This is nothing more than the delineation of character from the shape of the tongue. A big tongue indicates frankness, a long tongue generous feelings, a short one dissimulation, a narrow tongue concentration of ideas. Long and broad tongues indicate fondness for talk; short and broad ones, equal capacity to talk, but not to speak the truth, while those that are short and narrow show an unmistakable tendency to Machiavelian lying.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

A bill was passed in the United States senate on the 18th providing that officers of the regular army shall be eligible for staff appointments in the volunteer army without vacating their office in the regular army. The war revenue bill was further discussed. In the house the deficiency appropriation bill ($8,070,872) was passed and a joint resolution was introduced authorizing the president to return captured confederate flags to the governors of any state that called for them.

The time was occupied in the United States senate on the 19th in discussing the war revenue bill. In the house the labor arbitration bill was passed, after which adjournment was taken to the 23d.

A joint resolution was passed in the United States senate on the 20th providing for the organization and enrollment of an auxiliary naval force of 3,000 men which shall form an inner line of defense. The reading of the war revenue bill was completed and seven-eighths of the amendments were agreed to. The house was not in session.

FROM WASHINGTON.

It is said by Gen. Miles that there will be no further call for volunteers at this time. Thus far 95,000 have been mustered into the service of the United States.

Navy department officials refuse to give information, but it is believed a battle is expected at any hour between the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera and the American ships under Sampson and Schley.

The secretary of the navy announces the safe arrival of the Oregon from her long trip around Cape Horn. It is believed she has joined Admiral Sampson's squadron.

In Washington semi-official statements are made that there are no differences between France and the United States.

THE EAST.

Maria Louise Pool, a well-known authoress, died in Rockland, Mass.

In most lines of business throughout the country increased activity is reported.

Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, of Harrisburg, Pa., has been nominated for governor by the prohibitionists.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 21st were: Cincinnati, .760; Cleveland, .667; Boston, .630; Baltimore, .619; New York, .600; Chicago, .500; Pittsburgh, .481; Philadelphia, .455; Brooklyn, .409; Louisville, .321; St. Louis, .320; Washington, .240.

At Danbury Eleazer Smith, who is said to be the only New Hampshire survivor of the war of 1812, celebrated his one hundredth birthday.

At the age of 49 years Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward" and other well-known works, died at his home in Chicopee Falls, Mass.

Near Meyersville, Pa., a large section of a slope in an iron mine caved in and four men were buried alive.

Lena Sparri, the insane widow of a fireman in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., murdered her two children, a son two years old and a daughter five months old.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Lives were lost and a vast amount of property destroyed by a cyclone that swept through Cedar, Clinton and Jackson counties in Iowa, and passed over portions of Illinois and Wisconsin. In Iowa the number of persons known to have been killed is 14, in Illinois 8 and in Wisconsin 14. Men and women were injured and thousands of head of horses and cattle destroyed on farms.

On the Valdes glacier in Alaska, Joseph Turner, of Chicago; B. Antwerp, of Minneapolis, and A. Johnston, of Eureka, Cal., were killed in a snowslide.

In the Seventh Kansas district the populists renominated Jerry Simpson for congress.

At the age of 83 years C. M. Roberts died in Austin, Tex. He was governor of the state from 1879 to 1882.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian church met at Winona Lake, Ind.

With her machinery disabled the cruiser Charleston, that sailed from Vallejo, Cal., for Manila with ammunition and supplies for Dewey, is back at her berth at Mare Island navy yard.

The death of "Jim" Baker, once a famous scout and Indian fighter, occurred near Rawlins, Wyo., aged 90 years.

Fire wiped out the best part of the business portion of Kewaunee, Wis., the loss being $100,000.

At his home in Phoenix B. J. Franklin, ex-governor of Arizona, died suddenly.

At Chickamauga park three men were caught who were attempting to poison the water used by the soldiers.

Flames that started in Dow & Snell's wholesale grocery in Toledo, O., caused a loss of $350,000. The Blade newspaper office was badly damaged.

By the upsetting of a boat a son and daughter of Oliver Cochran, a son of Henry King and a son of Henry Richmond were drowned near New Martinsville, W. Va.

In northwest Arkansas a tornado did immense damage to property and caused the death of seven persons.

Parts of Fannin and Red River counties in Texas were swept by a tornado, causing extensive damage to property and some loss of life.

On the Valdes road trains collided near Collinsville, Ill., killing four men and injuring 20 others.

Near Rossville, Tenn., a train carrying St. Louis soldiers to Chickamauga was wrecked, killing George Walker and injuring six other men.

In a levee near Quincy, Ill., a break flooded 15,000 acres of farming lands, destroying the crops.

Transports have left Tampa, Fla., with United States soldiers to invade Cuba.

DEPART FOR MANILA.

California Regiment Goes Aboard the City of Peking.

Given a Rousing Farewell — More Troops to Sail — Charleston Leaves—Monitor Monterey Ordered to Manila.

San Francisco, May 24.—California said good-by to her First regiment of volunteers Monday morning as they marched gayly forth from the Presidio to start on their long journey to Manila. The men left camp at eight o'clock and marched to the Pacific Mail dock, where the big steamer City of Peking lay ready for them. By noon the soldiers were all on board and before night everything was in readiness for their departure. Every street leading from the Presidio to the Pacific Mail dock, a distance of about five miles, was lined with people who, after the soldiers passed, followed in their wake and marched with them to the docks. There was one continuous roar of cheers, flags were waved frantically, and people along the line, as they recognized some friend among the soldiers, rushed out and grabbed him by the hand to say good-by.

Blockade of Manila.

Washington, May 24.—Secretary Gage issued an order to customs officers notifying them that the port of Manila, Philippine islands, is blockaded by the United States fleet under Admiral Dewey, and therefore clearance will not be granted to merchant vessels for that port. The instructions also warn owners and masters of vessels that in undertaking voyages to Spanish ports not now blockaded they run the risk of interruption by future blockades and military operations.

The Philippine Expedition.

San Francisco, May 24.—The preparations for the first expedition to Manila are absorbing the energies of all the departments of the state as well as the enthusiasm of the people. Nothing remains to be done but to finish loading the three vessels—the Peking, Australia and Sydney. The first expedition will be divided on the three vessels as follows:

The City of Peking, the First California volunteers, composed of 49 officers and 953 enlisted men, ten officers and 71 sailors of the navy, making a total of 59 officers and 1,044 men.

The City of Sydney, 13 officers and 318 enlisted men of the Oregon volunteers; nine officers and 300 men of the First companies of the Fourteenth United States infantry; one officer and 50 men of the California heavy artillery, and Dr. H. E. McVain, ranking medical officer, making a total of 24 officers and 670 men.

The Australia, the headquarters' staff and band and two battalions of the Oregon volunteers, comprising 37 officers and 646 men.

To Reenforce Dewey.

Washington, May 23.—The president has ordered the formidable double-turreted monitor Monterey to sail from San Francisco to join Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manila, so that he may be doubly prepared to receive Spain's Cadiz squadron.

Charleston Goes to Sea.

San Francisco, May 23.—The Charleston is well on her way to Manila. The big cruiser passed through the Golden Gate at 8:20 Sunday morning, after having been anchored in the stream all night. She adjusted her compasses at an early hour and then passed up the bay through the Raccoon straits and passed the docks on the northern frontage of the city.

Bad Fire in Toledo.

Toledo, O., May 21. — Fire broke out Friday evening in the coffee-roasting department of the Dow & Snell wholesale grocery, adjoining the Toledo Blade building, and it was nearly four hours before the flames were under control. Robinson Locke's celebrated collection of pictures was destroyed, and the Blade plant was so damaged that the paper will have to issue from the Commercial office for a few days. The Blade's loss will be from $150,000 to $200,000, while Dow & Snell will lose $250,000, though both properties are fairly well insured. Other losses were light. The total will probably reach $600,000.

Sympathy from the Czar.

London, May 21.—Telegrams continue to arrive in great numbers at Hawarden castle from all parts of the world. Mrs. Gladstone is as well as can be expected. The czar has telegraphed to the widow in English, saying:

"I have just received the painful news of the decease. I consider it my duty to express my feelings of sincere sympathy on the occasion of the cruel and irreparable bereavement which has befallen you, as well as the deep regret which the sad event has given me. The whole civilized world will beweep the loss of the great statesman whose political values were so widely human and peaceful.

"(Signed) NICOLAS."

Fireman Killed.

San Francisco, May 23.—The suburban narrow gauge train on the Alameda branch was derailed Sunday afternoon on the trestle which runs out to the end of the pier. The locomotive went over and the first coach was thrown across the track. The fireman was killed, and engineer seriously injured and one other trainman was hurt.

TROOP TRAIN WRECKED.

One Soldier Is Killed and a Number Are Injured—Railroad Company May Be Prosecuted.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 23. — One man is dead and two fatally injured as the result of a wreck Saturday morning on the Chattanooga, Rome & Southern railway between Chattanooga and the volunteer camp at Chickamauga. The dead and injured all belonged to the First regiment Missouri volunteer infantry.

The list of fatalities is:

George Walker, artificer, company D, dead.

Alfred M. Lane, private, both legs broken; will die.

Harvard Barlaski, private, leg broken, internal injuries; will die.

A number of others were badly wounded. Jack McCade, a section hand, was killed by a passing military train just a few minutes before the casualty to the first Missouri train. The train on which the most damage was done was carrying the First Missouri from Chattanooga to the park. The last car of this train was loaded with horses of the officers.

Washington, May 23. — Upon receiving news of the disaster, resulting in the death and injury to a number of Missouri soldiers near Chattanooga, Saturday, Secretary Alger sent the following telegram to Maj. Gen. Brooke, commanding at Chickamauga:

"Washington, May 21.—The press reports disaster to the First Missouri volunteers this morning near your camp, reporting death of five men and injury of several others. The secretary of war directs that every care be taken of the wounded and that the dead be buried with all the honors of war and immediate steps taken to prosecute the railroad responsible for this disaster."

Made General Manager.

Omaha, Neb., May 24.—Gen. T. S. Clarkson, of this city, past grand commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, has been appointed general manager of the Trans-Mississippi exposition. The business before the board of managers has increased so rapidly of late that its members decided to delegate some of the work and created the office of general manager. A large share of the exhibits is now on the grounds, and the work of installation proceeds vigorously. Nearly all the government exhibits are in place. Everything will be in readiness for the opening day, June 1.

Four Killed by a Cave-In.

Allentown, Pa., May 23. — Four men were crushed to death Saturday by a cave-in at Hartzell & Swarth's hematite ore mines, near Mayersville. They were Jacob Reinhard, aged 40, having a wife and two children; Oscar Reinhard, his brother, aged 34, having a wife and three children; Morris Dry, single, 21, all of Fredericksville, Berks county; Frank Eidell, single, aged 30. The latter lived at Allentown. The men were working in a slope 72 feet below the surface, replacing the temporary props with permanent supports when the slide occurred.

Neutrality of the Vatican.

London, May 24.—The Rome correspondent of the Chronicle says he learns that the vatican's declaration of neutrality was due to a notification from Washington that no manifestations of sympathy with Spain would be tolerated.

Noted Author Dead.

Springfield, Mass., May 23.—Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," "Equality," etc., died at his home in Chicopee Falls at an early hour Sunday morning. Edward Bellamy was born at Chicopee Falls March 26, 1850.

WIND'S DEADLY WORK.

At Least Seven Lives Are Lost in a Cyclone in Arkansas—Tornado in Texas.

Fayetteville, Ark., May 23.—The tornado which passed through a portion of northwest Arkansas Friday night did immense damage to property and caused the death of at least seven persons. The storm came from the southeast, passing through the great fruit belt of the Ozark fruit region, and tore its way through the southern end of Benton county, spending its force in the White river valley. Everything in its path was destroyed, the greatest damage being done near Elm Springs, Lowell and Mudtown, the latter place being entirely swept away. At Elm Springs houses were blown down, orchards destroyed and stock killed. One man who had sought safety in a cellar was killed by falling timbers. Two miles east of Elm Springs a man named Killingsworth and his wife were killed. A mile away a farmhouse occupied by an Italian family was wrecked and the inmates were instantly killed.

The storm was less severe in Crawford county, but one life was lost near Fort Smith. A Mrs. Nesbitt died from fright while the gale was at its fiercest.

St. Louis, May 23.—A special to the Republic from Dallas, Tex., says: A tornado struck Ravenna, in Fanning county, Saturday night from the southwest, blowing down 11 barns, ten dwellings and the Methodist and Christian churches. The tornado traveled in a northeasterly direction and passed just north of Ivanhoe, where Capt. Joseph E. Dupree was killed and his house wrecked. At Clarksville a negro was killed and 11 people injured. Many horses and mules were killed. The property damage in the Red River valley will reach $100,000.

Colored Brakeman Hanged.

Paducah, Ky., May 24. — Joe Mitchell (colored), an Illinois Central railroad brakeman, who lives here, was hanged by a mob at Rives, Tenn., late Sunday night. The night before Mitchell had shoved a white boy tramp off a moving train at Rives, and the boy fell on the track, having his legs cut off at the knees. He lived long enough to tell that Mitchell was his assailant. The murderer was arrested, and while being held at the station to be taken to jail at Union City, Tenn., a crowd gathered, and, securing him, hanged Mitchell in ten minutes.

Will Carry 15,000 Men.

Tampa, Fla., May 24.—With the arrival Monday of the Iroquois, Santiago and Cherokee, 21 transports are now in port. Every one is fitted ready for embarkation. These ships will easily accommodate between 15,000 and 16,000 men, somewhat over the total of regular troops in camp here. It is thought 36 hours after orders are issued to embark every man, horse and pound of supplies can be placed on board the vessels in waiting.

Has Had Enough of War.

London, May 23.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Mail says: United States Consul George W. Roosevelt, when asked to take an active part in the Hispano-American war, declined, saying: "I was wounded in the war of secession a dozen times and have paid my debt to my country. An American never pays the same debt twice."

In Camp at Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 24.—The Second Illinois and First Wisconsin regiments of volunteer troops arrived here late Sunday night and went into camp Monday, together with the First North Carolina regiment.

HAS LITTLE EFFECT.

War Possibilities Do Not Prevent Increased Activity in Most Lines of Business.

New York, May 21.— R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Growing accustomed to war possibilities, which are mostly far from probabilities of evil, and finding the nation moving along steadily in its industries, people are grasping the idea that it is throwing away some months of active and profitable life to wait until war clouds have passed. Western prosperity has so greatly overbalanced timidity of eastern capital that actual business done increases; railroad earnings promise better for May than a month ago for April, and payments through clearing houses for the week in May show a gain of 36 per cent. over last year and 7.5 per cent over 1892, while a month ago the increase over last year was 33.6, and compared with 1892 there was a decrease of 7.2 per cent. Several large contracts kept back for some weeks because of hostilities have now been placed, and, instead of works closing or reducing force, returns show the starting of some works long idle and increase of force or of hours at others. Government work occupies many establishments, but it counts for little compared with other demands. The key of the situation is the prosperity of the west, which altogether unprecedented marketing of breadstuffs has caused, with the prospect of good crops to come. These prospects and actual receipts of wheat, amounting to 5,876,716 bushels for the week against 2,439,169 last year, with advances also in other grain and cattle, have produced a demand for rails, cars, car materials, fencing, agricultural implements, boots and shoes and all textile goods, which was not anticipated from eastern indications. Failures for the week have been 250 in the United States, against 248 last year, and 29 in Canada, and against 37 last year."

Recruits for the Navy.

Washington, May 24. — Commander Hemphill, who has charge of the naval enlistment, has made out a table showing that the recent recruiting of the navy has swelled that branch of the service by recruits from the following states:

Maine, 99; New Hampshire, 22; Massachusetts, 1,474; Rhode Island, 150; New York, 1,789; New Jersey, 318; Pennsylvania, 406; Maryland, 444; District of Columbia, 401; Ohio, 67; Michigan, 304; Illinois, 182; Wisconsin, 32; Minnesota, 154; Missouri, 54; Virginia, 255; North Carolina, 95; South Carolina, 115; Georgia, 17; Tennessee, 8; Louisiana, 151; Texas, 81; California, 606; Florida, 113.

Vast Sum for War Purposes.

Washington, May 21. — Secretary Alger has sent to the secretary of the treasury for transmission to congress supplemental estimates of appropriations, aggregating $88,638,840, required by the war department for the support of the regular and volunteer armies of the United States for the first six months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, in addition to the amounts appropriated in the acts of March 15 and May 4, 1898. Up to this time the estimates and appropriations already made on account of the war aggregate $295,210,840.

Powder Plant Destroyed.

Hammond, Ind., May 23. — At the lunch hour, while the workmen engaged in the task of making cartridges for the use of the United States government were luckily out of the building, the plant of the Economical Smokeless Powder company, located about five miles southeast of this city, was destroyed by an explosion shortly before one o'clock Saturday afternoon, instantly killing Arthur E. Booth, of Chicago, and injuring three others.

Crisis Near at Hand.

Madrid, May 24.—The mutterings of the people throughout Spain are becoming ominous, and the government officials think a crisis near at hand. A bread famine is beginning, and it is believed that unless the European powers intervene between the United States and Spain the storm now gathering will burst before many days, sweeping the present dynasty out of power forever.

Rigid Press Censorship.

Tampa, Fla., May 21.—Al the newspaper correspondents at Tampa have been notified that in future all dispatches must be placed in the hands of Lieut. Miley, of Gen. Shafter's staff, for approval. The censorship in future will be very rigid, and it is said that it will be kept in force until after the invasion of Cuba takes place.

The Volunteer Army.

Washington, May 24.—At a late hour Monday night Adjt. Gen. Corbin announced that advices received by him from the state camps indicated that 107,161 volunteers had been mustered into the service of the United States.

Died of His Injuries.

Lorain, O., May 23.—During a celebration of the supposed naval victory Saturday night a hose cart in a procession ran over two men. Peter Snyder is dead, and another man, whose name is unknown, is dying.

On the Safe Side.

"Doc," said a man who had approached one of the surgeons of the recruiting stations, "I wish you'd examine me and see if I'm eligible for enlistment."

"You must file your application in the regular way with the officer in charge," replied the surgeon.

"I haven't time to do that just now," the stranger replied. "Why can't you take a look at me and see what my chances are, anyway? It's very important that I should know."

"Well, take off your coat and vest, and let me listen to your heart the first thing."

The examination was very short.

"Ah," said the surgeon, after he had listened for a moment, "there isn't any use going on in your case. You'll never do. Why, you might almost as well have no heart at all."

"Hurrah for war!" yelled the man who had been rejected, as he pulled on his coat and hurried into the street. "War! War! War! Down with the cowards who don't want blood! Hurrah for the crush of matter and the wreck of worlds!"—Cleveland Leader.

HON. W. E. CHILTON,

Ex-Secretary of the Great State of West Virginia, Writes of Pe-ru-na.

HON. W. E. CHILTON, CHARLESTON, W. VA.

Gentlemen—It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of your preparation, Pe-ru-na. It has been used by quite a number of my neighbors and friends in cases of catarrh and has accomplished all that you claim for it. I have used it as a tonic, and as such I find that it is of very great benefit when my nervous system is deranged.

W. E. CHILTON.

The digestive organs are lined by mucous membrane. This mucous membrane is liable to catarrh. The catarrh may be so light as to attract no attention, or so sever as to confine its victim to the bed. As long as the slightest catarrh remains there can be no such thing as proper digestion. The blood will be impure because the products of digestion are impure. To correct this is to cleanse the blood. This Pe-ru-na will do.

Send for Dr. Hartman's latest book on chronic catarrh. Sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufaturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

How They Shop.

"Harry," said Mrs. Tredway to her husband at the breakfast table, "I am quite out of money, and I want to spend the day shopping. Let me have 60 cents."

"What do you want 60 cents for?"

"Ten cents for car fare and 50 cents for luncheon."—Harper's Bazar.

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS.

Daughters Should be Carefully Guided in Early Womanhood.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter!

Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this. If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment and her mother should see that she gets it.

Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examination; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham and secure the most efficient advice without charge. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

The following letter from Miss MARIE F. JOHNSON, Centralia, Pa., shows what neglect will do, and tells how Mrs. Pinkham helped her:

"My health became so poor that I had to leave school. I was tired all the time, and had dreadful pains in my side and back. I was also troubled with irregularity of menses. I was very weak, and lost so much flesh that my friends became alarmed. My mother, who is a firm believer in your remedies from experience, thought perhaps they might benefit me, and wrote you for advice. I followed the advice you gave, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as you directed, and am now as well as I ever was. I have gained flesh and have a good color. I am completely cured of irregularity."

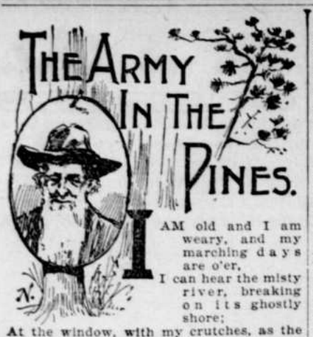
THE ARMY IN THE PINES.



I AM old and I am weary, and my marching days are o'er,
I can hear the misty river, breaking on its ghostly shore;
At the window, with my crutches, as the daylight fades away,
I sit and watch the shadows 'neath the hoary maples play;
It is then I hear the music of a bugle loud and shrill,
And the long roll in the twilight seems to come from yonder hill;
But awake or dreaming ever I can see the old blue lines,
And again the army marches—marches underneath the pines.

With a tread that echoes ever in the veteran's heart to-day,
Marches still that grand old army, 'mong the trees so far away;
And I see its banners floating proudly 'gainst the azure sky,
Just as though beneath my window it to-day were passing by;
I can recognize the comrades touching elbows as of yore,
With a beautiful devotion that will live forever more;
And the sun in cloudless heavens upon blade and bay'net shines,
And the breezes stir the pennons of the army in the pines.

Sitting here I count the marches one can never more forget,
I can see the gleaming camp-fires when the stars their watch have set;
Yonder rides the graybeard colonel, with a comrade's smile for all,
That morning in the wilderness, he was the first to fall;
I remember how we laid him 'neath the dark green branches low,
And turned to meet the charges of the ever valiant foe;
I seem to hear war's thunder as it rolled along our lines,
Waking not the dear old colonel, sleeping sweetly 'neath the pines.

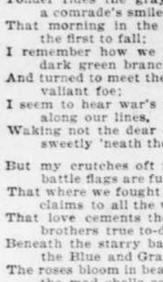
But my crutches oft remind me that our battle flags are furl'd,
That where we fought the angel Peace proclaims to all the world
That love cements the sections and that, brothers true to-day,
Beneath the starry banner fair stand both the Blue and Gray;
The roses bloom in beauty where we heard the mad shells scream,
And southern lilies grow beside the squadron guarded stream,
And everywhere, this sacred day, love gratefully entwines
A fragrant wreath in memory of the army in the pines.

The sound of music thrills me; they are coming down the street,
I plainly hear upon the wind the tramp of many feet;
With nature's treasures beautiful they march again to keep
Memorial day and crown the boys where side by side they sleep;
They see me at the window and salute me as they pass,
I lift my hand and smile on them, but very soon they pass,
My old, old eyes grow misty and I cannot see the lines,
Though I seem to hear the army once again among the pines.

There's another army marching 'neath the heavens soft and blue,
Its leaders are not many now, its privates, too, are few;
One by one they cross the river to the camp where all is still,
Where drums to battle never beat and bugles never thrill;
Memorial day grows sweeter as the long years glide away,
And loving nature yields her gifts alike for Blue and Gray;
And soon where the last veteran sleeps will creep the summer vines,
And evermore will silent be the camps among the pines.

—T. C. Harbaugh, in Ohio Farmer.

AT A BROTHER'S GRAVE.



IN"T you ever goin' to quit lawin' over that shoat?' You an' Josh have both spent more'n its worth fifty times over, an' it ain't no nearer settled than it was five year ago. No I won't give my consent to spendin' another nickel in lawin'," and "Ma" Walker gave her foot a determined stamp on the polished kitchen floor to signify that she meant all she said.

To those who knew "Ma" Walker the stamp she gave meant much. Her mind was made up, and no amount of coaxing and argument could change it. She didn't intend to throw good money after bad in a vain endeavor to get payment for a four-dollar shoat for which they had already mortgaged the farm for more than they could pay in the next five years.

"But, 'Ma,' the lawyer says he can git a judgment in the next court, an' then I want to teach Josh that he can't have everything his own way. The lawyer says he'll only need $50 more."

"Hiram Walker, you might just as well quit talkin', for I tell you I won't consent to spendin' another cent. I declare to goodness, it's a downright shame that two brothers can't get along without spendin' all they make in lawin'! It's bad enough for Josh, and for you, what's got a family to care for, it's still worse. You had just better spend that $50 in buyin' me an' the girls some new clothes. Goodness knows, we need 'em bad enough; I haven't had a new dress since this lawin' business began, five year ago; neither has the girls."

Again the foot of "Ma" Walker struck the floor with a thump that was certainly impressive, and her husband, finding that he could accomplish nothing by argument, left the house. If his wife wouldn't consent he had no thought of doing what he wished against her wishes, and, besides that, the money that he wanted was her own, the receipts from her butter and egg sales. No, the case would have to go over for awhile, but he wouldn't give it up, he would teach his contrary brother the needed lesson in time.

In the dark days of '61 three brothers responded to President Lincoln's call for troops. They came from a quiet farm home in one of the northern counties of Indiana. All of them left home for the battlefields with a mother's blessing on their heads, but the mother's heart went out especially to the youngest, "her baby." He was but a boy of 19 to whom the hard work of the farm had always been more of a burden than his frail body could bear, and for that reason he was made much of by the other members of the family. But men were needed, her sons thought it their place to go, and it was not her part to stand in the way of their duty to their country.

Month after month wore away. The mother watched anxiously for each mail, and was occasionally rewarded with a letter, always from "her baby." He told her of his brothers, of the army, of their camp life, of their marches and their battles, but of himself he told her little except that he was as well as usual. But the mother read between the lines. The hardships of campaigning was wearing away "her baby's" health, and how she longed for him.

And then one day a letter came from Hiram. His brother, the mother's "baby," was ill, and they would send him home to her. She could feel almost glad that he was sick for it would bring him back. How carefully she would nurse him, and by the time the war was over he should be well again.

But the mother's hopes were not to be realized. "Her baby" came home to her only to be taken away again forever. She watched beside his bedside; she did all the many little things that only a mother knows how to do, but without success. Long before the war was over they had laid him in the little cemetery, and his furlough was extended into eternity.

When the old folks died the farm of more than 200 acres was left to Hiram and Josiah Walker, to be divided equally or worked together, as the brothers might choose. For several years they farmed their land together, and then Hiram married. After that the land was divided, Hiram taking the part on which the home stood for himself and his bride, and Josiah was to make his home with them.

Added to the ties of blood were the ties of comradeship on the battlefields of the south, and they seemed inseparable. Nothing, it seemed, could come between them. They assisted each other in their work, they shared each other's earnings; they made it a point to plant at the same time; they reaped their crops at the same time, and they sold the products of their farms to the same men. Their lives were the happy ones of peace and good will.

And then came a time of doubt, of hard words, and all the comradeship of the past was forgotten.

It was in the winter time, and both brothers were fattening hogs for market. The pens in which their hogs were kept adjoined, and day after day they had stood together and remarked about the condition of the stock. One morning as Josiah came out to the barnyard he found his brother counting his hogs, and as he reached his side Hiram turned to him and said:

"Josh, there's a board loose and one of my shoats has worked its way into your pen. I think it's the spotted one in the corner there."

"Guess you're mistaken, Hiram; that's my pig; this old sow here is his mother. You'll have to look again, Hiram, to find your shoat."

"But I guess I know my shoat when I see it, Josh, and I tell you that spotted pig's mine. I'll git in an' catch it and put it back in my pen."

"You'll do nothin' of the kind. That spotted pig's mine, I tell you, an' you'll let it alone where it is. I don't believe you've lost a shoat, anyway."

And so the quarrel started. A pig that either would have gladly given the other had he asked it was to come between them.

At his first opportunity Hiram carried out his intention of putting the pig into his own pen, and in less than 24 hours afterwards he was arrested on a warrant sworn out by his brother.

The case went through the justice court with a decision for Josiah; when appealed to the grand jury the decision was the other way. At a retrial the decision was again reversed, and then it went to the state courts, where it was tried time after time, until now it had reached the supreme court, and Hiram hoped to have the last decision against him reversed.

During the progress of the case both brothers had become heavily involved in raising the money needed to pay court and attorneys' fees. Hiram's farm had been mortgaged, his crops sold to pay the same kind of bills. The needs of his family had counted for naught against this legal monster. His boy had left school that he might take the place of a hired man and so save that expense, as well as that incurred by his schooling. The daughters had done without the clothes they were accustomed to. They and their mother had worked over their old ones until they would bear no more, and then came this plea for just $50 more. Every plea of this kind had promised to be the last one since the case was first started, and "Ma" Walker had finally rebelled.

"I tell you, girls, something's got to be done so's your father and Uncle Josh'll make up this senseless quarrel of theirs. I can't, for the life of me, think how we're goin' to do it, but do it we must. Can't one of you think out some plan?"

A little conference of mother and daughters was being held in the kitchen. They wanted clothes, and that soon. Here was summer coming on and all of their thin clothing was worn out long before the last summer was over. Something must be done to stop this ravenous legal monster that was devouring them.

"I don't know as it'll work," replied Mary, the youngest, "but anyway we might try it—"

"Try what?" cried "Ma" Walker.

"You know, ma, pa and Uncle Josh always go to the cemetery Decoration day to fix up Uncle Charley's grave. That's one of the last requests Grandma Walker made before she died. She said Charley was 'her baby,' and she wanted his grave always kept nice. Before this lawsuit pa and Uncle Josh always went together on Decoration day to trim the bushes and fix the sod and put on the flowers, but now they go by themselves. Pa always goes in the afternoon and Uncle Josh in the morning, and each takes care of one side of the grave. Maybe if we could get them to go at the same time, and have them meet there without knowing it the remembrances might cause them to make up again."

THE BROTHERS MEET.

"I just believe it would, Mary, if we could only do it, but your pa's so set in his ways that he wouldn't go at any time he thought Uncle Josh would be there, and Uncle Josh wouldn't go if he thought he'd meet your pa. I don't see how we could work it, Mary, they're both that contrary," and "Ma" Walker shook her head over the problem.

"But, ma, couldn't we make Uncle Josh believe pa was going in the morning, or make pa believe Uncle Josh was going in the afternoon," put in Jane.

"Now I never thought of that," and "Ma" Walker beamed on her two daughters. "It takes young heads for new ideas, don't it. I'll just leave it for you two girls to fix up. You've got a way of gettin' round them two men I never could get."

The morning of May 30 was as bright and clear as anyone could ask. The country people in the part of the county where the Walkers lived always made the day a holiday—a day devoted to the memories of the brave men who fell in the civil war. Many of them had friends and relatives buried on the battlefields of the south, but there were but few soldier graves in the little churchyard cemetery at home. What few there were, however, received the offerings of the entire community.

As Hiram Walker came in from the barn after doing the chores of the morning his wife asked how soon after dinner he was going to the cemetery, saying she believed she would go with him.

"I guess I'll go this morning," he replied. "The girls tell me Josh has took a notion to annoy me by goin' in the afternoon, an' I guess I'll let him have his own way."

After the quarrel of five years before Josiah had built himself a house as far from that of his brother as possible, and at his place there was no sign of his intention of varying his usual custom of visiting the cemetery in the morning. The girls had worked their plans quite successfully, and the chances were the brothers would meet at a place where, for a time at least, they must drop their quarrel over a spotted pig.

Josiah Walker was kneeling beside the little marble monument clipping the dead branches out of a rose bush over his brother's grave, when he became aware that some one was approaching the grave from the other side of the bush. Glancing around he saw it was his brother. As he rose from his position beside the bush Hiram paused at the side of the grave opposite him.

"Why do you come here at this time?" demanded Josiah, thoroughly incensed at what he considered an imposition.

"And why did you tell my girls that you was comin' in the afternoon," answered Hiram. "I came this morning because you told them that."

"I never told the girls nothing of the kind, and you know it. You come here at this time to spite me."

The whole scheme that the girls and their mother had worked came to Hiram in a minute, and stepping a little nearer he said:

"Josiah, the girls told me that, and now I know why. They can't see any sense in this quarrel of ours, and want us to forget it. They thought here at Charley's grave would be a good place for us to meet. Don't you think it is?"

Without a word of reply Josiah extended his hand across the grave, where it met that of his brother.

"Hiram," he said, "we have quarreled for many years. I thought I would never again speak a kind word to you, but beside the grave where our brother and comrade sleeps our quarrel should be forgotten for the time at least. Shall it be?"

"Why not let it be forgotten for all time, Josiah? Is a spotted pig worth the amount of happiness it has cost us?"

"It was my pig, Hiram."

"No, it was mine, Josiah."

"Let's call it our pig, Hiram, as it really was?"

"That's best, Josiah. Now let's fix up Charley's and mother's graves, and then you must go home to dinner with me, for I suspect 'ma' and the girls will be expecting you."

The lawsuit was settled out of court. "Ma" Walker and the girls got their summer dresses, and abundant supply, for they came from both farms, and Josiah is back at the old home again to live.

WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.

MEMORIAL DAY.

There Should Be an Enlargement of Its Scope and a Deepening of Its Meaning.

The popular feeling in regard to our national holiday of remembrance has come almost to the parting of the ways. The ranks of the living who fought in the great contest grow thinner and thinner; the multitude for whom the holy day is become merely a holiday is constantly increasing as the years of battle recede. If the peculiar impress which the day was intended to have is to be maintained there must be an enlargement of its scope and a deepening of its meaning. It must not cease, indeed, to be sacred to us as a memorial of those who died upon the battlefield and in the hospital or prison, but it must also give expression to our treasured memories of lives which were dear and efforts which have been fruitful in all parts of the great battlefield of life. Patriotism must not merely join with civic pride; it must be kindled also by the fires of personal affection if we are to hold the day to its appointed use.

In the broader view war is an accident of civil life and its sacrifices stand upon no higher plane than those of many of the devoted ones who never wore a uniform. Even when the trumpet sounds and men spring up from shop and field and fireside to fling back the foe, the sacrifice of those who give them up—of mothers, sweethearts, wives and friends—in its quiet, unpretending heroism, is worthy to be measured with the excited feeling and the self-surrender of the camp and battlefield. Men go to meet, they hardly can know what—risks of the march and battle—but women know too well what loneliness and impotence to help in dreary days will mean to those who cannot go. It is time that the mother's heroism and the wife's ungrudging sacrifice should have their true place in our thoughts as we come to the resting places of the dead with flowers. Love grows by access of other true and loyal loves. There will be no loss of honor to the soldiers of the war if those who kept or waited for the soldier's home, waiting, too many of them, alas, in vain, are honored.

* * * Think of the men who in these years of peace would willingly have given life for their country's need! Shall we imagine that there has been no opportunity in quiet days for self-denial and self-sacrifice as memorable as any war reveals? Who knows the heroes of his own neighborhood—the men for whose contest no bugle blows and no chevron leads in the exhilarating charge, women who endure without applause and even without sympathy? That is a poor heart which cannot be stirred to memory and admiration except by waving flags, the blare of trumpets and the orator's exultant periods. War reveals historic hearts—it cannot create them.—Congregationalist.

THE NAMELESS DEAD.

To deck, with flowers, the lonely spot of earth
That holds the dust of heroes—nameless dead—

They were her sons. In grief she bows her head,
While from her heart she breathes to Heaven the prayer
That all are joined in love fraternal there.

THE LAW IN THE CASE.

It Was So Plain and Simple That There Was No Need of an Appeal.

The man in the southwest had stolen the horse beyond the peradventure of a doubt, for he had been taken with the horse under him and the owner's name was on the blanket. Under the circumstances he should have been thankful that he had been granted even so much as a trial by a judge on a soap box, because many such offenders, with far less evidence of guilt, had been swung up to the nearest telegraph pole on sight. But this one had had a trial and the verdict had been duly announced.

"Gents," remarked the judge, who was attired in a red flannel shirt and sand-colored pantaloons, "take the prisoner."

The eager crowd made a rush for him, when a lawyer from the effete east, who was present by the merest accident, shouted to the judge:

"Stop this business. You are acting contrary to the law."

The judge, being a good-natured fellow and a gentleman by instinct, stopped it as requested.

"What's that the gent says?" he asked.

"This procedure is contrary to the law," replied the lawyer.

"What law?" said the judge, in surprise.

"The accepted law of the land."

"I reckon not," smiled the judge.

"But I tell you it is," persisted the lawyer.

"Aw, go jangle yourself," exclaimed the judge. "Don't I know law? Law is a rule of action prescribing what is right and prohibiting what is wrong. Now, mister," and he continued in a less friendly tone, "if you air ready to tell these here gents that it is wrong to hang a man fer hoss stealin' you have got the permission of the court to do it, but the court ain't goin' to be responsible fer what happens to a man with them sentiments."

The crowd assented to this proposition with a shout of admiration for the judge, and the legal luminary from the east withdrew with more or less precipitance.—Washington Star.

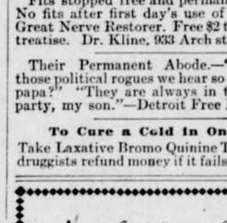
A SCHOOL GIRL'S BATTLE.

From the Mail, Milford, Ind.

Miss Emma Rybolt, a prepossessing school girl of Milford, Ind., is of more than usual intelligence, and is ambitious to rise in the literary world.

"In the fall of 1896," said Mrs. Rybolt, "Emma was taken ill. She was a close student and her work began to tell on her. She grew weak, pale and nervous, and complained of pains in her back, chest and limbs. A few weeks passed and she grew worse. The doctor said she was a victim of nervous prostration, and should have been taken from school weeks earlier. She gradually grew worse, her nerves were so tense that the least noise irritated her and she had a fever and a continual twitching in her muscles. The symptoms were much like St. Vitus' dance.



Her Battle.

"A year passed, and, under a change of physicians, Emma became somewhat better but soon was as bad as ever. One day I read of a case similar to hers which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I decided to try them.

"Emma had no faith in proprietary medicines, but tried the pills, and after taking a dozen doses, she began to improve. It was about the first of April when she began and by the middle of May, after taking about eight boxes, she was entirely cured.

"While ill, she lost twenty-eight pounds, but now weighs more than ever before. Her nerves are strong and she is in perfect health. We are all confident that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured her, and I cheerfully recommend them in all similar cases. MRS. E. A. RYBOLT."

Bills of Fare in Fashionable Restaurants.

The question has been mooted over and over again whether the engrafting of French and German dishes upon the bill of fare of the better class of American restaurants is or is not an improvement. Many pretend that before their introduction our cooking was coarse, barbaric. This is an open question, but no bill of fare presents attractions to the dyspeptic, but they, like the bilious, malarious and persons with weak kidneys, can be cured by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

If experience adds to skill, Dr. Hayes and associates, of Buffalo, N. Y., ought to know something about curing Asthma. They have now treated more than forty thousand cases and have from five to seven thousand patients under treatment at the present time.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, MAY 27, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Farmer J. D. Young has over a hundred spring chickens which he enjoys feeding now a days. These are already hatched too.

—Some fine fish are being hooked in neighboring lakes, and in Crow River these days. It is great sport; and then they make good food.

—The street commissioner has been working with a crew on lower River Street this week; things look better thereabouts, dontcher know?

—Large numbers of chickens and turkeys are being shipped to city market from here this spring. Good prices brings out the products of the farmers.

—Percy Young returned on Tuesday evening from a short visit to Duluth.—Aitkin Republican.

Mr. Young used to be a Delanoite.

—Rev. Farber made his trip to Montrose, Watertown, and Delano Sunday, preaching at all three places. He had a good sermon in the evening at this place.

—Mushrooms are uncommonly thick in the woods about town since the last rains; great basketfulls are brought in by the young people who enjoy hunting them.

—Remember that next Tuesday, May 31, is the last day on which you can pay your real estate tax without a penalty. Ten per cent will be added the next morning.

—Fred Japs informs us that 16 hens and a rooster have lately disappeared from his chicken house. People must be hard up to forage from the farm of a man who has been sick all winter.

—The splendid rains followed by warmer weather has brought out vegetation in our part of the country in fine shape. From a late spring we have jumped almost into the middle of summer in a few days.

—Fred Hellman, of Franklin, who has been acting strangely for a short time was taken to Buffalo last Friday and examined as to his sanity. He was committed to the Asylum at Fergus Falls for treatment.

—Al. Hitzman is bound the farmers shall have no excuse for having poor cattle and hogs when he comes around to buy, even if he has to buy the feed for them himself. He sold a carload of shorts from the car Monday and was expecting a load of corn about the same time.

—Three high up passengers from the west arrived in Delano Monday morning early. At least they climbed down from the top of the train soon after their shadow was observed by the trainmen. They seemed quite well satisfied, claiming they had a free ride of 125 miles.

—Prof. Babcock, of Howard Lake, was in town over Sunday. He is putting in his vacation giving instruction in music. He is said to be quite an earneset and instructive teacher. It might be to the advantage of some of our music loving citizens to invite Mr. B. to organize a class here.

—A. W. Wittman, our local telephone manager, was wonderfully surprised Friday to secure a call over the line from Buffalo. He had just denied that such a line had even been put under way of construction. The privilege of conversing with Buffaloes is quite a convenience often.

—Col. Greear, the gentleman from Kaintuck, came home Saturday evening. He says he was at St. James when the 13th Reg. passed through on its way west. The Delano boys were thunderstruck when dozens of young ladies rushed at them, calling them by name, and presenting souveniers, and cutting off their soldier buttons, but when they learned that Pat was in the crowd they tumbled to the trick, though it was about 2 o'clock A. M.

—Tramps are considerably too numerous about the country for war times. Provisions should be made to furnish a limited number of companies for Uncle Sam's army. A man that won't work on his own hook might make a good hand where he is obliged to conform to the requirements of army life. They can either find a job or let Uncle Sam find them one. It would be poor policy to mix such fellows through the volunteer companies: But they might flock by themselves with proper officers and be useful. Better find a job.

—The sidewalk committee have been hoisting some of the Third Street sidewalks up towards grade lately. Most of it is still below the abominable grade last established. It is doubtful if a man, woman, or child can be found on Third Street, or even in Delano, that approves of the mill dam which it is proposed to make of that throughfare. What use can there be in requiring people to hole up like gophers unless they wish too. Perhaps somebody thinks that the nicest looking town is one on stilts. Perhaps it is, where the ground is low, but where it is as high as Third Street now is, most people think it the height of foolishness to hoist it up further. If the point of the Knoll between Gutzwiller's and Lindsley's corners was cut down a little it would make a big difference in not only Third Street, but also in Rail Road Ave. Of course the only way for the council to do is to insist that where improvements are made that grade be followed. The grade could be changed.

--Dr. Niven, June 6 and 7.

--The Delano Cooperative Creamery Association is running every day but Sunday. It is doing nicely.

--Miss Ruby Smith, of Minneapolis, has been engaged as assistant principal in the Delano High School.

--Dave McLeod, the G. N. repair carpenter, did some much needed repairing about the Delano depot this week.

--Rev. Hanke held services at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon. He will be here next Sunday at 10:30 A. M.

--The Epworth League Festival of Months to be given last night was postponed on till next Tuesday, on account of rain.

--Tony Nieson, who was injured while working with Kerrick's crew, in Montana, came home with a case of traumatic pneumonia from which he died on Tuesday morning.

—At the Republican primary held last night, at the city hall the following delegates to the county convention were chosen: Wash Rader, Fred Lindsley, Dr. Soper, C. J. Buckley.

—John S. Shrader expect to leave Monday for Chicago, to attend clinics and pick up a few medical points, bringing his medical knowledge up to date. There is nothing like keeping up with the times

--Most of the soldier boys from Delano who are with the 12th, at San Francisco, have written to their people here. They seem highly pleased, Alva Catlin wrote his brother that he had the pleasure of looking at the war monitor Monterey and several revenue cutters.

--John Kuka, the G. N. section boss here, did a good job in leveling up the tracks at Third Street crossing this week. Fourth Street should now be opened up and our village would then have a more metropolitan appearance, and people on that street would be much convenienced.

--The term of Delano High school is fast drawing to a close. Examinations are in order and the usual commencement exercises are to be carried out. Miss Emma Hitsman will be the only graduate this year. Several young men and women are expecting to finish the High School courses next year.

--The Health Officer made an elaborate report at the last meeting of the village council. Among other things he earnestly recommended that a dumping ground be provided, and all refuse material be deposited there under the direction of the street commissioner, also that slops be carried out of town and not be dumped in alleys or back yards. These hints should be heeded.

—At the Methodist parsonage in this city on Monday evening April 25, Mr. Clarence Chambers of Kalama was united in marriage to Miss Susan Austin, of Amadee, Cal., by Rev. C. B. Seeley.

The bride is a stranger in this vicinity, but the groom is well known, having been post- master at Kalama for a number of years.

May happiness and prosperity crown their union.—Kalama, (Washington) Bulletin.

The above bride was well known here as Mrs. Susan Dugan and latter as Mrs. C. E. Austin.

—In a trip to Watertown Wednesday we noticed that farmers were busy preparing corn ground, others planting, while some had finished planting and were harrowing the fields before the corn was up, so as to free it from weeds. Small grain looks well, rye is headed and already whitning for the harvest. Weeds are unusually luxuriant everywhere.

Watertown is improving. Several new building are being put up; flowers abound in profusion showing the taste for the beauties of nature that the citizens possess. Although an inland town away from railroad facilities it is an old town and neighboring farmers are generally well fixed and the town presents a pleasant appearance and eyidences of thrift.

The news under the guidance of C. O. Teas and sons is flourishing, and keeping the denizens of the place posted on matters generally. Halgren's drug store is going through its usual spring cleaning.

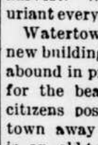
The mill seemed to be doing business. The M. D's. are having something of a time to see who can get the latest appearance for their business. Dr. Shrader was feeling a patient's pulse right out in the street. Dr. Halgren has purchased a fine electric and X Ray machine, and took great pleasure in exhibiting it to us and showing us how it works. The electric breeze he gave us was fine. He showed us the bones in his hands, we also looked at a bone in a fractured finger. The machine is immense. If anyone is shot or has a broken bone he can find just how it looks with the machine.

F. A. Barth is the same genial merchant as of old.

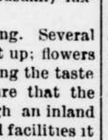
Memorial Day is to be observed in due form, T. F. Burnes, Rev. M. J. Egan, Dar. F. Reese, of St. Paul, H. J. Peck, of Shakopee, and Rev. P. E. Berg, will be the orators of the day.

The exercises will conclude in the evening with a war drama for the benefit of the Watertown Cornet Band.

Dr. Niven



will be in Delano June 6 and 7 and at Howard Lake June 8th. First class dentistry in all branches at the lowest rates. Painless extracting. Office at Danforth House.



Personal.

Ed Freeman left Tuesday for Minneapolis where he expects to work for the summer.

Joe Kevensky, of Waverly journeyed to the twin cities Monday morning, via the G. N.

Misses Julia Doolen and Mary Steffes were early arrivals Monday morning from Smith Lake.

P. H. Greear left Tuesday moruing for a trip to Albert Lea and other points in the southern pert of the state.

Mrs. William Walker, of North Rockford, came up Sunday for a week's visit with her sister Mrs. H. C. Parslow.

Mrs. John Cunningham and son Emery came up on Tuesday mornings train, Mr. C. driving up. They expect to become citizens of Delano about the first of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lanway and C. E. Ball took the early train for Minneapolis Monday to meet the latters brother Perry, who as a member of the N. Dakota regiment was on his way to San Francisco. He didn't go that way.

County Cullings.

The Epworth League at Buffalo this week was a success. Such conventions are an aid to the work.

The county commissioners met last Friday and Saturday, at Buffalo.

Hearing of school petitions as follows were set for June 20, Welhelm Lambest, P. S. Rodolph.

Road appropriations were made: Albion $150, Buffalo $200, Chatham $200, Southside $140.

School petitions were heard and granted: William Henne, Fred W. Hintz, Ole Hendrickson, Henry M. Holt, M. M. Holt.

Miller & Valkenant's store at Montrose, was visited by burgars Friday night.

John and Henry Stuart were bound over to appear at the District Court, for robbing stores at Cokato this week.

Abatement of taxes recommended: Chas. A. Lehmer, Jens Sorenson, Joaquin Boehlke.

Claims rejecred Pioneer Press, E. Frankberg J. G. Wigen, Hans Bugge, A. B. Cole, W. B. Parker, agt.

Claims laid over: C. Mueller, W. H. Frazee, Frank Schwalbe, Albert Engel. Other bills were allowed.

Resolved that county pay half the expense of painting the Delano bridge.

The Annandale Advocate says "outside of the papers we have never heard a complaint against a single county official" and hopes to see them re-elected but should the party see fit to change we will support the ticket and the whole ticket cheerfully." That's just the trouble with these Republican organs. Whatever the ring leaders do the organ supports; whole hog or none.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION AND PRIMARY ELECTION.

The Democratic County Convention for the county of Wright, Minnesota, will be held in Dudley's Opera House in the Village of Buffalo, in said county, on Thursday, the 9th day of June, 1898, at 12 o'clock, m., to elect 24 delegates to the Democratic State Convention to be held at the City of Minneapolis on Wednesday, June 15th, 1898, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the next general election to be held in said State, for the office of Governor, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, State Auditor, and Attorney General.

An Awful Death.

The awful death of Dr. Riley of Brownsville, Houston county, is a terrible warning to consumers of alcohol. He was a confirmed inebriate, and only achol would satisfy his craving. Before retiring on Monday night he drank about a pint, and it is suppose that as he attempted to blow out the light of his lamp the flame ignited the liquor fumes of his breath, and was drawn into his lungs and stomach. His skin was burned to a crisp and his hair was burned off his head.—Mankato Review.

IN THE GARDEN.

"Come into the garden, Maud,
For the wintry days have flown;
Come into the garden, Maud,
And see how things have grown.
I have planted pansies and sweet peas
And morning-glories there—
Come into the garden Maud,
And see how my seedlings fare."
He took her little hand in his,
And they sauntered out to see,
But not a pansy had come up,
Nor a solitary pea;
He took one look around, and then
He wildly tore his hair—
His next door neighbor's chickens had Preceded Maudie there.

AMONG army appointments from Minnesota are Ex-Gov. Lucius Hubbard, general, C. M. McGill, son of Ex-Gov. McGill, captain.

THE actor Thomas W. Keene, whose real name was Eagleson, died from an operation for apendecits Saturday, at New York. He was 58 years old.

PROF. T. J. Caton, is to be the candidate for Congress against Loren Fletcher. It want take the professor long to make your Uncle Loren think about that Manatoba "fix" he telegraphed home about once upon a time.

WE believe in being at peace, and in harmony with all nations, even though we may have to chastise a neighbor occasionally in order to maintain our rights. But as for entangling alliances with any nation. Good Lord deliver us.

THE schooner Jane Grav, bound for Alaska, foundered and sunk, with 61 passangers on board, 34 were lost among them F. G. Saulsberry, Minnesota. W. T. Delarling, of Arlington and William Otten, of Hamline are also supposed to have been among those lost.

SEVERAL officers among the volunteers are said to have been reported to their superiors for swearing at and using abusive language to the men. An officer that can't get along without such conduct should be sent home for the second offense.

JOHN Lind for Governor, Charles A. Towne, for Congress, from present prospects is how the next Democratic ticket will be headed. Of course the protective tariff question can cut no figure much during these war times; revenue is what is wanted and they are all right on the money question.

THE Spaniards are good on a trade, or they must value Americans higher than their own men. For the two newspaper reporters captured by them in Cuba lately, they obtained the exchange of four Spaniards; Col. Vincente de Cortigo, Surgeon Major Sincon Garcia Julian, and two private soldiers.

THE Minneapolis Journal says Page Morris was chosen the nominee of the 7th district Republicans, for Congress. He has been put up again in the sixth. Is it possible he is afraid he can't get votes enough in the sixth to elect him? And what has become of Eddy of the seventh district? That is about what Jerry Jay knows about politics outside of Minneapolis.

ABOUT all the ships of any account for fighting, of the American Navy, seem to be congregating about the mouth of Santiago de Cuba harbor, where Cervera with eleven Spanish ships is supposed to be. Suppose some other Spanish vessel should show up at New York, Boston or some other seaport what would prevent her doing considerable damage?

THE first nominee for Governor of Minnesota placed before the people for the coming compaign is W. B. Hammond, of the National Socialist Party. They also nominated H. T. Shaw for Congress from the 5th district, and Dr. A. Hirschfield for Major of Minneapolis. On account of the expense in placing nominees on the ticket they refrain from making other nominations.

OUR republican friends seem bent on getting an entangling alliance with Old England. If they can't make it on the bimetallic international agreement plan, they want to make out it is necessary from a war point of view. If we don't fight against each other it is entirely unnecessary to bind ourselves to help fight each others battles. We can work together when necessary without entangling alliances.

THERE seems to be a tendency to raise companies of soldiers of different societies. Societies may be all right in their places but when it comes to raising defenders of our country, men are what are wanted; and one soldier should stand his chances with another, regardless of what he may or may not belong to. Col. Reeve is right in requiring his men to attend their duties in camp. That is what they are supposed to have enlisted for.

A MAJOR from each of Minnesota's three regiments has been ordered to return to the state to recruit 990 men to be divided among the regiments already gone to the front. If any of our young men are anxious to go it looks as if they could now decide for themselves whether they will join the Cuban expedition or the one to the Philippines. By watching the papers and making inquiries it can be learned where and to whom to apply for admission to these regiments. It will not take long to fill them. There is likely to be about 800 more men wanted for a new regiment, also.

BY talking for a very few moments with any of the silver men of two years ago one soon learns that nothing of the old feeling concerning money matters has been lost. On the contrary time and circumstances have gone to strengthen them in their belief that this country would be much better off if it had constitutional money than it is where people have to pay bankers and money loaners for the privilege of doing a little business. The present desperate effort of money grabbers to gain control of the government's money matters is not the first attempt.

Old General Jackson and Thomas H. Benton had it out with their predecessors, and vanquished the whole lot. General Jackson took matters in his own hands so far as the finances were concerned and righted things for the people.

GREENBACKS are being advocated as a means of running the government. These to bear no interest and be receivable for the payment of all debts public or private. Some object to them, and want the Government to issue interest bearing bonds, instead. They argue that when a business man borrows money he pays interest. The comparison is hardly proper. If a business man is doing business he is not apt to borrow money from himself to loan himself. The people of the United States is the government itself: and the government should not pay interest on its own notes, held by itself. That would be too much like the urchin that endeavored to raise himself up by pulling at his bootstraps.

Further why should so much consideration be shown a pile of cold gold? Why should the rich man be permitted to hug his coin or count over his interest bearing bonds, calmly computing what he will be worth, while Uncle Sam drafts his neighboring poor widow's son into the ranks to aid in defending or spreading commercial interests?

Human life is worth more than money. It should be so held by all. When greedy money grabbers must needs legislate at home to unnecessarily increase public debts while brave boys in the field are working for humanity, and for the freedom of the human race it don't look right. If Congress can legislate that a bond bearing interest is good for money, it can legislate that a paper dollar drawing no interests is good, and if any of Uncle Sam's citizens are too unpatriotic to use his money they should emigrate to some country where gold is considered of more value than it is thought to be by the average American citizen. If these miserly money makers wish to hold onto their gold let 'em. There is no earthly use for soldier boys to take their meager pay and aid in paying interest on a lot of bonds issued expressly for the purpose of bringing out of hiding some shining gold. Abraham Lincoln made greenbacks, once upon a time, and they were good until the bankers met and forced them fixed over to their taste, as far as possible. And so far as greenbacks being an endless chain to draw gold out of the treasury goes, interest bearing bonds could be used in the same way whenever the holders saw fit to use them in that way, as soon as they became due.

Primary Elections.

Primary elections, now take the place of the old fashioned caucuses. Delegates to the county conventions must be elected by ballot, to write out the names of those you wish to have as delegates and see that enough of your neighbors vote with you to elect the best men in your precinct, men who will vote for what you desire they should, and not against the Democratic platform of 1896. All the primaries in Wright County for the election of delegates to Buffalo on the 9th to elect delegates to the state and Congressional Conventions will be held at the usual polling places on Tuesday June 7, from 7 to 8 p. m. Be there and say your say and vote your ballot.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, 1898.

Amidst the general rejoicing at the trapping of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba there is no disposition to unduly focus public attention to the fact that the Spanish trapped themselves, instead of getting trapped as the result of orders issued by the administration. Everybody is so glad that the fleet is securely trapped that there is no disposition to probe too closely into the why and wherefore of the trapping. Naval officers who are familiar with the harbor at Santiago say that with two of our big war ships at the narrow mouth of the bottle shaped harbor it will be an impossibility for a single Spanish ship to escape destruction should they attempt to get out. The country around Santiago is in complete control of the insurgents. These being the facts it is not surprising that many regard it among the probabilities that by the maintenance of a strict blockade we can very soon starve the Spanish fleet into surrendering. That would be a catch worth having sure enough, as there are some fine vessels in that fleet. But the most important thing about the trapping of the Spanish fleet is that it will enable our warships in Cuban waters to do something more practical towards bringing the war to a close than chasing here and there hunting for his fleet which has so kindly put itself in our power. This of itself should result in some immediate results, and hints are dropped that it will.

Although a member of the Cabinet this week denied that a call for additional volunteers had been considered, Mr. McKinley has issued a proclamation calling for 75,000 more men. This call was determined upon a week ago, as stated in this correspondence, but, like the many other plans determined upon by the administration, it was hung up for a time. From unofficial sources it is learned that 25,000 men are to be sent to the Philippine Islands, 20,000 to Porto Rico, which is to be shortly occupied; 150,000 to Cuba, and that 100,000 are to be held as a reserve to be used for home defense or as reinforcements to any of the other armies as circumstances may determine. The movement against Porto Rico has been urged upon Mr. McKinley ever since the war began, on the ground that if Spain should sue for peace while still in possession of that island we would have no right to demand that it should be given up, while if we capture it we will have every right to hold onto it, if we desire it, or to make any other disposition of it. The idea of those who have urged this move—a correct one, too—being that the people of this country will be satisfied with nothing short of the expulsion of the Spanish flag for this hemisphere.

The house passed several minor war measures this week, but Czar Reed still has the Hawaiian annexation resolution hung up. The Senate is still considering the war revenue bill.

There is no probability that the war with Spain will last long enough for the battleships Illinois, Alabama, and Wisconsin, now being built, to participate. The armor trust, composed of the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies, which refused to make the armor for those ships under the act of the last Congress, limiting the cost to $300 a ton, have now submitted bids to furnish it under the act of the present Congress, raising the limit to 4400 a ton, but the delivery of the armor will not be begun until next December and will not be completed until a year after that date; so that the government will be lucky if the battleships are ready for service by the middle of 1900.

One of the most encourging signs that the invasion of Cuba is to be hurried up is an interview with General Miles which has been widely printed, in which he says that the invasion will take place when the army is in proper condition and when other conditions are deemed favorable, and that the government does not intend to be hurried. Those are not the exact words of Gen. Miles, but they express the meaning of his words. It is inconceivable, in view of the secrecy maintained by all other officials that the commander of the army indulged in talking for publication without having an important subject in view; also that he should have told the enemy that the invasion of Cuba was indefinitely postponed, if the authorities really intended to postpone it. It is therefore very likely that his interview was made public to decieve, for the belief is general that the American flag is going to be planted in Cuba without any furter delay. After setting many times for his departure from Washington Gen. Miles has at last got away and will establish his headquarters at Tampa, Florida. The weather at Tampa at this season of the year is not such as to tempt a man from this latitude to go there for pleasure.

AFTER THE STATE BOARD.

Union plumbers believe the law passed by the last legislature, providing for state examinations, is not being fairly carried out, and at a meeting of the union last night it was voted to prosecute the members of the state examining board for alleged violation of the law. They say that they have men on their out-of-work list who have passed the examination, while others who have not passed are working. A committee was appointed to take whatever legal steps are possible to secure enforcement of the law.—Pioneer Press.

Pointers for Primaries.

Read Chapter 125 laws of 1897, in your old newspaper copy, if you have no other.

All primaries must be held at the same hour, 7 o'clock for the coming primaries.

Polls must remain open one hour. Primary shall be called to order by the chairman or secretary of the precinct committee, or in their absence, by some other qualified voter of the party holding the primary

Qualified voters present of the party shall choose a chairman, clerk of election, and two judges of election.

The officers of the primary may be chosen by viva voce vote.

The delegates to the County Convention must be chosen by ballot.

The presiding officer, by lot, settles tie votes.

Among Our Exchanges.

It is surprising that political hatred could lead people to indulge in the mean and spiteful flings at John Lind just because he has offered his services to the country and has been appointed to a position It certainly can be no credit to the men and papers that are indulging in the mean business.—Buffalo Journal.

The flings at John Lind are at par with the denouncement of Bryan for enlisting. One of the loudest mouthed at this business and one who has offered the most gratuitous advice to the administration as to the manner in which the war should be conducted, is a St. Paul editor who hired a substitute during the civil war, rather than go the front himself.—Aitkin Age.

St. Paul Dispatch: Our soldiers at Chickamauga need medicine. Why not send 'em Van Sant? He's a pretty bitter pill.

Litchfield Independent:—The way to prevent Europe from getting tangled up in the fracas between the U. S. and Spain is to push the war to a conclusion vigorously. If the hostilities hang on for six months or a year Europe is liable to become involved. Rush it through.

District Judgeship.

The hottest kind of a fight is on over the judgeship in the eighteenth district composed of the counties of Wright Anoka, Sherbune and Isanti. The avowed candidates are J. C. Tarbox of Wright county the present incumbent, J. J. Woolley also of Wright county, and F. H. Boardman of Anoka county. Mr. Wyman of Anoka and H. F. Barker of Isanti are also talked of, but it is said that Mr. Barker is a candidate for the senate and that Mr Wyman's candidacy is not likely to assume a definite shape.

The circumstances surrounding the appointment of Judge Tarbox are too recent to require any recital now, but they have aroused the indignation of the people of the district, who believe that it was dictated by the Great Northern road. This feeling is intense and it threatens to deprive Mr. Tarbox of the Wright county delegation and give it to Judge Woolley, who seems to stand in good favor not only in that county but all over the district. He is believed to be the first choice of Isanti county and the second, if not the first choice of Anoka county. If he secures his home county, it does not seem that he can be headed.—Minneapolis Times.

Price of Wheat.

In the national campaign of 1896 our Populist friends inveighed against the low price of wheat as the curse of the people, and now that wheat is climbing for the two-dollar mark, they are in veighing against the increased price of bread as the curse of the people. We fear that our Populist friends will never be entirely happy.—Courier Journal.

Can't our Populist friends turn this argument to good advantage on our friend Watterson? Didn't he and a few others argue in 96 that the cheap wheat for the laboring man was what he wanted? And are the same men not now trying to curry favor with the farmers by such argument as the above?

As a matter of fact, was it not the money powers that kept down the price of wheat in 96? And is not the uncommonly high price of bread now, due to the gambling in No. 1. wheat, which raises that grade from 25 to 30 cts per bushel above No. 2, which is no near like No. 1. that many farmers themselves cannot tell the difference, and which makes good flour which can be sold at No. 1. prices and make bread to sell at high prices. This gambling in wheat should be stopped, and perhaps our Populist friends and others would have fewer complaints to make.

Twenty thousand men are enlisted in the United States navy and the number will go to 35,000 if the war continues.

Among the novelties to be exhibited at the Paris exposition in 1900 will be a monster horn, nearly 300 feet in diameter at the large end, and of proportionate length.

Not long ago the king of Siam is said to have given to an Italian artist the Grand Cross of the Siamese Crown, saying: "That cross will entitle you to marry 12 wives. It is a distinction I seldom confer; I hope you will make good use of it."

Maria Christina, queen regent of Spain, is very tall, fair, extremely graceful, just 40 years of age, but looking younger, with the most engaging manners. She knows everything that is going on, reading all the newspapers, interested not only in Spanish affairs, but in everything of importance passing in Europe.

The doctors seem to be united on the point that cigarette smoking is responsible for most of the rejections of militiamen who have come up recently for examination as applicants to enter the regular army. They ought to have included the cocktail habit and lack of exercise. The three combined would wreck a Sandow in six months.

The present generation has never witnessed such an outpouring of the sentiment of patriotism as the war with Spain has evoked. Never before have the national colors been so profusely, so universally displayed in city, town and village. Never before has the younger generation of men been so profoundly stirred by allusions to the country's cause.

Miss Helen Gould's donation of $100,000 to the government's war fund has had the effect of stimulating other individual contributions, which, if on a much smaller scale, are creditable testimonies to the patriotism of the givers. Not that the United States government is now, or is ever likely to be, reduced to the necessity of passing around the hat, but as an evidence of good faith these mites of generous givers have their value.

The railway from Chemulpo to Seoul, in Corea, 25 miles long, under construction by an American firm, will get a big business as soon as it is completed, as it will have the traffic from the seaport of the Corean capital to the interior. The American contractors secured the whole job, roadbed and equipment, against the competition of British, Russian and German bidders. All the material comes from this country, including a steel bridge half a mile long.

The night before Admiral Dewey left Washington to take command of the Asiatic squadron he was guest of honor at a dinner. His hostess and others expressed regret that he was ordered to such a distant post. The commodore said: "I shall find plenty of work to do. You know the Spaniards have a fleet over there, and I'll have to destroy that, of course. Then there are the Philippines, Spanish territory. Some day you'll hear that I've captured Manila before breakfast."

It is said that a rolling stone gathers no moss. As a matter of fact it is the rolling stone that keeps the world on the move. The man who sits down in the spot where he happens to find himself and goes to gathering moss contributes nothing to the bustle, the activity, the well-directed energy that goes to make the prosperity of a country. Inventions, discoveries, commerce, science, art and literature get no assistance from the stone that never rolls. It is the rolling stone that discovers, invents, produces.

When the war with Spain began the price of sulphur was $22 a ton, but as the result of Spain's action in declaring this article contraband of war the price has risen to $35 a ton, and predictions are freely made that it will be $100 before many more months have passed. Here is an opportunity to develop another of the wonderful resources of the United States. There are sulphur mines in this country; yet we have always depended upon Sicily for practically our entire supply. The American product should now be given a great chance. "There's millions in it."

The report of the United States consul at Queenstown shows that in the year 1897 only 33,000 persons came from Ireland to this country, and of this number about one-half were returning immigrants who had gone home as visitors. These figures indicate a great falling off in Irish immigration to this country, which may probably be explained by the fact that the conditions in the Emerald isle have greatly improved. In place of the Irish Uncle Sam is now receiving Italians, Hungarians, Poles and other nationalities of Latin or Slav descent.

Spanish newspapers have recently published data concerning the population of Cuba at the time the present war began. The figures for the six provinces are: Matanzas, 300,000; Havana, 480,000; Puerto Principe, 72,000; Santa Clara, 360,000; Pinar del Rio, 320,000; Santiago de Cuba, 230,000; total, 1,762,000. Of this population 1,228,000 was white, 490,000 negroes and mixed bloods and 44,000 Chinese. The two chief cities, Havana and Matanzas, had, respectively, 250,000 and 60,000 inhabitants. It is believed that the famine has reduced the number fully one-third.

Spain is reported to have become weary of the war. Many of her officials are ready to give up Cuba, if the United States does not secure it.

FORTS BOMBARDED.

The American Fleet at Santiago Said to Have Made a Fierce Attack Upon the Fortifications.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 1.—About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon an American squadron, composed of fourteen warships, of which the cruiser New York displayed the flag of Rear Admiral Sampson, and a number of torpedo boats, began a bombardment with heavy guns of the forts and the harbor of Santiago de Cuba. The American fire was directed principally against the forts and the harbor.

The forts of Morro Castle, La Ze Capa and Punta Gorda suffered especially. The cannonading was very persistent and cannot have failed to be destructive. It lasted until 3:45 p. m.

The town, which is situated near the inner end of the harbor, escaped damage.

At 3:45 the cannonading diminished. About 3 o'clock cannon discharges were heard at a distance (presumably at sea), continuing for some time, when the firing ceased completely.

The Spanish authorities maintain strict silence as to the number of victims, who were apparently numerous.

AT SCHLEY'S MERCY.

Spain's Flying Squadron Effectually Hemmed In at Santiago.

No Possibility of Its Escape—Must Either Fight or Surrender—Discovered by Schley's Keen Strategy.

Key West, Fla., May 31.—Everybody knows now that Spain's flying squadron, four splendid cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers, is imprisoned in Santiago harbor. This fact has been known here many hours, and the speculation now is over the probable disposition of the Spaniards—whether they will be blockaded or the forts reduced and the vessels compelled to fight. In the latter case there can be but one result, for Commodore Schley has some of the finest ships in the world, to say nothing of cruisers and various smaller vessels, and could in a few days be reenforced by other powerful warships. It would be foolhardiness on the part of Cervera to offer battle.

Washington, May 30.—The navy department received at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning a dispatch from Commodore Schley stating that the Spanish fleet is in the bay of Santiago de Cuba, and that he has seen and recognized the vessels.

Commodore Schley has not only his own squadron, but two or three vessels besides, at his command, and it is not believed to be possible for the Spanish admiral to escape with his fleet either by day or by night.

Commodore Schley will remain in front of Santiago harbor until he destroys Cervera's squadron. The department, after translating Commodore Schley's cablegram, wired him instructions to this effect: "Under no circumstances permit Spanish ships to escape. Destroy or capture them."

Schley's Keen Strategy.

Key West, Fla., May 31.—By feinting the withdrawal of his squadron off the entrance to Santiago harbor, Commodore Schley led the Spanish admiral into an attempt to escape from the trap in which he has been held, thus enabling the fact of his presence to be absolutely ascertained. After finding that he was discovered Cervera returned to the protection of the inner harbor.

Sailed to Join Schley.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 31. — The Harvard has sailed to join Commodore Schley's squadron. She took a pilot familiar with the south coast of Cuba.

Schley's Instructions.

Washington, May 28.—The instructions sent to Commodore Schley from Washington are only general in nature. His mission is to capture or destroy the armada. Whether he forces it to fight by the starvation process or whether he bombards the harbor fortifications in order to get at the Spanish ships rests with himself.

Tax Plan Killed.

Washington, May 30.—After a discussion which lasted almost two weeks, the senate Saturday afternoon reached the first decisive vote on any feature of the pending war revenue measure. The bill had been under consideration four hours and a half when Senator Aldrich (R. I.), one of the republican members of the finance committee, entered a motion to lay the corporation tax amendment, proposed by the democratic majority of the committee, on the table. It was realized that this was the first test of strength of the opposing elements in the senate, and the roll call was followed with deep interest. The result was decisive. The amendment was laid on the table, 41 to 27.

Honor to Lafayette.

Paris, May 31.—With a view to shock the blatant pro-Spanish feeling here and enlist the sympathies of Frenchmen on the side of America a special effort was made by the American colony Monday to do honor to the memory of Lafayette. A big gathering proceeded to his tomb, in the Picpus cemetery, which was decorated with wreaths and national flags. The United States ambassador, Gen. Horace Porter, deposited the American wreaths and in an eloquent speech referred to America's debt to Lafayette and the "unbreakable ties between the two peoples." He was warmly applauded.

Sadness in Spain.

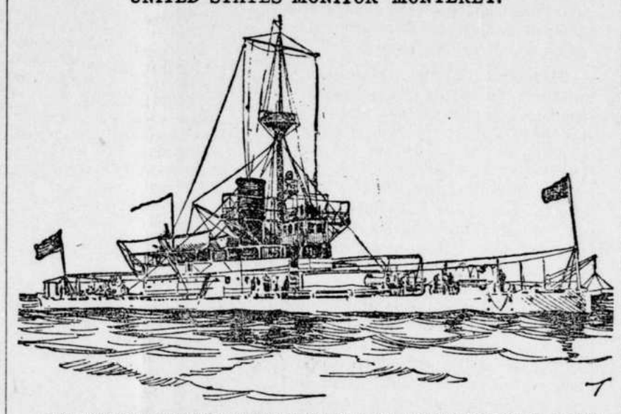
London, May 28.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times, commenting on the "feeling of sadness prevailing in Spain," says:

"It is less on account of ministerial dissensions, which are not really serious, than on account of a fuller apprehension of the difficulties of the situation, namely, that it is hopeless to expect any assistance from Europe, even France and Russia being, since Mr. Chamberlain's speech, averse from doing anything to precipitate complications. Spain now sees that she must trust to herself alone in an unequal struggle that can have only one end."

Uncle Sam's Big Bills.

St. Louis, May 28. — The sum of $1,455,400 represents the money paid out by Lieut. Col. G. C. Smith, chief commissary United States army, to St. Louis merchants and Missouri farmers for supplies since war was declared. The three largest items are $1,250,000 for mules, $97,500 for horses and $45,000 for tents. In addition almost as much has been paid out by the commissary department for subsistence.

UNITED STATES MONITOR MONTEREY.



This powerful vessel has just been ordered to join Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manila. Her crew complement is 19 officers and 172 men, under the command of Lieut. Commander J. W. Carlin. Next to the Puritan the Monterey is the largest monitor in the American navy. As the vessel can carry but 200 tons of coal she will have to be towed by a collier from San Francisco to the Philippines.

THE ATTACK BY LAND.

How the Army Will Cooperate with Commodore Schley—Four Separate Expeditions to Be Landed.

Washington, May 31.—The military invasion of Cuba has begun. Unless the orders of the war department miscarried at an early hour the troops that have been gathered at the Gulf ports began to break camp and march aboard transports waiting to carry them to the enemy's territory. About 25 of these ships, the biggest and fastest that could be obtained for the purpose, had been gathered ready to receive the troops. They will accommodate about 30,000 men.

The movement, in all probability, is intended to cooperate with Commodore Schley in dislodging or destroying the Spanish fleet at Santiago de Cuba. The purpose of the war department is said to be to effect a landing in the immediate vicinity of Santiago and to capture the hills comanding the harbor by land operations, while Schley prevents the Spanish flotilla from escaping by sea.

It is probable that there will be no less than four separate military expeditions, and that these will be landed at four different points. Before the entire force which it is proposed to use in Cuba can be landed the transports must make four separate voyages across the straits. Arrangements have been made to utilize the services of the insurgents to the utmost possible extent. The government already has sent expeditions to a large number of points on the island and landed arms for the insurgents, most of the parties succeeding perfectly in their object, and it is said at the war department that a sufficient number of the insurgents have been armed to constitute a very effective support for the troops as they land.

It was said at the war department that chief reliance would be placed at the outset on the United States regulars, most of which are concentrated in Florida, and in such volunteer regiments as were thoroughly equipped and reasonably well seasoned for service.

AGREEMENT CONCLUDED.

Long Pending Reciprocity Arrangements Between France and Uncle Sam Are at Last Ended.

Washington, May 31. — The United States and France have concluded the first commercial agreement entered into under Section MI of the Dingley tariff law. The negotiations have been pending for the last eight months, and after many vicissitudes were concluded on Saturday last when Ambassador Cambon, in behalf of France, and Hon. John Kasson, reciprocity commissioner for the United States, affixed their signatures to the formal agreement. It makes important changes in the tariff rates on a number of articles constituting the chief trade between this country and France.

By the terms of the agreement the new rates go into effect on June 1, or next Wednesday. In the meantime, under the terms of the law, the president will issue a proclamation granting the reciprocal reductions specified in the agreement and at the same time the French authorities at Paris will decree a reduction in the French rates in accordance with the agreement.

Collide in a Fog.

New York, May 30. — The United States protected cruiser Columbia came into port Sunday with a great hole in its starboard quarter, through which a horse and wagon might have been driven. The gallant vessel had also a heavy list to port. The warship had been in collision with the British steamship Foscolia on Saturday evening during a thick fog while cruising off Fire island. The Foscolia was sunk, but the officers and crew, numbering 21, were saved and brought to port by the Columbia. Not a life was lost and nobody was injured. The exact amount of damage to the Columbia will not be known until the cruiser has been placed in dry dock.

One Man Killed

Omaha, Neb., May 30.—A freight train broke down in a cut on the Fremont, Elkhart & Missouri Valley road just west of Blair, Neb., Sunday afternoon, blockading the track. The Black Hills express, which was following, dashed into the wreck at top speed. The engine, baggage and mail cars were derailed. Lucius S. Cook, engineer of the passenger train, was killed. Three other trainmen were injured.

A Fatal Explosion.

Penns Grove, N. J., May 30.—By the explosion of a mixing mill at the smokeless powder works of the Dupont company at Carney's Point, near here, Saturday afternoon William Brown, a workman, of Penns Grove, was killed, Thomas Shoulders, of Penns Grove, injured and three mills destroyed. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by a pebble in the mixing trough.

Volunteers in Service.

Washington, May 31. — Adjt. Gen. Corbin said Monday that 121,500 troops had been mustered into the volunteer army under the call for 125,000 men, and that the remaining 3,500 men were in state camps ready for the visit of the mustering officer.

A MOB'S VENGEANCE.

Capture and Lynch Two Negroes Suspected of a Dastardly Crime—Claim They Were Innocent.

Charlotte, N. C., May 30.—Miss Emma Hartzell, daughter of Mr. Samuel Hartzell, who lives four miles from Concord, was found dead in her father's home Sunday afternoon. She had been outraged and her throat was cut from ear to ear. The young woman was of a respectable family and the news of the affair spread rapidly. In a short time large bodies of both town and country people had gathered, and in the course of an hour or two two suspects, Joe Kiser, aged 25, and Tom Johnson, aged 20, both colored, were arrested. The sheriff managed to get them safely to jail.

The prisoners were placed in the cage, the stronghold of the jail, and the sheriff and other officers stood guard at the foot of the stairs. It was 20 minutes to ten o'clock when the mob, unable any longer to restrain its fury, broke down the jail door. The sheriff and deputies were overpowered and the crowd rushed up the stairs toward the cell of the doomed men. The lock was broken, the door opened and the prisoners hauled forth. The sheriff saw that resistance was useless, so he made no effort to frustrate the work of vengeance. When the place selected for the lynching was reached, a halt was made. The men were asked if they had any parting word to speak. They said they were not guilty, and that was all.

A tree was found on which were two limbs about three feet apart. Over these the ropes were thrown. The men were mounted on two boxes about two feet high. The noose was adjusted around each man's neck, the box removed and the bodies dropped. A few minutes after the drop 100 shots were fired at the dangling bodies, riddling them with bullets. The doctors who were present pronounced them dead in 13 minutes. Their bodies were left hanging.

To Open on Sundays.

Omaha, Neb., May 27.—By a vote of 24 to 12 the directors of the Trans-Mississippi exposition have decided to keep open the gates of the exposition on Sunday from one p. m. to ten p. m. In deference to the wishes of some of the religious people in Omaha and elsewhere it was decided, after a long debate, to close during the forenoon. It was suggested that the midway should be closed, but this was considered impracticable and the matter was finally settled by the adoption of the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the exposition grounds and buildings be kept open on Sundays from one p. m. to ten p. m., and conducted in the same manner as on week days, except that the sale of liquors be not permitted; that concerts be given, and that religious services be held in the auditorium on Sunday afternoons."

A Mob's Mistake.

Guthrie, O. T., May 31.—The United States marshal has under arrest a young Seminole Indian named Kinder H. Hargo, who has confessed to being the murderer of Mrs. Laird, for whose death young Sampson and McGeisy were burned to death by a white mob near Newark, I. T., last January. The government has all along maintained that the two Indians burned to death were innocent, and will now prove it. Hargo was captured in the Chickasaw nation after an exciting chase of 22 days. Nearly 200 men are under indictment for participation in the burning of Sampson and McGeisy.

Minister Angell Resigns.

Washington, May 30.—James B. Angell, minister to Turkey, has resigned and will be succeeded by Oscar S. Straus, of New York. Mr. Straus represented this government at Constantinople during ex-President Cleveland's first administration. He made an excellent record at the capital of the Ottoman empire and ex-President Harrison endeavored to persuade him to remain during his term of office, but failed.

Thrown Into the Shade.

"It's a little tough on our young Chicago," laughed the man from Saginaw, "and I wouldn't tell it in Bay City. I had some business down in Texas that required a good deal of railroad travel. One day I found myself on the parlor car with no one but the porter and the natural desire for companionship asserted itself. After we had talked for a time, during which he had the tact to address me as 'cunnel,' he ventured to inquire in an apologetic way where I was from.

"'Saginaw,' I responded.

"'Sag'naw, cunnel; whar's dat, sah?'

"'In Michigan, my boy.'

"'O, yes, sah. Mich'gan. Dat's in Detroit. I had a gen'l from dar las' wintah, sah.'

"I simply went into the smoking compartment and communed with myself for the rest of the trip."—Detroit Free Press.

Property in Montana.

Chinook, Mont., May 25.—The business outlook in Montana has not been brighter for years. The past winter was not a severe one, and stock losses on the ranges were exceptionally light. Sheep men are in high spirit over the prospects of good prices for wool and mutton, but no more so than the cattle men, for whom values average higher than for twelve years. The spring rains have been abundant, and stock is reveling in the high grass. Sheep are being rounded up preparatory to shearing time. It is expected that this station will ship at least a million pounds, taking second place on the Great Northern in this state as a wool shipper. Our farmers are sowing a larger acreage of barley this spring than ever before. Montana barley is a malting variety and in high favor in the East, and even in Europe. New settlers are coming in and Milk River Valley expects 1898 to be a banner year in its history. The people of the valley feel under obligations to the railway company for sending bulletins of the most important war news.

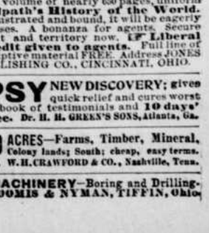
"I DO MY OWN WORK."

So Says Mrs. Mary Rochiette of Linden, New Jersey, in this Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"I was bothered with a flow which would be quite annoying at times, and at others would almost stop.

"I used prescriptions given me by my physician, but the same state of affairs continued.



"After a time I was taken with a flooding, that I was obliged to keep my bed. Finally, in despair, I gave up my doctor, and began taking your medicine, and have certainly been greatly benefited by its use.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has indeed been a friend to me.

"I am now able to do my own work, thanks to your wonderful medicine. I was as near death I believe as I could be, so weak that my pulse scarcely beat and my heart had almost given out. I could not have stood it one week more, I am sure. I never thought I would be so grateful to any medicine.

"I shall use my influence with any one suffering as I did, to have them use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Every woman that is puzzled about her condition should secure the sympathetic advice of a woman who understands. Write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her your ills.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Getting Ready.

Preparatory work for the next Minnesota state fair is now being actively pushed. Premium lists, entry blanks and other material is being sent out in large quantities from the secretary's office, and carpenters, painters and laborers are at work upon the grounds and buildings. When it is remembered that the grounds comprise 200 acres and that there is over 300,000 square feet of floor space in the various buildings, the necessity for the beginning work early and pushing it actively will be readily understood. This year ho state fair in the country will excel in exhibition and amusement features the one in Minnesota.

One of the departments now receiving special attention and which, as heretofore, will be made especially strong, is the cattle departments. The premiums are liberal and conprehensive. In addition to those offered by the society, the Hereford Cattlle Breeders association offered $200 in special premiums; the Shorthorn Cattle Breeders association offers to duplicate premiums won by the shorthorns in competition with other breeds, and other breeders' associations are announcing similar offers.

Reminder of the Hinckley Fire.

The remains of another victim of the Hinckley fire were discovered a mile west of Sandstone by a boy while searching for his cows. The bones were well preserved and by their position showed that the victim sought to save himself by seeking shelter in the lee of a small hill. Near the skeleton were found a watch and chain and the remains of a rifle. These were easily identified by Mrs. John Nelson, who recognized them as the property of her husband, who it was known had perished in the fire on that fateful day somewhere between town and the W. P. & D. railroad, four miles west. His was the last case unaccounted for, and now the fate of every person missed since the fire is determined.

Guard Fund Exhausted.

Adjt. Gen. Muehlberg, who has been considering the situation carefully, has come to the conclusion that the state of Minnesota is absolutely without a national guard fund. The expenses of equipping and caring for the three regiments of volunteers before they were mustered into the volunteer army depleted the national guard fund and made necessary demands on the general state fund. In time the state will be reimbursed by the national government, but in the meantime its military fund is non-existent. It is said that the state will not be repaid until congressional action is taken. The state will now have to get along without a national guard, or else borrow money pending the next session of the legislature.

Pardoned.

Andrew C. Haugan has been pardoned by the pardoning board. By the pardon he gains just one hour of imprisonment and his franchise. Had he served out his sentenced he could not have cast a vote at any time in the future, as the law provides that no convicted felon can have the privilege to to vote or hold office, but a pardon is judical forgiveness which allows that privilege.

Four months ago Judge Lancaster sentenced Haugan to imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000 upon a conviction of embezzlement of large sums of money from the city of Minneapolis, for which he was treasurer.

Boat Capsized.

The first casualty of the season at Lake Minnetonka occurred when Mrs. Frank Bean, aged 23 years, of Excelsior, was drowned by the capsizing of a rowboat a short distannce off the south end of Big Island. Her husband and Peter Jensen, also of Excelsior, the other occupants of the boat, narrowly escaped a similar fate.

The drowning resulted from the reckless handling of an open boat provided with a sail, in the use of which neither man was proficient. The boat left the Excelsior dock a short time before the accident on a pleasure excursion. The wind was blowing hard at the time and the lake was rough.

Shocked His Nerves.

Isaac Whitcomb, the village marshal, sat in the alcove entrance to the Calumet hotel at Pipestone in a large rocking chair, with both his feet perched upon the balustrade, and fell asleep. A practical joker placed a cannon cracker under the marshal's chair, and, lighting the fuse, remarked, as the thing exploded, "Remember the Maine." Both rockers were blown off chair and a portion of the "shell" passed through the marshel's clothing and inflicted a painfull, though not serious wound. Mr. Whitcomb is confined to his room with an attack of nervous prostration.

Minnesota Briefs.

Fairfax is to have another flour mill, 125 barrels capacity.

Charles Everson, a farmer near Canby, was found hanging dead in a tree. Evidently a suicide.

In open daylight the residence of the priest of St. John's Catholic church at Duluth was robbed of $343 in gold.

The ladies' prize contest of oratory at Pillsbury academy at Owatonna was largely attended. Miss Laura A. Lake was awarded first place and Miss Anna Bentson second.

An attempt was made to burn the residence of G. L. Chesley at Pipestone. The front porch was found badly burned and saturated with kerosene. A soaking rain saved the house from complete destruction.

A Spanish sympathizer named John Regan, residing south of Canton, displayed the Spanish colors above the American flag, and a delegation of patriots from Canton seized the offensive rag and burned it.

The decision of the U. S. supreme court declairing the New Hamphire and Pennsylvania oleomargarine laws unconstitutional does not effect this state.

A large lynx was killed within half a mille of the village of Stephen by James Gillespie. The animal was following two small girls, who would have been killed had it not been for the hunter.

Henry Evenson, residing three miles south of Fairfax, was struck by lightning and instantly killed while standing in the barn door.

Ex-Gov. and Mrs. J. S. Pillsbury had a very narrow escape from injury in Minneapolis by their team running away.

The residence of W. A. Sorg, at Winona was destroyed by fire.

LAST HONORS TO GLADSTONE.

Remains of England's Illustrious Dead Are Reverently Laid Away in Westminster Abbey.

London, May 28.—In the northern transept of Westminster abbey, where England's greatest dead rest, the body of the late William Ewart Gladstone was entombed Saturday with the ceremonies of the nation he had served and of the church he had loved.

This official funeral, the first since that of Lord Palmerstone, was rendered an imposing spectacle by the magnificence of the building in which it was solemnized. The coffin rested on an elevated bier, before the altar, its plainness hidden beneath the pall of white and gold, embroidered with the text: "Requiescat in Pace."

Six tall candles burned beside it and on either side stood the supporters of the pall. The prince of Wales and the duke of York were at the head of the coffin, and ranging behind them were the marquis of Salisbury, the earl of Kimberley, A. J. Balfour, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the duke of Rutland, Lord Rosebery and Mr. Gladstone's two old-time friends, Baron Rendel and George Armistead.

The mourners who sat in the stalls nearest to the bier were Mrs. Gladstone, her sons Herbert and Stephen and other members of the family, with little Dorothy Drew, Mr. Gladstone's favorite grandchild. The princess of Wales and the duchess of York occupied the dean's pew opposite.

Thousands thronged the square outside in order to witness the passage of the funeral procession from Westminster hall. A double line of 500 policemen kept an open passage for the funeral cortege.

The chief officials has assembled in Westminster hall at ten o'clock in the morning. The bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Mandell Creighton, D. D., read a brief prayer there, and at 10:30 o'clock the procession was formed and slowly passed through the great crowds and along the short pathway, a distance of 300 yards, to the western entrance of the abbey, between two ranks of the Eton volunteers in their buff uniforms.

London, May 27.—Remarkably impressive scenes were witnessed at Westminster from two o'clock in the morning, when the arrivals commenced of those anxious to view the remains of Mr. Gladstone. The line formed was continually augmented by all classes of people, from peers, cabinet ministers, members of the house of commons, military and naval officers and clergymen to costermongers, old and young, until at six o'clock, when the doors were opened, the procession commenced to stream past the catafalque. The latter had lighted candles at each corner and a large gilt cross at its head. About 2,000 policemen were engaged in guiding the people, and by three o'clock 75,000 people had passed the coffin.

FROM GARCIA'S CAMP.

Two Officers of His Staff Arrive at Washington — To Cooperate with American Forces.

Washington, May 27.—Secretary Alger and Gen. Miles conferred Thursday with two officers from the staff of Gen. Garcia, Gen. Enrique Collazo and Lieut. Col. Charles Hernandez, who come direct from Garcia's headquarters bearing credentials from him to effect a plan of cooperation with the American forces. They accompanied Lieut. Rowan, of the United States army, on his return from Garcia's camp. Gen. Collazo and Col. Hernandez gave an interesting account of Gen. Garcia's forces and surroundings, and the general equipment of the Cuban army.

Col. Hernandez says Garcia has his headquarters at Bayamo, one of the large towns in the central part of the island. About 3,000 men are quartered inside the city. They are well armed with Remingtons and Mausers captured from the Spaniards. Most of them have machetes, but only the officers carry other small arms.

Col. Hernandez says communication is maintained with Gen. Gomez and with points along the coast. From these he has a general idea of the Cuban forces, outside of those with Gen. Garcia at Bayamo. He estimates that there are 12,000 men, all of them well armed, east of La Trocha, and constituting the forces in the eastern division of the island, under Gen. Garcia. He estimates Gen. Gomez' immediate command at about 3,000 men, with 6,000 men scattered at various points. In all, there are, according to the estimates of Gen. Collarzo and Col. Hernandez, about 20,000 to 25,000 troops actually in the field.

Situation at Manila.

London, May 30. — The Hong-Kong correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: Dispatches received from Manila say that the insurgents who are now massed at Cavite are being organized and drilled in anticipation of an early land and sea attack upon Manila. The Americans believe the insurgents will lend very substantial assistance when the great fight comes off. The first contingent of United States troops is expected on June 14. United States Consul Williams does not discuss the matter, but he is here, and it is understood that his mission is to secure supplies for the squadron and to confer by telegraph with the Washington government.

For Hawaiian Annexation.

Washington, May 28.—The Hawaiian annexation question, which has been the subject of no little concern about the senate for the past few days, assumed definite shape in the senate Friday when Senators Lodge and Morgan offered amendments to the war revenue bill bearing directly upon the subject. Senator Lodge's amendment is in the words of the Newlands resolution and provides in direct terms for the annexation of the islands. Senator Lodge was seen immediately after he had sent his amendment to the desk and announced it to be his purpose to press the amendment to the end.

To Leave Cadiz.

Madrid, May 31.—From Cadiz it is learned that the reserve squadron, consisting of the Pelayo, the Carlos V., the Alfonso XIII., and the torpedo boat destroyers Audaz, Proserpina and Destructor and the Rapido, the Patriota, the Alfonso XII., the Antonio Lopez, the Ciudad de Cadiz, the Leon XIII. and the Buenos Ayres, will be ready to put to sea in a few days. Admiral Camara is pushing on the work with all speed, and it is said that he will sail in the first place for the Canaries and then set out under sealed orders, thus repeating Admiral Cervera's tactics.

HONOR DEAD HEROES.

Decoration Day Services General in Cities and Towns Throughout the Country.

Washington, May 31.—It is now more than a quarter of a century since the 30th of May was designated by presidential proclamation as an annual memorial day in honor of the federal troops who lost their lives in the great struggle in the sixties. Of late years complaint has been made by the veterans, who regard the day with sacred veneration, that Decoration day is fast losing its original significance, and that, instead of being devoted wholly to its original purposes, it is each year being given over more generally to bicycle races, regattas and other sporting events. Whatever foundation there may have been for this complaint, the patriotic observances in progress Monday from ocean to ocean certainly tended to smooth the ruffled spirits of the Grand Army veterans and their sympathizers.

Among the cities reporting an appropriate observance of the day were the following:

Cleveland, O., Pittsburgh, Pa., Chicago, Ill., Cincinnati, O., Lexington, Ky., Nashville, Tenn., Indianapolis, Ind., New York, Boston, St. Paul, Minn., St. Louis and San Francisco.

In this city the interest was divided between Gettysburg, where there were held appropriate exercises, which bore a national character by reason of the large number of prominent government officials, senators, representatives and other men of note who took part, and Arlington cemetery, where are buried many of the heroes of the late war. It is estimated that fully 10,000 persons witnessed the exercises at the latter place. The principal oration at Arlington was delivered by Senator Thurston.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 31.—The attendance was larger and the exercises more interesting at the Memorial day ceremonies held here Monday than on any similar occasion in the past dozen years.

Chairman Benner read a letter from President McKinley regretting his inability, owing to the condition of national affairs, to be present on this occasion. He then introduced the orator of the day, Hon. Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior, who held his audience 40 minutes in a masterful oration.

MONETARY CONGRESS.

Important Financial Convention to Begin in Omaha, Neb., September 13.

Omaha, Neb., May 30.—The dates for the great monetary congress have been fixed. The convention will be convened September 13 and will continue through three days. Hon. J. Sterling Morton has accepted the position of chairman. The first day will be devoted to the advocates of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and Hon. W. J. Bryan, Congressman Towne and other prominent adherents of the faith will speak. The second day those favorable to the gold standard will be given a chance to air their views. Hon. John G. Carlisle, Grover Cleveland and several others prominent in the ranks of the gold men will be present. Hon. James Weaver and other equally prominent advocates of the paper currency will be given half of the last day, and the balance will be devoted to certain prominent bankers who are opposed to the unlimited issue of paper currency. The convention will be held at the auditorium of the Trans-Mississippi exposition, and a large attendance from all parts of the country is expected.

PLAN AN ALLIANCE.

Diplomats of United States and Great Britain Preparing a Formal Compact.

London, May 30.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Washington says that the correspondent has learned on the authority of an official of the state department that important preliminaries of an English-American alliance have already been taken.

Great Britain, the dispatch adds, will recognize the Monroe doctrine, and will not attempt to extend her territory in the western hemisphere.

The United States will build the Nicaragua canal, of which Great Britain will have the use during war.

The United States will hold all the territory taken from Spain, and Great Britain will assist her in her possession thereof if she is threatened.

The United States will support Great Britain in China and the far east.

All British ports in China will be opened to the United States under the "most favored nation" clause.

The main features of an arbitration treaty have been provided. The alliance, in case of war, will be offensive and defensive.

Slain by a Woman.

Hutchinson, Kan., May 31.—W. C. Boyd, a retail butcher, was mysteriously murdered here a week ago. His body was found in a ditch not far from a restaurant kept by Mrs. Postlewaite and her two sons. Monday, before a coroner's jury, Mrs. Postlewaite created a sensation by stating that she killed Boyd. She stated that Boyd came to her room at night, armed with a piece of iron pipe and threatened to kill her unless she would promise to marry him. She refused and he struck her. Mrs. Postlewaite, according to her story, then seized the pipe and beat her assailant to death, after which she dragged his body out of the house.

Gen. Merritt Arrives at the Coast.

San Francisco, May 28.—Gen. Merritt, who will command the American forces in the Philippines, and who arrived from Washington Thursday night, has established his headquarters in this city at the Palace hotel. One good effect of Gen. Merritt's advent has already been felt. He has ordered that troops not already supplied with equipment be furnished at once with everything necessary to make them comfortable and ready for active service.

Don't Expect Support.

London, May 31.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: It is reported that Senor Sagasta, the premier, during Sunday's cabinet council, reasserted that Spain does not expect the support, diplomatic or otherwise, of any foreign power, and that there is no question whatever of undertaking negotiations for this purpose through Senor Leon y Castillo, Spanish ambassador at Paris.

RAPID-FIRE GUNS.

Success of the Japanese Against the Chinese Largely Due to These Terrible Destroyers.

Admiral Ito's squadron was well equipped with rapid-fire guns, while the Chinese had none. In the battle of Yalu each squadron mounted about 30 slow-fire medium-caliber guns from 6-inch Krupps to 4.7 inch Armstrongs, but in addition the Japanese had no fewer than 66 rapid-fire guns. Some 25 heavy guns of 8, 10 and 12-inch caliber, were mounted on the Chinese ships, but they were of little account in the battle, for of 400 shots fired from them only 12 were hits. The Chinese battleship Ting Yuen was attacked by a torpedo boat and sunk, her lack of rapid-fire guns making the contest a very unequal one. But the Chinese trained their medium-caliber slow-fire guns on the torpedo boat after she had fired the torpedo, with such good effect that she was found floating in the harbor the next morning. She had been hit six times, one of the shells smashing a steam pipe. Some of the men in the boat were frozen to death, and the other members of the crew were scalded to death.

The Yalu engagement demonstrated the value of rapid-fire guns. Ship after ship of the Chinese fleet opened fire at long range with the heavy guns, but the Japanese ships stood straight on until within 3,000 yards of the enemy, when they turned in succession eight points to port and opening with broadsides from their six-inch and 4.7-inch rapid-fire guns they poured in a hail of steel, riddling the upper parts of the superstructures of the Chinese ships. The water was lashed to foam by the shells which, ricocheting, inflicted most of the hits. The Japanese fired three or four times as fast as the Chinese, cutting down all who were on deck. Officers were killed at their posts by the deadly rapid-fires, and none of the men could be forced on deck, even at the muzzle of the pistol. The Yank Wei was riddled by 4.7-inch shells, and the two heavy battleships, Ting Yuen and Chen Yuen, each had 200 shot marks. The European officers were astonished at the havoc wrought to men and ships by the rapid-fire guns.

Since the war in the east the principal navies of the world have been rapidly supplied with rapid-fire guns. Slow-fire guns have been dismounted and converted into quick-fire guns by reconstructing the breech mechanisms. England and France have led in the manufacture of guns of this type, the Armstrongs and Canet devoting almost their entire attention to their development. The navy department has spent millions of dollars for rapid-fire guns during eight or nine years they have been in use in this country, but the navy still greatly needs a better equipment of these guns. Some of the battleships and cruisers have no rapid-fire guns larger than a 6-pounder. The Kearsarge and Kentucky, each with 14 5-inch rapid-fire guns, will be the first of the battleships to be adequately equipped with the type of gun to be found on the best ships of the British and French navies.

Just now the navy department is paying special attention to the mounting of rapid-fire guns on the auxiliary and mosquito fleets. The rapid-fire armament of these fast boats will make them of greater value in repelling torpedo-boat attacks on the North Atlantic squadron, and will meet the emergency needs of the navy for torpedo-boat destroyers.

The amount allotted by the war and navy department for the purchase of rapid-fire guns since the Havana harbor disaster is considerably more than $1,000,000. The Maxim-Nordenfelt company of England will receive $300,000 for army guns, principally of 4.72-inch caliber, already shipped; the American Ordnance company, of Bridgeport, is working on an order of $125,000 for small-caliber guns, and the Driggs-Seabury Gun and Ammunition company, of Derby, Conn., is working on an order of $225,000 for 50 6-pounder semi-automatic naval guns to fire 40 shots a minute. The army ordnance bureau has also let contracts for the manufacture of 20 6-pounders and 18 12-pounders, or 3-inch rapid fire guns. The new contracts will amount to about $500,000. —Chicago Times-Herald.

Copper-Plated Aluminum.

A German engineer has recently succeeded in plating aluminum with copper by a welding process, and makes the combined materials in such forms that they may be soldered, rolled, drawn and plated. If this process is successful on a commercial scale it would seem as if the increased usefulness of aluminum is to become practically unlimited, as the copper coating would remove all obstacles to its use where it must be in contact with fluids, soldered and painted or plated.—Chicago Chronicle.

SAMPLE OF "DROP-IN" TRADE.

The Dealer in Corn Salve Spoils the Real Estate Man's Proud Boast.

Real estate dealers often console themselves during these dull days by reminiscences of the periods of inactivity which have gone before. A well-known Washington street dealer while in a reminiscent mood told the following:

"The period of inactivity through which we are now passing reminds me somewhat of the days of 1873 when a dealer who made a sale was looked upon as a marvel. I had my office at that time on the second floor of this building. On the main floor were the offices of Reece, Pierce & Co. I was in the habit of stopping in each morning and greeting Col. Pierce, and usually the greeting became a morning visit. One day I was complaining somewhat bitterly of the dullness of the market, and the colonel remarked: 'I tell you that you miss it by not getting down on the ground floor. Now we get a great deal of drop-in trade, so to speak, that never gets to you because of the stairs.'

"Just as he was closing this remark the door opened and in stepped a man with a valise. 'There, what did I tell you,' said the colonel. 'Here's a man who probably wants to buy a lot and who never would climb up to you.' I was duly impressed with the truth of the statement then, and we both became silent as the newcomer avanced. As he came up to us he bowed and smiled and then blandly inquired: 'Can't I sell either of you some corn salve to-day?'

"The colonel was almost overcome, but he managed to express a decided negative and the visitor retreated. When he had closed the door behind him I burst out laughing and exclaimed: 'Colonel, if that's the kind of drop-in trade you get down here I want none of it. Now, that man would never trouble me because he could easily see that any man who could frequently climb the stairs of this building could not possibly have corns.' I went upstairs to my office, leaving the colonel speechless."—Chicago Chronicle.

HOW RELIEF CAME.

From Cole County Democrat, Jefferson City, Mo.

When la grippe visited this section, about seven years ago, Herman H. Eveler, of 811 W. Main St., Jefferson, Mo., was one of the victims, and has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. He is a well-known contractor and builder, a business requiring much mental and physical work. A year ago his health began to fail, and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives to-day is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely.

"I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation, decided to give them a trial.

A Contractor's Difficulty.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. I feel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and anyone that is afflicted with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration and general debility, will find that these pills are the specific. HERMAN H. EVELER."

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public, this 24th day of May, 1897.

ADAM POUTSZONG, Notary Public.

Mr. Eveler will gladly answer any inquiry regarding this if stamp is enclosed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure people troubled with the after-effects of the grippe, because they act directly on the impure blood. They are also a specific for chronic erysipelas, catarrh, rheumatism and all diseases due to impure or impoverished blood.

Our American Policy.

The policy of this country regarding foreign complications seems likely to remain conservative. The Monroe doctrine, according to the declaration of our leading politicians, will be sustained, but patience and prudence in official quarters will restrain the exuberance of public opinion. The wisest and most prudent course for the rheumatic and the malarious is to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which also cures kidney complaint and dyspepsia.

A GREAT REMEDY.

Greatly Tested.

Greatly Recommended.

The loss of the hair is one of the most serious losses a woman can undergo. Beautiful hair gives many a woman a claim to beauty which would be utterly wanting if the locks were short and scanty. It is almost as serious a loss when the natural hue of the hair begins to fade, and the shining tresses of chestnut and auburn are changed to gray or to a faded shadow of their former brightness. Such a loss is no longer a necessity. There is one remedy which may well be called a great remedy by reason of its great success in stopping the falling of the hair, cleansing the scalp of dandruff, and restoring the lost color to gray or faded tresses. Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor is a standard and reliable preparation, in use in thousands of homes, and recommended by everyone who has tested it and experienced the remarkable results that follow its use. It makes hair grow. It restores the original color to hair that has turned gray or faded out. It stops hair from falling, cleanses the scalp of dandruff, and gives the hair a thickness and gloss that no other preparation can produce.

Mrs. Herzmann, of 356 East 68th St., New York City, writes:

"A little more than a year ago, my hair began turning gray and falling out, and although I tried ever so many things to prevent a continuance of these conditions, I obtained no satisfaction until I tried Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor. After using one bottle my hair was restored to its natural color, and ceased falling out."—Mrs. HERZMANN, 356 East 68th St., New York City.

"I have sold Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor for fifteen years, and I do not know of a case where it did not give entire satisfaction. I have been, and am now using it myself for dandruff and gray hair, and am thoroughly convinced that it is the best on the market. Nothing that I ever tried can touch it. It affords me great pleasure to recommend it to the public."—FRANK M. GROVE, Faunsdale, Ala.

There's more on this subject in Dr. Ayer's Curebook. A story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co. Lowell, Mass.

Milk River Valley Of Montana.

Rain when the sun shines, or every man his own rain maker. That is the condition of things in this fertile valley. Ditches from the Milk River can be built at a cost of from $3 to $5 in labor and cash on free homesteads and crops assured every year. Irrigation farming in connection with the live stock industry is a sure road to wealth. The rainfall this spring has been sufficient to start crops and may nature them without using water artificially; but the ditch makes bountiful harvests a certainty in the event of draught. There is still room for one hundred or more families on land that can be easily and cheaply turned into garden spots, convenient to railway stations, and vast free ranges stretching away on each side of the valley. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Saturday, June 11, will be Delano's Fair Day.

—Fred Strauch has had his Third Street residence re-shingled.

—Dr. Niven will be at the Danforth House next Monday and Tuesday.

—Rev. Hanke will hold services at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath at 3 P. M.

—John Cunningham who bought the E. J. Swedeback residence on Third Street sexpect to occupy it next week.

—Rev. K. Zeyher held services at the M. E. church last Sunday. The west side church being undergoing repairs.

—The Crickets played a game of ball last Monday afternoon with a nine of old players and scrubs. The score stood 27 to 10 in favor of the Crickets.

—Be sure to remember the Democratic Primary Election for the election of delegates to the County Convention, to be held at the City Hall Tuesday, evening from 7 to 8 o'clock.

—Corn planting has been done by most of our farmers this week. The two handed machine seems to be the favorite dropper now.

—The Modern Woodmen in numbers visited Watertown, Saturday night to witness the organization of a lodge at that place. A good time is reported.

—Many Delanoites droye to Watertown, Monday, to attend Decoration Day exercises. They report that a very big crowd was there and that things passed off smoothely.

—Don't be frightened when you hear the church bell, fire alarm, police call, or any such thing at your door. It is only Frank Cramer's new gong, and he wants to sell you some meat.

—C. O. Borgersrode, of Winsted, interviewed some of our citizens yesterday on the subject of placing an electric clock in the City Hall, School House, or other suitable place. We understand the council will consider the matter.

—The Festival of Months, given by the Epworth League, at the City Hall, Tuesday evening was well attended considering the inclemency of the weather. The programme, except for a few numbers was well carried out, and the occasion enjoyed by all present. The school children did their parts remarkably well.

—The Minneapolis Free Press comes to our table this week as an eight page weekly, for $1.00 per year, Francis N. Stacy editor and manger. He has shown good management in making this change from the smaller twice-a-week style adapted at first. It is as red hot as ever in favor of reforms for the good of the whole people. Success to the Free Press.

—Papers are publishing articles saying that a soldier can write home without a stamp on his letter by writing across the envelope. "Soldiers letter" and getting one of his commissioned officer to place his name on the envelope. His friends at home can then get the letter by paying the postage. It might come handy for some of our soldier boys to enquire into the matters. As they may not always be able to get stamps in camp, when they want them. The commissioned officers, at least should be posted as to whether or not there is such a law.

—In our advertising colums will be found an announcement of Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls' forthcoming book, entitled America's War For Humanity." Canvassing agents will find in it a book of remarkable interest, and certainly of extraordinary salability. The history of the war is told in picture and story, and in a way that always characterizes the brilliant pen of Senator Ingalls. In narrating the incidents of this war he finds grand scope for his superb descriptive and analytical powers. The theme is worthy of the author and the author is worthy of the theme. It it published by N. D. Thompson Publishing Co., of St. Louis, Mo. It will be a monumental work that will not only be everywhere read, but it will be a monument to his genius that will outlive in history his brilliant senatorial career. The subscription book trade and the canvassing agent are fortunate in the fact that an author of such rare ability has been enlisted in its interest. 36 1t.

—Mrs. Otto Marr received a letter this week from her son Otto, aboard the U. S. S. Mayflower, blockading the port Havana. His letter dated the 18th, says he received a letter yesterday, the first from his mother since leaving home. Letters seem to not reach their destination very promptly as he says he has written six home only three having as yet reached there. His mother says she has written three and now gets the word that he has just receiyed one. Otto says: "I am all right you can bet." He says besides regular pay and rations $3.00 per month is allowed each man for extra eatables and they buy ham, eggs, oranges, cheese, jelly, etc. etc. and liye like bankers; pays 20cts per month for medical purposes; has allotted $20 per month to be sent home to his mother. The ship has no accommodations is the greatest objection to sailors life. He left New York April 11, went to New Port, R. I. then to Key West, Florida, then to Havana, and back to Key West, then back to Havanna where he now is. His mother and friends are glad to hear from him and that he is enjoying his marine life so well.

—Dr. Niven, June 6 and 7.

—Read Conzet & Darrow's reading notice in another column.

—A meeting for arranging for a 4th of July celebration has been called for Saturday evening at the City Hall. Let all the patriots be there.

—The different rooms of the public school have been having some fine last day of school exercises this week.

—We are in receipt of a letter from Dr Fassett formerly of Rockford. It came this morning so we can't publish it before next week.

—The river is at a good stage of water now. If it would remain so the year round it would furnish a fine place for boating and fishing.

—The old Cargill Bros, elevator is undergoing some much needed repairs. We understand it will be used for grain storage purposes.

—Some good work on street and sidewalks has been done, but the alleys:—they, some of them at least, can just about speak for themselves.

—The Baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. Head, of Minneapolis, at the City Hall Sunday evening. There will be no services at the M. E. church at that hour.

—The Eagle is still more flighty than the late Mrs. E. C. Austin, who Delanoites had come to think proficient in changing her name. The Eagle calls her Mrs. "Andrew" Dugan.

—Mrs. M. A. Chance had a letter, a few days ogo from Jenner. (He says:) "Don't worry, we have got enough to eat." That contradicts some of the newspaper stories that has been circulated about the country.

—John Lohmiller says he will give $1. towards buying a uniform for the juyenite company that was seen on the streets lately. He thinks $50, could easily be raised. The GAZETTE will give $1. Who will be the next?

—A Central Minnesota Telephone Company crew is camped here. They are at work today on a line from this place to Buffalo. This will give us two telephone lines to County Seat. The line runs from Litchfield to Minneapolis; surely talk will be cheap soon.

—On complaint of M. A. O'Hair L. A. Meister was arrested Tuesday, and sentenced by Justice Walter to pay a fine of $50 and costs or 60 days in jail for using abusive language. Mr. M. was taken to Minneapolis. Abusive language is bad, but other transgressions ought not to be winked at.

—It would pay the village to offer the street grader, standing idle and being weather beaten, to the road districts within five miles of Delano free, provided they would pay Joe Brenner or some other man that understands running it to go with it, and pay for all breakage that may be done.

—The juvenile brigade of Delano has had but two evenings drill and last evening came down Third Street with the Stars and Stripes, and the Cuban colors at their head. Several of them, though young, have seen service before and they can go through the military maneouvers now better than any of the different organizations we have seen in town.

-Delano is putting on lots of metropolitan airs. With electric lights, street sprinkler, city water, sidewalks, two telephone systems and telegraph connection with the cities, and one hour's ride on railroad from Minneapolis, it would be a plesant place for people doing business in the twin cities to have a home for the summer at least. No prettier drives can be found than those about Delano.

—Decoration Day so far as Delano is concerned seems to be lapsing into oblivion. The only flags we seen floating that day was the one we nailed out in front of our office; a couple at neighbor J. W. Lindsley's; S. S Ball's display of flags and bunting, and the big flag on Charley Epble's corner. What has become of the love for the old soldier, is it giving way to that for the new ones? There is yearly a falling out from the ranks of those who touched elbows in the sixties. Their numbers are being rapidly depleted, and those who are yet with us would have a much kindlier feeling for humanity generally, if due respect were shown to the observance of this National Holiday for the purpose of honoring those who answeared their country's call and who have now fallen in, in the ranks in the great beyond.

—Delano's oldest butcher Frank A. Cramer has concluded to make things still more convenient for his country patrons and will make periodical visits to their houses with fine steak, boil or roast, or if they prefer it, soup bone. He has purchased one of the latest refrigerators for use in the summer and which will keep the meat in first class condition and has a fine gong about as loud as the fire bell. When his gong sounds don't get scared but bring out your dimes and get fresh meat equal to your city neighbors. Frank has catered to the public for a long time and he thinks he knows just what they want in his line, and he proposes to give everybody an opportunity to suit themselyes at their own door. Won't that be nice during the hot summer days when the family is too busy to spare anybody to go to town for meat.

—The St. Paul Globe of June 1, has a letter signed Harry Sabine, U. S. S. Mayflower, Key West Naval Station, Florida, in which an account of an engagement with two Spanish gunboats under the castle off Havana on Saturday evening. He says; "We opened with our five inch guns, and the marksmanship was splendid. It was the first time we used the five inch, and the gunnery was American every inch. The concussion was terrific, breaking every bit of glass in the ship, and where I was standing it almost threw the feet from under me. Costs about $200 a shot. They fired about forty shots at us, one from the castle dropping just astern. We fired just five and those gurboats can take about five weeks for repair."

The shots must have come high if the concussion of her own guns broke all the glass on the Mayflower! This is a pretty fine yarn from the seat of war, and Delano might be proud of her having a man aboard of the valiant little Mayflower. But it is astonishing that the Globe's letter writer should say: "It is hotter than hades is supposed to be, here." And that a letter from home was "as welcome as an iceberg would be here, which is saving a good deal," in his letter to a St. Paul friend, written on May 17, while Delano's representative wrote the next day, May 18, and said it was not very warm, and told what a fine time they were having, and neyer thought to tell his mother that they had shook their glass all to pieces while firing at the Spaniards, three or four days before. Either the Globe or us must get a better correspondent.

Personal.

W. J. Dannehr took a trip to Minneapolis Wednesday.

Ray Wright, of Independence, was a Delano visitor this week.

Robert Bullen visited Minneapolis friends one day this week.

John Lohmiller made a business visit to Waverly today.

Ray Billings, lately of Seattle, visited his father here this week.

Ed Stewart and family, of Lyndale, were Delano visitors Saturday.

Tiff Hitsman returned Tuesday from a trip to Seattle, San Francisco and other western sea ports. He is looking well and reports a splendid trip. His son Abe returned home with him.

Dr. Niven

will be in Delano June 6 and 7 and at Howard Lake June 8th. First class dentistry in all branches at the lowest rates. Painless extracting. Office at Danforth House.

County Cullings.

A. R. Holston, formerly of Delano, is Populist nominee for County Attorney of Todd county.

Reports say that Dr. H. E. Cassel formerly of Cokato, who was sent to Fergus Falls for treatment, has returned to Litchfield and resumed the large practice of medicine he had there before going to Fergus Falls.

Doctor Chilton is in the field as a candidate for State Senator. Judge Woolley, candidate for Judge of District Court, is also from Howard. One is liable to trip the other up. Howard is noted for haying numerous candidates at each convention, and generally furnishes good men too.

From the Journal's report of the Republican Convention held at Buffalo Saturday, to elect delegates to Anoka, to place Page Morris in nomination, was not very large and enthusiatic. Only six townships out of twenty, and seven of thirteen villages, sent delegates at all. What an opportunity for Billy Culkin had he been here to haye correlled the strays and carried the convention. Lamson don't seem to have dared venture just yet.

Resolutions endorsing McKinley, Page Morris and the Republican National Platform of 96, (without saying whether it should be construed to mean gold standard, or international agreement bimetallsm,) was, according to the Journal, adopted by five affirmative votes, (probably post masters present,) and no one voted no.

If the lovers of Page Morris, and international bimetallism with the consent of other nations, especially England, can't infuse more spirit into their conventions than that, they are apt to be beaten out of sight this time.

Come to Thursday's Convention prepared to do business, and to stay till it is done. Delegates to help make a state ticket, delegates to help nominate a Congressman; and a county committee is to be elected.

DIED.

TURNGREN.—In Franklin, on Tuesday, May 24, Mr. O. J. Turngren, aged 76 years.

BUHL.—At Creat Falls, Mont., Mr. Mathias Buhl. The remains were brought here and buried from the catholic church today.

MARRIED.

PICKRUHN, STEIN.—In Delano, by Rev. Says, on Wednesday, June 1, Mr. Rudolph Pickruhn and Miss Theresa Stein.

Dr. Robert Forbes, Presiding Elder of the Duluth district delivered the Memorial Oration at Buffalo Monday.

The Buffalo Journal printed Wednesday, arrived on our table Thursday morning. Thats' more like business for Uncle Sam's mails.

The Democratic State Central Committee suggests that at the first County Convention held a county committee of one member from each voting precinct in the county be elected. This would give us a county committee of 33 members. They are to elect a chairman and an Excutive committee of three or five for the actual work of the campaign. This seems to be a good suggestion and will doubtess be followed by Wright County's Democrats, at their County Convention on Thursday June 9.

Every voting precinct in Wright County should be ably represented at Buffalo, on Thursday June 9. One of the most important conventions ever held in the county is to be held on that day.

Tuesday, June 7, from 7 to 8 p. m. is your only chance to have a say about who shall be our candidates for Governor and other state offices, and for Congressman. If you desire a good ticket, one you can support for these important positions, be at your voting place and cast your ballot for good delegates to attend the County Convention. If necessary, lay aside your business for a day and be a delegate to Buffalo on Thursday the 9th and do what you possibly can to have a ticket nominated that everybody will heartily wish to have elected. If you are for Democracy don't be afraid to show your colors.

It is kind of strange that great mind moulders like French, Lamson, Eaton and Buckley can spend so much of their time and talent, and occupy so much space in their respective papers, and kill so much of their readers time by obliging them to read so much about each editor's short comings, even intimating malfeasance in office etc., etc., while they all fail to embrace the opportunity to say one word about much larger game. Why don't you fellows stop shooting your pop guns at squirrels and get dawn a young connon and train it on the game we haye flushed? Why don't you uncoyer the business of Public Examiner? Why don't you help point out to the people the incompatability of the laws, the decissions of Probate Judges, Attorney Generals, and Public Examiners? Why don't you tell people that something is radically wrong, all along the line? That some legislators should be elected who will do what they can to have things righted.

What can you be aiming at by your constant hair pulling of each other? Are you simply keeping up a song and dance to attract the attention of the votes while the Public Examiner O. K's, bills in Wright County for $3.00 in Meeker for $7.80 and in Kandiyohi for $5 00. While he claims the Attorney decided twice that $5.00 was the lawful charge? These bills were for Medical Examiners in commitment of Insane people to the Hospital for Insane, and are as taken from the published Financial Statements and other sources. If the Public Examiner is O. K ing these bills is there any reason to suppose he is not O. K ing others equally as divergent? Stop your twatter about each other and wade into something the people are interested in.

And Every Democrat, Every Republican, Every Man, Woman or Child who can read will want to read it.

* * * * "Meantime we prefer to take our chance with the conservative Democrats, fighting within the party, to reform it of its excesses, and to restore it to its better uses, than to pursue an Ignis Fatuus which, if it had been more real, would have resulted in the election, instead of the defeat, of the Free Silver Fusion in 1896, and which with singular unanimity, the voters have refused to follow. * * * * The Courier-Journal is a Democrat, not a Republican; and it will under no circumstances or conditions pursue a policy whose only effect is to continue the Republican party in power."

The Twice-a-Week Courier-Journal is a Democratic paper, of six or eight pages, issued Wednesday and Saturday of each week The Wednesday issue prints all the Clean News, and the Saturday issue prints Stories, Miscellany, Poetry, all matters of special interest in the home. SHIP OF STATE.

Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity, with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
We know what Master laid thy keel,
What Workman wrought thy ribs of steel,
Who made each mast, and sail, and rope,
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope!
Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
'Tis of the wave and not the rock;
'Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale!
In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee!
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee,—are all with thee!
—H. W. Longfellow.

COL. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, and his Nebraska regiments are booked for the expedition to the Philippines with Gen. Wesley Merritt. Gen. Merritt must feel pretty big to have in his army an ex-presidential candidate, and an ex-presidential candidate's son, to say nothing of the numerous presidential possibilities among the men in his command.

FROM all accounts and reports Gov. David Clough of Minnesota deserves considerable praise for getting the three regiments of troops called for into the field before any other state in the union and better equipped and provided for, thereby giving them the advantage of being the oldest volunteers in the service and in the line of promotion coming first The people are proud of the achievement of their Governor anyway.

COL. C. MC REEVE, of the 13 Reg. now at San Francisco is mentioned as a fusion candidate for Congress against Loren Fletcher from the 5th district. Prof. T. J. Caton is already in the field and if the forces are divided the probibilities are that young Uncle Loren will take the cake. So far as we know both Caton and Reeve are good men, and either would be a big improvement on the present incumbent but only one had best run at a time.

SOME of the Globe's recent desperate efforts to whip the Democratic party of Minnesota into her narrow golden channel is perfectly ridiculous. Why the Democratic party has always been for democratic money of the constitution, coin, gold and silver. Now a few of the ilk of the Globe want a gold standard which means, really a lot of bonds and paper money all payable in gold which would enable the money grabbers to twist down almost any man they desired to keep from rising in the world.

AFTER reading the description given by some of the 13th Reg. boys of San Francisco's Chinatown, one is led to wonder how it is that the soldiers who enlisted in the interests or humanity, and to relieve people from tyrany can go through such a place on their way to forign lands without first wiping it from the face of the earth. And to think that money grabbing American citizens instrumental in keeping up such a cancer in one of the most beautiful cities of our own country, and that Christian people live around it, and visit it by the thousands, and do nothing towards eradicating it, brings a tinge of shame to those who even read of it.

THE parties opposed to the longer reign of Republicanism, as it is now constituted in our state will assemble in conventions at Minneapolis on Wednesday, June 15 to select candidates for State officers. From all appearances John Lind will be chosen the nominee for governor by all of them, without opposition. The other state offices will, doubtless, be divided up among the different parties. It is to be hoped that only the very best men for the different positions will be nominated. People have got tired voting for men simply to please cliques and party bosses; they now demand first class men all along the line. With a ticket of that kind, and a working in unison there is a fine chance to succeed, but the catering to the wishes of cliques by placing men not qualified or deserving of office on the ticket, men are driven to forsake their principles in order to get good men. Good principles and good men are what is wanted. The Democrats are likely to endorse the platform of '96, and go in to make a cleaning out in management of state affairs generally.

The committee on resolutions reported the following:

RESOLUTIONS.

We the Democracy of Wright County in Convention assembled do hereby affirm our allegiance to the timehonored principles of the Democratic party as declared in the Chicago platform of 1896 and ask the co-operation of all voters who believe in a government by the people as against rule by corporations and rings.

Resolved, That we are unalterably opposed to machine politics and the practice of creating offices to be filled simply to strengthen the machine and which are of no benefit to the people, as practiced by dominant party in this state.

Resolved, That the fruitful efforts of our present Congressman in placing a tariff on lumber has proved an unjust burden to farmers and middle classes and is deserving of the severest criticism of all voters who believe in a government for the common good of the majority of the people.

Resolved, That we admire the unselfish patriotism displayed by the sons of Minnesota in leaving their peaceful vocations to become volunteer defenders of the country in our present struggle with Spain.

J. C. NUGENT,
E. A. SHANNON,
R. M. BOHN.

It was moved and carried that the Convention elect delegates to the State Convention, four at large and four from each commissioner district; to the Congressional Convention three at large and three from each commissioner district. War and Politics.

Maple Plain, Minn., June 6, 1898,
Editor BUFFALO GAZETTE,

Mr. Editor. These times war and politics makes a savory meal for all who are on the anxious seat, and patriotism is perched upon the house tops. Patriotism: love of one's country, protecting its rights, and maintaining its laws etc.—Webster.

Many of our people are anxious to give millions for war, but nothing for peace. It seems the president of the United States did not want to get involved in a war with Spain, but Congress said we must have war; Cuba must be free, and the starving reconcentradoes must be fed. As yet, they have done neither. Is this war all for humanity's sake, or are there other things in view?

And Samuel said: "What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears and the lowing of oxen which I hear?" And Saul said: "They have brought them from the Amalekites."

Now if it is the policy of this government to put all our young Uriah's in the front of the battle for gain or notoriety then I vote no. It is an old proverb which says charity begins at home. Is it charity for our country to sacrifice many thousands of her citizens and millions of her treasure to settle a family row? It was not our fight. During the war of the rebellion no nation helped us and we had four years of bloody war and many of our soldiers starved and rotted in prison. If this country intends to do the charity act she never need be out of a job. We can help some country all the time.

What is the policy of the government in appointing so many young and unexperienced men to be Brigadier Generals. I can see no object only for the honor it gives and the boodle there is in it, and the calling for more troops seems a little premature. Better wait until they can furnish and equip what they have already got. I am in favor of patriotism, and also in defending our homes, our country and our free institutions, and am opposed to forming any entangling alliance with foreign nations, and this was the policy of Washington. But if someone says there is a dog fight down street the whole village is excited and anxious to take a hand in the conflict. Some say it is necessary to have war in order to make good times, but these expressions generally come from somebody who does not intend to go, but they are perfectly willing the other fellow should go. And such expressions often come too, from people who are or claim to be Christians. They say God will fight our battles, but God never answers a prayer of which he does not approve.

Now this war has begun; and for what purpose? Will some one please answer. Some say it was for humanity's sake, but some critic says if it costs us thousands of lives and millions of money "Is it meat to give our children's bread to the dogs."

"Rehoboam refused the counsel of the old men and said he would make his little finger thicker than his father's loins. "My father chastised you with whips but I will chastise you with scorpions." But it has become a custom or practice now days for men must muster in the biggest crowd. Follow all the silly and foolish frivolities or you are a back number; you are not patriotic. And if needs be you must even subscribe to the devil's creed and trust to the confessional box to get you through by the short line rout. We are now getting every day, it is said, a million deeper in debt, and by turning our non interest bearing notes into bonds, and then passing a law to pay that interest in coin, and interpreting coin to mean gold. Supplementing this with the creation of a national banking system and then striking down silver constitutes one of the greatest outrages ever imposed upon the American people, and yet the people seem to tolerate it.

It seems that it takes but little to fool or entertain the American people. We have a grand and glorious country surpassed by no other country in the world, in natural advantages, resources, climate, and everything that goes to make a nation prosperous and happy and yet you will hear some men say it is necessary to have a war in order to make good times. Such expressions come only from a mistified brain. Their passion is stronger than reason.

"In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle:
Be a hero in the the strife.
Art is long and time is fleeting,
And our hearts though stout and brave
Still like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.
Longfellow.

I have before me a copy of the pay roll of the army.

Generals $13,500 a year; Lieut. Gen. $11,000; Major Gen. $7,500; Brigadier Gen. $5,500 and so on down to the private at $13 per month. Pay of the navy Admiral $13,000 per year; Vice Admiral $9,000; Rear Admiral $6,000 and so on down to ordinary seamen, who gets $228 a year. At present there are no generals or lieutenant generals in the army, and no admirals or vice admirals in the navy.

War is the most expensive business a nation can engage in. It costs lives by thousands and it costs money by millions. It causes unrest and excitement. It makes widows and orphans and fills a nation with mourning. The battleship Maine was blown up and 266 of our brave men were killed but God says: "Vengence is mine and I will repay."

"He that taketh the sword must perish by the sword."

Bravery and patriotism is in defending the flag against an invading army; defending our homes, our rights and our free institutions guaranteed to us by our forefathers. According to ancient history we have had wars from the beginning, but most of them were unprovoked. No doubt war will cause money to circulate more freely, but after it is over in a few years hard times will come and the poor will be taxed heavily to pay the nation's debt. I hoped to never again see our country involved in another war, but of all thing let us sacrifice none of our nations principles and as little money and as few lives as possible. The young men of the country is the flower of our nation.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, 1898.

Brigadier Gen. Shafter, who is in command of the troops sent to Santiago de Cuba to help Commodore Schley capture or wipe out the Spanish fleeet that Schley has barred up in that harbor, didn't travel in a luxurious observation car, nor carry a porcelain bath tub with him—only Gen. Miles trrvels with all those frills— but he and his men will give a good account of themselves all the same. News of the capture of Santiago by Gen. Shafter is daily expected and about the same time Schley will either destroy or capture that entire Spanish fleet; he has already disabled the outer forts and some of the warships.

From leakings through the government censor mill there are reasons to believe that about the same time Gen. Shafter's command left Florida for Santiago another large body of troops embarked bound for Porto Rico, which is to be captured and permanently held. If these two movements succeed, the public will be disposed to forgive Gen. Miles for having succeeded in postponing the general invasion of Cuba and movement on Havana, although it will probably continue to poke fun at his ideas of how a soldier ought to travel. He says he needs at least 100,000 men to invade Cuba, and his critics add, "a special train, with private observation car and porcelain bath tub attachments."

Major General M. C. Butler, ex-Senator from S. C. was this week commissioned and ordered to duty as commander of the first division of the 2nd Army Corps, at Camp Alger, under Major General Graham. Ex-Gov. Oates, of Ala., has also received his commission as Brigadier General.

Senator Chandler created quite a sensation, in a speech on the war revenue bill, which is still before the Senate, in which he accused Mr. McKinley of duplicity in connection with the silver question, and jumped all over Secretary Gage for his efforts in attempting to irrevocably commit the administration to the gold standard. He read a letter that he wrote to Mr. McKinley last September, predicting the failure of the bimetallic commission headed by Senator Wolcott, and stated that it had never been answered. He recalled the fact that Mr. McKinley, Senator Allison, and other prominent republicans had upon several occasions voted for silver, and was quite sarcastic at their expense. He incidently referred to the republican party not having hesitated to reorganize the Supreme Court in order to assert the right of the U. S. to issue irredeemable paper money, and said that national honor was not in danger by the free coinage of silver if it was not endangered by the issue of paper. Mr. Chandler's reference to the Supreme Court legal tender decision nagged Senator Hoar, who considered it a reflection upon his brother, at the time Attorney General, and he made a reply, ending as follows: "Stating my belief that the honorable Senator (Mr. Chandler) has been misled, I declare upon my responsibility as a Senator and as a gentlemen the charge that the Supreme Court was packed to declare the issue of legal tender notes constitutional is as vile a slander as as ever thrust up its dirty head from the stump."

The House this week passed the bill, already passed by the Senate, removing all political disabilities incurred by violation of the third section of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution. Incidently there was some patriotic and some breezy talk about the right of Gen. Wheeler, who is on duty with the army to retain his seat in the House. Representative Bailey, of Texas, took strong ground against the constitutionality of one man holding a military and a civil office at the same time.

Czar Reed is still holding his own in the fight he is making against the annexation of Hawaii. In fact, he is doing better than holding his own. He gained a victory, although it may be only temporary, when Senator Lodge was compelled to withdraw his annexation amendment to the war-revenue bill, and the Senate agreed to let annexation alone until after the war-revenue bill was passed. Reed had told those members of the House who wish him to allow the annexation resolution to be voted upon that if the Senate acted first he would at once do so. They are still after him in the House, but the most he will promise is to allow a vote after the war-revenue bill is passed. But he is likely to pay dearly for his triumph, temporary as it is, as it is semi-officially stated that if Congress doesn't act, Mr. Mc Kinley will seize Hawaii as a war measure. Unless shrewd members of his party are mistaken, he has by his attitude on this question destroyed any chance he might have had to be nominated for President in 1900.

The Church the Training School of Character.

Abstract of the Baccalaureate sermon preached before the Delano High school Sunday evening June 5th by the Rev. C. M. Heard, D. D., Editor of "The Conference Examiner" Minneapolis, Minn.

"Till we all attain unto the yanity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a full grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ"

Eph. IV, 13.

Apart from the Gospel of Christ it is impossible to tell what it is to be a man. Man has lost his ideal. He is like a builder who has lost the plans of the master architect; like a ship captain who has lost his reckoning at sea. But God has never lost his ideal for us, the ideal which guided the creating process when he said: "Let us make man in our image and in our likeness." And so it follows that we must go to God to find what we are and what we may become. According to Aristotle the definition of a thing is not what it is, its actual, but what it were to be it, its ideal. This gives a man a right to say, "I am not what I am: I am what I may be through the grace of God."

There are three institutions which God employs to enable man to realize his ideal and become a full grown man, The Family, The State, The Church. The Family is the institute of the natural affections and the unit of society. It originated with God as the crowning work of the creation. Dominion was conferred upon man in connection with the institution of the family relation, a hint that the conservation of the family is essential to civilization.

Out of this germinal unit of society has been evolved the State, the tribal relation being an intermediate step in the process. This is the institute of rights, the school of the industrial life, the theater for the development of patriotism which is simply the extension of the principle of the love of man. This institution too, like the family, is of God.

Are these two institutions the only ones needed for the perfecting of manhood? We concede a very high character to the man who fills the ideal of the family and the state. Nothing more would be needed, for this life at least, if family and civic virtues could grow without root in the more inward relations of our life to its Author. The spiritual relation that we hold to God is the very heart of life. It is impossible to be exactly right any where else if we are wrong here, for the soul of man like his body, is an organism, and if one member suffers all others suffer with it. We therefore need an institution for the promotion and protection of the spiritual life. This would have been a necessity in a perfect state free from moral evil. Much more is it needed in our present state into which sin has entered. We have therefore a special gospel in view of sin and an institution for the teaching of that gospel. The church is the training school of character. Christ is at the head of this institution, its Lord and Master. In him the lost ideal of manhood is restored to the race. Like all teachers, he teaches more by what he is than by what he says. And unlike all human teachers he spake as never man spake, and established a perfect correspondence between what he taught and what he was. Through Him we came to substantial unity of faith. The watchword of His church is cooperation. This is as needful for building up men ethically and spiritually as for building them up socially and industrially. Be careful not to despise the "little white meeting house". In a sense it is the foundation of the "little red school house". It represents that which gives vitality to all the activities of advancing civilization. Without that for which the church stands, fraternities, schools, civil liberty, happy homes and social progress would be impossible. Stand by the church then as the school of character. The more you put into it, the more you will get out of it. Sow bountifully and you will reap bountifully.

Letter from Dr. Fassett.

AUBURN, N. Y., June 1st., 1898.
T. J. CATLIN, M. D.

Dear Doctor: I have visited Philadelphia, Pa., having had an invitation to attend the annual commencement of my alma mater "Jefferson Medical College," by its present professors. The invitation informed me that I had the honor of being the oldest living graduate and practicioneer of Jefferson College." Dr. Forbes and the Dean told me I was the oldest by eight years."

My diploma was much of a curiosity to the professors of the college and physicians and surgeons of "Jefferson Hospital" where I had free access to rooms of patients and clinical surgery. The diploma has the signatures of its early and most distinguished professors, and bears the marks of age. The names of the professors, my own name, and dates, written with ink are almost obliterated.

I graduated from Jefferson in 1840, after attending lectures there during the years 1838-9-40.

My diploma is a very valuable document to me. When received, it was in a round Jappan case; and was in my brother's office in Lockport, N. Y., with whom I commenced practice, when the building burned and all in it was consumed. Our great library and all our surgical instruments were burned; nothing was saved from the building. My diploma, however, was found unburned, in the ashes, most providentially! It has served me for 58 years. You remember presenting it before the Medical Board of Examiners in Minnesota by my request, when it was accepted and registered. On the back of it is posted the authority of the Regents of New York state to practice in this state, and it is recorded here in Auburn, giving me license to practice in Cayuga Co. and I have united here with the Cavuga Co. Medical society.

My thanks are due to you and Dr. Shrader for your long continued personal friendship, and aid at times in medical counsel.

Providence has given me a pleasant home in this beautiful city, where I hope to be of service yet in my profession to our suffering race.

I could mention the marvelous advance in medicine and surgery which I witnessed in "Jefferson Hospital", while absent, contrasting with half a century ago, but space will not allow.

Yours Fraternally,
O. R. FASSETT, M. D.

In Russia 11 laboratories are engaged in the manufacture of diphtheria serum, in which the entire people place great confidence, and not without reason, as in 44,631 registered cases in which the serum was used the death rate was but 14 per cent., against 31 per cent. of the 6,597 cases in which it was not employed.

One of the newest things in the building line is the aluminium hut. A Pennsylvania firm is said to be making this article for the Klondike miners. When packed for carriage it weighs 110 pounds. It is composed of four sides and a roof of thin sheets of aluminium, and when put up the house contains 190 cubic feet.

The big guns of our modern battle ships are dangerous to those who use them. In the war between the Chinese and Japanese, in 1894, Commander Philo McGiffin, of the Chinese vessel Chen-Yuen, had both of his eardrums rent by the concussion of his own guns, at the battle of Yalu. Several of the crew were similarly permanently injured.

Russia has tried experiments with aluminium shoes for cavalry horses. A few horses in the Finland dragoons were shod with one aluminium shoe and three iron shoes each, the former being on the fore foot in some cases and on the hind foot in others. The experiment lasted six weeks and showed that the aluminium shoes lasted longer and preserved the foot better than the iron ones.

In a sentence, Russia is a huge farm, comprising a seventh of the land surface of the globe, and a 26th of its total area. It has half a dozen men to manage it—according to the policy of one of the six—and the people are divided into 10,000,000 of men and women of the more or less comfortable, more or less educated class, and 119,000,000 of citizens, the mass of whom form the dullest, rudest least ambitious peasantry in Europe.

The monument raised by the Empress Elizabeth to her son, the late Crown Prince Rudolph, has been erected in front of the Mayerling shooting box, where the ill-fated hope of the Hapsburg met his tragic death. The shooting box was converted into a convent, where the pious nuns pray perpetually for the repose of his soul. The monument is a pyramid of white marble, three meters in height, with a relief portrait of the crown prince.

Among all the Dewey stories it is impossible to determine which is the very latest, but here is one that is recent. He was such a fighter at school, and caused his teachers and father so much trouble, that at last the latter lost patience, and, calling the youth into his study, said: "If you must fight, I'll fix it so that you will hereafter make fighting a business." Accordingly the boy was secured an appointment as cadet at Annapolis.

Gen. Weyler, former captain general of Cuba, makes a proposition to the Spanish government. He proposes that Spain furnishes him with 50,000 Spanish soldiers and he will come over and capture the United States. Spain should not lose this opportunity. If that country will furnish the men we will furnish the transports, and 15,000 United States troops will demonstrate to the world how quick they can puncture the sails of this conceited windbag.

Differences of patriotic sentiment has caused a disruption of the family of Vincente Hauria Martens, a wealthy insurance man of New York City. Believing that duty called him to Madrid to take up arms for his native land, for he is a Spaniard, Mr. Martens is now enlisted in the Spanish army, while his son Richard has joined the 71st regiment to fight against him, and is now in Florida. His father is with the Spanish troops in Cuba.

Perhaps the smallest electric motor in the world is in the scarf pin of D. Goodwin, of McKinney, Tex. He is a skilled watchmaker, and recently he constructed the motor, which is so small that a ten cent piece will cover it. It weighs only 9-100 of an ounce. The front of the motor is of highly polished gold and the commutator and segments are of the same metal. Mr. Goodwin wears the curiosity in his necktie, and it makes a very attractive decoration, the nature of which can only be discovered by close inspection.

Alfonso XIII, Spain's boy king, amuses himself by drilling a company of guards in the grounds of the palace, and in one of the apartments are toy models to the extent of a hundred or more of men and officers of the various regiments of the Spanish forces. These are placed in formation by two or three veteran officers and perform sham battles against another crowd of toy soldiers supposed to be Americans, which of course, have to suffer severe defeat. He has also models of different war ships floating in one of the palace lakes.

In Oregon they are teaching in the special schools a number of simple household duties. For instance, one of these is how to kindle a fire. Now, at first blush, it would seem to be trifling with time to teach a boy or girl how to start a fire in a stove or on a hearth. But the mass of children grow up without understanding that art. It requires a certain skill and knowledge, which it is found the many do not have. Fire mismanagement by girls has been a prolific source of woe. It means ill-cooked food, waste of fuel, loss of time, and danger to life and property.

The American people feel jubilant over the great victory of Adm. Dewey and his brave men at Manila. While we are celebrating our success in the east let us not forget that we can do something that will delight the hearts of our victorious sailors, by collecting hundreds of newspapers and magazines that contain glowing articles on the naval victory, and send them to the fleet for distribution by the next expedition that sails for Manila. It will cheer the brave Yankee boys to read of the kind things said of them by their kind friends on this side of the globe.

A DEED OF COURAGE.

Sinking of the Merrimac an Exhibition of the Rarest Bravery.

Lieut. Hobson and a Crew of Seven Block the Channel at Santiago Under Heavy Fire—Cervera Recognizes Their Courage.

Santiago de Cuba, June 4(via Kingston, Jamaica, June 6).—Rear Admiral Sampson during Friday morning decided to close up the narrow harbor entrance of Santiago de Cuba by sinking the collier Merrimac, loaded with coal in the channel. He called for volunteers to go to almost certain death and 4,000 men offered themselves. Lieut. Hobson and six men were chosen and at three o'clock Friday morning the Merrimac, under her own steam, entered the channel under a terrible Spanish fire. The vessel was riddled with projectiles, but she anchored and swung around. Lieut. Hobson then set off an internal torpedo with an electric attachment. There was an explosion, the Merrimac sank, the channel was closed up, and, apparently, Admiral Cervera will be unable to escape.

How the Heroes Were Saved.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 6.—Hobson and the hero crew of the Merrimac were saved in the following manner: Unable, after the sinking of their vessel, to make their way back through the storm of shot and shell, they rowed into the harbor to the Spanish flagship and were taken on board unharmed. The Spanish admiral, under a flag of truce, on Friday sent word to the American admiral that he offered to exchange the prisoners, adding that in the meanwhile Hobson and his party would be treated with the greatest kindness.

The News at Washington.

Washington, June 6. — Washington rings with praise for the gallantry of Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson and the seven heroic seamen who joined him in facing death at Santiago de Cuba while sinking the collier Merrimac in the channel just before daybreak Friday morning. The gallant eight went to what seemed certain death with the apparent coolness of men performing quiet daily duties.

The officer hero of the Merrimac occasion is an assistant naval constructor, and hence attached to the staff, and heretofore not ordinarily engaged in line duty. He entered the naval academy from Alabama in May, 1885, and is now 28 years old. He graduated in 1889 at the head of his class, and as a consequence of this distinction was sent to France by the government to take a course in naval architecture. When the war broke out he applied for active duty, and was sent with three naval cadets under his charge to the flagship of Admiral Sampson's squadron. He is described as tall, athletic build, very quiet and unassuming manner, and would not be picked out ordinarily as having the high bravery his intimate associates knew lay beneath his modest manner.

A Difficult Task.

As to the prospect of the Merrimac being removed by the Spaniards, as is reported to be under way at Santiago, the officials at the navy department declare that this is likely to be a difficult, dangerous and time-consuming operation. The hulk could be blown up by the use of dynamite charges, which would not be difficult to place in the shallow water where the Merrimac lies, for the reports say the top of the funnel is above water, indicating a depth of about 40 or 50 feet, but it is believed that the wreck lies in sight from the sea, and it is not doubted that Sampson will post some of the heavy ironclads in such a position as to be able to command the site with her heavy guns and prevent the Spanish wreckers from working. At night something might be accomplished by the wreckers, but even that work would be full of danger.

Substantial promotion is in store for the gallant men who took the Merrimac in.

Cervera's Tribute to Bravery.

With the Fleet Off Santiago, June 3, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 6 (Delayed in Transmission).—All the members of the Merrimac expedition are safe. Two are slightly wounded, but Lieut. Hobson escaped without a scratch. This almost incredible good news was brought out to Rear Admiral Sampson by Admiral Cervera's chief of staff, under a flag of truce. "Admiral Cervera," said Capt. Bastemonte y Oveido, "is so touched with the bravery of your men that he felt it only right you should know they were alive. They are prisoners of war and are being well treated."

Praised in London.

London, June 6.—All the papers refer in terms of the highest praise to Naval Constructor Hobson's daring exploit at Santiago de Cuba, but some doubts are thrown upon the statement that the Merrimac so completely blocks the channel as the American reports assert.

Two Negroes Lynched.

St. Louis, June 7.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Clarksville, Mo., says: An excursion boat from Quincy, Ill., and Hannibal, Mo., arrived here with about 300 negroes on board. After the boat had tied up, Curtis Young got into a fight with a colored woman named Lena Bryan, of Hannibal. It became general and City Marshal Meloan went on board to quell it. He put Curtis Young under arrest, when somebody in the crowd shot the marshal in the back and he died in 15 minutes. A posse of 50 men went on board the boat and arrested Sam Young, Curtis Young, Bob Taylor and Charles Taylor, all colored, and took them to the city jail, where they were all locked up pending the arrival of the prosecuting attorney from Bowling Green, the county seat. When he arrived he found that Curtis and Sam Young had been taken from the jail and hanged to a convenient tree.

Bombardment Renewed.

Port au Prince, June 7.—Advices from Santiago de Cuba say that Monday morning about 7:45 a lively cannonade was heard in the direction of Aguadores. It increased in intensity on both sides and toward eight o'clock became violent. At 8:30 o'clock it was still very furious. No further details have been received, but it is believed that the Spanish ships anchored in the bay of Santiago held the insurgents in check when the latter were attacking the town.

DEWEY ALL RIGHT.

Report Received from the Admiral of Condition at Manila—Monadnock Ordered to Philippines.

Washington, June 7.—After a lot of conflicting rumors of naval engagements, the landing of troops and such matters at the navy department there came at the close of the day one important bit of news embodied in a report from Admiral Dewey of important successes achieved by the insurgents at Manila. The navy department at two p. m. Monday posted the following bulletin:

"Admiral Dewey reports that the insurgents have been actively engaged within the province of Cavite during the past week. They have won several victories, taken prisoners about 1,800 men, 50 officers of the Spanish troops not native. The arsenal of Cavite has been prepared for occupation by the United States troops upon their arrival on transports.

"Admiral Sampson is engaged in arranging with Admiral Cervera for the exchange of Naval Constructor Hobson and the men with him now prisoners at Santiago for some of the officers and men held prisoners by the United States at Fort McPherson."

The navy department gave orders Monday that the double-turreted monitor Monadnock, now at Mare Island, Cal., should be made ready to sail for Manila within ten days, and the necessary orders were hurriedly telegraphed. The Monterey will not wait for the company of the Monadnock. The navy department will immediately procure a merchant ship to accompany the Monadnock on her 6,000-mile voyage. The Monadnock is a most powerful double-turreted monitor. With twin screws and 3,000 horse-power engines, she is easily able to make 12½ knots an hour. With these two monitors Admiral Dewey will be fully able to take care of himself even should the much-talked-of Cadiz fleet undertake to attack him in Manila harbor.

Spain Anxious for Peace.

Washington, June 6.—The belief is growing in the best informed government circles that Spain is sincerely anxious to make peace, and that even now she is seeking a favorable opportunity to make overtures in that direction. Numerous evidences of this have come to the attention of the authorities here, but up to this time no actual move has been made toward ascertaining on what basis the United States would consider peace. It is said that the first step would be toward having some disinterested power make inquiry of this government as to what terms would be accepted, after which, the terms being stated, it would be for Spain to form a commission and make a formal tender of peace. The authorities here feel that Spain is feeling her way toward a movement of this kind.

Vast Army Moving.

Washington, June 7.—The last of the first expedition to Cuba left Tampa Monday night, 46 transports carrying 26,000 men with horses, wagons, artillery, siege guns and all the necessary equipments and supplies for a campaign of six months. Gen. Shafter is in command. Twenty thousand troops went from Tampa and 6,000 under Gen. Carpenter from Mobile. It will take them about seven days to get around to Santiago de Cuba.

Work Resumed.

Fall River, Mass., June 7.—The Fall River iron works cotton mills, employing 2,700 hands, resumed operations Monday, after a shutdown of five weeks' duration. All the mills except the Robeson are in operation. The Merchants and American linen mills, which have curtailed of late, have started all their machinery. A more hopeful tone prevails in the print cloth market, and manufacturers have been able to contract for several weeks ahead.

SPAIN LOSES GROUND.

A Thousand Spaniards Killed in Big Battle in Philippines—Insurgents Victorious at Every Point.

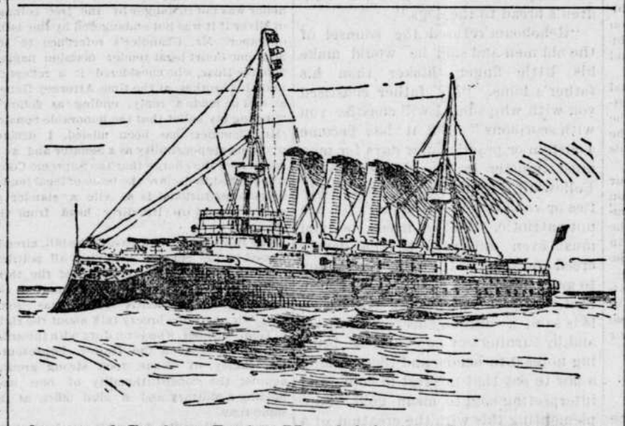
Manila, May 31, via Hong-Kong, June 7.—The Spanish outposts have been driven in all along the line, simultaneously and with great slaughter. It is said that over 1,000 have been killed. There has been fierce hand-to-hand fighting for 70 hours, despite the typhoon which was raging. The violent winds and torrents of rain render the rifles of the Spanish troops unavailing. The natives easily win at every step with their slashing knives. The insurgents hold Malabon, Tarlac and Baccor. They are now attacking Santa Mesa and Molte, the suburbs of the city, which is completely encircled for a distance of seven miles.

The governor is arranging to remove all the Spanish population inside the old walled city. He is filling the moats, testing the drawbridges and placing strong guards in the principal streets and artillery along the walls. All the other troops are camping in the suburbs.

Many natives will try to secure the large reward the government has offered for the capture of the insurgent chief Aguinaldo, dead or alive. Already several of the insurgent officers have been assassinated.

London, June 7.—The Hong-Kong correspondent of the Standard says: Advices from Manila say that Admiral Dewey has gathered the steamers now blockaded in the river to lie off Cavite in readiness to receive foreigners. The Spaniards are losing arms, ammunition and field pieces almost daily, so persistent are the rebel attacks. The natives are flocking to Aguinaldo's standard. He is, on the whole, conducting the campaign on humane principles. In the course of a pitched battle on May 30 a number of native auxiliaries deserted the Spanish colors for the insurgents. Judging from the general tenor of the news from Manila there is reason to believe that the city will fall into Dewey's hands before the arrival of the American troops.

"Now, my boy, show 'em what you can do."



Armored Cruiser Carlos V., of Admiral Cervera's Fleet.

Deficiency Bill Passed.

Washington, June 3.—The house practically without debate passed the urgent deficiency bill providing for emergency expenses of the army and navy departments incident to the war. It was based upon estimates received recently from the departments, and carries items contemplated in the Philippine expedition and the early movements upon Cuba. The bill carries $17,850,000.

Washington, June 7.—The senate Monday passed the urgent deficiency bill. The deficiency bill measure carried appropriations for the war and navy establishments aggregating $17,745,000. These appropriations are in addition to the amounts to be carried later by the general deficiency bill.

Protest Presented by Hay.

London, June 7.—The United States ambassador, Col. John Hay, called at the foreign office Monday and presented evidence of Spanish officials making Canada the base of operations, and protested against a continuance of this practice. The protest is based on the fact that it would be a breach of neutrality for Great Britain to permit her territory to be used for such hostile purposes.

Kentucky Feud Rages.

Pineville, Ky., June 6.—The Howard-Baker feud is raging in Clay county. Lilse Baker was killed Friday night and James Garrard has fled to Middlesboro. Judge Brown will not be allowed to hold court to-day. Gov. Bradley has been solicited for troops to protect the court, but he has none to send. Six men have been killed in the last ten days.

WAR REVENUE.

The Senate Amends and Passes the House Bill—Taxes Provided for by the Measure.

Washington, June 6.—With no evidence of excitement and without incident worthy of special note, but with manifestations of deep interest, the war revenue measure was passed by the senate Saturday evening at 7:05 o'clock. The bill was under consideration eight hours Saturday. A score or more of attempts were made to amend it, but in only three or four instances were the attempts successful. Particular effort was made to amend the bond provision of the measure, but it was futile in every instance.

The most notable amendment made to the measure Saturday was that offered by Senator Tillman (dem., S. C.) placing a duty of ten cents a pound on all tea imported into the United States. The amendment created no debate and was adopted by a vote of 28 to 32. It is calculated by the senate experts that the duty, if it be finally enacted into law, will raise at least $10,000,000 a year, and probably more.

A strong effort was made by Senator Morgan to incorporate the income tax feature in the bill, but it was defeated—35 to 28.

On the passage of the bill every republican voted in the affirmative. By parties the vote in favor of the measure was as follows: Republicans, 39; democrats, 7; populist, 1; silver-republican, 1; total 48. Against the bill the vote was: Democrats, 20; populists, 7, and silver republican, 1; total, 28.

The democrats who voted for the bill were Senators Caffery, Gorman, Lindsay, McEnery, Mitchell, Murphy and Turpie; the populist was Senator Kyle and the silver republican was Senator Mantle.

As passed the bill provides revenue as follows:

Bankers Assign.

Elmira, N. Y., June 6.—A. Weston & Co., bankers at Painted Post, N. Y., and the Weston Engine company made a general assignment Saturday. Assets large and liabilities larger, but amount not known. Enterprises at North Tonawanda, N. Y., Manistique, Mich., Ottawa, Ont., and Governeur controlled by A. Weston may be involved, tying up from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of property.

Destitution in Santiago.

Cape Haytien, June 6.—A dispatch from a government source at Port au Prince says: A Haytien informant, now in Santiago de Cuba, cables that the destitution there has greatly increased since the bombardment began, and the military commander has been forced to reduce the rations of the soldiers, among whom there is much discontent.

HAWAIIAN QUESTION.

President McKinley Points Out Urgent Need of Prompt Action by Congress.

Washington, June 4.—President McKinley discussed the question of Hawaiian annexation with several representatives who were in conference with him Friday. He told them it was of the utmost importance that the two houses of congress take prompt action upon the resolution. He indicated that he had received assurances of a majority in the senate who will vote for annexation, and is therefore confident that it will become a law. It seems to be generally understood that the resolution will be brought up in the house promptly next week. One proposition is to call it up next Tuesday on the call of committees. A bill considered in this way is subject to all parliamentary motions. This plan has been presented to Chairman Hitt, of the foreign affairs committee. Members of that committee are of the opinion that the resolution may be gotten through in two or three days.

Washington, June 7.—The senators who are most strenuously opposing the annexation of Hawaii have been canvassing the senate and claim that they have a sufficient number of senators pledged to adjourn, in preference to taking up the annexation resolution, to insure the adoption of this course, even though the house acts favorably upon the question. They say that the names of seven republican senators are included in the list who have thus pledged themselves.

NAVAL HERO DEAD.

Capt. Gridley, Commander of Dewey's Flagship at the Battle of Manila, Passes Away.

Washington, June 6.—Capt. Charles V. Gridley, commander of the cruiser Olympia and one of the heroes of the brilliant victory at Manila, is dead. The announcement of his death was received by the navy department late Sunday afternoon, in a cablegram from Paymaster Gelt, of the navy, dated at Kobe, Japan, June 4, and directed to Secretary Long. The dispatch contained this simple statement: "Capt. Gridley died to-day. Remains accompany me on Coptic."

Capt. Vernon Gridley is the first American officer of great prominence whose death is a direct result of the existing war with Spain. As commander of Admiral Dewey's splendid flagship and one of the admiral's chief advisers, Capt. Gridley achieved distinction at the battle of Manila bay and added to his previous laurels by winning high praise from his superiors in the service for distinguished gallantry and ability. He fought his ship from the conning tower, while Admiral Dewey directed the movements of his squadron from the bridge of the vessel. Capt. Gridley was born in Logansport, Ind., in 1845, but was appointed to the naval academy from Hillsdale, Mich, in 1860.

SENDS HIS REPORT.

Commodore Schley Tells of His Recent Maneuvers Off Santiago.

Washington, June 4. — The navy department has received an official report from Commodore Schley regarding his recent attack on the forts at the entrance of Santiago harbor. It was read at Friday's cabinet meeting and received with satisfaction.

The following is the report as posted by the navy department:

"Secretary Navy, Washington: Made reconnoissance this afternoon, May 31, with the Massachusetts, Iowa and New Orleans, to develop fortifications with their character. The fire was returned with delay by the heavy batteries to the east and to the west, large caliber, long ranges. The range was 7,000 yards. Reconnoisance developed satisfactorily the presence of the Spanish squadron lying behind the island, near the upper fort, as they fired over the hill at random. Quite satisfied the Spanish fleet is here.

"(Signed) SCHLEY."

An Important Gathering.

Philadelphia, June 6.—A union meeting of the representatives of the five great railroad unions covering Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia was held in this city Sunday. The unions represented were the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Brotherhood of Railway Conductors and Order of Railroad Telegraphers. The meeting was held in the Walnut Street theater and Henry Howerter, of the firemen, presided. Nearly 1,000 delegates were present. The morning session was a secret one and began at nine o'clock. The meeting indorsed a petition signed by 40,000 persons, which requests congress to frame some legislation whereby all future railroad disputes may be settled by arbitration and without recourse to strikes.

Predicted Spain's Defeat.

Montreal, Can., June 6.—Ramon Carranza, who is at the head of the Spanish spy bureau in Montreal, recently wrote a letter to the minister of marine at Madrid, in which he criticised Admiral Camara and predicted the ultimate defeat of Spain. The letter was secured by United States secret service detectives and is published. Carranza's utterances are said to be treasonable, and he may be executed if he ever returns to Spain. He speaks also of the spy system which he is conducting and refers to a proposed attack on coast cities of this country. The Spanish spies are to be expelled from Canada by the authorities of that country, now that positive proof is at hand to make a case against them.

Arrested as a Defaulter.

Chester, Pa., June 7.—Orlando Harvey, secretary and solicitor of the Delaware County Building association, was arrested Monday evening on a warrant sworn out by the directors, charging him with the misappropriation of $37,000 of the association's funds. A large number of working people have lost all their savings of years, and the discovery of the defalcation has produced a profound sensation.

Troops Said to Have Landed.

New York, June 7.—A special from Kingston, Jamaica, reports that 5,000 United States troops have landed near Punta Cabrera, a little to the west of Santiago de Cuba, where a junction was effected with Gen. Calixto Garcia's army of 3,000 insurgents. It is added that the landing was effected under cover of a fire from Admiral Sampson's fleet. With the troops were several heavy siege guns.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

STRONG STATEMENTS.

Three Women Relieved of Female Troubles by Mrs. Pinkham.

From Mrs. A. W. Smith, 59 Summer St., Biddeford, Me.:

"For several years I suffered with various diseases peculiar to my sex. Was troubled with a burning sensation across the small of my back, that all-gone feeling, was despondent, fretful and discouraged; the least exertion tired me. I tried several doctors but received little benefit. At last I decided to give your Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The effect of the first bottle was magical. Those symptoms of weakness that I was afflicted with, vanished like vapor before the sun. I cannot speak too highly of your valuable remedy. It is truly a boon to woman."

From Mrs. Melissa Phillips, Lexington, Ind., to Mrs. Pinkham:

"Before I began taking your medicine I had suffered for two years with that tired feeling, headache, backache, no appetite, and a run-down condition of the system. I could not walk across the room. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills and used one package of Sanative Wash, and now feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work."

From Mrs. Mollie E. Herrel, Powell Station, Tenn.:

"For three years I suffered with such a weakness of the back, I could not perform my household duties. I also had falling of the womb, terrible bearing-down pains and headache. I have taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and feel like a new woman. I recommend your medicine to every woman I know."

Sheep Skins.

The regents of the university met at the state farm and determined upon the list of graduates. This list, as completed, contains 296 names, as follows: College of science, literature and the arts, 118; higher degrees, 14; mechanical engineering, 20; mining, 11; law, 93; medicine, 14; dentistry, 14; pharmacy, 12. Degrees have been issued to two students who have died within the last three months, Edna M. Stock and Carl Huhn. During the year there have been 25 students dropped from the senior classes of the academic department, so blighting their hopes of graduation this spring. From the other departments pupils failed to gain sheepskins as follows: Medicine, 5; pharmacy, 3; law, 3; dentistry, 2.

A Statue for Pilsbury.

A statue of Governor John S. Pillsbury will ornament the campus of the university. That was decided at the annual meeting of the university alumni. The movement was started a year ago when E. C. Chatfield introdured a resolution declaring that a statue on the campus would be a fitting recognition of Governor Pillsbury's services to the university. A committee composed of Messrs. Chatfield, Partridge, Gillette and Quinn was named to investigate and report. They investigated and evidently to good purpose, for recently they had entered into a contract with Daniel C. French of New York to erect the statue within three years at a cost of $15,000.

Our Allotment.

Minnesota's allotment under the second call for troops is 1,742, and official word to that effect was wired to Gov. Clough by Adjutant General Corbin. Of this number 990 will go to fill the shortage which exists in the three regiments now at the front, and the remainder will probably form the nucleus of a new regiment, which will have J. C. Shandrew for its colonel.

MINNESOTA AT OMAHA.

The State Will Make a Good Showing at Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition.

We illustrate with this the Minnesota Building at the Trans-Mississippi & International Exposition, which began at Omaha, June 1st, and continues until December 1st. The building is one of the groop of state buildings, occupying a district on an elevation of ground, overlooking the valley of Missouri. In this groop of state buildings is included New York, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado and some other of the western states. The Minnesota building differs materially from all these structures and is likely to prove one of the most unique and attractive buildings on the ground. The building has a total length of 75 feet and a width of 42 feet, with a verandah 12 feet wide all around it, making the greatest length nearly 100 feet and the greatest width 66 feet. The building is not designed for exhibition purposes, but is to be used as rendezvous for the Minnesota visitors to the Exposition. On the first floor there is a spacious hallway 42x35 feet. In one end is located the ladies' parlor, which is 30x20 feet and which will be tastly decorated and furnished daintily. It will be a favorite resting place for the Minnesota ladies who visit the Exposition. The corresponding room at the other end of the building is to be finished in the style of a lumber camp, its walls hung with skins and decorated with trophies of the chase. A wide stairway leads to the second floor where there are two corresponding rooms. The second floor is surrounded also by a verandah amply shaded by the overhanging roof of the main buildings.

The location of the Minnesota building is one of the best on the ground. It is in close proximity to the horticultural building and it is surrounded on every side by floral exhibits. The buildings in the immediate vicinity, in addition to the Horticultural Hall are the New York, Kansas, Nebraska, and Illinois state buildings.

THE MINNESOTA BUILDING AT OMAHA EXPOSITION.

The Legislature of Minnesota made no appropriation for either this building or other representation of the state at the Exposition. Early in the current year the attention of Gov. Clough was brought to the fact that Minnesota was likely to be the only state west of the Mississippi river which would not be represented in this Exposition, and he proptly appointed a commission of representative citizens to devise ways and means and to prepare exhibits. This commission has succeeded in raising nearly $30,000 with which the building here shown will be erected, and exhibits made in the several departments of the Exposition. Minnesota will be represented in the agricultural building with an horticultural display, in the Mines and Mining building, with a mining display, and will have extensive exhibits in the dairy department and in the apiary department. A wool exhibit is also in preparation and Minnesota is to be given the distinction of presenting one of the great musical features of the occation, the production of the Oratario of Isaiah by Prof. Patton of Minneapolis, with a chorus of 250 Minnesota voices.

The public is just beginning to appreciate that the Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition is going to far exceed in extent and completeness anything of the kind seen in the country, with the single exception of the World's Columbian Exposition held in Chicago, in 1893. It will be far more extensive than the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, or the recent Exposition at Atlanta and Nashville. The main group of buildings constitutes one of the greatest architectural successes seen in this country, fairly rivaling in beauty the White City display in Chicago. While the fund raised for Minnesota's representation is less than a fifth of what was raised for the World's Columbian Exposition, the displays to be made promise to be very effective and there will be no more attractive building than than the one here shown. Almost all of the material used in this structure has been generously donated by the lumbermen of Minnesota and some of the owners of stone quarries.

Permission will be asked to furnish the additional 250 men necessary to make up a regiment. Majors Schaeffer and Whitney, of the 12th and 14th, and Maj. Bean, of the 13th, have been ordered to return to Minnesota and take charge of the recruiting for their regiments.

Private Elevators.

Judge Bunn, of St. Paul, decides that private elevators are not amenable to the warehouse commission. In the case against the Cargill company the court finds that the elevator was used for the purpose of storing and handling the grain of the company and not that of other persons, and that, therefore, even though it was situated on the way of the railroad, the commission had no right to exact a license. In addition to the holding that the law is unconstitutional as relating to private elevators, it is also held that it is valid so far as it relates to public elevators or storehouses.

Crushed by a Tree.

Four Indians from the Fond du Lac reservation at Cloquet, who were on the drive about thirty miles above Cloquet, were sleeping in a tent on the banks of the river when the wind blew down a dry tamarack tree about a foot and a half through across the tent, pinning them all to the ground. Joseph Houle Jr., William Buttle and Charles Northrup, who were lying on their side, were badly hurt; Alex McKenzie, who was lying his back, escaped with a few bruises.

OLD WAR MONITORS.

To Be Brought Out for Service in Defending Our Sea-Coast.

The arrangements now in progress to utilize the survivors of our old monitor fleet, which rendered such invaluable service during the civil war, for purposes of coast defense, revive popular interest in vessels of this class. Notwithstanding the fact that the type of these boats is now somewhat obsolete, the historic fighting machines seem well adapted to the use contemplated, and may prove of great service in case of need.

No less than 54 of them were fitted out by the government after their efficiency had been demonstrated in the famous fight at Hampton Roads, which inaugurated a new era in maritime warfare and ultimately revolutionized the navies of the world. Most of them were of the single turret class, of which the Passiac furnishes a good example, and were designed chiefly for use in rivers, harbors and sounds; but ten were equipped with double turrets, and two, the Dictator and the Puritan, were seagoing vessels of more than 3,000 tons. From this they ranged downward to about 600 tons. Four more of the largest size were in process of construction when the war ended, but were never brought to completion. They have since been broken up.

Of this formidable fleet, which in its day was by far the most powerful armament afloat, not more than 18 vessels are now extant. Four—besides the orignal Monitor—were lost during the war, the Weehawken foundering at sea, and the Patapsco, the Milwaukee and the Tecumseh being destroyed by torpedoes. The rest have been retired from time to time. Of these still in the service four—Amphitrite, Monadnock, Puritan and Terror—have been considerably modified to meet modern requirements.

Craft of this description are especially adapted for use in quiet and shallow waters, where the low deck, over which the waves sweep with terrifying violence in a starm, is not a serious drawback, and their light draught gives them a great advantage, as was made evident in the epoch-making conflict with the Merrimae in 1862.

For the open sea they are not so well suited, even in the improved models; although it is said that in consequence of being so nearly submerged they are much steadier than ordinary vessels, thus rendering it possible to use the guns with greater precision. Nevertheless it will be remembered that the original Monitor barely escaped sinking on its first voyage to Hampton Roads, and subsequently went down off Cape Hatterns, taking with it a considerable portion of the crew, while the remainder were saved only with the utmost difficulty. The inventor, it is true, alleged that proper precautions were not taken; but the fact remains that it has been found very difficult to keep the water from flooding the hold under such circumstances, and when once the fires are extinguished the craft is helpless.

Another serious disadvantage is the lack of speed resulting from deep immersions—the original Monitor and its immediate successors being able to make only four or five knots an hour. So far as sustaining heavy fire is concerned, however, they have successfully endured the severest tests. The claim of the inventor, that "the least quantity of thickest armor does most work in protecting the ship, engines, boilers and magazine," is well sustained by experience. Unquestionably, these veteran warriors are entitled to the greatest respect for what they have achieved in the past, and it is probable that they will hold their own for certain purposes for a long time to come.—Detroit Free Press.

UNCLE JOB AND UNCLE BOB.

Able Men They Were, One at the Age of 138 and the Other Claiming 128 Years.

"I was well acquainted with Uncle Job Wails, of Athens," said a Georgian, "and he was such an interesting person that I was more than sorry when I heard he was dead. Uncle Job's wife was only 20 years old when they were married, which would in itself not be anything particularly strange, for there are lots of men whose wives were not so old as that, even, when they were married, but Uncle Job's wife's age appeared rather conspicuous because Uncle Job was 103, and he had never been married before. They were living happily the last time I saw Uncle Job. He was then 135. I went over to see him plow out his cotton field, and had a nice, long talk with him. Three years after that he died. He died from the effects of a moccasin bite, the venomous reptile having struck the old gentleman while he was bathing his feet in a branch on his place after a day's work in the field. His widow and son still live at Athens, I believe

"I don't know whether my old friend Bob Carlton, of Magazine, Ark., is living yet or not. I haven't seen him in seven years. He was 128 years old then, and as hearty and active as a roebuck. Bob Carlton was a native of North Carolina, one of the Rowan county Carltons, I believe, and he had documents to prove that he was born in 1763. He used to tell me about having seen Gen. Marion and Gen. Sumter, and all the great southern heroes of the revolution. He lived in North Carolina until after the war of 1812, and then removed to Tennessee. He was always opposed to slavery, and when the republican party was founded he joined it and advocated its principles boldly. Early in the '80's he moved down into Arkansas. He was a blacksmith, working at his trade until he was past 100, and then he became a farmer. He was spending most of his time hunting when I saw him last. He hunted with a gun that his father carried all through the revolutionary war, and which he used himself in the war of 1812. There wasn't a better shot in the state than he was at 128. I hope he is living yet, but the chances are, perhaps, that he is not, although seven years ago he looked as if he might live many years yet."—N. Y. Sun.

Without a Doctor.

There is a town with 60,000 inhabitants in Syria, not far from Latakia, in which there is not a single physician. The name of this place is Hamah. As is the case with most of the towns in that country, diseases of the eyes are exceedingly common.—N. Y. Sun

A REMARKABLE CASE.

The following case was printed originally in The Monitor, a newspaper published at Meaford, Ontario. Doubts were raised as to its truthfulness, consequently a close watch was kept on the case for two years and the original statement has now been completely verified.

Mr. Petch had been a hopeless paralytic for five years. His case has had wide attention. He was confined to his bed, was bloated almost beyond recognition, and could not take solid food. Doctors called the disease spinal sclerosis, and all said he could not live. The Canadian Mutual Life Association, after a thorough examination, paid him his total disability claim of $1,600, regarding him as forever incurable.

For three years he lingered in this condition. After taking some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People there was a slight change, a tendency to sweat freely. Next came a little feeling in his limbs. This extended, followed by a pricking sensation, until at last the blood began to course freely and vigorously through his body. Soon he was restored to his old time health.

Paid His Claim.

A reporter for The Monitor recently called on Mr. Petch again and was told:

"You may say there is no doubt as to my cure being permanent. I am in better health than when I gave you the first interview and certainly attribute my cure to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"To these pills I owe my release from the living death, and I shall always bless the day I was induced to take them."

Such is the history of one of the most remarkable cases in modern times. In the face of such testimony, can anyone say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not entitled to the careful consideration of every sufferer—man, woman or child? Is not the case, in truth, a miracle of modern medicine?

These pills are sold by all druggists and are considered by them to be one of the most valuable remedial agents known to science.

CHEERING HIM.

His Hearers Were Duly Appreciative But Were Not Completely Carried Away.

He was unquestionably an orator. But he was not content with that gift. He desired to deliver speeches which would read well in print. As a result, his periods were polished till they lost force. They would have made more of an impression if he had left a few jagged edges on them. His speeches were as famed for their soporific qualities as they were for their immaculate syntax, but his wife was a confident admirer of his powers as a speaker. Without taking the trouble to inform herself very thoroughly on the topics he discussed, she accepted his observations with implicit faith and unbounded applause. She had gone to hear him address the legislature. After it was over he remarked:

"That speech wasn't the success we hoped it would be."

"It was a very nice speech, indeed," she answered, encouragingly. "I enjoyed it very much. I have passed a highly instructive afternoon. And, besides, I needed rest."

"There wasn't much enthusiasm."

"I was very enthusiastic."

"I was referring to my fellow-members."

"You couldn't tell whether they liked it or not."

"At all events, they were not carried off their feet."

"Oh, you mustn't be the least bit worried about that. They couldn't be. They took special precautions. I noticed that before you got half through nearly all of them had their feet on their desks."—Washington Star.

Shot the Way the Dog Came.

The other day Ole Hanson had trouble with a bellicose dog that belonged to his neighbor, a Russian by the name of Havva Drenkovitskey. The Swede shot the dog as soon as he discovered that he was not friendly to him, and the sequel found lodging in a justice's court. When Ole was propounded inerrogatories by the attorney for the prosecution he evidenced a sense of justice in framing replies that is rarely witnessed.

"What sort of a gun did you have, Mr. Hanson?" inquired the attorney.

"Es var two-hole shotgun."

"Double-barrel?"

"Yas, das et."

"Well, don't you think you could have scared him away?"

"Aye might of aye had not bane scare so lak deckens maesal."

"Why didn't you take the other end of the gun and scare him away?"

"Val, master lawyer, vy dedn't de dog com for mae oder end first ef hae vant to dö det vay?"

The lawyer is still wondering if there wasn't extenuating circumstances connected with the shooting.—Denver Times.

Lecture of a Novelist.

A well-known novelist delivered a lecture recently in which he read selections from his own works. His reputation and the society that engaged him brought together an audience composed of the best people of the neighborhood. After the lecture, when people met, it was the proper thing for one to ask the other:

"Were you at the lecture?" And the answer in every case:

"Oh, yes! I was there, but I didn't hear a word. Did you hear the lecture?"

"Well, no! I was there, but I couldn't hear, either."

A friend who met the novelist a few days after his visit to the suburban town asked him what kind of audience he had, and how he liked the town.

"It's a fine place," was the reply, "and I had the most attentive audience that I have ever spoken to. No one made a sound, and I did not have to raise my voice above a whisper."—Philadelphia Press.

CATARRHAL WEAKNESS.

Pelvic Catarrh a Very Common and Debilitating Ailment Among Women.

MRS. CAROLINE DAFT, EVANSPORT, O.

Pelvic Catarrh is usually called female disease. Not being called catarrh, as it should be, it is not treated as catarrh. Hence the frequent failures to find a cure. Catarrh is catarrh wherever located. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located. Mrs. Caroline Daft, Evansport, O., writes: "I can testify to the merits of Pe-ru-na. I have taken considerable of it and one bottle of Man-a-lin, and they both are excellent remedies. I am as well and hearty as I ever was in my life and give the credit entirely to your medicines."

Catarrh of the lining membrane of the vagina, womb or bladder, producing a constant discharge of mucus, is a very common disease. It is generally called female weakness. The catarrahl nature of this disease is not usually known. Hence very few people are receiving the correct treatment. Every woman so afflicted should immediately write to Dr. Hartman, giving the particulars of her case, and she will receive prompt answer free of charge, giving full directions as to her treatment. Cases that have been thought to be incurable are promptly cured by Dr. Hartman's treatment.

Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's book on female catarrh, entitled "Health and Beauty." Sent free. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Legal Wit.

"What's the matter there?" said the judge to the defendant in the suit, who had just been released from the witness stand, and was rummaging amongst the jury.

"I've lost my hat," replied the defendant, in an injured tone.

"Perhaps Mr. H—— has it," said the defendant's counsel, indicating the counsel for the other side

"Not I," replied that gentleman, "but I hope to have his whole suit before we get through."—Chicago Tribune.

Dr. Hayes, of Buffalo, N. Y., who is rapidly becoming known all over the civilized world from his ability to cure Asthma so that the sufferer stays cured, says that his success where others fail is due largely to the fact that he declines to use symptom-drugs, which merely suppress the symptoms and leave the cause of the disease untouched, but employs natural alteratives and tonics, which build up the digestive powers, improve the assimilation of the food, give the patient better blood and more of it, out of which to build up a healthy body; and thus by changing the very type of nutrition and changing the constitution, he removes the cause of the disease and cures to stay cured. This is a very interesting line of thought for those who suffer from Asthma and any who desire to know more about it can get Dr. Hayes' Thesis with Reports of Cases, entitled "Asthma and Hay-Fever Cured to Stay Cured," by sending to Dr. Hayes for it. No charge is made for the book.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

Public Clocks.

Few great cities of America are adequately provided with public clocks of such a size and so prominent location as to indicate the time over wide metropolitan districts. But it is high time to check kidney and bladder complaint manifested to the sufferer by inactivity of the organs affected. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters remedies this as it does dyspepsia, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and nervousness.

Your Liver

needs coaxing, not crowding. Dr. Ayer's Pills stand without a rival as a reliable medicine for liver complaint. They cure constipation, and they cure its consequences, piles, biliousness, indigestion, sick headache, nausea, coated tongue, foul breath, bad taste, palpitation, nervousness, irritability, and many other maladies that have their root in constipation. They are a specific for all diseases of the stomach and bowels, and keep the body in a condition of sound health.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—JAMES QUINN, 90 Middle Street, Hartford, Conn.

BEWARE OF MORPHINE.

Mrs. Pinkham's Urgent Appeal to Suffering Women.

She Asks Them to Seek Permanent Cures and Not Mere Temporary Relief From Pain.

Special forms of suffering lead many a woman to acquire the morphine habit.

One of these forms of suffering is a dull, persistent pain in the side, accompanied by heat and throbbing. There is disinclination to work, because work only increases the pain.

This is only one symptom of a chain of troubles; she has others she cannot bear to confide to her physician, for fear of an examination, the terror of all sensitive, modest women.

The physician, meantime, knows her condition, but cannot combat her shrinking terror. He yields to her supplication for something to relieve the pain. He gives her a few morphine tablets, with very grave caution as to their use. Foolish woman! She thinks morphine will help her right along; she becomes its slave!

A wise and a generous physician had such a case; he told his patient he could do nothing for her, as she was too nervous to undergo an examination. In despair, she went to visit a friend. She said to her, "Don't give yourself up; just go to the nearest druggist's and buy a bottle of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will build you up. You will begin to feel better with the first bottle." She did so, and after the fifth bottle her health was reestablished. Here is her own letter about it:

"I was very miserable; was so weak that I could hardly get around the house, could not do any work without feeling tired out. My monthly periods had stopped and I was so tired and nervous all of the time. I was troubled very much with falling of the womb and bearing-down pains. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; I have taken five bottles, and think it is the best medicine I ever used. Now I can work, and feel like myself. I used to be troubled greatly with my head, but I have had no bad headaches or palpitation of the heart, womb trouble or bearing-down pains, since I commenced to take Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman. The use of one bottle will prove what it can do."—MRS. LUCY PEASLEY, Derby, Center, Vt.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Saturday, June 11, will be Delano's Fair Day.

—Delano has a new feed store in, the I. O. O. F's. building.

—We understand a new furniture store will soon be running in Delano.

—Rev. Ernest Hanke will hold services at the Presbyterian church Sunday next at 10:30 A. M.

--The old corner Bruggeman building is being fixed up for a feed, fruit and produce headquarters. The more the merrier.

—Dr. Walter shipped a couple of pointers to the city last week. The sportsmen are beginning to want to try their luck among the game.

—Roscoe Sturman and Fred Reibel have trained their dogs together so that they now have quite a Klondyke team and ride around in style.

—The Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. C. M. Heard, at the City Hall Sunday evening was a masterpiece, and was listened too by a fine audience.

—Valentine Eppel says cut worms are uncommonly plentiful and more than usually hungry. They obliged him to set out a part of his cabbage patch the third time.

--We understand the Delano creamery has purchased a new churn, about twice as large as the old one. This move was necessitated by the increasing patronage of the institution. Success to the farmers.

—Some of the farmers, and people who have to travel much find that there has been plenty of rain this year. Some business men even say: "Talk about your rainy season in Manilla. I guess we have got one of our own."

—Fat calves, beeves, and other butcher's stock is growing scarcer and scarcer each year in this country. The creamery business seems to break in on the meat production very materially. Will we have to become vegetanarians?

—Rev. Savs is quite a traveler. Whenever he has a short vacation from his labors he takes a trip somewhere. He contemplates spending the fore part of July at the Yellow Stone Park, Denver, and other places of interest in the west.

—One of the telephone builders camping in town dove from the top of the wagon bridge into Crow River Sunday, for a purse of $2.00 contributed by a big crowd of spectators. It would speak better for civilization had they all, including the contribution, attended church.

—The Sunday Tribune given an account of a serious accident to Amelia Anderson who was riding a bicycle on First Ave. South. A wagon was driven rapidly out of a newspapers alley and ran into the wheel injured Miss Anderson, severely and demolishing the bicycle.

—Don't forget that common school districts under the new law, hold their annual elections on the third Saturday in June. Be out and help make your school a success by electing the best possible officers. Our Delano Board of Education don't consider that our district is a common one, but is independent and will hold its election in July. Try to be there just the same.

—Any of our young men desiring to go to war can now have a first class opportunity. They can make their own selection as to going to Manilla or to regiments in Florida, or Georgia. They are even allowed, so far as possible to select the company. This is surely a fine chance. Several members of the 13th Reg., now at San Francisco, are expected to be in St. Paul and Minneapolis by Friday to recruit about 300 men to fill the 13th to the maximum.

—Nothing beats good roads to bring trade to town. Delano is surrounded with naturally as good roads as any town in the county but there are numerous holes and the whole lines for miles could be smoothed up to advantage. Our suggestion for the village to tender the use of the grader free to such district as would furnish an experienced man to run it, and pay for all breakage meets the approval of many.

—We are in receipt of a volume of the Eleventh Census report, Real Estate Mortgages, for 1890. For which Hon. Knute Nelson has our thanks. The volume shows Minnesota 7th in the list of amount per capita of Mortgages. The average for the United States being $96, Minnesota is $152, per Capita of Mortgaged property. Rate of interest paid on an average in Minnesota 7.66 per cent; the average for the U. S. being 6.60 per cent. If any of our readers desire to consult our new book they are at liberty to do so, at our office, at any time.

—It is but a little over three weeks until the Fourth of July, and as yet no preparations have been made for a celebration at this place. Decoration Day was passed by almost unnoticed, and it seems as if, from want of patriotism or snap among our citizens, that the Fourth is to be allowed to pass in the same manner. A good celebration is one of the best advertisements a town can have. The idea that Delano should stand aside every year or two in favor of some neighboring town or towns is not in popular favor. Delano has the means and the people to furnish a good celebration if only the ball could be started on the roll.

--Delano monthly fair tomorrow.

—The St. Anthony Benevolent Society will entertain a number of neighboring societies in town, Monday, June 13th.

--The school term for the year 1898 came to a close last Friday. The last week was taken up in examinations.

--The Old Bird claims she couldn't find her flag on Memorial day. Rather a shabby excuse or shabby patriotism at least.

-The singing at the High School baccalaureate sermon evening at the City Hall was pronounced away above ordinary. Delano has musical talent.

--A letter from our son Alva of the 13th Minn, Vol. at San Francisco, says all the boys are getting fat. Don't think any Delano boys have bad symptons of sickness. We will have to omit printing the letter until next week.

—Two large excursion trains carrying picknickers to Lake Minnetonka, to the annual picnic of the Modern Woodmen of America, passed through town Wednesday. Quite a number of members and their friends went from here.

—Rev. C. M. Heard of Minneapolis preached a very fine Baccalaureate sermon on Sunday evening at the City Hall. He diagnosed the case accurately and prescribed appropriate remedies. We give an abstract of his sermon in another column. Read it.

—Dispatches from Cape Haytien, June 5, tell of the U. S. troop ship Resolute, under convoy of the torpedo boat destroyer Mayflower, being chased by two Spanish corvettes. The Mayflower is the boat on which Otto Marr, of Deleno, is sailing, and is one of the heaviest armored and fastest boat of its class.

--Luther Parker and a crew, of Howard Lake, moved John Brandser's tailor shop and residence from it former location to its new place at the corner of Bridge and second street this week. Mr. B. is now located on his own lots in the central part of town, opposite the City Hall, where he hopes to meet all of his old customers and some new ones.

—The Delano Cemetary Association held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening at Dr. Catlin's office. The committee on fixing up the grounds reported that they had engaged a man to mow the grass, trim trees and fix the fence. It was decided to put a lock on the gate and build steps to get over the fence. People are so careless about leaving the gate open necessitates this step. The committee on having the plat recorded reported progress.

—In our advertising colums will be found an announcement of Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls' forthcoming book, entitled America's War For Humanity." Canvassing agents will find in it a book of remarkable interest, and certainly of extraordinary salability. The history of the war is told in picture and story, and in a way that always characterizes the brilliant pen of Senator Ingalls. In narrating the incidents of this war he finds grand scope for his superb descriptive and analytical powers. The theme is worthy of the author and the author is worthy of the theme. It it published by N. D. Thompson Publishing Co., of St. Louis, Mo. It will be a monumental work that will not only be everywhere read, but it will be a monument to his genius that will outlive in history his brilliant senatorial career. The subscription book trade and the canvassing agent are fortunate in the fact that an author of such rare ability has been enlisted in its interest. 36 1t.

--Mr. Billings unpacked a live lizard along with a couple bunches of bananas last Wednesday. The little animal, when first discovered, was sticking his head out a knot hole in the banana box. No one seemed to know exactly what kind of a reptile they had, or about its habits. Mr. Billings thought it looked kind of lonesome all alone in a glass jar and so put in a couple inches of water. This didn't exactly agree with the lizards notion of high life, and so he kicked, and stood on his tail up against the side of the glass, evidently trying to see how high above water he could keep his head. The water was finally poured out and he then settled down in the botton ot the glass seemingly more contented.

—Good smooth, dry roads, instead of mudholes ever and anon, would bring people to Delano for six or eight miles, rather than to nearer by towns where the roads were poor. Let our road grader be properly driven over the roads in every direction for five, six or eight miles, and see how soon more milk would come to our creamery, more wheat, corn, hogs and other products to our buyers, more hay, and wood to our markets. It would then be a pleasure to drive to town instead of a dread to be put off till necessity compells the venture. It would hurt the grader no more to be properly used than to stand idle outdoors, and be used for a hitching and feeding rack for horses. And if the users kept it in repair it would be no expense to the village while it would increase our trade in every branch of business unless it might be in mending wagons and buggies.

Harness for the 4th.

CONZET & DARROW have just received 17 fine buggie harnesses to be sold before the 4th. Now young men don't expect that you can get a good fourth of July girl unless you have a nice new Harness and Duster; then any one can have a nice girl for the 4th. And those fine harnesses will be sold very cheap for cash for just one month, at CONZET & DARROW'S

Delano & Rockford.

--Latest reports say that the company I boys from Delano are all well again.

--The Delano Cornet Band was out on Franklin Aye. last evening "hay foot, straw foot" fashion. That's right boys bands look better when they can keep step to the music.

—There is a movement on foot among the orchestras and others, of Delano, towards raising a fund to be divided among the soldier boys of Delano as a token of appreciation of patriotism.

--E. S. Babb has sold his residence on North Third St. to William Invie who will occupy it soon. Mr. B. expects to build a new house as soon as he finds a location to suit him. Mrs. B. and the children will visit with her mother near St. Paul for a few weeks.

—The large rainfall for the past two or three weeks has been as a thorn in the flesh of the many bicycle riders hereabouts. They are seen sorrowfully wending their way afoot between points of destination, while their wheels are taking a vacation for recuperation of their health, after having been worked over time without pay the few nice days the early part of the season.

--It is very strange that men who love their country and its free institutions, and its free ballot will remain at home while a primary election is being held to elect delegates to have a voice in making nominations and allow a few to have their choice against the wishes of the large majority. Neither the Republican nor the Democratic primaries were attended by many who should have been there.

—The Delano High School Alumni Association held their first annual banquet at Billing's restaurant last night. All the members who could be, were present, and the occasion was enjoyed by all. After the excellent supper, Mr. Samuel D. Coffin, acting as toast master, proposed the following toasts which were all responded to in a way that done credit to the members of the association: Absent ones, Mr. Dayid Le Roy Sutton; futures. Miss Erma Wilder; the Hispano-American war, Mr. John J. Catlin; post office experience. Mr. John Steffes: life at the "U", Miss Grace O'Hair; anecdotes, Miss Estella Davis.

—At the Democratic primary election held Tuesday evening T. J. Catlin was chosen chairman, August Sieloff clerk and Martin Conzet and Ed Davis Judges of election. 21 ballots were cast for delegates to the County Convention, as follows:

T. J. Catlin	10
Martin Conzet	17
R. M. Bohn	12
Joe Merriman	8
M. A. O'Hair	11
C. B. Ames	3
A. E. Johnson	1

One ballot contained the name of O'Hair twice but was counted one.

Messrs. Conzet, Bohn and O'Hair having received the largest number of votes were declared elected delegates to the county convention.

Personal.

Mrs. A. W. Wittman visited her mother at Waysata Monday.

F. Williams, of Wilmar, visited Delano friends Saturday.

Miss Cross, of Minneapolis, visited her aunt Mrs. Bolton this week.

John Coolen, Jr. of Smith Lake, spent Sunday with friends at Delano.

John Mayer and Peter Pogrzeba, of the G. N. spent Sunday at Delano.

C. J. Buckley, J. E. Borsch and Rev. Savs, visited Minneapolis Monday.

Dr. E. E. Shrader and John Campbell of Watertown, visited Delano Tuesday.

Nellie Vorse, of Buffalo, attended High School doings in Delano this week.

Dr. Gray of Minneapolis, delivered an address at graduating exercises Tuesday evening.

Len Terry was an East bound passenger on the early Saturday train from Smith Lake to the cities.

Albert Johnson, Peter Peterson, Joe, August and John Bernick returned Saturday from Montana.

Robert Bullen, Mr. Cyrup, Mrs. Erick Erickson and Mrs. C. E. Dicky were city bound passengers Saturday.

Prof. Hawker returned this morning from Hamline, where he attended commencement exercises at his Alma Mater.

S. A. Merriman, of Minnetrista visited Howard Lake Friday evening to attend the funeral of his nephew Horace Merriman.

W. W. Palm and family of Minneapolis, visited Delano friends and attend commencement exercises of the Delano High School this week.

Miss Julia Cunningham come up from Minneapolis Tuesday evening to arrange the new house lately purchased by her father on Third Street.

Mr. Hursh, of Long Lake, was in Delano, Thursday in the interest of the fruit growers of his town. Mr. Hursh graduated at the University, in this year's class.

Capt. VanSant stopped off the train here one day this this week long enough to introduce himself to, and inform the only one-legged soldier in town that he expects to be Governor.

County Cullings.

Court is being held at Buffalo this week. The Grand jury had just finished work and the trials of civil cases commenced yesterday.

The bill for recommiting a patient from Otsego to the Fergus Falls Hospital presented by Otter Tail county to Wright County and disputed by Judge of Probate Woolley has been withdrawn. The Eagle in the meantime has instead of assisting in fighting for the law given us a gentle thrust under the ribs for doing so. Great Eagle, that! Why don't it try to have laws followed?

Notwithstanding all the flings to the contrary the candidacy of John Lind for Governor don't seem to loose anything in the eyes of the voters in Minnesota, should he be elected to that high office he could probably get Dave Clough to take the office of quartermaster of the 12th Minn. U. S. Vol. off his hands, and Dave would make good quartermaster and John would make a good Governor too.

DIED.

PARMETER.—At North Rockford, on Saturday, June 4, Mrs. wife of Benjamin Parmeter, aged 58 years.

BORN.

DUNN.—In Independence, on Sunday, June 5, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunn, a son.

MARRIED.

BEACH, MATTISEN.—At Rockford, on Wednesday, June 8, at 8 P. M. Mr. Charles R. Beach and Miss Leah B. Mattisen. Rev. J. L. Farber officiated. Many friends were present and flowers in profusion; and numerous presents.

We are indebted to Rev. E. D. Casey, for an invitation to be present at the Twenty Seventh Annual Convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of the Arch Diocese of St. Paul, which will be held in the City of Waverly, Wednesday and Thursday, June 22 and 23, 1898. High Mass will be celebrated at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. Wednesday evening there will be a public Mass meeting at the City Hall. There will undoubtedly be a big meeting and a good time for the temperance cause. Let everybody that can, attend.

The Sherbune County Times hauls the Buffalo Journal over the coals because of the latters attack on the patriotism of Rev. G. W. Proctor on the occasion of his remarks at the Epworth League Convention, at Buffalo. The Times says: "We do not believe him to be the bloodthirsty character the Journal represents him to be. He is a true patriot and believes in upholding our National honor and the cause of humanity, whether assailed by Spain or any other power, and we believe the country is with him. Mr. Proctor is a sincere and earnest Christian and as humane a man as the Journal editor anyway. Mr. Procter was a stranger and a guest in Buffalo, and certainly did not expect to be so severely criticized for upholding the principles of liberty."

Among Our Exchanges.

Oregon Agriculturist: The American Cultivator believes the time has come for a great revival of farming everywhere. It is not the war with Spain that has caused the advance in prices of wheat and most other agricultural products, but from the lessened supply of these products, not only in the United States but nearly everywhere else.

Oregon Agriculturists: It is said that eggs are now sold by weight in nearly all European countries. In the United States we still follow the old-fashioned method of selling by the dozen. So long as this is the case it is the wisest plan to breed fowls with a view to producing many eggs of small size.

Sam Gordon, who was so near death from pneumonio, many weeks since, is still mending slowly but surely. It took some of the same grit to bring him through that carried him along in the days of 61 to 65.—Annandale Post.

Litchfield News Ledger: Someone, we forget who, said a short time ago that we need not be surprised to see Clough renominated for governor at the state convention. Perish the thought! The Demo-Pops would have to put up a mighty poor man that we wouldn't support in preference to Clough.--Paynesville Press.

The Press man strikes hard; but there is no denying the fact that he voices the sentiment of a large number of republican in the State.

Pease Pleased.

About the best pleased man in Anoka yesterday was Editor Pease, of the Union. The editors at the convention all called on him, and were right royally treated, the boys all taking dinner with him. The Union is one of the best papers in the state, and its office equipment is unexcled. But then "Old Pease," as he is called, (though not irreverently) is entitled to the best that's going. He's been in the harness for thirty-five years, and has "earned his spurs." Long life to him.—Aitkin Republican.

And he just about kicked himself clear of the harness during the last two years, and now the Old Elephant has come to him and even claims that he has "earned his spurs." Is Pease to be in the saddle from this on?

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

The new "protected cruiser" cruised upon the ocean wide,
Till a man of war espied her and punched holes into her side.

And the man of war continued for a little while to float,
Till driven to the bottom by the new torpedo boat.

Then while the foe triumphant rubbed his hands and softly laughed,
Torpedo boat destroyers came and sunk the other craft.

And as the victor dashed about, through battle's smoke and murk,
Destroyers of torpedo boat destroyers did their work.

Whereat into the action something new in vessels came—
"Destroyers of destroyers of destroyers" was its name.

Which brings the matter down to date, where it will rest, no doubt,
Until some ten times wrecker of destroyers ventures out.

—Toledo Blade.

Three hundred recruits left Wednesday with Lieut Merritt to join the Thirteenth regiment in San Francisco.

THE House adopted the Newlands resolution, providing for the annexation of Hawaii, Wednesday, by a vote of 209 to 91.

THE second expedition to Manilla carrying 3,500 men and commanded by Gen. Green started from San Francisco Wednesday, June 15.

COMMANDER Hobson and his gallant crew will soon be free again. Orders to this effect have been sent to Captain, General Blanco from the authorities in Madrid.

THE resignation of the entire French cabinet was handed to President Faure by M. Meline, which he accepted, requesting the ministers to continue the direction of affairs until their successors are named.

SEVERAL desperate battles have taken place between the U. S. marines and Spanish guerrillas around Guantanamo Bay. The marines were victorious, few being killed and wounded. Cubans assisted the U. S. sailors in the last battles.

TOWNE and Morris are pitted against each other again. John Lind is up for Governor and it looks as if Dave Clough, would be his opponent again. The Democrats and others favorable to reform, except a few Donnellyites have got up a good strong ticket; read it in another place. There seems to be going to be a warm time all along the line.

THE horrors of war will soon become more manifest to the American citizen, when the army now en route for Santiago de Cuba to invade the island, well protected by long lines of defences and a large Spanish army, reaches its destination and commences operations. The landing of Huntington's marines at Guantanamo shows the hardships and perils that must be undergone by an invading army in a strange land. How keenly were even the few casualties among the brave marines felt by the American people as a whole. Bloodless battles—bloodless only on one side—can not be looked for in the coming campaign. When, after an engagement, people read long lists of the dead and wounded, and find the names of relatives and friends among the slain or mangled they will more fully realize the horror of war in all its vivid reality.

IT seems as though President Dole, of Hawaii, is about to have his desire, in regard to the annexation of Hawaii, gratified. In some and possibly all ways, the annexation of Hawaii to the United States would be a benefit to both countries. It is a very strategetic point in times of was for Uncle Sam and that is the prime reason why its annexation should be so favorably considered at the present. A side from war, the United States has such interest in the Islands as would not do to allow to fall into European hands. One great point made by those who oppose annexation is the moral and sanitary condidtion of the island. We think it would not take long for a civilized Christian nation like the United States to so remedy whatever fault there may be in those lines as to make it a safe place of abode for any one.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

(BY HON. B. F. CHRISTLIEB.)

Mr. Editor: The San Gabriel and Los Angeles rivers are the principal streams in the vicinity of the City of Los Angeles. These streams find their sources in the rugged canyons and gorges indenting the great mountains lying north of that city, and their flowage is controlled within and at the mouths of the canyons and before it sinks into the sands of the valleys (a peculiar feature of the California stream) and is directed to irrigation purposes.

At present a gigantic project in the shape of establishing a water power in the canyon of the San Gabriel river is fast approaching completion at a cost of nearly a half million dollars, which is to be used in developing and delivering an electric power of thirty five hundred horse power at the City of Los Angeles, a distance of twenty two miles, for the use of that place, in propelling street cars and for lighting purposes, the electrical current being transmitted over seven copper wires.

The process of controlling the river amongst the steep declivities and crevices was difficult and involved the construction of thirty eight tunnels aggregating twenty two thousand feet and seven thousand feet of 48 inch wooden pipe laid between the tunnels and transmitting a continuous stream of water for seven miles down the canyon to its mouth, where the water enters an inclining iron tube of 48 inches in diameter, through which it makes descent of four hundred feet and is directed to eight water wheels which drive the machinery that creates the electric current, all of which is machinery of the latest modern type. It required seventy car loads of cement besides heavy rock work and the labor of five hundred men in connection with derikey engines, cables, and baskets to carry the cement up the forbidding sides of the canyon, during the last year or longer.

After performing this herculean work the water resumes its old time service, that of irrigation, entering the reservoirs, canals, ditches, and pipes and is finally distributed to the soil and to the use of man and beast, supplying the villages of Azusa, Duarte and other places and the country surrounding them, containing the fruit orchards.

The dry season of California is now present, accompanied mostly with a pleasant summer temperature, especially through May, but June has brought forth some extremely warm days, the first we have had since hot days of April.

Baseball in Biblical Times.

A member of the Canton Theological school, who is interested in the great national game, has written a thesis on "baseball among the ancients." From this are gleaned the following interesting points which help to establish his contention:

The devil was the first coacher—he coached Eve when she stole first—Adam stole second.

When Isaac met Rebecca at the well she was walking with a pitcher.

Samson struck out a great many times when he beat the Philistines.

Moses made his first run when he slew the Egyptians.

Cain made a base hit when he killed Abel.

Abraham made a sacrifice.

The Prodigal Son made a home run.

David was a great long-distance thrower.

Moses shut out the Egyptians at the Red Sea.—Caton Commercial Advertiser.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 27, 1898.

At last, after all sorts of unexpected delays that army has got off to Cuba. It is said that some of the orders sent from Washington were hot enough to melt the wires. There was evidently occasion for the use of hot words, as the delay in getting the army started from Tampa prevented Santiago being captured when Admiral Sampson knocked the outer fortifications to pieces so completely that he was able to land a force of marines to spike the guns that his bombs had not made useless and to take possession of several positions, aided by insurgents. Gen. Miles did not go south a day too soon. His report on the condition of affairs at Tampa caused consternation in administration circles for awhile but he was ordered to adopt heroic measures to straighten out matters and to hurry the army off, and he has at least got the army off, if he hasn't straightened everything; and is now engaged in getting another army ready to be started to Porto Rico just as soon as it is known that the movement against Santiago has been successful. Congress has found it difficult to keep quiet, but the disposition to regard all well that ends well is causing a suspension of judgement until the end is shown to be well or otherwise. That it will be all right in the end is certain enough, but there can be no other reason than politics for dragging this war along until the Congressional campaign.

Although the Treasury Department has widely advertised its intention to offer the $200,000,000 in bonds, which will be the first issue under the authority conferred by the war-revenue bill, to the people, Secretary Gage makes no secret of his belief that the greater portion of the bonds will be bought by banks. It is probable also that he will much prefer seeing the banks get them; he is a banker and has always looked after the interests of the banks.

Alabama men are telling many stories illustrating the peculiarity, grit and determination of the family of Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the daring feat of sinking the Merrimac in the entrance to Santiago harbor. This remarkable family lives in the little town of Greensboro. Lieut Hobson has a brother at West Point and another practicing law. His lawyer brother earned a reputation by the way in which he argued the first case he had before the Alabama Supreme Court. It was an appeal from a lower court, and the following was his opening speech: "Your honors, this case has been decided by you already seven times and each time it has been decided wrong." He lost his case, of course, but he got advertised all over his state. The whole family seems to make a specialty of upsetting precedent and doing things in their own way. Lieut. Hobson and his companions will all be promoted as soon as they are restored to liberty, and Congress will give them all medals of honor.

When the war is over a Congressional investigation into certain transactions in which the government has been made to pay large sums of money for ships, and other things bought in connection with the war is likely to bring about sensational developments and to result in public disgrace for certain individuals who have used their pull with the administration to profit by this robbery of the public treasury. Much information is in possession of Senators and Representatives, but patriotism has kept them quiet, and will keep them quiet until peace is declared; then they will talk, and there will be a day of reckoning.

There is much humbug in the civil service discussion in the Senate over the bill providing for taking the next census. Everybody knows that Congress intends to have the employes of the Census Bureau appointed by pull, just as all of the employes of Congress are now appointed, and that the very men who have been advocating having the appointments made through the Civil Service Commission will be in the front rank of the scramblers after these places when the time comes to give them out.

The controversy over the annexation of Hawaii is in a fair way to become a personal fight between Czar Reed and Mr. McKinley, if it has not already done so. Reed is playing for time and with the assistance of some of his lieutenants he has played successfully this week. His game is to delay action until all the appropriation bills are disposed of and then to force an adjournment of Congress without acting upon annexation. As soon as this dawned upon Mr McKinley he served notice upon the Czar that if Congress adjourned without action upon annexation he would at once call it together again in extra session. While a majority of democrats in the House would join Reed in voting against annexation, they are not likely to join him in voting for adjournment, as they believe that Congress ought not to adjourn while the war is going on.

From the 13th Regiment.

CAMP MERRITT, June 5, 1898.

FATHER:—In answer to your's of the 30th, will reply that so far as I can see the companies of this regiment are thoroughly well equipped having received a new issue of Springfield rifles or mostly all new. Also, up to date, there has been issued to each of my company: 1 hat, 2 pairs of woollen socks, 1 pair of shoes, 1 pair of pants, 1 blouse, 1 blue shirt, 2 suits of underwear, 1 over coat, 1 woollen blanket, 1 rubber blanket, 1 meat ration can, a knife and fork, 1 cup, knapsack, haversack, canteen, gun, bayonet, belt and 1 pair of leggins.

Now, to tell the truth I don't know how long a letter, can be called a short one.

All the boys are doing well. It seems to agree with most of them, they are all getting fat. So far as rations are concerned, I am under the impression that Uncle Sam knows about how much to give each man in order to get good work out of him. At least he has been in the business about long enough to thoroughly understand the business.

You also spoke of the Monterey. Well it was above my expectations, because I did not know such a boat was here; but she is a perfect fighting machine at least I should judge so from what I saw. All there is, in fact is a large black streak along the water, hardly visible, then comes a couple of turrets, and a little rigging, mast and smoke stack. To tell the truth, a person not accustomed to the sight would say she was some small tug, or something of that kind, or perhaps would not notice it at all a couple of miles off. I did not get very close myself. But Decoration Day I had the pleasure of seeing a body of marines marching in the parade they were the best innocent looking line of fellows I ever saw. We were also in the parade.

Dakotas have arrived. First North, then the next day or so South. They camp side by side. O. J. Billings, of Co. K. 1. N. D. is the musician. Perry Ball, of Co. C. 1. N. D. is, as usual, a good husky boy. It seems to me he has not grown hardly a single bit, since I last saw him.

Monday we expect to be thoroughly inspected. That is the 13th Minnesota, so as to give an idea of who and what we are, and how well equipped, by the U. S. Army Inspector.

Tell Emery, if you see him, that I received his invitation, too late for me to attend.

I am feeling fine, and, in fact, I don't think any of the Delano boys have any bad symptons of sickness.

Some of the boys say that Jenner and Dr. Beck would cheer up all the regiment when everything else would fail. There are also a couple of first class Irish commedians in my company. Talk about a time, why, it is simply awful; one of the boys claims he would sooner be a private in the army than to be the President of the United States. About every other day a new patient is carried on a stretcher to the hospital. San Francisco is about all a town can be to a strange body of troops. They feed all the boys oranges by the dozen. Pie and cake comes as regular as it did at Camp Ramsey. We are encamped about a block away from one of the grandest parks in America I suppose, anyhow it beats the Delano park.

From Great Salt Lake to the eastern boundry of California is a barren tract of land; there is not even water; sage brush is abundant. From Summit (by the way our Major stepped off this side of Summit, often going through about 40 miles of snow sheds, saw a box labeled "large red bat". He looked in and found a large red brick bat tied with a string) to San Francisco is the grandest, fertile land we saw. All through the mountains you can see large pipes to conduct water to the miners. Most I saw were placer mines.

At Wadsworth we captured a Chinaman and bounced him on a push car, lots of fun. The last two or three days have been real warm days. Flowers are in bloom and have been ever since we came here.

Your son,
A. G. Catlin.

CAMP MERRITT, June 7th, 1898.

Brother John:—Yesterday I had a day off so I took in the museum in the park. It is simply wonderful. Entering the door you come to a hall with two flights of stairs one on either side. Next on one side is historical. In this room are revolvers of nearly every discription, some had and used in the early days, also saddle bags of '49ers, also many relicks of the battle of Gettysburg, a broken sabre, a "C. S." and two "U. S." belt buckles, a doz. minny balls with records, are among them. The keel of the very ship Napoleon Bonapart departed from Elba in, which is claimed to have been wrecked in the harbor of San Francisco. Next room is art, statues in general, then the next two or three rooms are all devoted to paintings which are very beautiful. One of the largest and most beautiful is several horses drinking out of a mountain stream.

On account of time and room I will not give a minute description of everything, but the ones I think most interesting.

There are about a dozen or more rooms in the building. The best one, or the one I like the best is map and model room. In it is a model of a large sailing vessel. Next is the model of the Monterey, then another large sailer.

Aside from the models there are very accurate maps of California and Nevada also several other maps taken from the U. S. Gov. survey and modeled in New York. The next room will suit you the best I think, or at least the next two. One is filled with relicks from darkest Affrica; the other filled with ancient relics, consisting of armor mail used at different times from 1400 to the end of armor, about a dozen complete armors. There are also two small cannon used in the 30 years war of Europe. The barrels are about 3½ ft long with a hole about two inches in diameter, also has wooden wheels, and stands about two and a half feet high. There are several other rooms of minor importance, some oriental and some from colonial times. The upstairs is devoted entirely to natural history. There is every kind of bird imaginable and some that are not. There is also a large buffalo with about a dozen wolves in a glass case. They look nice. There is a small humming bird's egg and all sizes up to the egg that is 13 inches long. Of course the large 13 inch egg is an exact cast of the largest egg in the world. There are about two dozen framed cases filled with butterflies and bugs of all discriptions; also all kinds of reptiles and the like, pickled.

About a half mile from this building is the avery. It is completely filled with live birds, squirrels and the like. There are about a doz. bison in a fenced portion of the park. several elk, deer, rain deer, moose, and also a large grizzly bear, it is claimed the only one in captivity.

A large hot house is also in the park, filled with nearly all kinds of plants, from every portion of the torid zone, judging from the intense heat that exists in the room.

Just outside of the park the chutes are situated. This is the pleasant place for all the people. They have a large menagerie, a rough railway and chutes, also a free show in the afternoon and evening.

The pay wagon has been running around all week but hasn't come our turn some how.

This morning 143 reported to the sick call from the reg.

All the loose straw was thrown out yesterday so there would be no danger of catching the measles, evidently not thinking of other diseases such as are liable from sleeping on the ground.

Yours,
A. G. Catlin.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilcon machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

There is one Protestant congregation on the island of Puerto Rico. It is of the Scotch Presbyterian variety.

Delaware has abolished the Australian ballot, being the first state to drop the law after once having tried it.

Venezuela has selected ex-President Harrison as its chief counsel in the boundary arbitration proceedings to begin in Paris next year.

President Monroe's body servants are beginning to die at the age of 102. It may be inferred that the last of the thousands who waited on the Father of his Country is gone at last.

In 1492 Christopher Columbus, or Cristobal Colon, as he is called in Spanish, discovered the West Indies, and Commodore Schley the other day discovered the Cristobal Colon at Santiago.

George Jacob Holyoake, of England, claims that he was the first person to use the word "jingo," and that his article in the London Daily News on May 13, 1878, was the first article in which the word appeared.

The Chinese are nothing if they are not polite. The emperor has issued a proclamation "requesting certain government officials to stop stealing public moneys." That seems to be a legitimate request, everything considered.

Mme. Melba writes from San Francisco to a friend in London: "I am obliged every night to sing 'The Star Spangled Banner' in my costume of a Spanish senorita! It produces an amazing effect upon the audience, but sets me thinking."

The death of that great tragedian, Thomas W. Keene, after 30 years' prominence in his profession, removes from the stage one of the best and most talented actors America has ever produced. Overwork, for which there was no need, was the prime cause of his death.

Dr. Nansen has unfolded the plan of his next expedition, which will start from Behring straits or a point further north. The expedition will last probably five or six years. Dr. Nansen said it was not important to reach the north pole. It was sufficient to continue scientific investigations. The cost of the expedition will be about 300,000 rubles.

The mineral production of the United States in 1897 broke the record. It amounted to $746,230,982, which is twice that of Great Britain and more than the production of all Europe. In the list are 2,864,576 ounces of gold, 56,457,292 ounces of silver, 510,190,719 pounds of copper, 197,718 tons of lead, 4,000,000 pounds of aluminium and $10,000,000 worth of natural gas.

Capt. Waters, of Los Angeles, Cal., the owner of San Miguel island, has made the discovery that this bit of land was never ceded to Mexico by Spain. By some oversight it was omitted from the list of islands given up when Mexican independence was acknowledged. As soon as he learned this fact Capt. Waters hastened to his little island, hoisted the American flag, and took formal possession in the name of the United States.

Our forgotten Klondike boom breaks in upon the war news in a way that gives melancholy forebodings. The collapse of another transport tub and the drowning of nearly two score passengers en route to the promised Eldorado is a fresh illustration of the risks voluntarily undertaken in the mad haste for easy riches. It will be fortunate if the Klondike craze is ended before other and still more harrowing catastrophes follow the trail of the modern argonauts.

The American consul at Curacoa is incidentally in the coal business, and when the Spanish admiral dropped in there with his fleet the consul could have sold the coal pile containing 1,300 tons of coal for $25 per ton. All the coal Cervera could get at Curacoa was 300 tons of slack, which the Dutch government had condemned three years before as useless, and the Spanish admiral's mouth fairly watered when he saw the American consul's pile of coal. "You could not have a bushel of it for a bushel of gold," calmly remarked the American.

One of the most remarkable exhibitions the world has yet seen is in progress at Omaha and will remain open until fall. The Trans-Mississippi and International exposition is an extraordinary evidence of American energy and culture in the newest section of the union. Five years have been spent in preparing for it, and the sum of $1,600,000 expended to place it on the level of great expositions. The grounds cover 200 acres, and in addition to the ten immense structures are 15 state buildings, all filled with the treasures of industry and art.

A bill was introduced in congress at the request of a number of estimable ladies to provide two matrons for each regiment of volunteers, the duties of the matrons to be to sew on buttons, darn stockings, etc. This, of course, is a good plan, but does it go far enough? If the United States army is going into the matron business—that is, outside of the hospitals—why not hire women cooks who can make pies and muffins "like mother used to make?" And what's the matter with having waitresses, etc.? Let's give the girl's a chance while we are about it.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

In the United States senate on the 9th the "omnibus claim bill," carrying something over $9,000,000, 40 private pension bills and several measures from the general calendar were passed. The house agreed to the conference report on the war revenue bill by a vote of 154 to 107, and a bill to enable volunteer soldiers to participate in congressional elections was considered.

The conference report on the war revenue bill was agreed to by the United States senate on the 10th by a vote of 43 to 22. Adjourned to the 13th. In the house an agreement was reached to take up and discuss the Hawaiian annexation resolution at once, the vote to be taken on the 15th. Mr. Maxwell (Neb.) introduced a bill restricting the use of money and other considerations in the election of senators and representatives.

The United States senate was not in session on the 11th. The session of the house was devoted to debate upon the Hawaiian annexation resolutions.

WAR NEWS.

The Marblehead drove a Spanish gunboat into Guantanamo harbor and shelled and reduced the fortifications, the insurgents cooperating on the land side. The place is being held until troops arrive, and it is contemplated to establish a general base there.

All communication between the island of Cuba and the outer world was severed by cutting the Kingston-Santiago and Haytian cables. The ends were buoyed and Admiral Sampson can establish communication with Washington direct.

A rumor that a new fleet of Spanish warships is lying in wait on the northern coast of Cuba caused the transports carrying troops to Cuba to return to Tampa, Fla., until the report could be verified or discredited.

An American fleet bombarded Daiquiri, east of Aguadores, Cuba.

Near Kingston, Jamaica, the United States auxiliary cruiser St. Louis captured a Spanish merchant ship.

By the operations of Sampson and Schley 30 miles of coast in southern and eastern Cuba now offer no obstacles to an invading army.

The 850 marines under Col. Huntington after a battle lasting 15 hours repulsed Spanish regulars and guerrillas near Guantanamo, inflicting heavy loss. The American loss was four killed. It was the first land battle of the war in which Americans have been engaged.

A dispatch from Ambassador Hay in London to the state department says that Manila has surrendered. No details have been received, and it is not known whether the surrender was to the insurgents or to Admiral Dewey.

In Madrid the political circles declare no suggestions for peace have been received, that such suggestions would be declined, and that Spain has decided to pursue the war to the bitter end.

Promotion has been asked by Admiral Sampson for Lieut. Hobson and similar reward for his followers in the daring Merrimac exploit at Santiago.

Gen. Lee and Gen. Coppinger received orders to hasten the expedition against Puerto Rico.

The gunboat Vixen landed five tons of food, 400 rifles and 60,000 rounds of ammunition for the Cubans at Asserado.

Capt. Gen. Blanco has made an urgent appeal for food and war stores, which Spain will forward with armed convoys.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In the country the total wheat acreage is estimated at 43,000,000, which is 3,500,000 acres greater than last year.

It is reported from Washington that the desire for colonial expansion and the seizure and retention of all Spain's island possessions is rapidly spreading throughout the United States.

During the present fiscal year the exports of agricultural products are estimated to be worth $800,000,000, the greatest in the history of the country.

THE EAST.

In the United States there were 203 business failures in the seven days ended on the 10th, against 222 the week previous and 262 in the corresponding period of 1897.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 10th aggregated $1,324,766,412, against $1,155,159,051 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week in 1897 was 31.2.

Massachusetts prohibitionists have nominated Samuel P. Shapley, of Boston, for governor, and their platform indorses woman suffrage.

Eddie McDuffie broke the world's three-mile bicycle record in Boston, his time being 5:06 3-5.

The firm of L. B. Clark & Co., tanners at Bangor, Me., failed for $550,000.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 12th were: Cincinnati, .682; Cleveland, .652; Boston, .644; Baltimore, .625; New York, .523; Chicago, .511; Pittsburgh, .511; Philadelphia, .439; Brooklyn, .390; St. Louis, .364; Washington, .341; Louisville, .319.

An explosion of gas in a mine at South Wilkesbarre, Pa., burned ten miners, some of them fatally.

WEST AND SOUTH.

In the St. John's river at St. John's bluff, 18 miles below Jacksonville, Fla., a torpedo exploded, killing three men.

J. T. Pyle and B. F. Williams, two well-known and wealthy western cattlemen, were drowned near Perry, O. T., while attempting to cross a swollen stream.

Democrats of the Fifth Georgia district have renominated Col. L. F. Livingston for congress.

The additional returns received from the election in Oregon swell Geer's (rep.) plurality for governor to 10,371.

Nebraska prohibitionists have nominated R. V. Muir, of Nemaha county, for governor.

In a fit of jealousy Charles Langley, aged 24, shot and killed his wife at Kalamazoo, Mich., and then fatally shot himself. They had been married only three weeks.

In Rockford, Ill., hundreds of well-made counterfeit dollars have been placed in circulation.

At Grant's Pass, Ore., Charles Feister, a wife murderer, was hanged.

On Lake Bennett, Alaska, a barge containing 16 gold seekers was capsized and all the men were drowned.

A mob lynched George Washington (colored) at Weimar, Tex., for killing Lee Wall, a constable.

The death of Dr. S. Fillmore Bennett, the author of the immortal hymn, "The Sweet By and By," occurred in Richmond, Ill., at the age of 62 years.

In Detroit, Mich., fire destroyed the Case Power building, the loss being $200,000.

Later reports from Sierra Leone, West Africa, say that 1,000 persons were killed in the recent uprising in that district, a number of them being missionaries.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

The failure of Ernest T. Hooley, for years prominent as the biggest company promoter in England, occurred in London for $2,000,000.

A. J. Balfour, the government leader, stated in the house of commons that Great Britain would take no active part in any move for intervention between the United States and Spain.

In Madrid and other Spanish cities rioting has again broken out. Now that the people know the truth about Manila they are in revolt.

The Argentine republic has elected Gen. Roca president for a term of six years.

LATER NEWS.

Gen. Brooke, stationed at Chickamauga, received orders from the war department at Washington directing him to equip 15,000 men for active service at once. They are to be rushed to Tampa, and from that port direct into Cuba on a second expedition.

The Porto Rico army of invasion will be made ready as soon as possible.

House Democrats caucus and decided to oppose Hawaiian annexation.

Started at Last.

Tampa, Fla., June 14.—After weeks of waiting and preparation, the first army of invasion to start from the eastern shores of the United States departed under command of Gen. Shafter this morning at 9 o'clock. The fleet of transports consisted of thirty-five vessels, four tenders and fourteen convoys. These are all now upon the Gulf of Mexico, headed to the southward until they pass Key West at least. If the destination be Cuba, they will continue their present course until Cape Antonio, at the west of the island, is doubled, when an easterly course will be sailed until they reach the vicinity of Santiago.

Hobson's Crew Rewarded.

Washington, June 14.—Substantial recognition has been given by the navy department to the members of the gallant crew who took the Merrimack into the entrance of Santiago harbor and sank her across the channel, under the very muzzle of the Spanish guns.

This evening official recognition was taken of their valor, when Secretary Long signed the orders to Admiral Sampson, directing the promotion of all the members of the crew. Lieutenant Hobson's reward will come later. They still linger in a Spanish prison, but when they return to their own ships their promotions will be awaiting them.

LEITER IS A LOSER.

Surrenders 16,000,000 Bushels of Wheat to His Creditors.

Market Drops from Two to Ten Cents as Soon as News Was Received —History of the Deal.

Chicago, June 14.—Joseph Leiter has surrendered to his creditors 16,000,000 bushels of wheat. His grain deal, beginning April 2, 1897, has collapsed. His estimated loss is $5,000,000. On wheat owned May 31 Mr. Leiter might have realized a profit of $4,500,000. Since then the market has declined, and, financial support which he had hitherto received being withdrawn, he retired on the best terms possible. His creditors are financial institutions in Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and New York city. These concerns lent money on his wheat at 80 cents or less a bushel. They are amply protected. The Illinois Trust and Savings bank probably will be selected as trustee for the Leiter grain and place one or two broker representatives in the market.

Effect on the Market.

The effect on the market when the news of the collapse came was that June wheat fell off 10 cents, July 11 cents, September 2⅞ cents and December 3⅞ cents. A rally followed the decline on the announcement that no assignment would take place and that the cash wheat would not be slaughtered.

Accurate figures as to Mr. Leiter's holdings when he decided to liquidate are difficult to secure. The best estimates indicate that he has 12,000,000 bushels of wheat in Duluth and Minneapolis, 2,000,000 bushels en route to Europe and 2,000,000 bushels in or en route to New York. Mr. Leiter will not make an assignment and court proceedings for the settlement of his grain account will not be necessary.

Decline in Wheat Flour.

Wheat flour was on the toboggan slide Monday. Late in the afternoon it came down from six dollars and landed on the $5.50 mark. There are those who think that the landing was insecure and that another drop will be announced before the week is over. The prime cause of the fall to $5.50 a barrel was the great decline in cash wheat at Minneapolis Monday. The drop was not altogether unexpected by Chicago flour men, several of whom had predicted such as soon as the rumor that Leiter had succumbed took wings. There is a feeling that the Leiter stir on the board of trade will cause the price of flour to go down to five dollars a barrel before closing-up time on Saturday.

Panic at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 14. — The biggest panic known to the wheat trade here occurred Monday. Everybody appeared to have July wheat to dump into the maelstrom and prices dropped two cents or more at a jump, losing 13 cents in the first two hours and keeping up the break until it had slumped 20 cents, to 92 cents.

Chronology of the Leiter Deal.

April 2, 1897—He buys his first wheat at 72⅝c.

June 18, 1897—He pays lowest price, 64¾c.

July, 1897—Wheat trade scents a "corner."

September, 1897—Leiter recognized as principal.

December, 1897—Complaints of rigid grain inspection.

December 14, 1897—Seven weeks' Duluth shipments foot 4,000,000 bushels.

December 18, 1897—Armour delivers first 1,000,000 bushels for December.

February 8, 1898—Two million bushels started east by rail.

March 10, 1898—Trade talks of a "marginal price."

March 24, 1898—Talk of Armour-Leiter compact.

April 26, 1898—May wheat sells at $1.25.

May 5, 1898—May wheat sells at $1.50.

May 10, 1898—May wheat sells at top price, $1.85.

May 31, 1898—May wheat breaks 50 cents.

June 10, 1898—Government predicts 640,000,000 bushels crop.

June 13, 1898—Leiter closes his deal; price collapses to 70⅞c.

TROOPS OFF FOR CUBA.

Official Statement That First Expedition Is at Last on the Way.

Washington, June 14.—The first army of invasion to Cuba is now well on its way, 32 transport steamships, bearing over 15,000 officers and men, convoyed by battleships, cruisers, gunboats and auxiliary cruisers, 16 in number, having actually sailed from Key West at daybreak Monday morning. An authoritative statement to this effect was made at the war department, setting at rest all reports that the expedition was on its way, or had landed last week. The authorities made the announcement for the reason that the time for secrecy was now past, as the scout boats had made sure that the path was clear before it and that no possible menace could come from the Spanish ships or troops, even should they know our forces were advancing against them. The grand total of the expedition is 773 officers and 14,564 enlisted men.

The completeness with which the transport of troops has been planned is shown in the official list of transport vessels given out at the war department. Of this list, 34 large steamships, varying from 4,100 tons down to 600 tons, are at Florida points ready to carry our troops to the point of invasion. There are some 15 other craft, including vessels suitable for conveying fresh water, stores, etc., and for lightering the troops and stores from the ships to the beach when the debarkation begins. The entire transport fleet of about 50 steamships, augmented by the fleet of naval convoys, 16 in number, will make a formidable marine procession,

Venezuelan Revolution Ended.

Washington, June 14.—Information has reached the state department that the revolution which has prevailed in Venezuela for the past six months ended last night by the defeat and capture of Hernandez, its leader. The people are celebrating the termination of the revolution by public demonstrations. As a result President Andrade remains more firmly than ever seated in the executive office in Caracas.

Thirty Persons Reported Killed.

Cannes, June 14.—A four-story building at Biot, a village near here, collapsed. The full extent of the accident has not yet been ascertained, but it is estimated that 30 persons have been killed. Troops were ordered to the scene and are now engaged in clearing up the debris and recovering the bodies of the victims.

THE BOND ISSUE.

Secretary Gage Issues a Circular Inviting the People to Buy at Par for 32 Days.

Washington, June 14.—Immediately upon receipt of the information from the white house that the war revenue bill had been signed by the president, Secretary Gage issued the following circular explaining to the public the proposed bond issue:

"Treasury Department, Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C., June 13, 1898. —The secretary of the treasury invites subscriptions from the people of the United States for $200,000,000 of the bonds of the three per cent. loan authorized by the act of congress approved June 13, 1898. Subscriptions will be received at par for a period of 32 days, the subscription being open from this date to three o'clock p. m. on the 14th day of July, 1898. The bonds will be issued in both coupon and registered form, the coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, $500 and $1,000, and the registered bonds in denominations of $20, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. They will be dated August 1, 1898, and by their terms will be redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the United States after ten years from the date of their issue and due and payable August 1, 1898.

"The bonds will bear interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum, payable quarterly; the interest on the coupon bonds will be paid by means of coupons, to be detached from the bonds as the interest becomes due, and the interest on the registered bonds will be paid by checks drawn to the order of the payees, and mailed to their addresses.

"The law authorizing this issue of bonds provides that in allotting said bonds the several subscriptions of individuals shall be first accepted, and the subscriptions of the lowest amounts shall be first allotted. In accordance with that provision allotments to all individual subscribers will be made before any bonds will be allotted to other than individuals. All individual subscriptions for $500 or less will be allotted in full as they are received, and such subscriptions must be paid in full at the time the subscription is made. If the total sum subscribed for in amounts of $500 or less should exceed $200,000,000, the allotments will be made according to the priority of the receipts of the subscriptions.

"In order to avoid a too rapid absorption of funds into the treasury, with a possible consequent evil effect on industry and commerce, any subscriber for more than $600 will be permitted to take his allotment of bonds in installments of 20 per cent., taking the first installment within ten days after the notice of the allotment, and the balance at four equal intervals of 40 days each, in four installments each of 20 per cent. of the bonds allotted. Delivery of bonds will be made in installments as payment for them is received, and payment must in all cases be made in full as the bonds are taken. The two per cent. deposit will apply on the final installment. Any subscriber may pay for the whole amount allotted him within ten days from the date of the notice of his allotment. Interest will be adjusted from the time of the actual payment, whether paid in one sum or in installments as permitted. Separate subscriptions from one individual, although made from time to time, will be aggregated and considered as one subscription.

"The secretary of the treasury will receive in payment for the bonds post office money orders payable at Washington, D. C., and checks, bank drafts, and express money orders collectible in the cities of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco. All money orders and bank drafts must be drawn in favor of the treasurer of the United States. The money orders and bank checks so received will be forwarded for collection by the department, and as soon as returns are obtained the subscriber will be credited with the amount of his subscription as of the date of collection. The secretary will also receive in payment for the bonds certificates of deposit issued by the assistant treasurers of the United States in the above-named cities. These certificates of deposit may be obtained from any assistant treasurer in exchange for gold coin, gold certificates, standard silver dollars, silver certificates, United States notes, treasury notes of 1890, and national bank notes; and the subscriber will be credited with the amount of his subscription as of the date of the certificate of deposit. The secretary will also receive currency sent by registered mail or by express direct to the treasury department.

"For the mutual convenience of the subscribers and the department a blank form of letter to accompany remittances has been prepared, and it may be obtained at the offices of national and state banks generally, at the several sub-treasuries of the United States.

"The bonds will be dated August 1, 1898, and they will be delivered to subscribers free of expense for transportation as soon after that date as possible. The bonds will be accompanied by a check for the amount of interest due the subscriber from the date of his payment to August 1, 1898.

"All remittances and other communications relative to this loan should be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, Division of Loans and Currency, Washington, D. C.

"All subscriptions must be received at the treasury department, Washington, D. C., not later than three o'clock p. m., Wednesday, July 14, 1898. No subscriptions received after that date, and hour will be considered.

"(Signed) L. J. GAGE, Secretary."

Funeral Long Deferred.

Auburn, Ind., June 14. — The funeral of Charles Wamsley, who died in February, was held at Huntertown Sunday. Six months ago Wamsley, a train dispatcher of the Southern Pacific railroad in Texas, was sandbagged and robbed in Chicago and died from the injuries. His body was cremated. The services were held under the auspices of the odd fellows of Fort Wayne, and his ashes were buried with great formality.

Hopeful and Defiant.

Madrid, June 14. — A semi-official note issued Monday emphatically contradicts all the American reports of operations in Cuba and even denies that American forces have effected a landing in Guantanamo bay, or elsewhere. The note concludes:

"The European powers will make a mistake in imagining Spain is discouraged and at the end of her resources. On the contrary, Spain is full of hope and determined to continue the war."

Unfit for Sea.

Washington, June 14.—Word has been received at the navy department from a high, though unofficial source that Admiral Camara's Cadiz fleet has been found unfit for sea.

WELL-KNOWN LITERARY FOLK

Sam Walter Foss, the poet, who has been in newspaper work for the past 15 years, has been appointed librarian of the public library at Somerville, Mass.

This year marks the tri-centenary of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," and Sir Henry Irving will recognize the fact by including the play in his repertoire for the coming season.

Henri Gilbert, a French journalist, who is walking around the world for a wager of $10,000, has arrived at Adelaide, South Australia. The distance to be traversed is 41,500 miles, and it has to be accomplished in five years. Since he started in February, 1895, he has covered 23,220 miles.

Richard le Gallienne is the last to have the charge of plagiarism brought against him. In a letter to the London Chronicle Walter Phelps Dodge says that Le Gallienne, in his "The Romance of Zion Chapel," makes the hero develop phthisis by kissing a consumptive fiancee. Mr. Dodge says that he used that "rather morbid idea" in his book, "A Strong Man Armed," published in 1897.

Appropriateness.

"I took out a living picture show once," said the theatrical manager, "and I had several queer experiences.

"We always had trouble getting suitable music, for one thing. I remember that we struck a certain town where the music was furnished by a seedy, freckle-faced young man who officiated on one of those bangety-bang pianos. I asked him if he could think of music suitable to each picture as it was displayed.

"'Oh, yes,' certainly he could, 'and do it impromptu.'

"The performance opened. He was seated at the piano, and he turned to look at the first picture. It was 'Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden.'

"He didn't hesitate an instant. Like a flash he turned and began pounding out: 'There's Only One Girl in This World for Me.'"—Chicago Journal.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

From the Free Press, Detroit, Mich.

A prominent business man recently expressed the opinion that there is one thing that will prevent women from completely filling man's place in the business world—they can't be depended upon because they are sick too often. This is refuted by Mrs. C. W. Mansfield, a business woman of 58 Farrar St., Detroit, Mich., who says:

"A complication of female ailments kept me awake nights and wore me out. I could get no relief from medicine and hope was slipping away from me. A young lady in my employ gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I took them and was able to rest at night for the first time in months. I bought more and took them and they cured me as they also cured several other people to my knowledge. I think that if you should ask any of the druggists of Detroit who are the best buyers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills they would say the young women. These pills certainly build up the nervous system and many a young woman owes her life to them.

"As a business woman I am pleased to recommend them, as they did more for me than any physician, and I can give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People credit for my general good health to-day.

Suddenly Prostrated.

No discovery of modern times has done so much to enable women to take their proper place in life by safe-guarding their health as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, invigorating the body, regulating the functions, they restore the strength and health to the exhausted woman when every effort of the physician proves unavailing.

For the growing girl they are of the greatest benefit, for the mother indispensable, for every woman invaluable.

For paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and other diseases long supposed incurable, these pills have proved their efficacy in thousands of cases.

ACCORDING TO CONSCIENCE.

Why the Congregation Was Separated on Sexual Lines in Tennessee Mountain Church.

"On one occasion," remarked the able journalist, "I was down in the mountains of Tennessee, where everything is primitive, and on Sunday I attended a Baptist church, where, much to my surprise, the women were seated on one side of the house, and the men on the other. I had never seen anything of the kind before, and after the services were over I spoke about it to one of the members, whom I knew quite well.

"'It's allus been done that a-way,' he said in explanation.

"'But why?' I persisted.

"'So's to worship God accordin' to our own consciences, as the constitution provides.'

"'But sitting on opposite sides of the church doesn't make any difference, does it?'

"'Don't it?' he replied with emphasis. 'Well, hit jis' do. Do you reckon that a man kin set over thar alongside uv his wife where she kin nudge him with her elbow about every onc't in two minutes ef he begins to swag—I say, kin a man do that under them circumstances and worship God accordin' to his own conscience? Well, not much, nowhar; an' pertickler not in this here neck uv woods.'

"The explanation and the supporting argument carried conviction beyond all controversy, and I had no more to say in opposition."—Washington Star.

ROMANCE VERSUS KICKS.

The Lop-Eared Marquis Who Disliked Moonshine Vanquished the Pleading Poet.

She whom I adore is the wife of a fat marquis—a lop-eared, blear-eyed, greasy marquis. A man without soul. A man without sentiment, who cares naught for moonlight and music. A low, practical man, who pays his debts. I hate him.

This very morning at breakfast, he had cursed the fishballs and sneered at the pickled onions.

She is a good cook. The neighbors will tell you so. And to be told by the base marquis—a man, who, previous to his marriage, had lived at the cheap eating-houses—to be told by him that her manner of frying fishballs was a failure—it was too much.

Her tears fell fast. I, too, wept. I mixed my sobs with her'n. "Fly with me!" I cried.

Ere she could reply—ere she could articulate her ecstasy, her husband, the marquis, crept snake-like upon me.

Shall I write it? He kicked me out of the garden—he kicked me into the street.

I did not return. How could I? I, so ethereal, so full of soul, of sentiment, of sparkling originality! He, so gross, so practical, so lop-eared.

Had I returned, the creature would have kicked me again.—Boston Journal.

AN OPERATION AVOIDED.

Mrs. Rosa Gaum Writes to Mrs. Pinkham About it. She Says:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I take pleasure in writing you a few lines to inform you of the good your Vegetable Compound has done me. I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me; it has, indeed, helped me wonderfully.

For years I was troubled with an ovarian tumor, each year growing worse, until at last I was compelled to consult with a physician.

He said nothing could be done for me but to go under an operation.

In speaking with a friend of mine about it, she recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, saying she knew it would cure me. I then sent for your medicine, and after taking three bottles of it, the tumor disappeared. Oh! you do not know how much good your medicine has done me. I shall recommend it to all suffering women.—Mrs. ROSA GAUM, 720 Wall St., Los Angeles, Cal.

The great and unvarying success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in relieving every derangement of the female organs, demonstrates it to be the modern safeguard of woman's happiness and bodily strength. More than a million women have been benefited by it.

Every woman who needs advice about her health is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass.

LANDED ON CUBAN SOIL.

Force of Marines Plant the Stars and Stripes Over Outer Ruins of Guantanamo.

OPENING FOR OUR ARMY OF INVASION.

First Successful Landing Accomplished—Engagement Lasting 13 Hours Between Spaniards and Marines—4 of Latter and 5 of Former Reported Killed.

Off Guantanamo, Cuba, Friday, June 10, via Port Antonio, Monday, June 13.—The invasion of Cuba by the American forces began Friday. Six hundred marines have pitched their tents about the smoking ruins of the outer fortifications of Guantanamo and the stars and stripes for the first time float on a Spanish flagstaff in Cuba.

To Capt. Clark and the battleship Oregon belongs the honor of accomplishing the first successful landing of the war. Forty marines from the battleship went ashore Saturday morning and occupied the left entrance of the bay until the troopship Panther arrived with 600 marines. These under the command of Lieut. Col. R. W. Huntington arrived at three o'clock, and within half an hour they had burned the buildings of the Spanish camp and had set fire to the miserable little village which crouched on the beach under the hilltop of Guantanamo.

Raised the Stars and Stripes.

No attempt to land was made until the Oregon steamed in early Saturday morning. Capt. Clark immediately sent 40 marines ashore, and 20 from the Marblehead followed. They found evidence of a very hasty departure by the Spaniards. Watches, hammocks and ammunition were scattered about the earthworks and a Spanish flag was found in one of the rifle pits. The little detachment of marines held the place until the Panther arrived, when they were recalled, and the work of disembarking began. The first boat load had scarcely landed when the village burst into flames. Company B, under Lieut. Hall, was the first ashore, and without the loss of a moment the column started up the steep, rocky hillside to the earthworks. For an hour a brown column of marines filed up the narrow path, eventually taking up a position at the top of the hill. As soon as the American flag was swung out to the breeze from the flagstaff of the captured Spanish camp, the Oregon steamed away to rejoin the fleet off Santiago.

The marines will hold the position until the arrival of the expected troops, in the meantime scouting the vicinity, with the Marblehead, Vixen and Dolphin lying by to protect them.

Rear Admiral Sampson now has a harbor and a base of supplies on the south side of the island, and troops can be landed at will.

Engagement at Guantanamo.

Guantanamo, via Mole St. Nicholas, June 13.—Lieut. Col. R. W. Huntington's battalion of marines landed from the transport Panther on Friday and encamped on the hill guarding the abandoned cable station at the entrance of the outer harbor of Guantanamo. The fighting was almost continuous for 13 hours until six o'clock Sunday morning, when reenforcements were landed from the Marblehead. Four of our men were killed and one wounded. Among the killed is Assistant Surgeon John Blair Gibbs, son of Maj. Gibbs, of the regular army, who fell in the Custer massacre. The others killed are Sergt. Charles H. Smith, of Smallwood; Private William Dumphy, of Gloucester, Mass., and Private James McColgan, of Stoneham, Mass.

Five Spaniards Killed.

To the great delight of marines in camp, Lieuts. Neville and Shaw, with 30 men of company D, returned in good shape, but much exhausted, by 18 hours of picket duty. One man, Sergt. Smith, of company K, had been shot through the abdomen and instantly killed. For most of the day and night Lieuts. Neville and Shaw had been surrounded by a much superior force, but men and officers behaved splendidly, and, although the firing of the Spaniards was constant and heavy, Lieut. Neville's detachment held its own, inflicting much more damage than it sustained. At least five Spaniards are known to have been killed, and as Lieut. Neville's men kept up a steady fire throughout the night and the enemy was not at a great distance it is believed that the Spanish casualties were heavy.

Sensational Report from Manila.

London, June 14.—According to a dispatch from Madrid to the Financial News, three Spanish ironclads from Madagascar waters have arrived inside of Manila, and Admiral Dewey's ships have gone to meet them.

RENEWS BOMBARDMENT.

Admiral Sampson Reduces Forts at Santiago—Massachusetts and Suwanee Reported Damaged.

London, June 11. — Sampson has shelled the Spaniards again. Bermuda reports that it has cable connection with Havana, and that the Spaniards there assert the Americans bombarded the Santiago forts again Friday, a fierce fire being kept up for three hours to cover the landing of marines near the harbor mouth. The Spanish reports declare that they twice repulsed the Americans, but don't go into details or definitely say that they finally prevented a landing. The bombardment began early and continued until nearly noon, but just where the landing was attempted is not told in the Bermuda dispatch, nor could Bermuda secure any further details from Havana.

Havana, June 11 (From a Spanish Correspondent).—Several American warships on Friday bombarded Baiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores, and near the railway line to Santiago de Cuba. Official advices from Santiago say that the bombardment "caused no damage." Baiquiri is a mining locality, and some of the mines are under American control. At the palace it is denied that there was any bombardment of the Santiago fortifications Friday.

London, June 14.—The morning papers publish further long accounts of the bombardment of Santiago on June 6, confirming the reports from the United States that Morro castle and the Estrella battery were both set afire by the American shells, and that the Spanish fortifications were immensely damaged. These versions say that the Massachusetts and the Suwanee were somewhat injured by shells.

High Praise for Hobson.

Washington, June 13. — Admiral Sampson asks promotion for Lieut. Hobson and similar reward for his followers in the daring Merrimac exploit at Santiago, the request being made in his official report telling of their valor. In this report Admiral Sampson withheld no measure of credit from Hobson, as well for conceiving and working out the details of the project as for its glorious execution. It was not clearly understood at first just why a staff officer rather than a line officer should be selected for the perilous undertaking, particularly in view of the readiness and eagerness with which such an assignment would be accepted by any line officer of the navy. The report satisfactorily explains this. The man whose brain conceived the project and whose skill and energy worked out the details was undoubtedly the one whose bravery and heroism should execute the work.

Heavy Failure.

Bangor, Me., June 11.—L. B. Clark & Co., tanners, have failed for $550,000. Theirs was the last of the big tanneries in Maine and the failure will cause heavy losses to Maine and Boston banks. The plant was located at Kingman and the firm had offices there, in Boston and in England.

Havana Almost Impregnable.

Chicago, June 11.—A Tribune staff correspondent just arrived at Kingston from Havana reports the Cuban capital almost impregnable from the sea, the army of 50,000 soldiers in good condition, food plenty for the time being, and the absence of an epidemic of yellow fever.

Killed by a Woman.

Perry, O. T., June 14. — During a fight between William Warnholz and Fred Frank, two German farmers, the young wife of Warnholz seized a shotgun and killed her husband's adversary.

WEARIES OF THE WAR.

Spain Said to Be Making Further Efforts for Intervention of the Powers.

London, June 10.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"There is now little doubt that Spain, seeing the hopelessness of further continuing the war, is approaching the powers with a view of obtaining an honorable peace. The cabinet council has finally authorized Duke Almodovar de Rio to expedite diplomatic action, and in consequence the duke is now conferring with certain ambassadors and ministers in Madrid. Instructions have been telegraphed to the Spanish minister in Vienna, and orders likewise given to Senor Aguera, the under secretary of state, to proceed at once to the Austrian capital. Spain is unquestionably looking to Austria for assistance in her distress."

London, June 10.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily News says: A new appeal has been made to the pope to intervene or use all his influence to obtain the interference of the powers. It is asserted that the queen regent has even submitted to the pope the question of her retirement in order to allay public discontent.

Washington, June 11.—Reports from Madrid that Spain, through the minister of foreign affairs, Count Almodovar de Rio, had taken formal steps toward securing peace have not been made apparent by any action in Washington up to this time. There has been no proposition for peace or for an armistice, nor has there even been an entering wedge of inquiry as to how such proposition would be accepted.

Brussels, June 14.—A special Madrid correspondent of the Petit Bleu, of this city, has telegraphed an interview which he claims to have had with Senor Merino, the private secretary of the Spanish premier, Senor Sagasta, in which the secretary is quoted as having formally declared that the Spanish government will now accept any peace proposal which is submitted, "on the express condition that it does not emanate from the enemy," but the premier's secretary is said to have added: "The international mediation which would be especially welcomed upon the part of Spain would be in the case of the initiative being taken by France or Austria."

The First Protest.

Washington, June 11.—Japan has entered a strong protest against the duty on tea provided for in the war revenue bill. The protest was sent to the state department and by it forwarded to the conference committee. The protest is based on the ground that a uniform duty of ten cents a pound on all teas, cheap or dear, will have the effect of ruining Japan's tea trade with the United States. Japan, it says, would not object to a duty graded according to value. The protest was submitted as a result of instructions sent from the Japanese foreign office.

Food for Flames.

Philadelphia, June 14.—The extensive plant of the Philadelphia Oil Refining company, at Point Breeze, in the extreme southwestern part of the city, was visited by a disastrous fire Monday night. By almost Herculean efforts of the company's workmen and nearly the entire fire department of the city the flames were held in check and the loss held within $300,000. Two barges, made fast to the dock, were burned to the water's edge, and one ship, the County Dumfries, was slightly scorched.

Thinks It Ominous.

London, June 13. — The Paris correspondent of the Standard says: Critics here regard the occupation of Guantanamo harbor as a master stroke, and the fact that 3,000 Spanish allowed the landing is ominously significant.

BEATS ALL RECORDS.

Value of Exports of Products of the United States for the Past Year Will Exceed $800,000,000.

Washington, June 13.—The farmers of the United States are drawing upon other parts of the world for more money in the fiscal year which ends this month than in any preceding year in the history of the country. Even the high-water mark of 1892, when our exports of agricultural products amounted to $729,328,232, will be surpassed by the record of the year which closes with this month. The preliminary reports of May exportations which have reached the bureau of statistics make it quite apparent that the agricultural exports of the year will be considerably in excess of $800,000,000, the total for the year being likely to reach $855,000,000. Never before have the exports of agricultural products reached the $800,000,000 line, and never but twice have they been as much as $700,000,000, the two occasions in which they passed the $700,000,000 line being in 1881 and 1892. Compared with the last fiscal year the increase in exports of agricultural products will be fully $150,000,000, and compared with the preceding year the increase will be over $220,000,000, while the total will be fully 50 per cent. in excess of that of the fiscal year 1895.

In breadstuffs alone the exports of the year will amount to nearly $1,000,000 for each business day and will be more than $100,000,000 in excess of last year's exports of breadstuffs. Nearly all articles classed as breadstuffs have participated in this increase. Of wheat the value of the exports for the fiscal year 1898 will be more than double those of the fiscal year 1897; while the increase in flour will be nearly 50 per cent. and of corn nearly 50 per cent. in value. May exports of corn were larger than those of any other month in the history of the country, while the total exports of corn for the year for the first time will pass the 200,000,000 bushel line, the total in three preceding years having reached 100,000,000 bushels. Cornmeal, oats and oatmeal and rye show a striking increase, the gain in oatmeal being more than 60 per cent. over last year and that of oats 100 per cent., while in rye the gain is also phenomenally large.

"Provisions," in which term are included beef, hog and dairy products, there is also a marked increase, the total exports of provisions for the year being likely to reach $160,000,000 in value. Most of this increase, however, is in hog products, exportations of bacon, which were $34,187,147 in value last year, being likely to reach $44,000,000 this year, and lard showing a similar increase, being likely to reach $37,000,000 this year, or a gain of nearly $8,000,000. Live beef seems to be gaining in popularity with our foreign customers, the exports of beef cattle having increased materially, while those of beef, either fresh, canned or salted, have failed to show any increase, in most cases a decided falling off being noticeable. The exports of beef cattle during the first ten months of the fiscal year were 379,663, against 310,478 in the corresponding months of last year, while fresh beef in the same period fell from 242,168,034 pounds in ten months of 1897 to 227,434,373 pounds in the corresponding ten months of 1898. Salted beef shows a fall of 25 per cent. for the year and canned beef from 46,349,006 pounds in the ten months of 1897 to 34,011,129 pounds in the ten months of 1898.

A Mob's Victim.

Great Bend, Kan., June 14.—In the public square a murderer was lynched at eight o'clock Monday evening by a mob of probably 500 persons. The victim was John Becker, a young white man, who on April 8 killed Myrtle Huffmeister, the 16-year-old daughter of William Huffmeister, a farmer living midway between Great Bend and Ellinwood. Becker was employed by the farmer, and professed passionate love for the daughter, and the tragedy followed the girl's refusal to accept his advances. When the girl came to the stable in the evening Becker shot her to death, sending eight bullets into her body, after which he set fire to the farmer's stables.

Cure for Consumption.

Denver, Col., June 10.—Dr. J. B. Murphy, of Chicago, who invented the intestinal button that bears his name, and devised a unique system of invaginating or "splicing" arteries, announced to the American Medical association here Thursday a conditional cure for consumption of the lung. It is to throw the diseased member out of service temporarily by collapsing it with nitrogen gas injected into the chest. During the lung's quiescent state the tendency of nature to cure the disease by the action of the accompanying pleuritic effusion is dependent on to effect the cure.

A Thousand Killed.

Liverpool, June 13.—Steamers which have arrived here from Sierra Leone report that a thousand persons were killed in a recent uprising in that district. One hundred and twenty inhabitants of Freetown, most of them traders, are known to have been massacred, and other colonists were carried into the bush by the "war boys" and undoubtedly met a worse fate. Three hundred friendly natives were killed, and besides the white missionaries six colored missionaries of the United Brethren of Christ were murdered at Manohbargru.

Puerto Rico to Be Invaded Next.

Tampa, Fla., June 14. — Gen. Coppinger is in command of the troops left at Tampa, and it is believed will command the next expedition to sail. The destination of this next expedition will be Puerto Rico. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's corps is not likely to go to Puerto Rico, but will be sent to Cuba, when the time comes to strike Havana. The troops which left here for Key West prior to forming the first army of Cuban invasion, were convoyed from Tampa to Key West by the Helena, Annapolis, Castine and Windom.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Sugar Beets.

Three well-known beet sugar experts have completed an inspection of the growing beet crops, which are to yield the raw material for the Minneapolis sugar mill. They are Shannon, of Washington, D. C.; Frahn, of Hastings, Neb.; and Lewis, of Los Alamedos, Cal. They saw 2,500 acres of growing beets and report that they never saw a young growth looking better.

Work on the St. Louis Park factory is being pushed rapidly. One of the twenty artesian wells that are to yield 2,500,000 gallons of water daily has been completed. It poured out clear, pure water. The boilers have been set, 100 carloads of stone for foundations for the heavy machinery have been received, and all the machinery will be on the ground within thirty days. A night force of workmen will then be put on to rush the factory to completion.

Mortgages.

Commissioner Powers is bringing down to date the statistics collected by the bureau of labor in regard to farm mortgage foreclosures. His figures seem to indicate mainly two things: That there are not so many foreclosures as there used to be, and that there are fewer where farming is diversified than in a one crop country.

The figures have previously been published from 1880 to 1893, with a few counties running back to 1878. The bureau has been collecting figures from 1893 to 1897, and has now completed the comparisons for 1894 and 1895. The figures for the last two years will be ready in another month. As far as Mr. Powers has got they show the same as the preceding two years, only more strikingly. Mortgage foreclosures have almost vanished in the richer farming counties, where there is market gardening and dairy farming.

Presented with a Flag.

The feature of Sunday at Camp Merritt, San Francisco, was the presentation of the regimental flag to the regiment by Mrs. Helen A. Runge, for Custer Circle and citizens of Minnesota. The entire command was drawn up in line. Col. Reeve replied, thanking Mrs. Runge and the people of Minnesota for showing their appreciation of their work, and following them with their thoughts and love. Col. Reeve pledged every drop of blood in the veins of the boys of the 13th before they would allow the flag to be dishonored.

The soldiers applauded vigorously, and gave three rousing cheers. The band played several selections during the exercises.

Forest Fire Record.

Chief Fire Warden Andrews has issued his third annual report. The damage done by forest fires in 1897 was $22,455, and by prairie fires, $14,554.

Sixteen forest fires were caused from clearing land, eleven from burning brush and meadow, and eleven from camps of hunters and campers. Eight prairie and field fires were caused by threshing engines, eleven by railroad locomotives, eight from burning straw or stubble and eight from burning firebreaks.

Patriots Are Plenty.

When Lieut. M. L. Merrill arrived at the national guard armory at St. Paul to enlist a hundred men for the Thirteenth Minnesota, he found more than the requisite number of would-be recruits crowded anxiously about the corridor. At supper time he was compelled to announce that no more men were wanted, and he referred applicants to the recruiting officers of the Twelfth and Fourteenth regiments, who are expected to arrive soon.

Happy.

The happiest man in the Twelfth regiment at Chicamauga was Chaplain Clemans when the agent of the Southern express set down before his tent a small portable organ, the gift of Everett, Aughenbaugh & Co., millers of Waseca. It was just what the chaplain had been longing for, and he did not even try to conceal his pleasure. The proverbial boy and his new boots wasn't in it for an instant with the parson.

Corner Stone for the Capitol.

The magnificent granite block which is to serve as the corner stone of Minnesota's handsome new capitol is being cut at the Baxter quarry near St. Cloud. It weighs many tons, and there is being chiseled out of the center a receptacle in which will be placed a number of documents historical of the state and its progress. Work on the granite contract is progressing rapidly.

Minnesota Briefs.

Upon an alleged wager of $250, Paul J. Tustin, a circus preformer jumped off the Wabasha street bridge at St. Paul into the Mississippi river. Tustin was uninjured and swam ashore.

Ole Anderson a laborer at Smith's saw mill, Minneapolis, was killed by the tipping of a dump cart.

Police Officer Abraham Zimmerman of Minneapolis was acquitted of manslaughter in the first degree for the killing of Harry Staffard.

Miss V. Smith was thrown from her carrage in St. Paul by a runaway team and seriously injured.

Expert cracksmen opened the safe in C. F. Rappe's grocery store, at St. Paul, securing $100 in cash and an express order for $15.

State Auditor Dunn received a check from Insurance Commissioner Dearth for the fees and taxes collected by the state insurance department for April and May, amounting to $5,793. Of this amount $2,102 was derived from fees and $2,555 from taxes.

Paton & Watson's big flouring mill at Dundas was destroyed by fire. Loss $35,000.

Anton Halvorson, aged 15, was drowned while bathing at Mora.

The Macalister college completed its thirteenth year and graduated a class of ten.

Al Lewis, who escaped from the Anoka jail was recaptured.

Six horses stolen from F. H. Armstrong's barn in Minneapolis were recovered in St. Paul.

The Great Northern railway company has recently acquired 60 acres of land at South Crookston for divisional headquarters, and will immediately commence the construction of necessary yards, round house and buildings.

A. Johnson was killed by falling out of the third story window of a lodging house in Minneapolis.

Frederick Marcellon attempted suicide at St. Paul by jumping into the river, but was rescued by some boys. He was recovering from a spree.

The Chinese Flag.

The standard of the Celestial Empire is a very queer looking affair. It represents the most grotesque of green dragons on a yellow ground. The latter is suggestive not only of the national complexion, but also of that of a sufferer from biliousness. To remove this unbecoming tint from the complexion, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which will speedily regulate your liver, prevent malaria, and remedy dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism and kidney omplaint.

A FAMILY FAILING.

The struggle with Heredity.

The Right Side of the Color Line.

To heredity, to the transmission of traits from sire to son, we owe most of the possibilities of growth and development. If each newly born being started out anew, without the force of heredity the level of life might be expected to be that of the digger Indian or Bushman. Naturally bad traits descend like the good. Peculiarities of feature, excentricities of speech and manner, birth marks, etc., are handed down just as surely as manual dexterity, physical beauty, mathematical ability, and the mental and moral qualities in general. A curious example of this descent of family traits is furnished by Mrs. Maggie Pickett, Canton, Ga., in whose family gray hair was hereditary. She writes:

"Gray hair is hereditary in our family. As long as I can recollect, my mother's hair has been gray. About twelve years ago, my hair began to show signs of turning. I resolved to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and after using it only a few times my hair was restored to its natural color. I still use this dressing occasionally, a bottle lasting me quite a while; and though over forty years of age, my hair retains its youthful color and fullness. To all who have faded and gray hair, I would heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor."—Mrs. MAGGIE PICKETT, Canton, Ga.

There is no shame in gray hair, but there may be some sadness, because it is untimely, and out of season. Gray hairs are a crown of honor to the aged, but to the young they are a stigma. There is no need to be gray in youth. Grayness comes from a deficiency of the coloring matter which gives the hair its natural tint. This coloring matter can be supplied artificially and is so supplied by Dr. J. C. Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is by supplying the lacking pigment that Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. Beyond this, it makes the hair grow, gives it gloss and softness, stops it from falling, removes dandruff, and cleanses the scalp. Mrs. C. M. Ayres, Mount Airy, Ga., writes:

"About three years ago, my head became full of dandruff, which caused great annoyance; after a time the hair began falling out. The use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the hair from falling out, and made the scalp clean and healthy."—Mrs. C. M. AYRES, Mount Airy, Ga.

Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor is noted as a dressing. It is used every day by thousands whose chief claim to beauty rests on beautiful hair. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. Free. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Study the war situation on the inside of this paper.

—The old Roosen Opera House has been raised up to grade.

--Jones the livery man and Nick Frank on River street have new signs.

—A branch of the Catholic Foresters society is to be established here next week.

—A number of Delanoites attended the I. O. O. F. picnic at Spring Park Wednesday.

—Strawberries are plentiful and cheap in the cities this year, and some of the finest berries we ever saw.

—We understand Mr. Bullen will be agent for Cargill Bros at this place and open up the old elevator soon.

—The boys must have the credit for most what the GAZETTE contains this week. Ye editor was away three days.

—The shade trees in Delano have grown with unusual vigor this year, requiring trimming, to keep the streets open for driving purposes.

—Rev. J. R. Davis, of Hector, will preach an I. O. O. F's Memorial sermon at the Delano M. E. Church, on Sunday June 19, at 10:30 A. M.

—Rev. Farber preached a good sermon last Sunday evening. The audience was not nearly so large as it should be in a town the size of Delano.

—Our city fathers have had the trees in Railroad Park trimmed so that the depot can now be seen from the sidewalk on R. R. Ave. Quite an improvement.

—If you have $20, or upwards that you wish to interest in U. S. bonds read on the inside of this paper the offer made by Secretary of the Treasury Gage and act accordingly.

—Neighbor Buckley's new residence on the corner of Oak and Third streets bids fair to be among the finest in town. It seems to be running considerably to roof however.

--HON. Cyrus M. King, of Fair Haven, may be here in the near future to talk on political issues of the day. He has talked to a Delano audience before and is known as a pleasing speaker.

—Last week's Eagle says L. M. Maxfield has been awarded the contract for building a new elevator at Dassel. J. W. McDonald informs us that the contract was let to Maxfield & McDonald.

—The Telephone company which has been camped intown for a couple weeks, intended to play a game of ball with the Crickets Wednesday afternoon, but in the morning

"They folded their tents like the Arabs
And silently stole away."

--The street commissioner had a crew of men at work tapping the main and laying pipe, in preparation for a stand pipe with which to fill our new street sprinkler, on R. R. Ave. opposite Bartlett's feed store.

—Peter Gelt, of Silver Creek, has moved into his residence on 2nd St. next to George Bolton's. He has had the house up to grade and moved back onto the lot, and is haying a kitchen built onto the rear end of the building. It will be a great improvement to that part of town.

—Considerable profanity and bad language, and loud talk, mostly the result of too much drink was heard on the streets at Saturday's Fair. Such things should be prevented. Saloons pay enough license to the village to have sufficient police protection to prevent such scenes as some of last Saturday's.

--The street should be cleared of brush The Street Commissioner promised two weeks ago tomorrow that he would remove that from Third Street and has not yet got around to it. His term of office will expire one of these days if he isn't careful before he gets a move on him and the brush.

—The St. Anthony Benevolent Society entertained four visiting societies here in royal style, Monday. The visiting societies were those of Loretto, Rogers, Medina and St. Bonifacius. They formed a procession with the Delano band and society in the lead and paraded the principle street, then back to the picnic on the church and school grounds.

—The caterpillars are hard at work on several varieties of trees in the forests, but owing to the unusual luxuriousness of the foliage and the infantile condition of the worms their work is not very noticeable except on close inspection. But a few weeks more of their work and their tracks can be followed from a distance. If our state bugologist has a remedy for these pests some provision should be made for using it, before the stately basswood and several other varieties of timber disappear from our groves.

—Evidences of a prospective beautiful harvest in a few weeks are manifested in the car loads of threshing machines, and engines going west over the railroad through town, and by the wagons and buggies loaded with binding twine pointing for the homes of farmers who reside near Delano. Never for years, has the wheat outlook been better. Farmers should be prepared to harvest it early and take care of the crops before fall rains set in. Wheat cut a little early is plumper and brighter than when left on the field till a large percentage rattles out.

—While in St. Paul yesterday we looked at St. Paul's two big buildings being erected the custom house is enclosed. The new capital has the foundation up. After they are done they will kind of offset Minneapolis's Court House structure.

Personal.

Judge Woolley was in town Monday evening.

Dr. Catlin, after an absence of three days, during which time he attended the Democratic Congressional convention at St. cloud, the State convention at Minneapolis, and annual meeting of the State Medical society at the state capitol, returned home Thursday evening.

County Cullings.

We quote from the Annandale Advocate a few lines concerning his neighbor at Monticello, as a spicemen of how little love there is at present among would be leading Wright County Republicans.

"Yes, Frenchy, old boy, you can speak from experience. You can remember how your pray-handles used to flop for the machine. But now your veracity equals that of Anannias and your virtue that of Potiphar's impetuous spouse."

With such recommendations of each other how many votes of honest men do our Republican brethren expect to gather in?

The Anoka county delegation at the State Convention, as represented by its chairman, was decidedly for J. J. Woolley for District Judge.

The Howard case seems destined sure enough, to be going to clip the corners off of tickets of the political parties in Wright county in great shape this fall. It is not apt to hurt the tickets any if it does. Round cornered cards are kind of fashionable now anyway.

James E. Madigan, of Maple Lake, is Chairman of the Wright County Democratic committee for the next two years. W. S. Huntington, of Annandale, is Wright County's member of the Democratic Congressional committee, and Dr. Catlin, of Delano, is member from the 18th Judicial District, of the Democratic State Central committee.

We were not much surprised to learn at the State convention that the GAZETTE was not alone in criticising the Public Examiner, notwithstanding the Eagle's little trick to try to induce her readers to believe there were no grounds for charges. Senator McHale, of Shakopee, on taking his seat as Chairman of the Democratic Convention, among other things said:

"If, in this state, we had a Democratic Governor, I'll tell you what we would have besides: We would have a bank examiner whose work would be of a nature that the people would be protected. We would have a state railroad commission that would be in the interests of the people, and a labor commissioner who would pay some attention to the needs of labor."

For some reason, possibly because the customary transportation fee to the State Convention did not show up, the delegates in attendance from Wright County were limited to six out of twenty four elected.

Messers Kemp and T. F. Kelley of Waverly sat in the row of seats reserved for Wright County delegates a part of the time during the Democratic State Convention.

Wright County was represented at the State Medical Society's meeting at the Capital this week by Drs. O'Connor, of Maple Lake, Chilton, of Howard Lake. and Catlin of Delano. Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown was there also. The meeting was well attended and of much interest to the M. D's. Dr. Barton, Prof. of Physiology in the Hamline University Medical School, formerly of Buffalo, read an interesting paper in his line of work. The Dr. is developing into a first class physiologist and lecturer,

Dr. E. Y. Chilton, of Howard Lake, has, we are informed, a Senatorial bee buzzing in his brain. The Dr. has on several occasions been switched off the track of political preferment, to make way for legal tinkerers. The people are getting tired of having all the laws in our state made by lawyers in such shape that they never can have an idea whether or not they are constitutional. Doctors would make laws in so few words that the printers would not grow rich printing them, nor the lawyers accumulate wealth helping clients crawl out of the loop holes left in the conglameration of words to make the law appear very forcible to the uninitiated. By all means lets have somebody else than a lawyer for Senator, just once for a trial anyway. Dr. Chilton is the equal in ability with any of the legal gentlemen in the county. Of course we would prefer a good Democrat, but if we must have a Republican why not Dr. Chilton as well as any one else in the county?

The Eagle calls for "written evidence incriminating the candidates" and then threatens to turn loose her 13 inch guns on them. What's the matter with printed evidence such as the financial statements that Meeker, Nicollet and other counties pay $7.80 for medical examinations of Insane, Kandiyohi $5, Wright $3, and all under the same law, and under the scrutiny of the same Public Examiner, who after his attention was called to the facts and he had written a letter saying that $5 was the legal fee, according to printed evidence in St. Peter papers had his deputy O. K. the Nicollet county officer's accounts as correct? Instead of assisting the GAZETTE in an honest effort to have this kind of business, which is only a drop in the bucket compared to the open charges concerning bank examinations under the same set of officers, stopped, the Eagle, by trying to make her readers believe we had a private grievance, turned her 13 inch guns on us. She shot at the wrong mark. Her guns should have been trained in the interest of the State of Minnesota and the thousands of people robbed by "busted" banks, and by crooked work, whether through intention or through ignorance, that should have been corrected instead of "O. K'd." by the Public Examiner, instead of aiming at our devoted head. Her shot has failed of its intended effect. The missle from her 13 inch gun has but served to wound the already savage game, the whole people of the state of Minnesota, who have suffered at the hands of these public officers who were supposed to be working in the interests of the people, have been made still more earnest in their desire to do away with such business, and their just and righteous indignation will very soon manifest itself to the "Old Bird" and like party organs who feel called upon to defend such actions rather than knock them out, with their 13 inch guns. "Tariff is a Tax" even though it is for revenue only,

P. H. Leahey, of Maple Lake and T. J. Mealey, of Monticello were present at the Democratic Convention for a short time Wednesday.

These should have represented the Wright Co. Democracy in the Minneapolis convention Wednesday:

M. A. O'Hair, J. C. Nugent, T. G. Mealey, Dr. E. A. Shannon, P. H. Leahey, H. Jude, J. P. Scheyer, P. S. Randolph, F. W. Gorman, W. J. Ellis, Joseph Reems, Frank T. Aydt, Charles Bugbee, Martin Conzet, T. J. Catlin, P. J. Powell, Ed McGuire, August Lorentz, Thomas Dygert, David Kemp, O. Maybush, James Patrick, Thomas Graham, C. R. Rucker.

Among Our Exchanges.

Honest candidates honestly nominated means victory for the democrats this year; ring rule means certain defeat for all save possibly the ring leaders.—Maple Lake Messenger.

Brother Eaton, of the Buffalo Journal, devoted his last issue to a worthy cause, yis: Booming his town. Buffalo is a town worth shouting for, and Eaton is just the man to do it.—The County Line.

If nothing else would do it the Democrats of Wright County have cut their throats by declaring their allegiance to that seditions document know as the Chicago platform. "What fools these mortals be."—Eagle.

The Eagle wishes this was so, and it is about as near so as many things found in her colums. The truth of the matter is the Democratic party in Wright County has been in need of some new blood for several years and there has been a tendency to the development of too many red corpurcles, a few white corpuscles have been added and it is hoped now that proper relative number of white and red corpuscles have become intermingled to make the blood more pure and that the Wright County Democratic party will now exhibit a vitality and progressiveness not visible in years past.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Entirely New. Abreast of the Times. A Grand Educator.

Successor of the "Unabridged."

Everybody should own this Dictionary. It answers all questions concerning the history, spelling, pronunciation, and meaning of words.

A Library in Itself. It also gives the often desired information concerning eminent persons; facts concerning the countries, cities, towns, and natural features of the globe; particulars concerning noted fictitious persons and places; translation of foreign quotations. It is invaluable in the home, office, study, and schoolroom.

The One Great Standard Authority.

Hon. D. J. Brewer, Justice of U. S. Supreme Court, writes: "The International Dictionary is the perfection of dictionaries. I commend it to all as the one great standard authority."

WHEN MARIA TACKLES SPAIN.

They say there's goin to be war, the fiercest we've had yit;
Maria says it's got to come, an' that jist settles it;
An' when it comes, though I'm a patri't, pure in grit an' grain,
I'm feared my human natur'll make me smypathize with Spain.

That may seem mightly quare to you, but fust you wanter know
That my Maria's vowed a vow that she's jist boun' ter go,
An' havin' spesual cause to know her pattern of campaign,
I've got the right to say she,ll mop the universe with Spain.

An' though I've read about the way poor Cuby's had to stand
The cruel pussecutions of them folks from Weyler's land,
I must declar I can't from tech of pity quite refrain
When thinken' what'll happen when Maria tackles Spain.

For when she gets her war paint on she's jest a compereite
Of averlanche, tornader, cyclone, bum an' dynermite,
An' after this ere conflict she's enlisted in, it's plain
There'll be a nation missin', an, that nation'll be Spain.

FOR Governor Eustice and Van Sant are pretty close with Collins a poor third.

THE Aitkin Age says Cholly Towne is an "ingrate." Maybe he is, he came tolerably near getting some editors "ingrates" since last election and threatens to came still nearer this time if they are not careful. But he don't seem to think those who call him "Cholly" worthy of much attention.

RAILROADS are granting low rates to the Trans Mississippi Exposition at Omaha, Neb. Anybody looking for a place to spend a pleasant summer vacations can go cheaper and see more for their money, at Omaha just now than any place on the continent probably. Minnesota has a house there. If you attend be sure to find it and make it headquarters. Swedish day is today, June 24.

HOW cheap some of our Republican friends would feel should it transpire that the Hon. David Clough had successfully trodden the path blazed out by his predecessor Hon. Knute Nelson and landed himself in a seat in the U. S. Senate, superseding the Hon. Cushman K. Davis. Would they feel prouder of the change than did the average Ohioan when they found Marcus A. Hanna had become a Senator for Ohio? We presume not.

THE principle issues of this campaign in Minnesota, will doubtless be reform in State Government. People are terribly tired of a lot of officers running about over the land seeking what they can devour. All kind of inspectors, many of whom apparently know little or nothing about the business they are supposed to look after judging from work done by them, could as well be dispensed with, and where such things are necessary a salary could be paid and the fee system abolished.

Gleanings from Republican Convention.

H. C. Bull, delegate from Cokato: Never had so much fun in a Democratic convention.

C. A. French, editor, and delegate from Monticello: Nearly all the officers, post masters and such, are vilifying Judge Tarbox.

F. H. Lindsley, P. M. at Delano: "Rats."

C. A. French, Striking pantomine (while his speech waited) for especial benefit of p. m. Lindsley.

Judge Tarbox, not a delegate, but a candidate: There is a power in the Judge's hands that he can always get two votes unless men stand high. The men will be got.

Judge J. T. Alley, chairman of the Convention: I think the delegates are all honest, and they can come up and deposite their ballots.

Hon. Nathan Warner, delegate from Rockford: Them resolutions won't bind me by a dammed site.

Maple Plain, Minn., June 6, 1898
Editor BUFFALO GAZETTE,

Is this war between the navies of Spain and the United States for boodle, for conquest, for bonds, or is it for humanity and righteousness? Will some prophet please answer? God says vengeance is mine and I will repay. If this war was not declared upon the blowing up of the battle ship Maine (and it seems it was not) for what purpose was it declared? Some say to free Cuba and relieve the reconcentrados but Cuba is yet in torment and the reconcentrados are about all dead, and who will deliver them from their bondage of death. Some people, under the excitement of war, get so excited and full of patriotism that their shirt collars bust wide open.

As I understand it has always been the policy of this government not to extend our territory beyond the seas, and if by conquest we gain all those islands what will we do with them? We will have to begin with all those people with the alphabet and must bring around a new Genesis. In my opinion the ammunition will cost a good deal more than the game will be worth. If we go into colonizing those people it will be at great expense. I am inclined to believe this will prove a rich man's war and a poor man's fight. while we are considering our duty to poor down trodden humanity let us deliberate a little, and count the cost. How much money will it cost and how many lives must we sacrifice in order to settle the other fellow's fight. We now have a bond issue of $200,000,000 which is called a popular loan the issue being in both coupon and registered bonds, and are to run till 1918 and the fellow that buys them pays no freight (taxes). A man can put all his earnings of a life time in government bonds and never pay a cent of tax. Would ask those wise and unsophisticated judicials of the bench if this is constitutional? They know better! The bond holder draws 3 per cent interest payable every three months. General Sherman, I think it was, said war was hell, but in some respects hell is not in it at all with war. Some of our people make a great cry about their charity and patriotism. What is charity and patriotism? To sacrifice your own flesh and blood and plunge our nation into a bonded debt from which we will never recover? If this is it then we will get it in the most horrid form. If the jayhawkers of this country wanted a war, let them do the fighting. They are no better than the poor man that works in the dirt for a living.

Wheat has gone down and binding twine has gone up, way out of sight; but why do the farmers buy twine two months before they need it, or perhaps they may not need it at all. The crops may all be destroyed by storm or cyclone. If the farmers had not bought their twine until they got ready to harvest they would have bought it a good deal cheaper; but it is not much of a trick to pull the farmer into the hole. He generally bites at very small bait.

Congress has just passed a revenue bill for the purpose of paying war expenses. In the main the bill will not become operative until July 1st, but the ten cents a pound duty on tea was to take effect the next day. O what love of country and patriotism. The poor old woman that has given up her sons to go to war amid tears and sobs, must pay ten cents more on a pound of tea, which she must have to brace up her nervous constitution, while her sons are fighting for the devil knows what. O what love, what wondrous love is this! It is said the Vice President signed the bill with a quill plucked from the tail of a bald eagle. How that eagle would have whooped her up if it had known for what purpose and execution that one quill of her appendage was to perform. We understand the quill has been preserved and will be kept for further reference.

It is said that our two worthy Senators, Davis and Nelson, voted against coining the silver bullion. Both voted agains taxing corporations; voted against an income tax; both voted against issuing government treasury notes which would bear no interest. They both voted to issue interest bearing bonds to be paid in gold, and they both voted for a tax of 10 cts a pound on tea, and yet the Republicans of Minnesota are red hot to return Senator Davis back to the United States Senate. When will the people learn wisdom by the things they suffer? Why do not the Republican papers publish these things? Ye are bought with a price. Your proclivities for party power and the greed of mammon has wrapped itself about you like a mantle and you are fast in the stock.

It seems Congress, by a two thirds vote, has repealed Section 3, of article 14, of the constitution, which deprived all persons who had previously held office under the United States government, or any state and afterwards engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the government, was deprived of ever holding office again in our government. This applied to the Southerners, but it has now been removed and they fell upon each other's necks and wept. It is said by many that this war is removing the prejudice between the North and the South. We had to have a war to kill our people, and then it takes a war to make peace. It seems the people are always blowing from the wrong end of the horn. After the civil war was over it was the hope of the yeomanry of this country that peace and prosperity would perch upon our banners and liberty and freedom would be the watch word from the Lakes of the North to the Riogrande, and from ocean to ocean. FARMER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17, 1898.

If it took three weeks or more to get Gen. Shafter's army embarked at Tampa, after the men and the transports were there, how long will it take it to land the army in Cuba after this much convoyed fleet of transports joins Admiral Sampson's fleet, off Santiago? This is the conundrum of the hour, and it is by no means an easy one to answer. According to the figuring of War Department officials, the army will reach the points chosen for debarkation about Monday, and it ought not to require more than 24 hours to land the troops, but if the discrepency between the time it ought to take and that actually taken should be as great as it was at Tampa, he is a wise man, indeed, who can tell when this army will begin operations against Santiago.

Late last week, relying on his advices from Washington that the army had started for Cuba, Admiral Sampson captured Guantanamo Bay, where he will establish a navy supply station, and landed 600 marines to hold a position from which his shells had driven Spanish troops and where he hopes to put a cable station. For three days they successfully maintained an almost continuous night and day fight with a force of Spaniards outnumbering them five to one, but there is little doubt that these marines would have been to a man killed had they not been reinforced by a considerable body of insurgents. Thanks to the Cuban insurgents, the marines, with the exception of a few who were killed—some of the corpses being barbarously mutilated by the Spaniards—still hold the position they were sent to hold, and Sampson says can do so until the army arrives.

Some of his colleagues are disposed to poke a little fun at Senator "Billy" Mason, of Ill., because of the marked discrepancy between that portion of his speech to the Illinois republican state Convention, in which he said of the conduct of the war: "We went out to the world as a good Samaritan, and while performing the act of a good Samaritan I want no larceny on behalf of my country," and the following sentence in the platform adopted by the convention: "Resolved, that the U. S. should hold all of the possessions it has conquered and may conquer from Spain."

So many members of the party favored the annexation of Hawaii that it was deemed indavisable to have the democratic House caucus take any more positive action against annexation than the adoption of a resolution declaring annexation dangerous and unwise and that it reverses our traditional policy and may lead to colonial aggrandizement and ultimately to the destruction of republican institutions. The vote upon the resolution was 50 to 17, but more than fifty of the democratic members of the House were absent from the caucus. Upon the vote by which the House adopted the resolution for the annexation of Hawaii 18 democrats voted aye and 78 no, while a number were purposely absent. The total vote was 210 to 92.

Representative Vincent, of Kansas, is so much like Senator Sullivan, who succeeded the late Senator George, of Miss., that the two men are constantly being taken for each other.

The Senate this week adopted without a division the resolution offered by Senator Lodge, instructing the committee on Claims to investigate the statement that a lobbist had received 35 per cent of the amount recently appropriated by Congress to pay a war claim of the book publishing house of the Southern Methodist Church, but while the matter was under discussion there was some plain talk. Senator Morgan charged that the resolution was intended for political effect, and asked why it did not include an investigation of the payment to lobbyists of 50 per cent of the $338,009 recently appropriated by Congress to pay claims of the heirs of John Roach, the shipbuilder. It was not claimed by anybody that the claim of the Southern Methodists was not a perfectly just one, but the objection was to their having employed a lobbyist to push their bill. Senator Pasco, who was instrumental in getting the bill through, stated in the course of a speech that "there is an obligation upon high church authorities to conduct an investigation of the action of some of its officials". The whole thing is a sort of tempest in a tea pot. Although Senators must know as well as anybody else that there are hundreds of attorney's in Washington whose principal employment is promoting legislation—in common parlance, lobbying—yet they invariably become excited whenever any particular case of lobbying happens to be mentioned in public. This claim although admitted to be just, had been before Congress for more than twenty years, and in hiring an attorney to help them push it through those interested only followed the common practice, except that they agreed to pay too much.

Republican Convention.

Judge Alley, chairman of committee called the convention to order and read the call at about 11 o'clock, a. m., Thursday.

Frank C. Rickerson received 34 votes, and J. T Alley 72 votes for temporary chairman. Judge Alley was elected.

Temporary Secretary, W. H. Towle.

A committee on credentials was appointed; one from each commissioner district: 1st. Ole Palmquist; 2nd. C. A. French; 3rd. J. F. Lauzer; 4th. S. McVeety, M. Holmstrom.

On permanent organization: 1st. W. H. Towle; 2nd. A. T. Larson; 3rd. Bralec; 4th. H. Bartholomew; 5th. H. C. Bull.

On resolutions; Lee Isensel; C. A. French, Nathan Warner, C. G. Kingsledt, S. J. Swanson.

Adjourned for dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Com. on credentials, after a racket over Southside finally had the report accepted.

Resolutions renewed allegiance to party platform, of St. Louis, of 1896; endorse McKinley; glory in soldiers who have enlisted in defense of flag and suffering Cubans, endorse C. K. Davis for Senator, Collins for Governor, Page Morris for Congress.

Democratic State Ticket.

The Democratic State Ticket is one to inspire confidence in the ranks of people who want to see a good government of state affairs. The character and ability of John Lind is thoroughly established, and he is away at present in the service of his country as Quartermaster of the 12th Minn. U. S. Vol. and is everywhere spoken of as an able and efficient soldier and as having a particular interest in "My men". No matter who may be his opponent for the high office of Chief Executive of this great state at the coming election it is confidently expected that the soldier, statesman candidate will get the most votes and be the next Governor of Minnesota.

For Lieutenant Governor, J. M. Bowler, who was the running mate with Mr. Lind two years ago has again been nominated. He is spoken of by those well acquainted with him as a good man for the place.

For Secretary of State, Julius J. Heinrichs, of Minneapolis, the nominee for Treasurer two years ago, is up. He was seconded by some of the best citizens of St. Paul and of his own city, as a man well worthy of the honors of the office, and one who would faithfully discharge the duties of the office.

Alex McKinnon, of Crookston, is well known and is considered the right man for Treasurer.

George N. Lanphere, Editor of the Moorhead News, is an old one, armed veteran of the Rebellion, a reformer well known throughout the state and would know how to run the Auditor's office all right.

For Attorney General, John F. Kelly, of St. Paul, the man who compiled the Minnesota statutes, ought, if any one can, to be able to give an opinion when called upon by his constituents.

For Clerk of Court, Z. H. Austin, of St. Louis County, is very highly recommended, as a young man of ability and industry.

For Judges of the Supreme Court, Wm. Mitchell, of Winona, a member of the bench at present received some of the strongest endorsements of leading Democrats in the convention.

Justice Daniel Buck is well known for his able opinions during his present term.

Justice Thomas Canty is especially well known by Delanoites for a speech he delivered on the 4th of July, at our celebration a few years ago. He took advanced grounds and was roundly applauded and highly appreciated. His work in his present exalted position has been pleasing to the people of the state. It is altogether likely that the trio of eminent jourists will be re-elected to the Supreme Court of Minnesota which they have served to make prominent among courts of the country.

The Men who Paid the Money.

Moorhead Independent: James J. Hill helped to raise the debt of Hamline university by a donation of $20,000 and gave the boys of the Thirteenth Minnesota volunteers $7,500 to cheer them on their way to the Philippines. How much have the people who abuse "Jim Hill" contributed?

They have contributed most of the money which Mr. Hill uses in making his handsome gifts, and for other purposes. This is about all they can afford to do.—Wheelock's Weekly.

Attorney Too Confident.

A German on trial many years ago in western Ohio for maliciously cutting a neighbor's cow had so convinced his attorney of his innocence that, although the evidence against him was totally in sufficient to convict him, his attorney, in order to give him the completest yindication, placed his client on the stand and asked him pointblank: "Did you cut the cow?" The effect was startling. With blanched face and quivering lips, the accused stared in agony at the court and stammered: "Mein Gott Shudge, I can't tell you a lie, I know I shall go inde hell if I do. I cut dot cow."—Case and Comment.

Struck a Chord.

The Rev. Thos. McCleary preached at chapel last Sunday. He told us some truths which the prisoner is only too apt to forget or loose sight of in the intense contemplation of self. That the prison which we ourselves make for our souls by the sordid contemplation of our physical condition is more to be dreaded than that prison which the feeble hands of man has erected to detain our bodies; and that this imprisonment of our bodies should be but lightly regarded it it is made to lead our better part, the soul, to rise above its frail and material compass to some of the heights for which it was made. We thank Mr. McCleary for his words. They had that true ring which denotes the genuine metal.—Prison Mirror.

Co-Operation of Forces.

The time has arrived when all reformers can join hands in voting for men who not only advocate reforms; but who will, if elected, to office, use their best endeavors to bring about reforms in our state affairs.

Democrats, Populists (except a few) and Free Silver Republicans have each placed at the head of their tickets the name of John Lind. Two of the tickets are alike except with the omission of Justice Mitchell by the Populists, while all the ticket nominated by the Free Silver men, was John Lind for Governor.

If Mr. Lind should be elected he would undoubtedly do his best to bring about the much needed reforms; but unless supported by a legislature he could do very little. His hands would be tied with a legislature unfavorable to him. The thing to do is to put such men up for State Senators and Members of the Legislature as will help John Lind to look into matters and to correct the many things that need correcting.

Our state is increasing from year to year in population, wealth, and in industrial interests, and men who are capable of looking into the varied interests of the state and its people should be elected to aid each other, and the Governor, in putting things into proper shape so that what belongs to the state will be made use of to the greatest possible advantage.

The people who are opposed to the present regeme should agree on men in whon they have confidence and who they can heartily support for legislative offices and then turn out and elect them. There is not much use in placing John Lind alone in the Capitol expecting him to reform the state. He would have a serious time of it and would be luckey to get along during his term ot office with any degree of pleasure. But give him a legislature to support him in his reforms and then see what he will do.

Democratic Nominations

The State Democratic Convention passed off very smoothly. A full ticket was nominated, and it is proposed in order that there be no dispute, to have a petition circulated for each candidate, in order to comply with the law in every respect.

John Lind was unanimously nominated for Governor. There were vacancies left for Lieutenant Governor, Secy. of State, State Auditor and Attorney General, until the nominees of the Populist Convention were know, then the same names were by nomination placed on the ticket. For Justices of the Supreme Court more talk was indugled in than for all the others. Finally the present Judges, Canty, Buck and Mitchell were nominated. The Populists nominated Canty and Buck but not Mitchell. The only nominee the Free Silver forces made was John Lind for Governor.

A Colorado paper says that state "is to-day employing 25 per cent. more miners than at any previous time in its history. It is treating more ore than ever."

When we read of the Mole St. Nicholas do we recall the fact that Columbus landed there December 6, 1492, having left Cuba the day before? It is at the southwestern part of Hayti, and is but a coaling station.

That California woman who aimed a revolver at her husband and killed another man nearly 50 feet away has dealt unwittingly a terrible blow to the aspirations of advanced women who want to fight for Uncle Sam.

American bravery is not limited to any particular section. Ensign Bagley was from North Carolina, Lieut. Rowan lives in Kansas, Admiral Dewey hails from Vermont and Lieut. Hobson's home is in Alabama. It really makes no difference where a man lives, provided he is an American.

Field telephones and kites are apparently destined to revolutionize the art of war, judging from recent successful experiments. Instead of dashing couriers, the generals and their aids will learn the details of a battle's progress through telephone receivers attached to movable wires and portable kites.

The length of Mr. Gladstone's political service can be measured by the fact that he entered parliament at a time when Andrew Jackson was president of the United States, and retired from it when Mr. Cleveland began his second term. He held his first cabinet office when Daniel Webster was also first serving in a like capacity here.

Isaac McLellan, the sportsman poet, celebrated his ninety-second birthday recently in Boston. He claims the distinction of being America's oldest living poet. Mr. McLellan was a schoolfellow of Longfellow and Whittier. He is the oldest surviving member of the Independent cadets of Boston, which company he joined in 1830.

The Schley family—to which the commodore belongs—has long been prominent in Frederick county, Md. In fact, the first house ever built in the town of Frederick was erected by Thomas Schley. Dr. Fairfax Schley, an old gentleman of suavest grace and courtly manner, is now a distinguished representative resident at the old place.

An American syndicate has received imperial authority in China to construct a railroad from Hankow to Canton, a distance of 900 miles, through a region containing 96,000,000 inhabitants. The company will buy 350 locomotives, 2,000 cars and an immense amount of material in this country. American industries are becoming quite cosmopolitan.

Still another element is said to have been found in air, forming one part in 20,000. The discoverer calls it crypton, which might be supposed to mean something hidden. Not long ago a gas which has been named argon was identified as a component of the atmosphere. Now if the scientists will tell what argon and crypton are the world will breathe easier.

The various state game wardens will have their hands full if they make serious effort to stop the traffic in song birds, but they should not be weary in well doing. The trappers who sell larks, robins and goldfinches to dealers for the adornment of women's headgear are a species of outlaw that would disgrace a community much less civilized than we profess to be.

The other day a Denver girl kissed a soldier good-by at the depot, with the remark: "God bless you; stand up for Colorado." Between his sobs he replied: "I am from Nebraska, but I'll try to stand up for both states now." Thereupon she kissed him again for Nebraska. That young man might have reminded her, with entire propriety, that there are 43 other states which he could "stand up for."

"You may begin firing whenever you please." Those were the words addressed by Admiral Dewey to the lamented Capt. Gridley as the latter started to lead the fleet into the fight at Manila. The dead hero pleased to begin as soon as he got within range and he did not stop shooting until a glorious victory had been won. But his health began to decline from that day and now he is deaf to the plaudits of a great nation.

Ex-President Harrison once said: "I would be glad if there could be an American flag in every American home. There is inspiration in it. It has a story wrought into its every fold, until each thread has some lesson to tell of sacrifice and heroism. It is the promise of all that we hope for. It is to it and about it that we must gather, and hold the affections of our people if these institutions are to be preserved." That was several years ago. His desire that there be an American flag in every American home has been fulfilled.

A new Canadian postal card just issued shows the friendship of the people of that country for the United States, and their Anglo-Saxonism as well. On one end of the postal card the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack are crossed and tied with a ribbon; between the flags is a globe representing the world, while below the flags Columbia and Britannia are seated side by side, the American eagle at the feet of Columbia and the English lion at the feet of Britannia. The printing of the card is in beautiful colors, and the whole is a work of art.

There is at present no admiral in the United States navy. There have been only two admirals in our history—Farragut and Porter. The grade of admiral was created for Farragut, and Porter was made vice admiral. Upon the death of the former the latter was promoted to admiral and Rowan became vice admiral. Congress refused to continue the grades and permitted them to die with the heroes of the civil war. In the days of Paul Jones there were flag officers, and Paul Jones himself, although in command of a fleet, was only a flag captain.

THE LATEST FOREIGN DISPATCHES

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

The Hawaiian annexation resolution passed by the house was received in the United States senate on the 16th and referred to the committee on foreign relations. The bill to incorporate the International American bank was further considered. In the house the bill supplemental to the war revenue measure designed to supply some omissions and to strengthen the means of administering the revenue act was passed and the general deficiency bill was discussed. A bill was introduced to increase the army ration by the addition of one-quarter of a pound of pure American cheese.

The Newlands resolutions for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands was favorably reported to the United States senate on the 17th, and the conferees report on the bankruptcy bill was also presented. A resolution was introduced and referred extending the thanks of congress to Naval Constructor Hobson and the volunteer crew of the Merrimac. Adjourned to the 20th. In the house the general deficiency bill occupied the time. At the evening session several private pension bills were passed.

The United States senate was not in session on the 18th. In the house the session was devoted chiefly to eulogies upon the life and character of former Senator Harris, of Tennessee.

WAR NEWS.

Dispatches from Key West say that more than 5,000 Spanish volunteers and many regulars from Puerto Principe and Neuvitas garrisons have deserted to the patriot army.

In Port au Prince another revolutionary uprising has been quelled after a fierce battle.

A report from Admiral Dewey to the navy department says that he was still maintaining the blockade at Manila and that the insurgents entirely surrounded the city.

The Spanish government has been called upon by the council general at Catalonia, representing the mercantile intelligence of Spain, to sue for peace on any terms.

It is said that Capt. Gen. Blanco has refused to entertain a proposition to exchange the Merrimac prisoners.

Insurgents in the Philippines are making remarkable progress and are said to have captured the family of Capt. Gen. Augusti and the governors of the provinces of Cavite, Balucan and Bataan.

To consult Secretary of War Alger Maj. Gen. Miles arrived in Washington. He reported that Garcia's army, in pursuance of his request, was closing in upon Santiago de Cuba.

Dispatches to the navy department confirm the report that the fleet of transports were off Santiago and that Spanish troops were numerous along the coast in the vicinity, prepared to resist the landing of the United States troops.

Capt. Aunon, the Spanish minister of marine, said in an interview in Madrid that Spain would ultimately send a fleet to Philippine waters regardless of cost or the result.

At Guantanamo Spanish infantry made a hasty retreat for cover under heavy fire from American warships.

It was decided by Admiral Sampson to reduce Morro castle at Santiago. He has learned that Hobson and his men are no longer held in the fort as a shield against the fire of the American ships.

Inhabitants of Caimanera, Cuba, have strewn the streets with straw and oil with the intention of destroying the city and fleeing to the hills.

Inspection of the fortifications defending Santiago harbor since the bombardment shows that the American gunners spread wreck and ruin everywhere. Some of the batteries were demolished beyond repair.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In session in Washington the supreme lodge, Knights of Honor, decided not to admit women to membership in the order.

Gross earnings of 132 American railroads for the first five months of the present year were $224,761,111, an increase, as compared with the corresponding period of 1897, of $29,902,830.

THE EAST.

In Boston the Woven Hose and Rubber company made an assignment with liabilities of $1,200,000.

In the seven days ended on the 17th there were 233 business failures in the United States against 203 the week previous and 234 in the corresponding period of 1897.

In the United States the exchanges at the leading clearing houses during the week ended on the 17th aggregated $1,269,686,480, against $1,324,766,412 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week in 1897 was 20.04.

In the National league the percentage of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 19th were: Cincinnati, .667; Boston, .647; Cleveland, .620; Baltimore, .583; Chicago, .558; Pittsburgh, .529; New York, .520; Philadelphia, .426; Brooklyn, .417; Washington, .373; St. Louis, .373; Louisville, .296.

WEST AND SOUTH.

A fire at Lagrange, Mo., destroyed ten business houses.

Colored republicans of Alabama met in Birmingham and nominated a ticket headed by Rev. A. J. Warner, of Birmingham, for governor.

At Moline, Kan., Mrs. John P. Sawyer was shot and killed by her husband, a prominent man, who mistook her for a burglar.

In the absence of her parents Mary Seldon, the 17-year-old daughter of Thomas Seldon, was murdered near Pepin, Wis., and the house robbed of $400 and burned.

Gen. Augusti Besieged Within Manila's Walls.

Dewey Will Not Permit Him to Communicate with Home Government—Belief Expressed That He Will Ask Aid of Foreign Warships.

London, June 21.—Augusti wires Madrid he has retired within the walls of Manila, and will be unable to communicate further with the government.

Cannot Longer Resist.

Madrid, June 21.—The belief is expressed in government circles that Capt. Gen. Augusti will ask the foreign warships to land detachments to occupy Manila, on the ground that he is no longer able to resist the insurgents.

Many Spaniards Are Prisoners.

Hong-Kong, June 21.—A steamer which has just arrived here from Manila says the insurgents now hold 4,000 Spaniards and 1,000 native prisoners with their arms.

MESSAGE FROM AGUINALDO.

Insurgent Leader's Statement on the Cause of the Revolution.

New York, June 20.—John Barrett, former minister of the United States to Siam, cables from Hong-Kong as follows:

"Emilio Aguinaldo, the leader of the Philippine natives and colonists, by whose side I have witnessed several of his splendid battles against the Spanish, has asked me to forward this as a true statement of the causes of the revolt against Spain, and the intentions of himself and his followers as to the future:

"As America protects the Cubans, so she will protect the Philippines. She will give us the liberty for which we have struggled for years. All the world will respect us when America protects us. We rebelled against Spanish authority because of the corruption of the government officials, her crushing taxes, her horrible cruelty, and her refusal to execute the reforms which she promised.

Insists He Is Humane.

"I want to tell America that I am humane. The Spanish governor put a price of $25,-

GEN. EMILIO AGUINALDO.
Insurgent Leader in the Philippine Islands.

000 on my head. I have been poisoned once and stabbed by his bravos. My generals have captured his wife and children. They are treated like royalty and will be freed. I promised American Consul Wildman I would forget and forgive.

"I consider Admiral Dewey the lion of Manila, and I thank America from my heart for giving us Wildman and Williams. They are wonderful men for freeing my country from Spanish cruelty and licentious greed. God and history will repay them. I do not believe America will sell the Philippines to the highest bidder.

"EMILIO AGUINALDO."

Accused of Cowardice.

Tacoma, Wash., June 20.—The oriental steamship Olympia arrived here Sunday, bringing China papers which accuse Admiral Montejo of cowardice at the battle of Manila. A special correspondent of the Hong-Kong Telegraph writes to his paper from Manila saying tha tthe admiral did nothing more than flee from one vessel to the other during the engagement.

Promotion for Hobson.

Washington, June 21. — Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac, will be transferred from the construction corps to the line of the navy and raised to the grade of lieutenant commander probably this week. This action was definitely decided by the administration Monday and legislation empowering this action will be pressed in both houses and its execution will almost immediately follow the affixing the executive approval of the measure.

The Invasion of Puerto Rico.

Washington, June 18.—The war department expects to utilize approximately 35 transports in the expedition for the invasion of Puerto Rico. This statement was made officially at the department Thursday. It seems to indicate that the Puerto Rico army will equal if not exceed in numbers that which left for Santiago. The estimate is made that the 35 vessels will carry between 15,000 and 20,000 men, with their equipments and subsistence.

Carry 4,000 Troops.

Gibraltar, June 20.—It is asserted here that six trans-Atlantic liners, having on board 4,000 Spanish troops, accompanied Admiral Camara's fleet.

TROOPS OFF SANTIAGO.

Transports Bearing Shafter's Command Said to Have Arrived But Not Yet Landed.

Port Antonio, Jamaica, June 21.—Advices received here late Monday afternoon announce the arrival off Santiago of the first division of the American army of invasion, under command of Maj. Gen. William R. Shafter. No attempt was made during the day, according to the report, to land the American troops. Gen. Shafter soon after his arrival had a conference with Admiral Sampson. They discussed at length the information obtained by Admiral Sampson's scouts as to the most available landing place in the vicinity of Santiago, and sent further scouting parties along the coast. They inspected the points considered by Admiral Sampson to be the most advantageous, and the commanders of the army and navy will speedily decide where to land the troops.

The Cubans are extremely active, and a cordon has been drawn around Santiago. Gen. Garcia, with 4,000 troops, coming by forced marches from Banes, is now nearing Santiago. His troops are within 40 miles of the city. He left 3,000 men at Holguin, to prevent the Spaniards there effecting a juncture with Gen. Toral at Santiago. The Spanish troops at Guantanamo, under Gen. Masso, are also cut off from Gen. Toral, and are badly pinched for food. They wildly appealed for provisions and reenforcements, but the only reply they got was that both were impossible. Gen. Masso said his men were even then at half rations, and that the supply was only sufficient to last during the present month.

Gen. Garcia and his personal staff were picked up at Gen. Rabi's camp, 18 miles west of Santiago, and brought to the flagship Monday afternoon by the gunboat Vixen. There the grizzled and wounded patriot had a long consultation with Admiral Sampson regarding the operations for the investment of Santiago and the cooperation of the American and Cuban troops. Gen. Garcia is very enthusiastic. He says the Spaniards are starving, and cannot hold out long, and that the war in the island will end in a few months.

Third Manila Expedition.

San Francisco, June 18.—Maj. Gen. Merritt has announced his selection of the troops which will compose the third expedition to Manila. Gen. Merritt has selected regiments and battalions aggregating 3,850 officers and men, and the five transports which will be prepared for the expedition can easily accommodate 4,250 men, so that a few hundred more soldiers may be sandwiched in at the last moment if desired. It is doubtful if Gen. Merritt will accompany the troops, who will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Charles King. The brigade on this next expedition will comprise the two Idaho battalions, who will sail on the Morgan City; the Seventh California, on the Indiana; the Thirteenth Minnesota, on the City of Para; one battalion of the Wyoming regiment, on the Ohio; two battalions of the North Dakota regiment, on the Valencia. In addition the Valencia will carry as many recruits as can be accommodated from the various new squads who have lately enlisted.

A Panic in Camp.

Washington, June 17. — A special to the Post from Tampa, Fla., says: At ten o'clock Thursday night 3,000 horses and mules broke from their corrals and stampeded through the camps of Gen. Carpenter's brigade. It was so dark and the excitement was so great in the District of Columbia camp it was impossible to learn if any of the men were hurt. The panic among the men was terrible. Officers tried to get their companies into line, but the army of wild horses made that impossible. The rush sounded like a thunderstorm. The guard hurried out, but it was useless, as the animals were then rushing over everything in their path. In half an hour the camps had been stampeded three times and there seemed to be no hope of driving the beasts away from the breach. Forty men were mounted by 11 o'clock and they were able to check the rush some little or at least to steer the horses from the camp.

Will Push the War.

Washington, June 20. — The original plans of campaign for the conduct of the war against Spain will be adhered to and will be pushed with vigor and energy. The decision was reached at a war council held at the white house Saturday at which were present President McKinley, Secretaries Alger and Long, Gen. Miles, Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn, Admiral Sicard and Capt. Mahan.

Saw Our Troops.

London, June 20. — The Hong-Kong correspondent of the Times says: The rebels hold Manila at their mercy, but Admiral Dewey is anxious that the American troops should have the honor of receiving the Spanish capitulation. The steamer Yuen Sing reports passing the United States troopship City of Peking on the morning of the 15th near Manila.

HOBSON WILL BE HELD.

Spain Shows Disinclination to Exchange Hero of the Merrimac and His Men.

Washington, June 21.—During the day dispatches announcing that Capt. Gen. Blanco had refused to exchange Hobson and his fellow prisoners created some indignation which was modified later by Madrid advices quoting Sagasta as saying no decision had been reached. Should Spain adopt the cruel and unusual course of refusing an exchange the regulations of the war department are sufficient to meet the case. The following was received Monday from Commodore Watson:

"Captain general states Spanish government refuses to exchange prisoners."

A Madrid dispatch says:

"Premier Sagasta, when questioned on the subject Monday, said nothing had been decided, 'in spite of the American reports,' regarding the exchange of Naval Constructor Hobson and his companions, who were captured by the Spaniards after they sank the collier Merrimac in the narrow channel leading into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba."

A London dispatch says, quoting from the Madrid correspondent of the Times: "Spain's refusal to exchange Lieut. Hobson and his companions of the Merrimac is easily explained and justified. Without any intention of acting as spies they must have seen many things in or around Santiago about which the American naval and military authorities would gladly have information."

As to Hobson, the authorities here are convinced that the Spanish officials are taking advantage of the distinction accorded to him in the United States. Under the rules of war, a prisoner is valued solely by his rank, and it is considered dishonorable either to underestimate a prisoner's rank in order to cause a more advantageous exchange, or to take higher rank for the purpose of obtaining better treatment. In the case of Hobson, his rank of assistant constructor, which is equivalent to lieutenant, junior grade, should be the sole basis for his exchange, yet it is obvious to the authorities here that the Spaniards hold him not as a lieutenant, but as a popular idol of the United States.

To Fire on Flag of Truce.

Key West, Fla., June 21.—It is learned from naval officers here that Capt. Gen. Blanco has notified the American blockading fleet that he will hereafter recognize no flag of truce, adding that every vessel within six miles range will be fired upon, whether flying the stars and stripes or the white flag. It seems that events which led up to Gen. Blanco's letter began with the sending of the Maple, under charge of Capt. Ludlow, of the monitor Terror, to open negotiations for the exchange of Lieut. Hobson and other Merrimac prisoners. Gen. Blanco's letter was addressed to the monitor's captain. After refusing to negotiate for the exchange of the prisoners he delivered the ultimatum as to boats with flags of truce.

Spanish Loss Over 300.

Off Guantanamo, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 21. — It is estimated that over 300 Spaniards have been killed or wounded since the landing of the marines at Camp McCalla. Fifty-eight bodies were found Saturday. The Spaniards seem satisfied that they cannot dislodge the Americans and have withdrawn.

THE SECOND CALL.

Number of Men Required and Their Apportionment to the Several States.

Washington, June 18. — Adjt. Gen. Corbin has made public the number of additional regiments, battalions, companies or batteries required from each state under the second call of the president for volunteers. The organizations from each state, the number of which is herewith given, will be in addition to the number of men which will be enlisted from the several states to fill to the maximum of 106 men to a company the organizations now in the field. Of the 75,000 men required under the president's second call 43,000 will be needed to recruit the existing volunteer regiments up to the maximum strength. To obtain these recruits details from each volunteer regiment are now in the states from which they come. The remaining 32,000 men will be organized into companies, battalions and regiments as the exigencies of the call require, each state meeting the requirements of the second as it met those of the first call.

Under the second call the various states and territories will furnish, as organized, 22 regiments of infantry, six regiments and three companies of infantry in unattached organizations, 14 light batteries and three heavy batteries. According to the statement made by Adjt. Gen. Corbin the new organizations will be apportioned among the states and territories as follows:

Colorado, one light battery artillery; Alabama, two battalions infantry; California, one regiment infantry; Connecticut, one regiment infantry; Georgia, one regiment infantry; Illinois, two regiments infantry; Indiana, one regiment infantry and two companies infantry; Iowa, two light batteries; Kansas, two battalions infantry; Kentucky, one regiment infantry; Louisiana, three light brigades artillery; Maine, three heavy batteries; Maryland, one battalion infantry; Massachusetts, one regiment infantry; Michigan, one regiment infantry; Minnesota, one regiment infantry; Mississippi, six companies, infantry; Missouri, one regiment infantry; Nebraska, one regiment infantry; New Jersey, one regiment infantry; New York, three regiments infantry and three light batteries; North Carolina, seven companies infantry; Ohio, one regiment and nine companies infantry; Oregon, two light batteries artillery; Pennsylvania, 18 companies infantry; Rhode Island, two batteries light artillery; South Carolina, two battalions infantry; Tennessee, one regiment infantry; Texas, one regiment infantry; Utah, one light battery; Virginia, two battalions infantry; Washington, one battalion infantry; West Virginia, one regiment infantry; Wisconsin, one regiment infantry and one light battery; Nevada, three companies infantry; Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Indian Territory, one regiment infantry each. Wyoming, Idaho, Arkansas, Florida, New Hampshire, Delaware, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont and the District of Columbia, having under first call furnished in excess of their quota, will not be called upon to furnish any new organizations under second call, nothing beyond filling the organizations now in the service.

Weyler Is Spiteful.

London, June 18.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: Gen. Weyler, in the course of an interview regarding the war operations, said he thought it needless to send a fleet to Cuba. In his opinion, at any rate, it would have been better to have made a dash for the coast towns and to have sent a squadron to defend the Philippines, thus "saving the Yankees from the temptation to possess islands which they never coveted till they saw that they could be captured."

SOME NEW WAR TERMS.

John Talked Poker in His Sleep and Had to Make an Explanation.

"John, what makes you stay downtown so late nights?" inquired an angry wife of her husband.

"They're talkin' war downtown and urge that I tell my experiences in the last war as sort of pointers."

"But in your sleep you say 'I'm in.' What does that mean?"

"Why, you know, if they'd ask me if I'd go to war again of course I'd say that, wouldn't I, darling?"

"Yes, dear, and then sometimes you say: 'It's up to you.'"

"That's when I'm going down the line asking questions of my company."

"But what do you mean when you say: 'It's open?'"

"Do I say it loud?"

"Yes, a little bit exclamatory."

"Well, that's when the engagement opens up."

"And if you keep talking about the 'reds' and 'whites' what's that?"

"Oh, bless you, that's the colors of the flag."

"Well, don't go to war, will you, John?"

"Unless my country demands it, then—"

The explanation appeared to be satisfactory.—Denver Times.

HALF FARE.

"I like the building well enough," said the househunter to the agent, who had spent half an hour showing him over the premises, "but I am not certain about the surroundings. Is it a quiet neighborhood?"

"Quiet?" said the agent. "You can't find a quieter place in the whole city."

"Still, I suppose the newsboys come around here bright and early Sunday morning, just when a man wants to sleep the soundest, with their yells of 'Mornin' pa-a-a-per!'"

"No, sir; newsboys never come on this street at all."

"Then I think I'll look a little further. I want a quiet neighborhood, but I don't want one that's dead."—Chicago Tribune.

Blood-Cleaning.

House-cleaning is a duty in every well-regulated household. People don't wait until the filth becomes painfully apparent, but it stands to reason that in every day use more or less dust or dirt accumulate. It is so with the human blood. From the enormous variety of eatables taken into the stomach, a quantity of useless material is bound to accumulate in the blood and clog the free and wholesome flow in the vessels. Every person should from time to time have a "blood-cleaning" and the best cleanser and blood purifier is Cascarets Candy Cathartic. We recommend them to all our readers.

THE ILLS OF WOMEN

And How Mrs. Pinkham Helps Overcome Them.

Mrs. MARY BOLLINGER, 1101 Marianna St., Chicago, Ill., to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I have been troubled for the past two years with falling of the womb, leucorrhœa, pains over my body, sick headaches, backache, nervousness and weakness. I tried doctors and various remedies without relief. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound, the relief I obtained was truly wonderful. I have now taken several more bottles of your famous medicine, and can say that I am entirely cured."

Mrs. HENRY DOER, No. 806 Findley St., Cincinnati, Ohio, to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For a long time I suffered with chronic inflammation of the womb, pain in abdomen and bearing-down feeling. Was very nervous at times, and so weak I was hardly able to do anything. Was subject to headaches, also troubled with leucorrhœa. After doctoring for many months with different physicians, and getting no relief, I had given up all hope of being well again when I read of the great good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing. I decided immediately to give it a trial. The result was simply past belief. After taking four bottles of Vegetable Compound and using three packages of Sanative Wash I can say I feel like a new woman. I deem it my duty to announce the fact to my fellow sufferers that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable remedies have entirely cured me of all my pains and suffering. I have her alone to thank for my recovery, for which I am grateful. May heaven bless her for the good work she is doing for our sex."

HARMONIOUS FUSION

John Lind Nominated for Governor by Three Conventions.

The Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans Hold Conventions and Agree Upon a State Ticket and Fusion.

Minneapolis, June 16.—The democrats, the silver republicans and the populists of Minnesota met in conventions in this city yesterday and nominated a joint ticket, thus continuing the policy begun two years ago of complete fusion between the three parties.

The democratic convention was held at the Exposition building and was one of the most harmonious ever known in the party's history. The only note of discord was when the proposition came up to renominate Justices Canty, Mitchell and Buck for the supreme bench.

The convention of the silver Republicans was also marked by harmony and good feeling, and the only request the party made in the conference committee was that John Lind be the candidate for governor.

In the populist convention matters were not so harmonious. The midroaders were on hand and were ably led by Ignatius Donnelly and T. J. Meighen. The fusion forces were ready for the fray, and had made up their minds to have no temporizing with those who did not agree with them.

From start to finish the convention was a hot-bed of dissension and strife, and not a moment of the many hours spent in session was without its element of interest. The fusionists were in a clear majority, the final test vote standing 569 to 396, and they captured the organization.

The features of the day was the dramatic fight between S. M. Owen and Ignatius Donnelly. Donnelly made statements which brought Mr. Owen to his feet with a heated reply. The convention was convulsed with excitement, such as is seldom seen in any civilized gathering.

The following were nominated at the conventions of the democrats, populists and silver republicans:

For governor, John Lind, of New Ulm.

For Lieutenant Governor, J. M. Bowler, of Bird Island.

For Secretary of state, Julius J. Heinrich of Minneapolis.

For state treasurer, Alexander M'Kinnon, of Crookston.

For state auditor, Geo. N. Lanphere, of Moorhead.

For attorney general, John F. Kelly, of St. Paul.

For Clerk of the supreme court, Z. D. Austin, of Duluth.

For associate Justices of the supreme court, William Mitchell, of Winona; Thomas Canty, of Minneapolis and Daniel Buck, of Mankato (Renominated).

The democrats submitted the following pledges.

1. That the public lands remaining unsold shall be sold only at their fair value.

2. That all our public institutions shall be managed with prudence and economy.

3. That we shall not lose the fruits secured by the decision of the supreme court in the land tax case. By that decision of the supreme court in the land tax case. By that decision 3,500,000 acres of unused railroad lands will be added to the tax list. The increased valuation will be from 15 to 20 million dollars, and the revenue to the state alone $200,000 annually. We demand that in the threatened appeal to the United States supreme court the legal department of this state shall perform its full duty that the people's rights may be protected,

4. Of still greater value, perhaps, is the decision of the supreme court in the Steenerson rate case. It establishes the principle that the bassic charges for transportation should be no more than a fair income on the cost of a reproduction of the plant, This principle should be maintained at all hazards, and applied to all matters of public franchise.

Both these decisions and many others amply attest the fulfillment of our promises made in 1892 in reference to the judiciary.

5. Regarding agriculture as one of the substantial foundations of prosperity, we look with interest upon all forms of diversified farming.

6. We favor the election of United States senators by the people direct.

7. We condemn with severity all partisan appointments to the judiciary.

8. We favor legislation looking to the construction and maintenance of good roads.

9. We recommend that within reasonable limitations the principle of direct legislation be applied.

10. We faithfully promise that if entrusted with the administration of affairs there shall be at all times wise, frugal and competent government.

To the end that all these wrongs may be righted and all these reforms effected, the democrats of Minnesota, deeply impressed with the solemnity of their cause, and actuated only by a stern sense of duty, now call upon all the people, irrespective of former political affiliations, to join with them in one grand and heroic effort to break down "the rule of the rings" and to redeem our state from its long and oppressive misrule.

Presented with a Flag.

The feature of Sunday at Camp Merritt, San Francisco, was the presentation of the regimental flag to the regiment by Mrs. Helen A. Runge, for Custer Circle and citizens of Minnesota. The entire command was drawn up in line. Col. Reeve replied, thanking Mrs. Runge and the people of Minnesota for showing their appreciation of their work, and following them with their thoughts and love. Col. Reeve pledged every drop of blood in the veins of the boys of the 13th before they would allow the flag to be dishonored.

An old farmer and tree-grower gives as a rule for planting walnut trees to dig a shallow hole, place in a layer of decayed leaves from the woods, plant the nuts with the husks removed, cover with a small heap of leaves and next year you will find some have grown. In another year you may use your discretion about what saplings shall be left to grow.

The old proverb says that "he who plants a walnut tree expects not to eat the fruit." The tree is one of the slowest to come to maturity we know, for it does not bear till 20 years old.

TO BURN THE TOWN.

Residents of Caimanera Ready to Apply the Torch — Spanish Troops Are Panic Stricken.

On Board the Dispatch Boat Dandy, Off Guantanamo, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 20. — Cuban scouts report that the inhabitants of Caimanera have strewn the streets with straw and oil, with the intention of destroying the city and fleeing to the hills. Caimanera lies four miles up the bay from Camp McCalla under the guns of the American ships, and the situation is desperate.. Starving and famine stricken, convinced of the ultimate triumph of the American arms and without faith in the protection of the Spanish soldiery, the people are believed to have determined to leave their houses in ashes behind them and seek safety in the mountains of the north.

The situation of the besieged is a fearful one. People are eating horses and mules, and are scouring the hills for fruits and herbs. Occasionally brief bombardment by the American fleet leaves the helpless citizen terror-stricken, no preparations for defense being made. It is also stated that the Spanish gunboat at Caimanera has been loaded with inflammables, and will be burned with the city, her commander declaring she will never become an American prize.

The scouts also say that the Spanish soldiers are in almost as complete a state of panic as are the civilians, and that they could easily be induced to surrender.

A BULLET FOR BLANCO.

Captain General of Cuba Reported to Have Been Shot by a Guard at the Palace.

New York, June 21. — The World prints the following from Washington: Advices have been received in Washington of a recent attempt in Havana to assassinate Capt. Gen. Blanco, which was made by Mariano Salva, a young member of the volunteer army. The volunteers parade the streets, unofficered, crying: "Viva Weyler! Down with Blanco!" The people, especially the autonomists, are quitting the city as rapidly as possible, and Gen. Blanco, wounded as he is, holds daily conferences with the commander of the volunteers, who apparently are powerless to bring about order.

The attempted killing of the Spanish captain general tok place as he was leaving the palace to accompany some of the officers of his staff on an inspection of the earthworks on the outskirts of the city. Salva sent a rifle bullet into the calf of Gen. Blanco's left leg. The volunteer is a member of the guard on duty around the palace. His younger brother, also a volunteer, was arrested recently on a charge of conspiring with the enemies of Spain against the established government. The young Salva was tried by a court-martial and condemned to death. His brother made every effort to save him, and appeals were made to Gen. Blanco for clemency, but without avail, and the boy was executed.

Bond Subscriptions Pouring In.

Washington, June 21.—Although the amount of the subscription to the new three per cent. loan is not made public, it is officially stated that it exceeds all expectations. This is particularly true of the larger amounts. The number of subscriptions received for sums of $500 and less is large; but the department wishes it thoroughly understood by the public that even should the whole loan be oversubscribed for several times over in large amounts, every subscription of $500 or less will be accepted at once, as all small amounts will take precedence in the allotments over large ones. A subscription for $20,000,000 has been received from a prominent life insurance company of New York, inclosing a certified check for $400,000, as required by the regulations governing the placing of the loan.

Gen. Miles Returns to Washington.

Washington, June 18.—Maj. Gen. Miles, general in chief of the army, accompanied by Col. Maus, Maj. Davis and Col. Greenleaf, of his staff, arrived in Washington Friday, after having directed the departure of the first army of invasion to Cuba. It had been his intention to remain in the field, directing the succeeding expeditions which will follow rapidly from this time forward, all of them, it can be stated, a part of a well-matured offensive campaign. He came in response to a telegraphic summons from the secretary of war, who desires to go over certain phases of the campaign with him.

Killed by Lightning.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—When about to go in bathing at Pablo beach Sunday afternoon James T. Gatewood, private stenographer to Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Gatewood was from Richmond, Va., and had been here about a week. The lightning came from a clear sky, hitting Gatewood at the base of the brain and passing down the spinal column.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Forest Protection in Minnesota.

The Third Annual Report of the Chief Fire Warden of Minnesota Gen. C. C. Andrews, has just been published, from which it appears that according to the reports of fire wardens, the damage done by forest fires in 1897 was $22,455, and by prairie fires $14,554. There were periods of protracted dry weather both in the spring and autumn. Considering that the value of the standing timber in Minnesota is $100,000,000, the reported damage by forest fires is regarded as very small. The opinion of the chemist at the University of Minnesota is quoted that an average prairie fire will remove more nitrogen from the soil than five ordinary crops of wheat.

Compensation of Fire Wardens.

Complaints were received from fire wardens in a few counties that the county commissioners refused to allow their accounts. The pay of fire wardens in an ordinary year is limited to fifteen days in a year at $2 a day; quite a number of fire wardens have rendered their services without making any charge. It was with a view to economy and justice that the law authorized county commissioners to pass upon fire warden accounts; it not being deemed good policy to allow the town supervisors, who by law are constituted fire wardens, to pay themselves for services. Under the circumstances, for county commissioners to arbitrarily refuse to consider and allow the reasonable claims of fire wardens, as has occurred in a few claims of fire wardens, as has occurred in a few counties, is not only unjust to the class of men who, as a rule cannot afford to give their time to the public, but tends to demoralize the fire warden service. No county can expend more than $500 in a year for fire warden service, and the state reimburses each county one-third of the amount it thus expends.

Some Forestry Facts and Principles.

The report states that: "The value of the pine, just as it stands, that is cut in Minnesota in a single winter, in a favorable business year, is $5,000,000; when sawed into lumber at the mills, its value will have increased to $10,000,000, of which increase, 80 per cent, or $4,000,000 represents labor; when further manufactured and worked up in various forms its value becomes multiplied. This partly illustrates the value of our forests as an industrial resource. The friends of forestry do not interfere with the cutting and marketing of timber. On the contrary, they wish the industry to be continuous and a great step in making it continuous, is the prevention of forest fires, thereby promoting the natural reproduction of forest on cut-over land. The friends of forestry concede that the private owners of pine land have a right to, and for their financial success must, cut and sell their pine whenever they can find a good market for it. If there are forest areas which the public needs to have kept as forest—for example, at the head waters of rivers, to help maintain water flow, or near some beautiful lake for scenery and health—then the public must buy it."

Leading Principles of Forestry.

The Chief Fire Warden thinks that as the public comes to understand forestry it will be easier to enforce the law against forest fires. A leading principle of forestry, he says, is that the best agricultural land should not be devoted to forest. One of the great economic advantages of Forestry is that wood and timber can be profitably grown on soil that is unfit for farming purposes. Another principle is that the forest must be continuous; that no more timber should be then taken out of it in a year, or in a series of ten or twenty years than grows in the entire forest the same period. Another principle is that the cutting of timber should be in blocks or strips so as to facilitate reproduction on the clear areas by seeds falling from the trees left standing. Another principle is that the forests, when young, must have in numbers, vastly more trees than when it it mature. The tree grown in the open may be handsome and useful for shade, but it is useless for timber. To make good timber the forest, when young, must be crowded so as to secure height growth. Mixed wood managed on forestry principles in the Black Forest of Germany has per acre, at the age of 20 years, 3,960 trees; at the age of 100 years, 262 trees.

"Our best white pines have been growing from 100 to 200 years; and although merchantable pine, but not of best quality, may be grown in 60 years, there are but very few individuals willing to wait so long for a crop; and if anything important is to be done to renew and perpetuate our forest wealth, it must be done by the state, of through the inducement it offers through the reduction of taxes or in other form."

THE ACTION OF TIDES.

The Time Coming When the Day and the Month Will Be Synchronous.

Taking for his topic Prof. See's discussion in the October Atlantic, of tidal action as affecting stellar structure, George Howard Darwin, son of Charles Darwin, and professor of astronomy at Cambridge (England) university, contributes to the Atlantic a suggestive and instructive paper on the past history and future relations of the earth and moon, as typical of the general evolution of satellites.

Beginning with the tidal phenomena (caused by the attraction of the moon), and the continual variation in the earth's shape produced by them, he traces the counter action exerted upon the moon by them in return, and especially by the results of tidal friction; the resultant effects upon the rotation and revolution of both bodies, and he indicates their future history down to the point, many ages distant, when the earth and the moon will revolve together in unison, and when our day and our month will be of equal length, and that length will be 55 of our present days.

"If familiarity does not always breed contempt, yet at least it generally breeds indifference," says Prof. Darwin. "This is the case with most of us in regard to the rise and fall of the tide by the seashore, and so the problem as to whether the tide will serve conveniently to allow the children to dig in the sand or search for seaweed looms larger than that presented by the gigantic forces which now produce only these somewhat insignificant pulsations of the sea. Yet the tides should call forth in us a deeper interest—I might almost say an emotion—for they are the feeble residue of influences which have probably exercised a predominant control over the history of the earth and the moon since an indeterminate but remote epoch in the past, and will continue that control into the distant future. According to the law of universal gravitation, the moon attracts matter which stands near to her more strongly than that which is more remote. It follows that the attraction on the ocean, at the side of the earth which is nearest to the moon, must be greater than that exercised on the solid earth itself. Hence there is a tendency of the sea to depart from its natural spherical shape, and to bulge outward toward the moon. So far the matter is simple; but it is perplexing to many that the moon should apparently repel the water lying on the further side of the earth. This action, however, is not due to any real repulsion from the moon, but results from the fact that on the further side the moon must attract the solid earth more strongly than it does the water. On the nearer side the moon pulls the water away from the earth, and on the further side she pulls the earth away from the water, thus producing an apparent repulsion of the water to an extent equal to the attraction on the other side. In this way there arises a tendency for the ocean to bulge equally toward and away from the moon, and to assume an egg-like shape.

"A day is the name for the time in which the earth rotates once, and a month for the time in which the moon revolves once. Then since tidal friction retards the earth's rotation and the moon's revolution, we may state that the day and the month are now lengthening at different rates which are calculable, although the absolute rates in time are unknown. It will suffice for a general comprehension of the problem to know that the present rate of increase of the day is much more rapid than that of the month, and that this will hold good in the future. Thus the number of rotations of the earth in the interval comprised in one revolution of the moon diminishes; or, in other words, the number of days in the month diminishes, although the length of each day increases so rapidly that the month itself is longer than at present. For example, when the day shall be equal in length to two of our actual days, the month may be as long as thirty-seven of our days, and the earth will spin round only about eighteen times in the month.

* * *

"The gradual change in the day and the month now taking place proceeds continuously until the duration of a rotation of the earth is prolonged to 55 of our present days. At the same time the month, or the time of a revolution of the moon round the earth, will also occupy 55 of our days. Since the month here means the period of the return of the moon to the same place amongst the stars, and since the day is to be estimated in the same way, the moon must then always face the same part of the earth's surface, and the two bodies must move as though they were fastened together by a bar. The outcome of the lunar tidal friction will accordingly be that the moon and the earth will go round as though locked together in a period of 55 of our present days, with day and month identical in length.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ONLY PORTUGOSLINGS.

And When They Grow Up They Will Be Portuganders and Not Portuguese.

There was a look of great disappointment on the face of the boy who was coming out of the front gate. His brother, slightly younger, but with a very aggresive and tenacious disposition, was conspicuously tattered. His garments bore the marks of conflict, but his face showed no signs of remorse.

"Come on in the house," said the older boy.

"What for? I'm waiting for that other Spanish boy to come out."

"Well, it's no use. We've made a mistake and we've got to apologize."

"To those two Spaniards?"

"They're not Spaniards. They only look like Spaniards. They're Portuguese."

"Portu-what?"

"Portuguese."

"No, they're not. I'll take your word for it about their not being Spaniards," he added, reluctantly. "But they're too little for Portuguese. And, what's more, they never will be Portuguese. They're nothing but Portugoslings now, and when they grow up they'll be Portuganders."—Washington Star.

OF A LOWER ORDER.

Woman Has Progressed, But Man Is Yet in a Benighted State.

A few weeks ago a new play was tried upon a town near New York. The author was a man, but in some way he had learned a good deal about women's mental processes; and when the leading lady proceeded to cut a Gordian knot by methods strictly feminine, a girl in the audience beamed appreciatively.

"Oh, you wily creature," she murmured, addressing the absent dramatist. Then she turned impulsively to a serious-looking woman who sat beside her.

"Now how could he have known she would do just that? He certainly must have been a woman in some far-off incarnation."

Her neighbor's seriousness became severity, and she frowned the frivolous young person down.

"That is quite impossible," she said, with impressive gravity. "Evidently you haven't studied the subject. Woman is a progressed state. A man may look forward to being a woman in a future incarnation; but he belongs to a lower order and has never been feminine in the past."

Then she wondered why the girl found the rest of the play so funny.—N. Y. Sun.

Just What He Wanted.

One of the first men to reach San Francisco with a hoard of Klondike gold was an Irishman named Finnegan, who had been very poor before he struck it rich, and who, consequently, was unfamiliar with many ordinary uses of a life of luxury.

"Oi say, yez kin bring me two dozen eysters," he said, airily, as he took a seat in one of the finest restaurants in 'Frisco.

The oysters were soon set before him, and Finnegan, looking about him for something to put on them, and hardly knowing what the something should be, spied a bottle of Tobasco and proceeded to season the bivalves, not wisely, but too well.

Impaling an oyster on his fork, he thrust it into his mouth, then leaped to his feet with a terrific roar of pain and began dancing about and yelling like a madman.

"See here!" cried the proprietor, rushing to the table, "keep still, or I'll put you out!"

"P-p-put me out, is it? Oi wish yez would put me out!" yelled Finnegan. "Me insides is blazin' loike a match factory!"—Harper's Magazine.

A FATALITY AVOIDED.

From the Democrat, Goshen, Ind.

When neuralgia is accompanied by a dull, heavy pain near the heart, frequently becoming intense, it generally terminates fatally. Mrs. Nancy Flynn, who lives near Goshen, Indiana, survived such an attack and her advice is worth heeding.

"In the fall of '97," she said, "I began to have trouble with my heart. There was a sharp pain in my breast which became rapidly worse. The doctor was puzzled and put me under the influence of opiates. These sharp attacks followed one another at intervals and I became weak and had a haggard look. I was constantly in pain, seldom slept and had no appetite.

"At the end of two years I was confined to my couch most of the time and the doctors agreed that my death was only a matter of a short time.

A Serious Time.

"One day I noticed in a newspaper an item about a woman having been cured of neuralgia of the heart by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I concluded to try them.

"When I had finished one box I noticed an improvement in my condition, and when I had taken twelve boxes I was completely cured. 'Those pills have done for you what we could not do,' said one of my physicians, 'they have saved your life.'

"That was two years ago and my heart has not troubled me since. I believe I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I take pleasure in telling others about them."

Among the many forms of neuralgia are headache, nervousness, paralysis, apoplexy and locomotor ataxia. Some of these were considered incurable until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were formulated. To-day thousands testify to having been cured of such diseases by these pills.

Doctors frequently prescribe them and all druggists sell them.

AN OLD BULLY.

People who live in fear of his attacks.

How to avoid him or beat him off.

If biliousness isn't the bully of the body then what is? When once biliousness gets the upper hand you don't dare say your stomach is your own. "Don't you dare eat that dish says biliousness, or you'll see what I'll do." You take the dare and you do see or rather feel, the weight of the bully's revenge. The head aches, not a regular ache, but an open and shut ache. The eyes ache, not with a dull, tired ache, but with an agressive ache, as if they were being bored by a gimlet. The stomach trembles with nausea. "The whole head is sick and the whole heart is faint." There are scores of hundreds of people who live so under the dominion of this bully biliousness that they don't dare eat or drink without his permission. There's no need of such slavery. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills effectually cure biliousness.

"For fifteen years I have used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, and find them very effective in all kinds of bilious complaints. They are mild in operation and easy to take. I prefer them to any other pill, and have yet to see the case where they have failed to cure."—A. SWANGER, Texarkana, Ark.

"I have used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills in cases of biliousness and general disorders of the stomach and bowels and have found them to be always reliable. They are less liable to gripe than other purgatives, and although mild in action, they are thorough in operation. They are the best family physic that can be had."—PETER J. DUFFY, Rockport, Texas.

"Having used Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills for years and thoroughly tested them, both as a preventive and cure for biliousness, I can truthfully say that I believe them to be the best medicine for the purpose and they do all that is claimed for them."—JNO. E. KOLB, Shark, Ark.

Biliousness is in general but a symptom of a more stubborn disorder, constipation. Constipation is the root of almost all physical evils, and Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills cure almost all these physical evils by going to the root. They cure constipation, and the consequent maladies, biliousness, heartburn, palpitation, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, nervous irritability, foul breath, coated tongue, and a score of other miserable maladies that have their origin in constipation. Dr. Ayer's Pills are the surest and safest remedy for all diseases of the liver, stomach, and bowels. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook and read the story of cures told by the cured. Free. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

DELANO, FRIDAY, JUNE 24, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Saturday morning early the brush left the street. People can get about much better.

—Sam Murphy has sold his residence on North River Street to Frank Yantes who will occupy it soon.

—Mrs. T. S. Kerr has our thanks for a fine mess of fish, a part of the catch of Rev. Hanke and Tom Shaw.

—Elmer Babb has bought a lot opposite J. Leudasher's on South Second street and is building a new residence which he expects to soon occupy,

—The long talked of stand pipe was set up near the corner of R. R. Ave. and River streets, on Monday, and now supplies water for sprinkling purposes.

—A meeting was held Sunday and steps taken toward effecting an organization of Forresters at this place. There are now about two dozen applicants for membership.

—If the brother Odd Fellows would turn out every Sunday to church as they did last Sunday morning, it would add much to the upbuilding of morality and Christianity in our village. Come out boys, and loan us your assistance.

—The Village authorities procured proper inpliments and shipped then up from the city and Messers Muckey and Murphy tapped the water main on the corner of R. R. Ave and River Street Saturday and the stand pipe now furnishes water for the sprinkler.

—James Murphy was before his Honor Justice Walter Monday charged with vagrancy and given as a fine to leave town inside of 24 hours. Two companions escaped the officers and are still at large. Probably accepting a like sentence of their own imposing.

—A meeting has been called at the City Hall in Delano, for Saturday, June 25, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of talking up and organizing a Co-operative Elevator Company. The farmers appear to be catching on to the co-operative business in great shape hereabouts.

—We have received about as many congratulations on the publication of our letters from the 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. as on anything we ever published. We are proud of our correspondent and have cause to be.

—Rev. J. L. Farber preached an interesting sermon Sunday evening on how a chief business man became a christian, and how it affected him. His model was Zacheus, who climbed up into a Sycamore tree to see Jesus go by. The preacher held his audience well during the entire sermon.

—Delano patriotism seems to be at a low ebb. Although the newspapers gratuitously advertised for a meeting to make arrangements to celebrate not enough people were interested to turn out and appoint committee and prepare the programme, consequently most everybody will likely be out of town the 4th.

—The river is quite high for this time of year. But the boys claim bathing is not as pleasant as it might be on account of the water being dirty and having a peculiar odor. Perhaps if less offal from the village found its way into the stream the water would be purer. It was a great mistake that our water works were not supplied with pure water from wells instead of from the river. The mistake should be corrected as soon as possible.

—A tin pail war raged for a time in the early part of the week. Competition was lively. A man it is claimed, bought a number of pails of Rader & Co., and carried them to another hardware store and sold them. Then Rader sold pails at 7cts apiece. Almost everybody seemed to need a pail right away and had the cash to pay for it. Quite a few people now have nice, new, shiny tin pails. Competition is the life of trade.

—We received this week from our 13th Regiment correspondent a copy of the Wave, an illustrated paper published in San Francisco, which goes to bear out the statements of our State papers that the Minnesota soldiers are among the finest in the service. A fine cut of each company of the 13th, Minn, and of the 10th Penn. are given and the Wave says among other things. "The illustrations of this week are devoted largely to two of the crack regiments stationed at the old Bay District Track, viz: the Thirteeth Minnesota and Tenth Pennsylvania. These regiments are both prime favorites, and many of the men confess themselves so in love with California as to contemplate setling here after the war.

—Rev. J. R. Davies, of Hector, formerly of Delano, preached a Memorial sermon for the I. O. O. F's at the M. E. church, at 10:30 A. M. Sunday. The exercises were opened by an instrumental number by Mrs. Dr. Soper, followed by the Lord's prayer in concert; an I. O. O. F. ode; prayer by Rev. Davies; Solo, C. J. Buckley, Scripture lesson, 1st. Chron., Chap. 22; Rock of Ages by the choir; Song No. 978.

Rev. Davies took for his text, Heb. 11. 4. He, being dead, yet speaketh. The sermon was an able one and well delivered. About 40 Odd Fellows were present in regalia. The Maple Plain Lodge attended in a body several were present from Rockford and other places. The church was filled, and everybody praised the sermon. Exercises closed with No. 602.

—Rev. Davies, of Hector, will preach in the M. E. Church next Sunday evening.

—The St. Peter Parochial school will give an ice cream sociable, followed by a programme, at the City Hall, this evening.

—Another movement was started on foot this morning by several citizens to hold a celebration here the Fourth. It is intended to make the attempt a success.

—Rev. Ernest Hanke preached Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church. He alternates the services here between 10:30 a. m. one Sunday and 2 p. m. the next.

—If you want to hear a Fourth of July oration drive over to Watertown and listen to Hon. T. D. O'Brian, of St. Paul, or to Howard Lake and hear Hon, Henry Johns.

—A test of marksmanship was held at camp Merritt June 17, in which the Delano boys stood as follows: Out of a possible 50, Dyer 45, Erickson 41, Catlin 40, Steffes 39, Kurtz 22, Chance was not on the list. Dyer stood fourth in his company.

—We congralutate the Eagle on her enterprise in receiving a report over the telephone from Buffalo, of the proceedings of the Republican County Convention. But we assure her that the meeting had to be seen to get the full benefit.

—Fourth of July at Delano seems now doomed to be a tame affair. No preparations have been made. Some of those who are anxious to go out of town are even opposing a Sunday School picnic on the 4th of July. We never seen the beat. What is the matter with the people, anyway?

—The military spirit is abroad in our village. Boys of all ages are seen marching, and drilling. Some are becoming quite expert at the business. Probably the company that keeps most constantly at work is company I. of Third Street, and the evident enjoyment the members get from the exercise is really pleasing to all who happen to be where they can note it.

—We hereby acknowledge the receipt of "The Way Made Plain or Out of Darkness into Light", and "Our Philip." from the author, our old time friend, now Rev. C. W. Savage, Pastor of the People's Church, Omaha. They are well worth reading. Rev. Savage is likely to visit Minnesota, during the summer, and may give us a sermon or two. He is a splendid speaker, and we would be pleased to hear him.

—Parties from Delano and vicinity who attended the Old Settlers meeting at Buffalo last week claim that the occasion was a grand gathering, and say they had a fine time. It is much more pleasant to driye to Buffalo, and return on a fine, long June day than to face the biting blasts of February as the Old Settlers were formerly asked to do; and much more enjoyment can be had by all at the summer meetings.

—The Delano Cemetery Association has at last got a move on itsself. The fence has been repaired, and steps made to get over the fence with out having the gate open. Grass has been cut, trees trimmed and things do begin to look as if someone had visited the city of the dead. Steps have been taken to complete the title of the trustees to the lots so that deeds may be given with a clear title. It is expected that parties behind in payment for lots will then obtain deeds by paying up the balance due on their lots.

—A meeting was held at the City Hall Tuesday evening to consider a proposition of the Turners Society of Minneapolis to spend the 4th of July on our picnic grounds. They were to bring their eatables and drinkables, a band and two baseball nines and have all the proceeds of the sale of liquors, of ice cream and other stands, and of the dancing floor, our people to have the grounds prepared for them and attend their picnic. The proposition was rejected. A committee was then appointed to canyass the village with a view of obtaining funds to enable our citizens to hire a band and fix up the grounds, and invite people to come and celebrate with us. Encouragement enough to make a success of the enterprise was not secured and it looks as if we are open to bids to spend the Fourth among our more enterprising neighbors.

—Every true American likes to see his boys and girls receiving a good education; he takes pride in living in a village or community where children are provided with facilities for learning to take their part in this world of action, in a creditable manner. Yet there is great negligence on the part of those who should be interested in educational matters. They often fail to attend the annual school meeting where the officers of the school are elected. Sometimes incapable or scheming men are elected, who, in order to make a few cents or gain a little political prestidge will sacrifice the best interests of the school. An election of two or three members of the Delano Board of Education is to occur next month. Let every voter in the district be present and express his preference for members of the board. Let's have as good a board as the district affords, and then our school will stand a fair chance of advancing with other schools in our county and in the state.

Card of Thanks.

We would hereby most respectfully tender our heartfelt thanks to many kind friends and especially the Woodman Lodge who assisted us during the late illness of Mrs. Ina Conzet and after her death, and at the funeral.

Yours in sorrow,
HENRY CONZET, and family.

Personal.

Charley Mapes, of Montrose, visited Delano last Saturday.

Dr. Ad Wright, of Maple Plain, visited Delano Monday.

George Goodrick came home from Montana Friday evening.

Lieutenant Howard, of Mankato, visited Delano last week.

C. W. Kerrick was in town during the early part of the week.

Dr. R. M. Walter made a professional trip to Long Lake Tuesday.

John Mayer was a visitor with his family on the West Side, Sunday.

C. H. Vorse and family, of Buffalo, visited at J. W. McDonald's Sunday.

Mrs. A. G. Jones and daughter Merrel are visiting in Hutchinson.

Dr. Halgren, of Watertown, visited Minneapolis via Delano Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Casey, of Corcorantown, did business in Delano Friday.

Ed Schmid left Tuesday for Dubuque, Iowa. He is not expected to return alone.

Walter Carlton, of Independence, boarded the east bound train at Delano Tuesday.

Andrew Hanseman came home on the early train Tuesday, with a kit of tools on his shoulder.

Mel Powers, of Rockford, and Mr. Howard, of Texas, drove over Saturday to view our village.

George Barth and Vincent Yany, of St. Thomas College came up Friday night for a vacation.

August Baldus, of S. W. Franklin was a GAZETTE caller Monday. He purchased a hand mower while in town.

Hon. F. H. Latham and Mr. Graves, of Howard, were east bound travelers over Jim Hill's railroad Monday.

Rev. Savs and William Dunn came home Wednesday afternoon from the Temperance Celebration at Waverly.

Misses Catherine Kelley, Mollie Maxfield and Stella Davis footed it home from Rockford station Saturday morning on their return from the Old Settler's meeting at Buffalo.

Riley Sturman hung onto the lines too long while the horse was running through the door and around the barn, resulting in a badly torn hand, requiring several stitches to haul the rent together.

William Ziebarth jr. of Herman, formerly of Franklin, was a delegate to the Populist convention at Minneapolis last week. He says some of his neighbors want him to run for the legislature. They could do lots worse than to send Mr. Z.

William Stanley and family had a family reunion this week. His three daughters and their families, being the guests. Frank Curry, wife and son, of Meeker County; Prof. Willis E. Johnson, wife and three children, of Mayville N. Dak. and Rev. J. R. Davies wife and daughter, of Hector, made up the list of visitors.

Teeth: Dr. Niven will be in Monticello July 5 and 6 and Elk River July 9 and 10. Dentistry.

Among Our Exchanges.

General Bryan has been ordered to his regiment. The chances are he will talk it to death before it reaches Cuba. —Duluth News Tribune.

The News Tribune evidently thought it had got off something smart when it produced the above paragraph. Why should such a paper seek to belittle in the eyes of its readers so gallant and courageous a defender of his county and the rights of suffering humanity? Wouldn't it look better for a paper to praise its gallant soldiers than to seek to bring down on there heads public obliquity?

But, whether Mr. Bryan in eloquence unsurpassed advocates the rights of his fellow citizens as against corporate greed and monopolies, or whether he gallantly tenders his services to his country and is the chosen Colonel of a regiment of brave boys willing to aid in freeing, and feeding suffering fellow man, and neighbors from the despotic and tyrannical rule of their government, matters not to the party organs of the political party to whose methods Mr. Bryan objects; they must misrepresent and abuse him.

And there are fools who believe it! One of the gold monopoly organs says: "The greenbacks is a debt just as much as a long-time bond, and the most expensive debt the government ever had, and the "money power" makes more out of such currency than anybody else." This statement, of course, is intended for ignoramuses or fools; for if the "money power" (the gold combine) could make more out of greenbacks than from bonds, why do they move heaven and earth to destroy our greenbacks and get bonds in their stead? How easily the knaves manage to rob the fool slaves of the world. 'Tis so true, and pity 'tis 'tis true.—Waseca Herald.

County Cullings.

The Catholic Total Abstinence meeting at Wayerly was a grand success. The large City Hall was packed, and Chairman McDonnel announced, as the crowd outside was as large as that inside the building, an adjournment would be taken to the church. On arriving at that large and beautiful edifice the vast audience was met by Rev. Casey who in a few words introduced Rev. J. M. Cleary, of Minneapolis, who gave them a short, but none the less a warm and effective lecture on temperance.

Frank Barth, organizer of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society had the good fortune to put a branch of 74 members in running order at Buffalo last Sunday. Good for brother Barth and the cause. But won't some of our old topers begin to quake in their boots pretty soon. If the growing population is all total abstinence, good and solid, the crop of old drunkards will soon fail to find recruits and there will be none left.

The primary election held at Rockford, was largely attended. Most interest seemed to be over the judge ship. The ticket representing Judge Tarbox's interest received 42 and that representing Mr. Woolley 32 votes; though the several expressed wonder at the great change of sentiment in one short day,

The new cut road from Rockford to Rockford Station, and the new bridge are great convenience to the public. The road is straight and quite level, and has been relieved of stumps. With a little attention it will soon be a popular drive way. It shortens the time between the two extremeties about ten minutes, and does away with the old dread of the rough road when one drives to Rockford from here.

Again we call attention to the fact that men who have not had their full citizenship papers for 90 days can't vote. It seems hard to disfranchise men who have voted ever since they were old enough. Get your papers during the present term of court.

John Stewart, a prisoner at Buffalo after being sentenced to Stillwater for five years for burgulary tried to escape by jumping from a window. A shot from Sheriff Nugent's revolver brought him to bay, and although not hit, it was found he had broken an arm.

The Gardeners from Minneapolis, had a fine picnic at Buffalo, yesterday: One man unfortunately made a misstep and fell from the sidewalk in the court house grounds, and broke a leg Dr. Shannon dressed the fracture, and his associates chipped in and paid the doctor, and turned over a good sized sum to the sufferer.

The Republican County Convention was one of the wildest ever held in Buffalo, by any party. Some of the leaders were held up by other would-be-leaders as fine and flourishing examples of anything but what is good. A great deal cleaner convention would have been much more of a credit to civilization than was that affair.

Wright County Republicans seem to have lost interest in the race for Governor since Hon. John Lind has been announced as their opponent. Everything at the convention seemed to hinge on who shall be Judge of the 18th dist. And it was wonderful to see old timers, making such strenious efforts to return Judge Tarbox.

It didn't add anything to the dignity of the high office of District Judgeship, of the 18th District to turn loose on the Republican Convention the wild and Woolley candidate, nor to fish up the Tarbox of past history. A good deal more dignity would have been shown if neither candidate had been present in the hall.

The Judicial squabble at Elk River will, from the present outlook, be a very dirty affair. If as one of the candidates stated on the floor of the convention delegates are to be bought, what are we to expect? If any man is bought he should be spotted, as a traitor to his country would be. A man who will sell his vote in a Judicial Convention is not to be trusted anywhere. How can a Judge on the bench conscientiously hold a trial before a jury on which sits a man or men whom he has known to sell votes in a Judicial Convention.

OUR NATIVE SHIPS.

Our native ships! in fleet career, they linger not behind,
Where gallant sails from other lands court favoring tide and wind.
With banners on the breeze, they leap as gayly o'er the foam,
As stately barks from prouder seas, that long have learn'd to roam.

The Indian wave, with luring smiles, swept round them bright to-day;
And havens of Atlantic isles are opening on their way;
Ere yet these evening shadows close, or this frail song is o'er,
Full many a straining mast will rise to greet a foreign shore.

High up the lashing northern deep, where glimmering watchlights beam,
Away in beauty where the stars in tropic brightness gleam,
Where'er the sea-bird wets her beak, or blows the stormy gale,
On to the water's furthest verge our ships majestic sail.

They dip their keels in every stream that swells beneath the sky;
And where old ocean's billows roll, their lofty pennants fly;
They furl their sheets in threatening clounds that float across the main,
To link with love earth's distant bays, in many a golden chain.

J. T. FIELDS.

SUCH a pass seems to have been arrived at, judging from the action of candidates, by our G. O. P. friends that the man who talks loudest and most abusive will be chosen. This abusive language ought to be stopped. It's deteriorating.

THE government is about to issue a new lot of "war stamps" for internal revenue. They are expected to be out in several weeks and will be attached to nearly everything sold at the drug stores in "put up" packages, to all sorts of documents and to many other things commonly handed.

GEN. SHAFTER appears to be meeting with lots more Spaniards at Santiago, than were thought to be there, before he landed. From the present outlook there will be one of the bloodiest battles of morden times before Santiago Harbor is emptied of the Spanish fleet and the city taken by the American forces.

EVEN the Druids who have for so many years fought against prohibiting people from becoming members on account of inordinate appetite for strong drink voted at their recent annual meeting in Minnesota, not to accept any more applicants as members who are hard drinkers. Surely the temperance cause do move.

GOV. CLOUGH is reported to have, in his characteristic way, told William Henry Eustis just about what he thought of him. It is hardly to be supposed that W. H. E. who is such a talker would be silent under these circumstances. Surely this Republican scrabble for office from Governor down to District Judge of the 18th district, which is as far as we have got yet this year, is, to say the least, very undignified and ungentlemanly.

IF our Republican friends warm up as the campaign goes on, at their usual rate what a hot time there will be after a little, as they have started in even hotter than common. But when they have got through fighting among themselves they will doubtless begin to cool off, until they will feel "chill November's surley blast" about as much at least as other people will. After the battle among themselves there is apt to be an unusually large number of very badly wounded cases which will require very careful treatment and much longer nursing than one campaign can furnish to regain their normal place in the ranks.

THE candidates for officers on the Republican ticket this fall are already getting unusually rattled. They quite evidently scent from afar that defeat is just about inevitable. There appears an undercurrent to their thought that they might pull though, which leads them to doubt it awfully. Even Eustis, in his appeal to his fellow Republicans of Minneapolis, to give him his home delegation in the race for nomination for Governor says: "The Republican gubernatorial nomination in this State has heretofore been equivalent to an election. The higher duty, then, of Republicans lies in the nominating convention." One might infer that Mr. Eustis thinks that now there might be something more necessary than a Republican nomination.

THE Editor of the Annandale Advocate tries poking fun at us because of our having pointed out some of the lack of love among Wright county Republicans. He says: "Besides if politicians loved each other there would soon be a ring and "tariff is a tax" would not be in it."

We are under the impression brother, that Wright county contains several political rings, and that "tariff as a tax" does cut considerable of a figure. Of course the rings may not feel that a "tariff is a tax" when it is for "revenue" and "protection", and is paid by the other fellows. and their fat pocketbooks become still more plethoric through the division of the accumulated surplus. Anyway "tariff is a tax" and even most of the Wright county Republican editors no longer deny it. If they do their readers class them up under the Advocates definition of "Frenchy", of the Times, where he puts him in with Annapias.

THE faults with the plan of electing United States Senator by the votes of State Senators and members of the legislatures is impressing itself upon the minds of some of our Republican friends in an uncommonly plain manner this fall. Many of our Republican friends have declared all along that they would not, under any circumstances, aid in returning Hon. Knute Nelson to the U. S. Senate, but some of them are anxious to keep Hon. C. K. Davis in for another term. It turns out now if they aid in reseating Davis, by electing Republican State Senators whose terms of office will be four years. that it is the machine plan to have them pledged, in advance, to vote for Davis this winter, and for Nelson two years later. Of course a few of the party would reverse this and desire to see Davis superseded by another man, while Nelson is returned. Between the factions it will be hard to electioneer for State Senator and tell men by electing him you are casting a vote for Davis and for Nelson both. This may aid in getting a few Democrats into the State Senate. Even Republicans don't want to be yoked up to vote for a man they don't want in order to get one they do want. And when it comes to supporting some corporation attorney for State Senator, a man they do not want, with the still farther load of Knute Nelson whom they are positively opposed to, in order that they may do just a little by way of sending C. K. Davis back to the U. S. Senate, their eves begin to be opened. The crack in the old machine begins to appear and the day light begins to creep in. They will, the better thinking among them, begin to believe that it is about time to make the law so that United States Senators may be elected by the people, and when the men they elected for the purpose of sending Davis back, notwithstanding the big pills they had to swallow to do so, trade him off for some personal advantage, or leave him at home as they did the late lamented William Windom, or W. D. Washburn. they will be sorer then ever.

If it is time to have the law changed to elect U. S. Senators by direct vote of the people, the sooner it is changed the better. The way to have it changed is to vote to change it, and vote for men who will change it, or do what they can toward having it changed.

Our War Encircles the Globe.

When our war with Spain, on account of their treatment of the Cubans began, most people in this country seemed to think it would last but a few months, and then the Spanish would be driven from our part of the globe. Scarce two months have gone by and things have changed. Instead of a small war between a few Spanish soldiers and the Cubans aided by a few regiments of United States troops, we now find that the war is encircling the entire globe. Instead of the peninsula of Florida and the island of Cuba, with the intervening water, being the scene of action, our sailors and soldiers and vessels are strung from Maine to California, Honolulu, and to the Philippine islands, while others are preparing under Comodore Watson to sail for Europe and tackle Spain itself. The part of the globe not yet occupied by our troops is being used by the Spaniards who are strung from Cuba to Spain and with their fleet under Commodore Camara at the isthemus of Suez waiting to get through on his way to the Philippines. Thus the war now extends around the globe. How much this belt may widen and grow and get interwoven with entirely different fabrics, and just where the fuss will stop is now too big a question for mortal man.

From the present outlook it stands us in hand to hurry matters up all that is possible; to bring hostilities to a close as soon as we can; to keep ourselves out of entangling alliances as much as in us lies; to keep things at home in the best possible shape, and be prepared for the worst that may come.

Our boys are in earnest, and only awaiting opportunities to show the metal they are made of. Wherever they have had a chance they have displayed the qualifications of soldiers and patriots and will continue so to do whenever and wherever duty calls. But let us hurry up everything honorable that can be hurried up to bring about an end to this war. If things are allowed to drag along it is fearful to contemplate who and what may be drawn into the dreadful maelstrom which has been set going. For years nations have been preparing against nations and will they now loose an opportunity to take sides when actual war surrounds the globe?

A vigorous and final solution of difficulties now seems inevitable as between the United States and Spain, and it is surely better for the world that it be done now than after other nations have become involved in the affair. Let us soon come to peace.

Honorable Men.

What our country needs today is honorable men in high places. It is not to be supposed that there are not honorable men in our land; as many, in proportion, perhaps, as there ever was. And some of them find their way to the front. But there appears to be too much of belittling, or trying to make people believe that others are unfit, are not honest, honorable men. Unless these charges are true, they ought not to be allowed. But, also! too often there seems to be too much foundation to the charges for even those against whom the charges are made, though they may be eloquent speakers or able writters to free themselves, in the eyes of an injured public.

God loves an honest man. All the world respects a man whose character is unsullied; whose life is honest, honorable, and is being lived for the good of suffering humanity, and to glority his Maker, yet how few such mingle in the affairs of state; how few are chosen to positions of honor and trust; how few even discharge their full duties as citizens of the United States, by attending and taking part in the primary elections, in helping nominate the men who they would select for officers, in shaping the laws of our country; how many remain away even from the polls, neglecting, or refraining from their own free will and accord, from exercising the right of representation for which our Revolutionary forefathers fought.

We all love a free country, and free institutions. We love to think of the patriotism of those who secured at the risk of life and property, and all, so great an inheritance for us, and should we then neglect to enjoy so great a blessing? Is it not a duty every citizen of this country, be he native born or adopted, owes to the memory of the fathers of our nation, to the present generation, and to posterity to do what he can to maintain and to secure to all time the blessings handed down to us, to shoulder a gun if needed, and fight for them. How then can honorable, honest lawabiding citizens stay at home and take no interest in the political affairs of our country. How can they continue about their daily avocations unmindful of the intrigues, and schemes being carried on by those desiring to possess the world financially, rather than morally, spiritually or in any other way.

If we are patriotic, and honorable citizens let us so act. Let each of us lay by our toil for a couple of hours and attend the primary election and see that the delegates we elect to county conventions are such as we know will do what they honorably can for the welfare of the whole country and its people, and the perpetuation of free institutions throughout the world.

The Stuff Heroes are Made of.

The Pioneer Press, in commenting on expressions of people generally concerning the heroism displayed by Lieutenant Hobson, has the following from his mother, which the Lieutenant probably values now more than any other from whatever source.

"The appreciation of the country, his state, and his native town, is most gratifying to us all. It is but natural that my mother pride should be pleased at the recognition of my boy by the nation and its rulers. Such recognition is very happy, but it has told us nothing new of his grand worth. A nobler son no mother ever had. He has been a mighty tower of strength to me for years. Never forgetting the many demands of a large household, it has alwads been his pleasure to share his salary with us. In every way he has been a help and a comfort. The three years he was studying abroad there never failed to come from him the most loving letters, and his resources were ever at our command. The gentlest, noblest nature, with every attraction of person and character, he claims the admiration of everyone who knows him. To us, nearest and dearest to him, it took no Santiago to proclaim him a hero.

'If every young American who shares his salary with his mother and doesn't forget to write affectionate letters home, should lay claim to being a hero the country would be black with them. We are not sure as a matter of fact, that it is not black with them. Certainly no one will begrudge Mrs. Hobson the credit of having paid her son the sweetest and truest compliment that he has yet received. He was a hero to her long before the Merrimac achievement.'"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24, 1898.

More Spanish rumors; more caution, hesitation and delay! The fears of delay in landing Gen. Shafter's army after it reached Admiral Sampson's fleet were all realized. The army arrived off Santiago on schedule time, last Monday, but it was two days later before its advance guard was landed, presumably because of the wild stories stating that the Spanish garrison at Santiago consisted of 40,000 men; and it is unofficially understood that Santiago is not to be attacked until the reinforcements which have been rushed from Camp Alger aboard of the auxiliary cruisers Harvard and Yale, at Newport News, shall have joined General Shafter. It looks as though that cable station at Guantanamo Bay, which put the administration in communication with Shafter and Sampson, was reopened a few days too soon. Perhaps if there had been no orders from Washington there would have been less delay. It is now stated, unofficially, of course, that the movement against Porto Rico has been suspended until the Santiago campaign is over and that the whole available army may be sent to help Shafter take Santiago. Caution is a good thing, in moderation, but overcaution in the conduct of war is about the worst policy that could be adopted.

Representative Carmack, of Tenn., doesn't fancy the talk of an alliance with England, and doesn't believe that the people do; consequently he has offered a resolution declaring that this country looks with disfavor on every suggestion of an alliance with any European power.

Among the volunteer brigadiers nominated this week was the notorious Adelbert Ames, whose career as a carpet-bag Senator from Miss., and as governor of that stat, both under the military regime and during the short time that it was under negro domination, must be well remembered in that state. His home was in Mass., before he became a carpet-bagger, and he has resided in that state since the respectable people of Mississisippi virtually drove him out of their state. He is a son-in-law of the late Benjamin F. Butler, and was educated at West Point.

A prominent citizen of Minnesota, now in Washington, says of the political situation in that state: "A thorough fusion has been effected between the the silver republicans, the democrats and the populists, and they expect to elect John Lind governor. The republican machine, which is run by men who are in office only for 'what there is in it', is offensive to thousands of good citizens who will help to throw out as corrupt a clique as ever disgraced a state. Every candidate on the fusion ticket is able, clean, and popular."

The debate on the resolution for the annexation of Hawaii has not reached the filibustering stage in the Senate, and it may not. Some of the anti-annexationists have said that they did not see what good filibustering would do, and that after they had stated their objections they would not oppose taking a vote. The fact that many democrats, regardless of their opinion of annexation, think it would be a good thing for Congress to remain in session while the war is going on, may play a more important part in postponing a vote on annexation than is now apparent. It is well known that the republican programme is to hurry adjournment after the annexation resolution has been adopted by the Senate.

Jerry Simpson managed to pour a hot broadside into Representative Grosvenor for his misrepresentation of the democrats, the silver republicans, and the populist in his speech to the Ohio republican convention, in which he charged nine out of every ten of them with having voted against every appropriation for the conduct of the war, except the first one for $50,000,000, before he was shut off on a point of order. Jerry said after reading that portion of Grosvenor's speech containing the charge: "The assertion as regards the vote of members on this side is false. Every man on this side has voted for every appropriation bill, and no man would have cast the reflection upon a large portion of this House, contained in the speech of the gentleman from Ohio, were he not dead to all sense of honor and truthfulness, having in his possession the facts with which the gentlemen must have been familiar."

The democratic Senators have decided to defeat the bill recently passed by the House, authorizing volunteer soldiers to vote for Congressmen in their camps, regardless of the tactics they may have to adopt to do it. Their ground of opposition is that the bill directly recognizes the right of the Federal government to control the polls at Congressional elections—the same recognition given by the notorious Federal election law, which was repealed a few years ago—which has always been opposed by the democratic party.

Soldiers for Lind.

From a letter signed "High Private" from Company K. 12th Minn. Vol. the regiment of which our nominee for Governor John Lind, is Quartermaster, it seems they like him very much in the army. It says: "It is reported in camp that Quartermaster Lind, of the regiment has been nominated for governor in Minnesota. It is thought by a good many that this regiment would vote nearly to a man for him. He is a No. 1 man in every place."

Insulted the Flag.

Special to the Dispatch.

WASHBURN, Wis., June 24.—John McKay, who was elected first lieutenant of the company formed here yesterday, was arrested last night for assaulting Jerry Shannon. Shannon insulted the flag and the United States people in general, and McKay knocked him down. Justice Yates fined McKay $1, and remitted the fine, at the same time informing Shannon if he didn't get out quick he would thrash him.

Greenbacks.

TO THE EDITOR—It seems strange to me at this day that there are found men advocating bank currency, for those that are old enough to know that next to the valor of our army and navy the greenbacks were the means that put down the most gigantic rebellion in the world's history. It must be that the press is bought up by the money power or they would not advocate a cause so detrimental to the best interests of the people. This war, if it continues long, will probably compel the government to issue some more of these same shinplasters that the bloated bondholders hate so much. May the time come soon that the only currency we have will have the stamp of the United States upon it.—St. Cloud Times.

Silver Republicans.

The Silver Republicans, of Minnesota in their first state platform adopted at Minneapolis, this month, show plainly that it is not them that have gone astray. They say:

"We reaffirm and indorse the principles laid down in the platform of the National Republican convention, which met in Minneapolis in 1892, which declared as follows: 'The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetallism. The Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money'".

Horses In Demand.

That horses are once more in demand, and at good prices, is a matter of rejoicing among owers and dealers. There was a popular verdict that these animals were being crowded out by electricity and many breeders accepted it as final; but the war changed all this and horses suitable for cavalry or artillery service have quickly doubled in value. Prior to our active troubles with Spain, the government bought few horses, except to supply losses, and had them furnished by contractors. Now the demand is large and imperative, the result being that government agents are sent direct into the open market Less than three months ago the price paid was from $60 to $70 and now it ranges from $120 to $150.—Detroit Free Press.

Every Watch a Compass.

Very few people are aware of the fact that in a watch they are always provided with a compass, with which, when the sun is shining, the cardinal points can be determined. All one has to do is to point the hour hand to the sun and south is exactly half way between the hour and the figure 12 on the watch. This may seem strange to the average reader, but it is easily explained. While the sun is passing over 180 degrees (east to west) the hour hand of the watch passes over 360 degrees (from 6 o'clock to 6 o'clock.) Therefore the angular movements of the sun in one hour corresponds to the angular movement of the hour hand in half an hour; hence, if we point the hour hand toward the sun the line from the point midway between the hour hand and 12 o'clock to the pivot of the hands will point to the south.—San Francisco Chronicle.

His Turn Has Come.

A Missouri recruit was overheard soliloquizing as follows: "I never saw anything like it. Talk about the prodigal son and the fatted calf! Why, they weren't in at all. The prodigal son doesn't figure. I could give him cards and spades and beat him on his own deal. Why, nothing's too good for me. The folks kiss me when I go out, and kiss me when I come in. I can take my bicycle in the front way, a thing I never dared to do before. I can smoke in the parlor. It all goes. Nobody says a word. I never amounted to anything before. I was always in the way about the house. But now, say, I own the block. The girls all look at me as if I was a little tin deity. Why, even my sisters, who never had any use for me before—said I was stupid and never could do the right thing at the right time—is doing the loving-embrace act every other minute. Why, I believe that I could sprinkle the sitting room floor with ashes and she would never register a kick."—New York World.

The summer girl and not the Spanish shell continues to be the most serious peril of the seaside resorts.

Since 1887 14 United States senators have died in office and 12 after leaving it. It is the heaviest mortality in the records of the senate.

An Italian doctor has discovered that there is in the common pineapple a substance similar to pepsin, and that one pineapple is sufficient to digest ten pounds of beef.

In 1888 the foreign demand for corn was 25,000,000 bushels, and in 1898 over 200,000,000 bushels. The world is finding out the merits of one of nature's best productions.

Gen. Hernandez, the rebel leader in Venezuela recently captured, is known all over that country for his bravery. He has been wounded in battle 18 times, has been 20 times captured by the enemy and for a long time was an exile in Cuba.

The prize money distributed among our sailors during the civil war amounted to nearly $12,000,000. They have made a good start in this war, and will add rapidly to the prize fund should our new flying squadron visit the Spanish coasts.

Ernest Terah Hooley, the meteoric London financier who has failed with liabilities of millions of pounds, is only 39 years old and at the flood tide of his prosperity was fond of making startling displays of his wealth. He is said to have once made $10,000,000 in three days.

There are old, familiar and well loved names on the new army list. Fred D. Grant, son of the great commander, is a brigadier general. So is Michael V. Sheridan, brother of the dauntless "Little Phil." And Rev. Thomas Sherman, son of the hero of the march to the sea, is an army chaplain.

The highest price ever reached by wheat was $5.60 per bushel in 1812. The extraordinary price was due to the failure of the English crop, and a very high tariff on cereals. In November of 1866 wheat sold at $2.03 in Chicago, and during the following spring a "corner" sent the price to $2.85 by May 1. In 1888 wheat went to $2 as the result of a "corner," but such instances are rare.

Ex-President Harrison, in speaking of the American navy recently, said: "I consider the American navy, ship for ship, gun for gun, and man for man, unequaled by any navy in the world. The courage and daring of our men, the personnel of the officers of our ships, the gunnery, the nerve and spirit manifested in all, offer to the world the spectacle of a navy for which there is no superior."

A man named Tailor, who is postmaster of Scarva, County Down, Ireland, has held his office for 70 years. He is now 116 years of age. From the age of 14 to the age of 114—an even century—he was a habitual user of tobacco; but two years ago he discovered that it was impairing his health, and he abandoned it without tapering off. Such men are object lessons for the youth of the world. To err is human, but to persist in error is infamous.

American soldiers have fought Indians in the lava beds, and wild animals in the forest, but the skirmishing at Guantanamo is their first experience in chasing human hyenas and gorillas through the brush. This kind of warfare has its disadvantages. It is hard to locate a foe that disguises itself as a plantain patch, and the weather is so frightfully warm that Uncle Sam's boys are apt to hesitate a long while before firing at a palm leaf fan.

The greatest electric searchlight in the world, now being erected at Fort Monroe to guard the entrance to the Chesapeake, has a beam of light nine feet in diameter. It will illuminate an object 100 miles off and can be seen on the clouds at even a greater distance. The light is gathered into a nine-foot beam, which has an estimated intensity of 90,000,000 candles. The light revolves six times a minute. It was manufactured in France, but American generating apparatus has been substituted for that built abroad.

Mascots are the order of the day in camp and on shipboard and a new style may come into use, for a woman in central New York has offered her twin babies, whom she describes as fine boys 11 monehs old, to the secretary of the navy as mascots. She prefers that they should be placed upon the Iowa and New York, of Admiral Sampson's fleet, as she says she knows more about these ships than any others, but she is not particular, as long as the infants are honored by cradles upon American cruisers. This is the most peculiar exhibition of patriotism yet offered.

The wages of a soldier in Russia are $2.25 per annum. The daily rations are two pounds of a dry, coarse, rye bread baked hard first, and then cut into strips and again baked; a small quantity of salt and some soup. The soup is made in a kettle holding 400 gallons, and is mostly hot water. The soup is dealt out to the men in dippers, each man getting a share which is figured out to a nicety. Compare this pay and ration with that of the American soldier. The truth of Phil Sheridan's statement: "When you leave the United States you are camping out," is becoming more evident.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, occupied the time in the United States senate on the 23d in a speech opposing Hawaiian annexation. In the house further agreements upon the sundry civil bill were reported from the committee on conference and adopted and 63 pension and relief measures were disposed of. A bill was introduced authorizing the construction of the Nicaragua canal. Adjourned to the 27th.

The conference report on the bankruptcy bill was disposed of by the United States senate on the 24th without debate, and the Hawaiian annexation resolutions were further discussed. A vote on the question is expected on July 2. The general deficiency appropriation bill ($226,140,246) was reported. The house was not in session.

A bill authorizing the president to appoint additional cadets-at-large at the United States military academy and another authorizing the appointment of a military secretary of war were passed in the United States senate on the 25th and the Hawaiian annexation resolution was further discussed. The house was not in session.

WAR NEWS.

The Spanish government has authorized its agents throughout the country to ascertain the opinion of the people as to the desirability of terminating the war.

A bill passed the Massachusetts legislature providing for a war loan of $1,500,000.

Dispatches direct from Cuba say there has been sharp fighting on land near Baiquiri, and that the ships have kept up a vigorous bombardment of the hills, forcing the Spaniards to retreat.

Eight merchant vessels have been bought by the government at a cost of $4,000,000 to carry supplies to the armies of invasion.

Spain's cortes closed and martial law was proclaimed. The Sagasta cabinet will resign and make way for a new government which will make negotiations for peace.

Amid wild enthusiasm the American flag was flown from the top of the Altares mountains, back of Baiquiri, Cuba. The men cheered, the warships let loose their sirens and the bands played the "Star Spangled Banner."

During a fight within five miles of Santiago 1,000 men of the Tenth cavalry and Roosevelt's rough riders engaged 2,000 Spanish infantry. The Spaniards sustained heavy loss and were driven back to the city. The Americans had 13 killed and 50 wounded.

A message was sent by Admiral Sampson to Admiral Cervera demanding the surrender of Santiago and giving notice in case of refusal that the American forces would reduce the defenses and capture the city. The Spanish admiral refused to consider the matter of surrender.

The command of Gen. Shafter was reported to have advanced westward to the town of Jaragua, which was captured without a battle. The Spaniards retreated toward Santiago.

A report from Gen. Wheeler says 22 Americans were killed and 70 or 80 wounded at Sevilla. The Spanish loss is believed to be greater, 39 dead Spaniards having been found.

The Cadiz squadron has reached Port Said, at the entrance to the Suez canal.

The Spaniards are said to have abandoned Morro castle and concentrated their forces in Santiago.

Gen. Shafter's army is almost face to face with the Spanish forces at Santiago and a battle seems certain before the week is out.

FROM WASHINGTON.

At the age of 63 years Col. R. E. A. Crofton (retired), of the regular army, died in Washington.

Count de Cussina, the first ambassador from Russia, was formally presented to President McKinley.

THE EAST.

On the Thames river course at New London, Conn., Cornell won the triuniversity boat race, the four miles being rowed in 24:48. Yale was second and Harvard third.

In Fulton, N. Y., William Cooper, aged 30, shot and killed his father-in-law, Cornelius Smedley, fatally wounded his mother-in-law, fired two shots at his wife and then committed suicide.

Flames destroyed the Potter oilcloth works, which covered ten acres of ground in Philadelphia, the loss being $500,000.

In the National league the percentages for the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 26th were: Cincinnati, .638; Boston, .632; Cleveland, .607; Baltimore, .593; Chicago, .559; Pittsburgh, .544; New York, .500; Philadelphia, .472; Brooklyn, .418; Washington, .379; St. Louis, .351; Louisville, .317.

In New York Tom Linton, of Wales, went 20 miles on a bicycle in 36:59, breaking the world's record.

WEST AND SOUTH.

In Oshkosh, Wis., the strike of the woodworkers resulted in riot in which James Morris, a striker, was killed, and others were injured.

Populists, democrats and silver republicans of South Dakota nominated a fusion ticket at Aberdeen headed by Andrew Lee, of Clay county, for governor.

Fire destroyed Smead & Co.'s iron foundry at Louisville, Ky., the loss being $250,000.

In Oshkosh, Wis., the riotous woodworkers were held in check by the state militia.

Fire destroyed the Great Western distillery, the second largest in the world, at Peoria, Ill., the loss being $350,000.

Charles Handley, a hotelkeeper at Edgley, N. D., shot and killed his wife and then shot himself fatally.

It is estimated that the Klondike district and Indian river output of gold this year will be $20,000,000.

A BAPTISM OF FIRE.

Rough Riders and Cavalrymen Make a Good Showing.

Latest Information Places the American Losses at 22 Killed and 70 Wounded or Missing—Spanish Losses Heavier.

Jaragua, Cuba, June 25, per Dispatch Boat Dandy, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 27.—The initial fight of Col. Wood's rough riders and the troopers of the First and Tenth regular cavalry will be known in history as the battle of La Quasina. That it did not end in the complete slaughter of the Americans was not due to any miscalculation in the plans of the Spaniards, for as perfect an ambuscade as was ever formed in the brain of an Apache Indian was prepared and Lieut. Col. Roosevelt and his men walked squarely into it. For an hour and a half they held their ground under a perfect storm of bullets from the front and sides, and then Col. Wood on the right and Lieut. Col. Roosevelt at the left led a charge which turned the tide of battle and sent the enemy flying over the hills toward Santiago.

Says Twenty-Two Were Killed.

Gen. Wheeler, in his official report, places the number of dead in the engagement at Sevilla as 22 and the wounded as between 70 and 80. No attempt has yet been made to prepare an official list with the names of the dead and wounded. The high grass and bushes of the battleground make it difficult to find the bodies.

The bodies of 39 Spaniards have been found and the Spanish loss in killed and wounded was doubtless much heavier than the American.

The Killed.

A complete list of the killed, revised to four o'clock Saturday, is as follows:

Capt. Allyn K. Capron, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Sergt. Hamilton Fish, Jr., troop L, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Sergt. Doherty, troop A, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Sergt. Marcus D. Russell, troop G, First United States volunteer cavalry. Sergt. Russell lived in Troy, N. Y., and was formerly a colonel on Gov. Hill's staff.

Private Leggett, troop A, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Private Henry Heffner, troop G, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Private Milden W. Danson, troop L, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Private W. T. Irwin, troop F, First United States volunteer cavalry.

Private Slennoc, troop K, First regular cavalry.

Private B. Work, troop B, First regular cavalry.

Private Krupp, troop B, First regular cavalry.

Private Stark, troop A, First regular cavalry.

Private —— ——, troop K, First regular cavalry.

Private Kelbe, troop K, First regular cavalry.

Private Barlin, troop K, First regular cavalry.

Corporal White, troop K, Tenth regular cavalry.

Capt. McCormick and Capt. Luna, of the First volunteer cavalry, who were reported as among the dead or wounded, were unharmed, as was also Col. Wood, whom Adjt. Hall reported as mortally wounded.

Soldiers Killed in a Wreck.

Tupelo, Miss., June 27.—A railway accident occurred at this place at 3:40 Sunday afternoon, in which four soldiers lost their lives and others received fatal injuries. Sunday afternoon, Col. Torrey's regiment of rough riders from Cheyenne, Wyo., reached this place via Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad. The first section had stopped to take water and had whistled to start on when the second rounded the sharp curve in the track just before the town is reached and dashed into it.

The killed are: Willie B. Wallace, troop C; Sam Johnson, troop C; —— Gordon, colored porter; Cornelius Lenihan, troop C. Fatally injured: Henry S. Mapes, troop C, both legs cut off, puncture in abdomen. Thirteen others were injured.

Situation at Cavite.

Hong-Kong, June 28.—Gen. Aguinaldo, according to letters brought here from Cavite by a German steamer, occupies the mansion of the late governor of Cavite, but he will shortly move to Imus to make room for the American troops. The insurgents now have 5,000 prisoners. The Spanish brigadier Moret was killed at San Fernando in an attempt to force the rebel lines.

Cornell an Easy Winner.

New London, Conn., June 24. — Cornell won the tri-university boat race on the Thames river course Thursday, the four miles being rowed in 24:48. Yale crossed the finish line three and one-half boat lengths behind the winner and 12 lengths ahead of Harvard. Last year at Poughkeepsie Cornell won in 20:34; Yale, second, 20:44, and Harvard last, 21 minutes.

German Warships at Manila.

Berlin, June 28.—The German second-class cruiser Princess Wilhelm arrived at Manila on June 20. Including this one, there are now five German warships in the Philippine waters.

ADVANCING ON SANTIAGO.

Portion of American Army Encamps Within Sight of the Doomed City.

On the Rio Guama, June 26, via Kingston, Jamaica, June 27.—The advance force of the American army rests on this stream with the city of Santiago de Cuba 4½ miles westward, in plain sight.

The outposts, consisting of two companies of the Seventh infantry, under Maj. Coolidge, Saturday night occupied positions at right angles to the road, guarding the crossing a mile and a half beyond Sabinalla, where three regiments of Gen. Lawton's division camped, the First, Fourth and Seventeenth.

The Eighth, the Second and Twenty-second Massachusetts, with the rough riders, Tenth cavalry, and portions of several other regiments, are strung out behind them toward Jaragua. About 800 Cubans, under Gen. Gonzales, were camped around Gen. Lawton's headquarters.

Gen. Wheeler Sunday, with the First, Second and Tenth cavalry, and the rough riders with dynamite guns, moved up to where Gen. Lawton's outposts were Saturday night, and four batteries of the Third artillery and four Gatling guns, with a special detail under Lieut. Parker, were brought up and planted on the brow of a hill overlooking the basin in which Santiago de Cuba lies.

Not a shot was fired from the American side, though the front of the American line was not 2,800 yards from the entrenchments where the Spaniards propose to combat the advance on Santiago de Cuba.

The top of every hill and mountain north and east is occupied by blockhouses, from whence the Spaniards can view the movements of the American army as it advances beyond Sabanilla, while to the eastward of the city, gashing every knoll and bit of high ground, are Spanish entrenchments.

The correspondent from an elevation to the right of the American line counted 34 of these entrenchments, completely fencing every approach to the city. The trenches have been dug as the conformation of the ground admitted. The ends of the trenches overlap where breaks in the line occur, thus securing comparatively safe retreat from rifle fire in case parts of the trenches are captured. Upon one of these works modern guns have been mounted. They can be plainly seen by the naked eye.

Spies report that inside the entrenchments are four parallel lines of rifle pits shoulder deep, and in front of them are marked ranges and several rows of barbed wire fences.

The Woman's Federation.

Denver, Col., June 28.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs Monday elected Mrs. W. B. Lowe, of Atlanta, president.

As chairman of the committee on resolutions, Mrs. Mary Mumford, of Philadelphia, read innumerable resolutions which will be sent out immediately in the name of the federation. One is to President McKinley expressing confidence in him, his advisers and his brave men on land and sea.

Japanese Premier Resigns.

London, June 27.—The Tokio correspondent of the Times says: Marquis Ito, the premier, has resigned. In tendering his resignation he advised the mikado to accept the principle of party government, and to instruct Count Okuma Shigenabou and M. Itagaki to form a ministry. The emperor will probably act on Count Ito's advice.

Famous Hotel Burned.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 27. — The Clifton hotel in Clifton, Ont., on the opposite side of Niagara river, was destroyed by fire Sunday, the estimated loss being $100,000.

FUEL IS FORBIDDEN.

Egyptian Government Refuses to Allow Camara to Coal.

Is on the Way to the Philippines—Administration Decides to Send a Fleet to Attack Coast Towns of Spain.

Port Said, June 28. — Upon the application of the United States consul here, orders have been issued forbidding the coaling at this port of Admiral Camara's fleet until further orders.

New York, June 28. — A dispatch to the Tribune from Cairo, Egypt, says: Admiral Camara has asked to be allowed to purchase 10,000 tons of coal for the Spanish fleet at Port Said, but the Egyptian government refuses to permit the ships to coal in Egyptian waters.

Egyptian Government Acts.

New York, June 28. — A dispatch to the Tribune from Cairo, Egypt, says: The Egyptian government has instructed its authorities at Port Said to prevent the 150 stokers engaged there by Admiral Camara for his fleet from embarking on Spanish ships, and has courteously informed Admiral Camara that so doing would be an infringement of the laws of neutrality, which Egypt intends rigorously to observe. The Audaz' machinery requires repairs and Camara has signified his intention of remaining at Port Said for three days.

TO ATTACK SPAIN.

Government Decides to Carry the War Across the Ocean.

Washington, June 28. — The administration on Monday finally came to a decision to send an American squadron to the Spanish coast and to the Mediterranean.

The determination to send a squadron against Spain was the outcome of direct official advices reaching the state and navy departments as to the progress of Admiral Camara's squadron. These advices give a list of the Spanish ships now nearing the Suez canal, which differs somewhat from the list given in the press dispatches and by Lloyd's. The official list is as follows: Pelayo, Carlos V., Audaz, Osada, Proserpina, Patriota, Rapido, Buenos Ayres, Isla de Paney, Colon, Covandonga and San Francisco.

Our Fleet the Best.

The eastern squadron, which the United States will now send against Spain, far outranks the Spanish squadron, the Iowa and Oregon exceeding the Pelayo and Carlos V. at every point, while the United States vessels are far superior, ship for ship, to those of the Spanish squadron, with the single exception of the two Spanish torpedo boat destroyers. When the American fleet sails for Spain it will take with it complete information as to the entire stretch of Spanish coast, with detail maps of every harbor and its fortifications.

To Take Canaries First.

With this full information at hand, the nature of the assault upon the coast of Spain will be pretty well outlined before the American squadron sails. At the same time much will be left to the commander in chief of this squadron. Some naval authorities believe that the Canary islands will be the first point of attack, and that the next move will be to establish a naval base at Ceuta, a point on the African coast, owned by Spain and opposite Gibraltar.

Watson Selected.

Washington, June 27.—The navy department at 11:15 o'clock posted the following bulletin:

"Commodore Watson sails to-day in the Newark to join Sampson, when he will take under his command an armored squadron with cruisers and proceed at once off the Spanish coast."

HEROES TO BE REWARDED.

President Sends Messages to Congress Touching the Promotion of Hobson and Others.

Washington, June 28.—The president Monday sent two special messages to congress, providing recognition of the services of Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac; of Lieut. Newcomb and crew, of the revenue cutter Hudson, which rescued the torpedo boat Winslow at Cardenas; Capt. Hodgson, of the dispatch boat Hugh McCulloch, which figured in the battle of Manila, and Naval Cadet Joseph Wright Powell, who held the steam launch under the bluffs at Santiago harbor, searching for the crew of the Merrimac. Authority is asked of the senate for the transfer of Hobson from the construction corps to the line of the navy, and the president announces that with authority given he will by and with the advice and consent of the senate suitably advance Hobson in the line. The Hudson's crew are to be given a vote of thanks and medals of commendation. Capt. Hodgson is to be suitably recognized.

The president in mentioning Hobson cites the fact that the crew with him already have been promoted.

A gold medal is recommended for Lieut. Newcomb, a silver medal to each of his officers, and a bronze medal of honor to every member of his crew.

Capt. Hodgson is slated for permanent waiting orders on the retired list of the revenue cutter service on the full duty pay of his grade.

Naval Cadet Powell is recommended for advancement two numbers to be ensign in the navy.

HAS LITTLE EFFECT.

The War Has Neither Helped Nor Hindered Business to Any Great Extent.

New York, June 25.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say: "Very little of the new business seen, in proportion to the aggregate, has been caused by the war. Not any, discoverable by ordinary tests, has been prevented by war. Neither has the collapse of the wheat speculation caused the expected decrease of shipments, for exports continue remarkably largely. Gold comes or does not come, as we want it. The world's markets being evidently at our command. An offering of bonds by the government brings out at the start bids for more than three times the amount offered, while the popular subscription already for three-quarters of the amount exhibits in strong light the confidence of the people.

"Wheat ceased to fall, and begins to rise in price, because foreign needs are not yet satisfied. After falling to 50 cents for cash and 77¾ cents for July, wheat rose to 88 cents for cash and 72 cents for July, with foreign demand. Corn was steady, without much fluctuation. Of other grain, exports have been unusually heavy.

"The industries, at the season when stoppages are to be expected, maintain production surprisingly. There are very few interruptions on account of labor, and wage scales for the coming year have nearly all been amicably settled. The iron industry is very dull at the east, with complaint that prices do not rise, but at Pittsburgh and the west the works are getting more business constantly. The enormous demand from agricultural regions for implements, fencing, cars, railway equipments and all sorts of building is the noteworthy feature of this remarkable year.

"Failures for the week have been 285 in the United States, against 216 last year, and 11 in Canada, against 34 last year."

A DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

Wind and Rain Cause an Enormous Amount of Damage in Many States.

Chicago, June 2. — The storm of wind and rain which swept over several of the states Friday night and early Saturday morning was one of the most severe experienced for several years, and in many localities great damage was done. A cyclone swept through the wheat region of North Dakota, laying in waste hundreds of thousands of acres of growing wheat. Following the cyclone came a storm of hail, rain and lightning, which cost several people their lives and resulted in many buildings being wrecked. Another center was in southern Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa, and there the property loss amounts to many thousands of dollars. Buildings were unroofed or razed to the ground, railroad tracks and bridges washed out, big trees broken or uprooted and the growing crops beaten into the ground. With the wind and rain came an electric display seldom equaled. Many buildings were struck by lightning, although few people were killed. Stock suffered to a considerable extent, however.

More Help for Dewey.

San Francisco, June 28.—The transports City of Paris, Ohio, Morgan City and Indiana (flagship) sailed at 2:30 p. m. Monday with 4,000 troops, bound for Manila. The steamer Valencia was not ready for sea Monday and will probably sail with the steamer Newport on Wednesday. Gen. Merritt and his staff will proceed to the islands in the Newport, which has been especially prepared for the service.

Won the Derby.

Chicago, June 27.—Thirty thousand spectators witnessed the American Derby at Washington park Saturday. The winner was Pink Coat; Warrenton, second; Isabey, third; time, 2:42¾.

GLAD SHE DIDN'T YELL.

When She Found Out That Her Industrious Neighbor Was Not Committing Suicide.

A certain East end man delights in doing odd jobs about his home. He cuts his grass and trims the walks, and handles a paint brush like an old master. Carpenter tools come handy to him, too, and the sound of his merry saw makes pleasant music for the neighbors, who have no objection to being awakened early. In short, he is a clever all-round workman, and decidedly handy to have about the house.

One day not long ago the woman of the house next door happened to come out on her back porch. There she casually looked over the low fence into the handy man's yard. What she saw scared her so that she couldn't move hand or foot. The handy man was lying prone on his back, his body concealed beneath his porch, but with his face in strong relief. He was very pale, his hair was disordered, and his eyes were rolled up and fixed in a ghastly intentness. Against his breast he seemed to be pressing some deadly weapon that glistened as a ray of light touched it.

The woman on the porch tried to scream, and couldn't. She knew the handy man was committing suicide.

He panted, his face grew red, and his form seemed convulsed.

The woman on the porch caught her agonized breath and was about to let out a 40 horse power yell when she heard the supposed suicide anxiously ask:

"Isn't it through yet?"

"Yes," said a voice from above, "it been yoost through."

About this time the woman on the porch understood that the handy man was boring an auger hole through the floor of his porch, that the deadly weapon was an auger, and that the hired girl was on hand to watch the operation.

Then the woman on the porch was glad she didn't yell.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Pleased with the Country.

Chinook, Mont., June 22.—Prof. S. M. Emery and Doctors Wilcox and Trephagen, of the State Experimental Station, have just concluded a three days' institute. The attendance of farmers was all that could be desired. The visitors had a good opportunity to look over our section, and while Prof. Emery had lofty ideas in regard to its future previous to the present visit, he is more than enthusiastic now over its possibilities. He counted not to exceed twenty houses in one locality where he maintained two hundred should be. Referring to the subject of sugar beet culture, he made the statement during his lecture that nowhere in the state of Montana did he find every indication more favorable for its successful culture than in the Milk River valley; that we had every requisite, viz: Land, water and climate. After the session your correspondent called his attention to that statement, and asked for permission to so quote him in making up a report for publication. He replied: "Yes, sir; and I mean every word of it."

Why She Didn't Marry.

It was all the photographer's fault that Miss Vanderdecken didn't marry. She looked beautiful in the portrait she sent out to India, and all the men in her brother-in-law's regiment were raving about her, till somebody spied out at the back of the photo what that silly camera fellow had written. "The original is carefully preserved."—Household Words.

MRS. LUCY GOODWIN

Suffered four years with female troubles. She now writes to Mrs. Pinkham of her complete recovery. Read her letter:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish you to publish what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Sanative Wash and Liver Pills have done for me.

I suffered for four years with womb trouble. My doctor said I had falling of the womb. I also suffered with nervous prostration, faint, all-gone feelings, palpitation of the heart, bearing-down sensation and painful menstruation. I could not stand but a few minutes at a time.

When I commenced taking your medicine I could not sit up half a day, but before I had used half a bottle I was up and helped about my work.

I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am cured of all my troubles. I feel like a new woman. I can do all kinds of housework and feel stronger than I ever did in my life. I now weigh 131½ pounds. Before using your medicine I weighed only 108 pounds.

Surely it is the grandest medicine for weak woman that ever was, and my advice to all who are suffering from any female trouble is to try it at once and be well. Your medicine has proven a blessing to me, and I cannot praise it enough.—Mrs. LUCY GOODWIN, Holly, W. Va.

Farewell to the Dobsons.

By MAY ROBERTS CLARK.

IN EVERY community, no matter how democratic, one family, at least, is considered beneath the social level. Their lower rank does not come from any difference of wealth, intellect or morality, but is due, almost entirely, to the general shiftlessness of the neglected family. Often the judgment of the neighborhood is just, but it is not always so.

Mrs. Dobson once said, bitterly: "How do they know? We never had any chance here in Nebraska. We were as good as the best where we come from, and I'm sure I've worked hard enough to be somebody; but what can a woman do with seven children, and a man as lazy as the Platte river?"

Mr. Dobson looked up with a good-natured grin, but said nothing. Apparently he took no more notice of his wife, who went off to spread her meager washing on the gum weeds. He tilted his rude chair back against the trunk of a giant cottonwood, and looked over the landscape with lazy enjoyment. From his position he could see down long vistas of dark, shining, blue-green corn stalks and beyond them the Platte.

"Meanest, dirtiest water I ever saw," he thought, dubiously. "'Tain't no good to anybody. Don't fetch down any mill power; can't tote any trade boats; isn't ever two days alike, it's so shifty and sneaking. 'As lazy as the Platte.' Well! well!"

He sighed and glanced sheepishly at his wife, who was shaking out the last tattered garment of the washing. He watched her uneasily a moment, and then his eyes wandered vaguely to the far-off purple bluffs across the river; but what he saw was a distance of years instead of miles.

"Abner," called his wife, plaintively, "just look at me. I reckon Mrs. Barnard hasn't got any such sand burs as we have. She don't get pricked to pieces when she goes to spread her washing. I do wish you'd—" but she stopped hopelessly.

"Mis' Barnard don't have to spread her washing," corrected Abner, doggedly; "she's got yards and yards of clothesline and pins and baskets and a machine."

Melvina Dobson glanced at her husband anxiously. Never before had he seemed uneasy or envious. "I reckon Mis' Barnard has her drawbacks," she admitted, generously.

"Yes," answered her husband, moodily, "and Barnard ain't no more willing than I'd be if I was him. His paw left him money, and mine didn't. I know one thing, though, if I was Barnard, Mis' Barnard wouldn't wash, if she did have a machine. I'd sell the pigs first."

Melvina looked at him gratefully. "I know it, Abner," she answered, soothingly, "you always have been good to me. If there ain't money enough for both, you always want me to have it. I reckon 'tain't your fault that we are so poor; I don't care for myself, but the children."

She broke off suddenly, and went in to get the scanty dinner. Abner took down his rusty hoe and passed reluctantly into the neglected potato patch. He was working with great deliberation when his half-grown daughter passed, without speaking.

"Sallie!" he called.

The girl seemed not to hear him. She held her head with an air of offended dignity, and looked neither to the right nor to the left. A second call from her father brought her to a defiant pause.

"I say," he called, lazily, "what ails you? Have I done anything?"

"Reckon not," she answered, sullenly. "And your maw don't seem natural. Is she ailing?"

The girl looked him full in the face, and her eyes were not pleasant. "Oh, maw," she answered, sharply, "why maw is kind of worn out with church socials and things, maw is. It's most made her sick, sewing on her new silk dress, and doing up her hair. And now there's the party at Sansen's."

"Sansen's?"

"Yes, when they move into the new house. Everybody has been asked, even Mis' Jenkins, 'cepting maw. Maw has such fine clothes and is so stuck up, that she wasn't bid."

Abner turned the hoe in his hands, and watched a potato bug travel calmly from one hill to another. Something in his attitude touched the child. Suddenly she lost her look of defiance, and said, brokenly:

"Maw couldn't go, anyway, she's got nothin' to wear. Her old gray dress turned yellow in the sun years ago. Mrs. Barnard gave me some dye for Easter eggs, and when I heard about Sansen's party, I thought I'd color maw's dress and have it ready."

A tragic silence followed. Abner looked up questioningly.

"She can't wear it no more," answered the girl, unsteadily; "it turned brown and green, and went all spotted and speckled."

For a minute the silence was heavy; then Abner said, gently: "Never mind, Sallie; I'm real proud of you for trying. Now you run along and help your maw. You're a good girl, Sallie."

The child went back to the shabby sod house with smiling eyes, and left her father to his own devices. From the force of long habit he sat down to cultivate his thoughts, while the bugs and the weeds waxed strong among the potatoes. What he thought to-day was something new and strange, and not agreeable. Often his mind reverted to the coming party.

When the company finally assembled at the Sansens' they repaid Abner Dobson for his speculations by freely and frankly discussing him and his.

"Oh, folks like the Dobsons don't care," insisted Mrs. Sansen; "they could get ahead if they wanted to. Sansen and me didn't have anything but a mortgage when we started, and now look at the farm and its improvements."

"The rest of us ain't far behind," laughed Mrs. Early. "Only 14 years ago we drove into the state with a span of horses, a wagonload of furniture and two dollars."

"We are all better off," suggested somebody else, "than our folks we left behind."

"Except the Dobsons," corrected Mrs. Sansen.

"Why are they so far behind?" asked Mrs. Barnard, in the tone of a newcomer. "Weren't they early settlers?"

"Of course they were," answered Mrs. Sansen, "but they didn't use their chances. They were too shiftless for anything."

A little, faded woman in rusty black, whom Sallie Dobson had spoken of as "even Mis' Jenkins," looked up with keen protest in her eyes.

Mrs. Early saw the glance and hastened to smooth things over by saying: "Maybe the Dobsons haven't used judgment, but they did work better before they got so discouraged. While the rest of us were getting a start they had more than their share of sickness and death and accidents to their property."

"You needn't worry about that," broke in Mrs. Jenkins; "they are going back to the mountains. Mrs. Dobson told me that they was tired of being lonesome."

A sudden uneasy hush fell on the little company, followed by a confused demand for further information.

Mrs. Barnard sat listening to the talk, which had drifted back to the days before she lived in the neighborhood. When a pause finally occurred in the conversation she turned to her companions and asked, brightly: "Why can't we give the Dobsons a farewell party? I am sure it would please them, and whatever we saw fit to give would seem prompted by friendship rather than charity."

The women looked at each other in keen surprise, but before anyone could protest Mrs. Barnard spoke again: "I was thinking how much Mr. Dobson needed another horse since one of his span died. I am going to give him my old Bess. She is homely and rather mean, but she can work. Mr. Barnard said yesterday that we had too many horses."

"I can't do anything so handsome," exclaimed Mrs. Jenkins, "but I can give a quilt or two."

"And I some canned fruit and a ham or so," added Mrs. Early.

The enthusiasm spread, and amid a confusion of tongues the list of donations grew and grew.

"Suppose you stop on the way home, Mrs. Barnard," suggested some one, "and tell them about the party. I'm afraid they wouldn't be tidy enough to enjoy a surprise."

So when the party dispersed Mrs. Barnard delivered the neighborhood message and passed on with a smile of satisfaction.

From that time forth a new life dawned on the Dobsons. Their lamp was the last in the valley to go out at night and the first to be lighted in the morning. The whole family seemed possessed with a fever and hurry of joyous excitement.

"Got to have everything slick and mended," admonished Abner; "can't go off leaving things shiftless like."

When the eventful day of the party finally arrived everything was in perfect order. Two hours before the earliest guest could be expected Mrs. Dobson went to the door in her fresh, new calico and looked about anxiously.

"They will be along now pretty soon," she announced, excitedly; "you haven't forgot your piece, have you, Abner?"

"I reckon not," he answered, thoughtfully, as he flicked a straw from his new overalls; "it begins: 'Fellow neighbors.'"

"Oh, never mind about sayin' it now, paw," she interrupted, "I reckon you will get through when the time comes."

But Abner was not so certain. He repeated it over and over again. Even during the arrival of the people he could not escape its haunting phrases. He forgot it only when he went to see the unexpected gifts from his neighbors. Then his vision suddenly grew dim, and his mind confused.

He wandered back to the end of the house which the men had appropriated. After a moment he drew himself erect, and began in a loud, artificial tone: "Fellow neighbors—"

The unusual address attracted the notice of those nearest. A wave of silence passed on to the women's edge of the company.

"Feller neighbors," he began again, "me and Mis' Dobson feel to thank you for this here unexpected notice. Maybe we-uns ain't been any credit to you-all before, but after this we're going to be."

He cleared his throat, while the people looked at each other questioningly. His wife prompted him quickly. "Mis' Dobson and me—" she whispered.

"Mis' Dobson and me," he repeated, "got lonesome, and thought we'd better go back to our kin. But lately you-all have showed we-uns that there is kin nearer than them of blood. They didn't give us no farewell party. You-all have been mighty good; Mis' Dobson and me know that there ain't no other such neighborhood on earth. So we ain't going to the mountains."

A gasp of astonishment, almost of consternation, escaped the company.

"We ain't going," he concluded; "we-uns are going to stay right here and act like white folks. That's all, fellow neighbors." He sat down in silence and confusion.

The neighbors were startled, but they had undertaken to make this party a success; to a man, they arose to meet the new occasion. For the first time they made the Dobsons welcome.

After the party was over, when the last wagons were separating, Mrs. Sansen said: "I'm glad we did it, anyhow. It's just made people of them Dobsons. Him and Billy come over and cut all them Canada thistles we blamed them for."

"And mended our barbed wire fence," added Mrs. Early, "and fixed Mrs. Jenkins' plow."

"Say, Mrs. Barnard," laughed some one, "your party was a big fizzle as a 'good-by.'"

"Perhaps," she answered, softly, "but I think it was a great success as a farewell to the Dobsons. Good night, dear."

The well-satisfied neighbors passed under the quiet stars, which looked down peacefully, long after they had vanished, on the lazy, vacillating Platte, and to-day the Dobsons, regenerated by neighborly kindness and made active by sympathy and approval, bear no resemblance to the sluggish, unlovely stream.—Youth's Companion.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Rich Find.

Reports from Ely are that the recent explorations made there by Milles & Brown have disclosed what promises to be one of the richest ore bodies of the Vermillion range. The find is in in section 30, which has been a bone of contention between various claimants, including the state of Minnesota, for some 18 years. Miller & Brown held a portion of the section and have been exploring there this spring. They have sunk several pits a few feet and have run into high grade ore in them. This ore comes to within six feet of the surface and is of the same grade, apparently, as that of the Minnesota company's hard ores. The exploring force has been increased and work will be rushed.

Proposed New Range Railroad.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota railroad, a new road backed by the Alger-Smith company, of Michigan, is under way and it is employing 500 men on its grade. General Manager John Miller is superintending the work and he says that fifteen miles will be built this year and the rest as needed. Mr. Miller was asked if the road would provide a new outlet for iron ore from the Minnesota ranges, and he said the company would take whatever traffic was offered and in order to reach all its timber the company would have to extend the road to the ranges. Branches will be extended wherever they are needed, either for timber or ore.

Increased Tonnage.

Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain of Washington said that the Minnesota law with regard to tax on vessels will result in a great increase in the total tonnage of vessels documented at Duluth, the only lake port in the state. The law referred to was passed in 1886, and has already resulted in a great increase in tonnage as reported by the collector of customs.

The tonnage of yessels documented at Duluth in 1892 was 1,400; in 1895 it had increased to 5,485, and in 1897 to the grand total of 86,000 tons. Commissioner chamberlain estimates that the returns to be made July 1 will show very substantial increase over last year, probably to 120,000 tons.

Chicamauga.

Senator Hiram F. Stevens has just returned to St. Paul from a trip to Chicamauga. He reports that the Minnesota regiments are the pride of the camp, and that the boys are spoiling for a battle. "Under the command of Colonel McCoy, who is past-master in the art of drilling, the boys line up in a manner that leaves no comparison between Minnesota's and other regiments. Colonel McCoy is acting for Colonel Bobleter, who is now brigadier general. I tell you I felt proud of those boys. They are a credit to the state, and I'd like to see more marked appreciation shown them." Senator Stevens says the park is replete with scenic beauty.

A Maniac's Deed.

Ollie Walsh, living near Lake City, killed his mother by crushing her head with an axe. His father and younger brother were in the city, and a young girl at home gave the alarm. He has been confined in the asylum at Rochester, but was released four months ago. The boy has fled, but the sheriff is searching for him. Walsh is 22 years old.

Comes to Minneapolis.

The thirty-first annual convention of the Junior Order United American Mechanics will be held in Minneapolis during the third week in June, 1899. The Minnesota delegation was at the convention just held at Louisville, Ky., with instructions to secure the next convention for Minneapolis, and their efforts were crowned with success.

A NAVAL HERO'S STORY.

From the Times-Herald, Chicago, Ill.

Late in 1861, when President Lincoln issued a call for volunteers, L. J. Clark, of Warren, Trumbull Co., Ohio, was among the first to respond. He joined the mortar fleet of Admiral Porter just before the memorable operations on the Mississippi River began. It was at the terrific bombardment of the Vicksburg forts that the hero of this story fell with a shattered arm from a charge of schrapnel.

After painful months in the hospital he recovered sufficiently to be sent to his home at Warren, Ohio. Another call for troops fired his patriotic zeal and Clark soon enlisted in Company H of the 7th Ohio Volunteers. In the army of the Potomac he was in many engagements. Being wounded in a skirmish near Richmond, he was sent to the hospital and thence home.

A Wounded Hero.

Soon afterward he began the study and then the practice of veterinary surgery. Seeking a wider field than the Ohio village afforded, he went to Chicago, where he now has a wide practice, is a member of Hatch Post, G. A. R., and lives at 4935 Ashland Ave.

Several years ago Dr. Clark's old wounds began to trouble him. He grew weak and emaciated, and his friends despaired of his life. He finally recovered sufficiently to be out, but was a mere shadow, weighing only 90 pounds. The best medical attendance failed to restore his lost strength and vigor.

"A friend gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Dr. Clark, "and they helped me so much that I bought a half dozen boxes and took them. I soon regained my strength, now weigh 190 pounds and, except for injuries that can never be remedied, am as well as ever.

"I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People the best remedy to build up a run down system, and heartily recommend them to everyone in need of such aid."

"And do you ever have such moments?" she asked.

"Yes," he replied, "many of them."

"You ate young, you have genius, you have many friends who expect great things of you. Why should you ever have a dreary moment?"

He turned an earnest look upon her, and she permitted her long curling lashes to brush her cheeks.

"Need I tell you why?" he asked, in trembling tones.

She did not answer.

"If I had been permitted to know—some one, before it was too late," he went on, "life could have held no dreary moments for me. If I dared now to ask for the love of—some one who has given herself to another, Heaven would open to me. If I dared—if I dared—"

He hesitated. She arose and smiled sadly as they parted.

Rebukes His Tired Auditors.

A clergyman preached a rather long sermon from the text: "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting." After the congration had listened about an hour some one began to get weary and went out; others soon followed, greatly to the annoyance of the minister. Another person started, whereupon the parson stopped his sermon and said: "That is right, gentlemen; as fast as you are weighed pass out!" He continued his sermon some time after that, but no one disturbed him by leaving.—Chicago Chronicle.

EMPHATIC STATEMENTS.

Letters from Women Cured of Female Troubles by Pe-ru-na.

Lucy L. Wilson, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I now consider myself well and do give you great thanks for it; your wonderful medicine, Pe-ru-na, has done me all the good. I had tried a great many doctors and did not find any relief from any of them, but now I can say that I am well. I feel like a new person all over. May God bless you and be with you always."

Mrs. A. C. Hildebrand, Milton, N. C., writes:

"I was very low and pronounced incurable by two of the best doctors in this county when I commenced to use your medicine. I have used nine bottles of Pe-ru-na and I think that I am perfectly well.

"Of course Pe-ru-na is what did the work, and I consider it the grandest medicine in the world. Mine was a noted case in this county and everybody thought I would die. I never lose an opportunity to praise your medicine. You may use this letter as a testimonial and make it as strong as you can."

Sailors and Their Grievances.

The grievances of sailors examined by the authorities in ports of entry, where the seamen belong, often turn out to be imaginary or greatly exaggerated. But there are plenty of cruel and conscienceless skippers who abuse their crews. Violence is always objectionable, and pointedly so when it is exerted upon an unfortunate liver, stomach or bowels by dosing with drastic purgatives which weaken the intestines. Use Hostetter's Stomach Bittera.

Comparisons.

Electric Fans in Sleeping Cars.

The Baltimore & Ohio South Western Railway officials have solved the problem of cooling sleeping cars in stations at night. At Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis this line has sleeping cars placed in the stations at 10 p. m. which do not depart until after midnight, and in order to make them comfortable and cool have placed 16-inch rotary electric fans in each end of the sleepers, thus removing the heated and impure air from all parts of the car. The fans have been in operation about three weeks, and have been the subject of many favorable comments from the traveling public.

COULD SCARCELY RAISE HIS HAND.

Yet took care of seventy head of stock.

The farmer who found a friend.

Serious results often follow a strain, especially when it affects the back, and few people are so liable to strain as those who are lifting heavy loads of various kinds, from day to day. The teamster rarely ever overtaxes his strength. Familiarity with the class of wares he handles, enables him to entirely gage the load he lifts so as not to put an excessive burden on himself. But with the farmer it is different. He is lifting loads of such varying weights and under such varying conditions that he is very liable to lift a little too much some day, with injurious results. Many serious affections of the great organs of the body originate in a strain. It was so in the case of H. R. W. Bentley, of Towner, North Dakota, A strain resulted in serious trouble with the liver. How he recovered and was enabled to feed seventy head of stock during the winter, let him tell himself:

"About a year ago, I sustained an injury in my back and shoulders by lifting a heavy weight. After a time, a liver trouble came on, which so weakened me that I could scarcely lift my hand to my head. While in this condition, I began the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, and finding almost immediate benefit, continued until I was cured of my complaint, so that I was able to take care of seventy head of stock all through the winter, which shows that the cure was not temporary but permanent."—H. R. W. BENTLEY, Towner, N. D.

The action of Dr. Ayer's Pills on the liver makes them invaluable for those living in malarial climates. C. F. Alston, Quitman, Texas, writes:

"I have found in Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills an invaluable remedy for constipation, biliousness, and kindred disorders, peculiar to miasmatic localities. Taken in small and frequent doses, these pills act well on the liver, aiding it in throwing off malarial poisons, and restoring its natural powers. I could not dispense with the use of Dr. Ayer's Pills."—C. F. ALSTON, Quitman, Tex.

Dr. Ayer's Pills are a specific for all diseases of the liver, stomach, and bowels, they promote digestion, cure constipation and its consequences, and promote the general health of the entire system. They should always be used with Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla when a cathartic is required. More about the pills in Dr. Ayer's Curebook. Sent free. Address the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 1, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Section boss John Kuka has been busy with his crew putting in some much needed new ties in the Delano R. R. yard.

—Prospects for big crops of grain this year are fine, small grain never looked better, and corn and potatoes are quite thrifty.

—Lightning struck on John Gonsior's place last Tuesday evening, damaging his threshing outfit and burning up some machinery.

—Holy communion services were held at the Catholic church Wednesday forenoon. Fiftyfive members were admitted. Nearly all joined the order of the "Sacred Heart of Jesus".

—The board of review and the Assessor met at the Council Room Monday and equalized some of the assessments. They seemed to agree pretty well with the assessor's work.

—Rev. J. R. Davies made the rounds for Rev. Farber last Sunday, preaching at Montrose, Watertown and Delano. He is improving as a preacher. He preached a good sermon here in the evening.

—Paris green seems to be the principle article in which our druggist deals at present. It is very unpleasant stuff to handle, and he is getting considerably kind of tired of the effects it produces upon his system.

—We are in receipt of the Bulletin of the Department of Medicine of the State University. The examinations for entrance to this and the Hamline University Medical Department, are now the same, and are growing harder each year.

—Peter Peterson informs us that he has received a letter from Henry Tessman, who went this spring with his father-in-law and family to Corvalis, Oregon. He says Minnesota is good enough for him, and expects to be back here by Sept, 1.

—Theodore Strauch, one of the old settlers in Franklin, has purchased a part of the lots owned by his son Fred on South Third Street, and is busily at work on a foundation for a new residence which he expects to occupy as soon as it is completed.

—W. D. Freeman, Delano's progressive gardener has a fine garden this year. Several new varieties of peas, a tomato large as a pidgeons egg; a tomato plant grafted on to a potato, growing finely, some handsome flowers are among the curiosities he has to exhibit callers.

—And Delano hasn't got a phone system. If you want to see a No. 1 system look at the one here; why we could hear the 13-inch shells strike the castle over there at Santiago, the other day. It is the kind that you can tell when your wife is mad at home.—Litchfield News Ledger.

—The Wedley men from Delano must have been napping at Buffalo last week when they accepted elections as delegates to the state convention and sent Otis L. Billings, who claims to be a Tarbox man to Elk River, to help nominate a District Judge.

—Mrs. A. L. Jones and children have returned from their visit to Stewart. They brought with them a couple of pets, which are quite a curiosity to most people hereabouts, two young badgers. They say that badgers are numerous on the prairie.

—The entertainment given by the Catholic School, at the City Hall, Friday evening was an enjoyable affair. Ice cream and cake and the literary programme were well received by the large audience. Some of the scholars show exceptionally fine training. All did well.

—The Delano boys that went soldiering took to the water Sunday. That is they with the balance of the Reg., except the new recruits, and a few men left with them, went aboard the City of Para, bound for Honolulu, where they expect to celebrate the 4th of July. They expect then to proceed to Manilla to aid Admiral Dewey in taking care of the Philippines Islands.

—At the meeting held Saturday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a farmers Co-operative Elevator Co, about 30 were present. The meeting was called to order by F. F. Chancellor. L. M. Maxfield was chosen chairman and Guy Murphy Secretary. A paper was drawn up for signatures for shares of $10, each, 27 shares were taken and a committee of five appointed by the chair consisting of F. F. Chancellor, Walter Carton, E. F. Ziebarth, Ernest Otto and Erick Erickson sent out to solicit. It looks as if we are to have the elevator running by Sept 1, 1898.

—As an excuse for not attending church more regularly some of our I. O. O. F. brethern have been claiming that they did not like to listen to a man who did not approve of their order. We always claimed the excuse a very lame one, from the fact that it made little difference who came to preach they staid away, except a few who attend quite well, and don't get offended either. Two weeks ago they brought from Hector, Rev. Davies, a member of Delano Lodge I. O. O. F. to preach a Memorial sermon, about 40 members in regalia found their way to the service. Last Sunday evening the same preacher was on hand, but there was hardly 4 members out to hear him. Don't they like the brother? Other people came just the same.

--One of the heaviest rains of the season occurred last night. We are having lots of rain this year.

—Lohmiller has a crew at work building an ice house and beer keg shed near his beer house.

—A good deal of the hay crop has already been harvested. Generally not much in this line is done before July 4, but this is an exception.

--Corolla Roosen fell from the hitching rail in front of J. W. Lindsley's store Wednesday evening and fractured a bone in the fore arm.

--C. J. Buckley's, John Naslund's and Tom Lanway's new residences are fast nearing completion and are a great improvement to Third Street.

—Harris Williams has our thanks for a basket of fine turnips. Mr. W. is one of the raising gardeners of our vicinity. The turnips were good.

—Dr. Catlin, has been commissioned Medical Examiner of, the Catholic order of Forresters. A Court is to be established here soon as the necessary arrangements are completed.

—Walter Carlton presented us on Wednesday, with a couple of the largest strawberries we have seen this year. He picked them from his brother Charley's patch.

--Watertown, Rockford, Howard Lake, Buffalo and Annandale are among towns to celebrate July 4. Our people can find some place to go. Delano will have a dance in the evening.

--The Delano Crickets are going to play a match game of ball with the Buffalo nine, at Rockford, Fourth of July, for $15. The boys have been practising and are looking foreward to a victory.

On Board Para, June, 27.

Father: We will pull out of bay at two o'clock today. I am all right and feel good.

Yours,
A. G. C.

--Wash Rader's folks have heard that their daughter who is in Annandale visiting, and who has never had the measles is quarantined at the house of Ennis Brandon, whose child is down with that disease. It is likely Miss Blanche will have to remain there until there is no more danger of her carrying them home with her.

Teeth. Dr. Niven will be in Monticello July 5 and 6 and Elk River July 9 and 10. Dentistry.

Personal.

Fred Peters and his dog left for Minneapolis Tuesday.

Mrs. I. C. Stewart and son left yesterday for Williston to live.

George Swadner, Waverly's butcher visited Delano friends Sunday.

Forest Staples and Vinnie Chance have gone to Little Falls on a visit.

Editor Teas, of the Carver County News, was seen on our streets this morning.

Prof. C. S. Hawker, who has been taking a vacation, returned to town Tuesday.

J. W. McDonald, who is working at Dassel, spent Sunday at home in Delano.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kanooth left last night for Donnelly, Minn., where Mr. K. is at work.

Rev. J. L. Farber, who has been rusticating on his farm returned home Wednesday evening.

Will Stimmel, was looking after the interests of the John Hancock company here yesterday.

C. E. Dickey, of Minneapolis, is moving into the Mrs. C. F. Peters, residence on Third Street.

John Conzet, of Eagle Bend, came down Tuesday to attend the funeral of his father, Martin Conzet.

Charley Coolen and his mother and two sisters drove down from Smith Lake Wednesday. They returned Thursday.

John Mayer and family and sister Anna of Montana, are home attending the wedding of Mrs. Mayer's sister this week.

Rev. J. L. Farber has been taking a vacation from his labors for a couple of weeks, looking after his farm near Hutchinson.

Mrs. Judge J. H. Brown, mother of the present Judge C. A. Brown, of Willmar, is visiting her brother L. M. Maxfield at Delano this week.

W. W. Thomas, of Seattle, came to Delano Wednesday. He is at the Methodist Manse. His family expect to return to Seattle with him soon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Roosen and Dr. Soper accompanied Miss Corolla Roosen to Watertown yesterday to have Dr. Halgren examine with the X rays her injured arm.

Mrs. Chris Gast returned to Delano Tuesday. She says she will reside here for awhile anyway. She don't like the prairie. Chris may work out there if he wants to.

County Cullings.

Among post masters recently appointed appears for Wright County; Keystone, Ella M. Jorgens, vice Axil Jorgens, resigned.

George C. Carpenter was elected chairman of the county committee, by the Republicans at their convention at Buffalo last week. A good selection.

The effort to give C. A. Towne a majority in Wright county this fall is to be an earnest, honest, but none the less a determined one, and deserving success, as it will be, every honest reformer should lend an honorable effort toward effecting the desired end. Make no political trades with anybody.

Some of the superior generalship manifested on the floor by the Tarbox forces at the Republican row, called a convention, at Buffalo, last Thursday was cogetated in the Convolutions of that great head of Hon. A. Y. Eaton's and verbally passed along the line of "Frenchy." Surely politic's in Wright County do make strange bedfellows.

Editor French of the Wright County Times, warns the Judge Morris men that unless they use better horse sense their man is apt to go out of this country with a majority against him. We think it altogether likely that Mr. Morris will have the majority against him in Wright County this year.

The illustrated issue of June 8, of the Buffalo Journal deserves mention. It shows that the people and the printing fratenity of the County Seat and vicinity are enterprising. Cuts of many of the business houses and beautiful residences, etc., etc., for which that past of the county is noted, were given, showing up the facilities for business and pleasure in good shape.

It is pleasing to learn that Wright County's soldiers receive their share of honors. The Herald says: "B. M. Latham, (a son of F. H. Latham, of Howard) who enlisted in Co "I," 12th Minn., Vols. has been detailed chief clerk of the Third Division of the First Army Corps consisting of the three brigades or twelve regiment."

If any of our Wright County voters have been led to think that C. A. Towne, has lost anything in the line of argument, or in the power of eloquence, they need only to embrace the first opportunity to hear him. He said he would be around. Look out and don't miss him. He can speak for himself, and for his cause better even than two years ago.

The first annual picnic of Market Gardeners, of St. Paul and Minneapolis was held in Buffalo last Thursday. The picnicers, about five hundred in all, were met at the depot by the Buffalo cornet band and escorted to the park. Henry Peterson, one of the company from St. Paul, while running backward on the sidewalk, fell and broke his leg. Aside from this the day passed off very pleasantly.

The twelfth annual convention of the W. C. T. U. of Wright county was held at Buffalo, on June 8. An interesting meeting was had. Resolutions were passed on the death of several faithful workers in the cause during the year past. Also, on various methods of extending the work of the union. A Demorest gold medal contest was an enjoyable part of the programme. Ernest Maloy, of Howard, Miss Maud Clary, of Monticello and Miss Maggie Gilmer, of Howard were awarded prizes in the order named. Officers elected for next year are:

President,—Mrs. John Heller.

Vice President,—Mrs. H. L. Van Fossan.

Secretary,—Mrs. C. E. Porter.

Treasurer,—Mrs. F. H. Johnson.

The Temperance Union of Wright county ought to hold a meeting in Delano. We think they would be as well used as in any other village in the county.

Among Our Exchanges.

St. Paul Dispatch: G. Cleveland has dutifully fallen into line with his party leaders, Bryan and Bailey, and opposes territorial expansion. That is rather inconsistent in anything as badly expanded as Groyer.

Duluth Herald: The Republican bosses are still hoping that John Lind will decline a fusion nomination for governor, because they know he is a winner. But they are hoping in vain. Mr. Lind always responds to the call of duty.

Waseca Herald: Most young men mix bad whisky and beer with their religious and social life because they are ignorant of the results that must follow. They don't know enough to know that such liquor never does any good, and often does very great harm. A person properly educated knows enough to let liquor alone.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill

DIED.

CONZET,—In Delano, Monday, June 27, Mr. Martin Conzet, aged 68 years.

Mr. Conzet was born in Switzerland; was an old settler in Minnesota, living for a number of years in Greenwood. He left his farm there in charge of his son and moved to Delano last fall. He was a prominent Democrat usually being among the workers for his views. He was a delegate to the state convention held at Minneapolis a couple of weeks ago. His death came suddenly, supposedly from some heart affection, as he was apparently well in the morning, and died about 10 a. m. Funeral services were held by Rev. McLain, at the Presyterian church Wednesday. Many old settlers attended. The church was crowed.

ONE DOLLAR GAZETTE. ONE YEAR $1.00

HOW A PUZZLL WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

THE BLIND GODDESS.

Justice? That's her statue there,
Modeled in heroic size,
With a face that's cold and fair
And a bandage o'er her eyes.
Ain't she lucky not to see?
She would surely die of shame
Could she see the crimes that be
Perpetrated in her name.

When they bandaged up her eyes,
It was in the long ago,
And they thought it only wise,
She should not know friend from foe.
Poor, blind goddess! Wicked men,
By no fear of God deterred,
Fixed her balances and then
Left her with no warning word.

In her scales as now they stand
Gold will outweigh more than right
Than was e'er by mortals planned,
And the stars that shine at night
Look with pity at the crime
That is done in justice's name,
At the woman's faith sublime
And her shattered sword of flame.

Rise and tear the bandage off,
Goddess of the placid brow!
Strike at those who make men scoff
At thy blindness even now!
Cast the scales thou hast away.
Be not now by fear deterred,
Cease with Mammon's kings to play.
Then shall men respect thy word.

A SPECIFIC tax of 10 cts a pound on tea, permits the widow whose sons are in the army to contribute just as much to the war fund when she buys a pound of tea for 25 cts, as the old fellow who holds a non-taxable government bond for a $1000, and drinks tea worth $1.00 per pound. Wouldn't an advalorum tax look better in this case?

THE Republicans don't seem to have hit the nail on the head very well when they refused to nominate Judge Mitchell. The Democrats had shown their desire to favor a nonpartisan Judiciary by placing him on their ticket, though some protested that he favored a gold standard. The Republicans, even then, must have a straight partisan ticket. The present bench is said to be one of the fairest in the country. Possibly Judges Canty, Buck and Mitchell will be re-elected.

THE big English iron ship Cromartyshire ran into the French ship Bourgogne on the 4th, during a heavy fog, and sunk her. 565 of the passengers and crew perished. 163 were saved. Some terrible stories are told of the crew fighting passengers away from boats in order to save themselves. Only one woman was saved. Mrs. Judge John F. Dillon and daughter were among those who lost their lives. A law against vessels running in a fog when they can see nothing might be of some use in preventing such catastrophes.

THE corner stone of the New State Capitol is to be laid on the 27th inst. The occasion is to be a grand one. A procession to the Capitol Site, 1000 invited guests on a raised platform. Prayer, address on behalf of State Capitol Commissioners by Commissioner C. H. Graves, of Duluth. Depositing of the usual metalic box within the corner stone, with a variety of Memorials of the present day.

The stone to be laid by Hon. Alexander Ramsey. Gov. D. M. Clough to proclaim the stone duly and securely laid. Hon. C. K. Davis will deliver the oration. The audience will sing "America" before the benediction.

If you want to have a good time and mingle with leading men of the state and enjoy yourself generally be at St. Paul the 27th.

Rockford had one of the grandest celebrations of the 4th of July in her long list of celebrations. The exercises in the morning were carried out according to programme we were informed, and in a satisfactory manner. Prof. C. S. Hawker and F. H. Lindsley orated. The Pickaninny band from Minneapolis furnished music; and fun in the cake walk. Races of different kinds were run. Last on the programme was the game of ball between the Buffalo boys assisted by a crack player from the University, and the Delano Crickets. The Crickets of course won the game, ale same.

EDITOR DARE, of Elk River don't seem to be meeting with the success he deserves as an enterprising member of the last House, in his race for Senator of the newly formed district. The Sherburne county delegation bolted the legislative convention. It remains to be seen what will be the outcome. The convention tried to sooth the patient by nominating Dr. Whittemore, of Elk River, for the Legislature. The Dr. is no Homeopath and small doses won't cure him nor any of his patients.

THE Sherburne county Star News says: "While the first choice of the Star News was not the choice of the convention, we have no kick coming, and accept the nomination of William Henry Eustis with the utmost complacency. Mr. Eustis will make a hurrah campaign, brilliant in pyrotechnics and will be elected by a handsome majority." "Utmost complacency!" That's good. It is like the old fellow who lost his wife. He was reconciled; he had to be. "Hurrah campaign, brilliant in pyrotechnics." That sounds well too. And when William Henry was smoothing down the rough places for David Clough, or most anybody else, he made a brave stagger at it. But, when Mr. Eustis goes through his collection of funny stories and winds up by begging the people to support William Henry Eustis for Governor things will seem even flatter than ever. What do we want with a Governor who boasts in his stump speeches that, when a boy, he used to shift the bail of the water pail along to his brother's end of the pole and let him carry the whole load? We want a governor of Minnesota who is for the people and with the people and not one who is forninst and against them. We don't want a boy that played any such tricks, and who has never reformed, for Governor.

THAT letter sent out by William Henry Eustis appealing to the citizens of Hennepin county to save him because he happened to live in Hennepin county, from the Van Sant forces, and the Collins boys, seems to have had the desired effect and William Henry is the Republican nominee for Governor. If he writes more letters to all the societies and leagues, etc., to which he holds membership, perhaps he will have quite a respectable following. But should John Lind's friends appeal to the patriots of the country to vote for a man who is away fighting his adopted country's battles, and to the great Scandinavian race that has followed him across the water to this free country, perhaps he too, may get some votes.

This running for office because a man happens to live in a great city like Minneapolis, or because he came from "deown East" or because he has the password to several societies, is not the thing in this country, any more than it is to ask for it because he can talk German, Swede or Latin. People want a governor who is with them. Who loves his country and its institutions, and who is willing to fight for their rights everytime, and who is not around annually, begging for nominations, but who accepts them at the request of liberty loving and patriot citizens.

OUR Republican friends have been forced by the people to cast overboard machine politicians and come before the public with a candidate for Governor, who they claim, is unhampered by and independent of, corporations; Mr. Eustis, of Minneapolis.

Now they may be able to make a few of the people believe that this is a fact; but we are of opinion that the people have known Mr. Eustis and his tactics too long, to be led in very large flocks to believe that he can run the Republican party independent of the machine.

If Mr. Eustis is so terribley independent now, how long has he been so? And what made him so? Wasn't he one of the Republican orators who talked for Clough two years ago? Didn't he get off his funny stories, at Duluth, and even right here in Delano? Didn't the gang then endorse the republican party from President down? Didn't they hurrah for C. K. Davis, and Knute Nelson? Isn't it the same old party, and ain't they doing the same thing now? Isn't Mr. Eustis, one of the kind who never see any good in anything but the party; and don't he go a long ways out of his way on the slightest occasion to abuse the Democrats? Was not his conversion to independence since he learned that the people had no further use for the machine? And isn't it of the kind of trick that he said he played on his brother when the two were carrying water on a pole and William Henry slipped the pail up so that his brother had the whole load? Wasn't the conversion for the occasion, to get nominated for Governor? If the people want to work and vote for a reformer won't they prefer to work and vote for a man who has at least had a couple of years experience, and who is known as a reformer? Won't they elect John Lind?

President's Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—President McKinley, at 11:40 to-night issued the following proclamation to the American people:

THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

At this time, when, to the yet fresh remembrance of the unprecedented success which attended the operations of the United States fleet in the bay of Manilla, on the first day of May last, are added the tidings of the no less glorious achievements of the naval and military arms of our beloved country at Santiago de Cuba, it is fitting that we should pause, and, staving the feeling of exultation that too naturally attends great deeds wrought by our countrymen in our country's cause, should reverently bow before the throne of divine grace and give devout praise to God who holdeth the nations in the hollow of His hands and worketh upon them the marvels His high will and who has thus far vouchsafed to us the light of His face and led our brave soldiers and seaman to victory.

I, therefore, ask the people of the United States, upon next assembling for divine worship, in their respective places of meeting to offer thanksgiving to Almighty God, who, in His inscrutable ways, now leading our hosts upon the waters to unscathed triumph, now guiding them in a strange land through the decade of shadows of death to success, even though at a fearful cost, now bearing them without accident or loss to far distant climes, has watched over our cause and brought nearer the success of the right and the attainment of justice and honorable peace.

With the nation's thanks let there be mingled the nation's praises that our gallant sons may be shielded from harm alike on the battlefield and in the clash of fleets and be spared the scourge of suffering and disease while they are striving to uphold their country's honors and withal let the nation's heart be stilled with holy sweet the thought of the noble men who have perished as heroes die and be filled with compassionate sympathy for all those who suffer bereavement or endure sickness, wounds and bonds by reason of the awful struggle. And above all, let us pray with earnest fervor, that He, the dispenser of all good, may speedily remove from us the untold afflictions of war and bring to our dear land the blessings of restored peace and to all the domain now ravaged by the cruel strife the priceless boon of security and tranquility.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

Withdrawal of Gold Causes a Suspension of Banks.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A dispatch received here from Valparaiso, Chile, via Galveston, Texas, says:

"A financial panic has been occasioned here by the withdrawal and exportation of gold which has caused the Chilean government to officially close all the banks in Chile, until the 12th inst. During this suspension the government will consider the advisability of issuing paper money."

WE have heard of considerable trouble in Republican ranks before; but we believe the terrible wounds inflicted lately are far more serious and will require longer to heal than those of former years. The Judicial contest in the 18th district has resolved itself into, as some say, corporation Judge and anti corporation Judge; while some old timers are decidedly after the scalp of the Wright County Auditor. Unless a prospective State Senator can make his constituents believe his vote will be cast for Davis and Nelson both, or for neither of them, or for the particular one the voter favors, and Eustis, Clough, or whoever the voter want, he can hardly expect to be elected; he must too, be able to talk favorably of corporations, and to abuse them roundly all in one speech. Surely he must be a man of divers resources who can hold down that nomination in the Republican ranks this year. This, of course will be the excuse for foisting another corporation attorney onto the voters if possible.

Imperialism.

"Imperialism," or the influence of the present war upon the destiny of this nation, is the subject of a timely and especially appropriate article by Senator Cushman K. Davis and Senator John T. Morgan in "The National Magazine" for July. The question is to-day the one great and absorbing topic of national interest, and "The National Magazine" of Boston is the first periodical to take up the subject.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24, 1898.

Although it has been officially announced that Gen. Shafter would not wait for the men sent him from Tampa this week, but would begin a general attack on Santiago just as soon as he could get his siege guns in position, the impression in Washington is that those guns will not be in position before the Tampa re-inforcements reach Gen. Shafter, which will be about Sunday, or Monday at the outside. Gen. Shafter says his men are in fine condition and that it will not take more than two days to capture Santiago when the assault is made.

The opinion held in some quarters, that the order for Commodore Watson to proceed to the coast of Spain with a picked fleet of our fastest and best cruisers and battleships is a bluff, is not shared by the officials of the Navy Department whose duty it is to see that the ships are properly equipped. They are preparing to carry out the order.

Among the additional paymasters in the volunteer army nominated by Mr. McKinley is John R. Lynch, the negro politician who has controlled the Mississippi delegation to republican national conventions for many years. He is now Maj. Lynch, if you please. If this nomination was not made solely on account of partisan politics, Mr. McKinley should hurry up and tell why it was made. Lynch will not find his job an enviable one if he is assigned to duty with Southern troops.

"Potato" Pingree, of Mich., dropped into Washington and remained a day and night, this week, and Senator Julius Caesar Burrows is much worried because he hasn't been able to find out what the object of the Governor's visit was. Burrows wants everybody to believe that he and his friends are on the best of terms with Pingree, and favorable to his renomination for governor, but Pingree makes no secret of his intention to antagonize the reelection of Burrows to the Senate, if the republicans can retain control of the legislature. It is now said that Pingree has Senatorial aspirations.

Representative Loud, of Cal., made it very plain in a short speech made when the "Omnibus claims" bill was about to be referred to conference by the House that he favored log-rolling legislative methods, if his log was included, and opposed them if his log was left out-a speech of which those of his constituents not personally interested in this particular log are not likely to be proud. He said that the original bill carrying more than 1,000 war claims, aggregating more than $1,100,000 was put through the House under a compact of members to pass the bill containing claims in which they were interested and that no war claims not in the bill should be passed. He had a California claim that was excluded, but it was put in by the Senate, which added more than $8,000,000 to the bill. He said he made his speech to warn the House conferees not to cut out the claims added by the Senate, and he might have truthfully added, "especially the claim that I am interested in."

Surface indications all point to an agreement to vote on the annexation resolution in the Senate sometime next week, without any resort to fillbustering; also that the republicans are to have their way about adjourning Congress as soon as the annexation resolution is disposed of. The suggestion has been made that, instead of adjourning, Congress should take a recess for a few weeks. It seems wise, but that is no reason that it will be acted upon. Administration men say that an extra session can be called if the war comes to a close and the assistance of Congress is needed in the settlement of terms of peace. An extra session can be called, but will it be called? By adjourning, Congress will make Mr. McKinley sole judge of whether Congress shall be allowed to have anything to do with the terms of peace; by taking a recess, Congress will retain the matter in its own hands. Of course, if the war is to last for an indefinite period there is no particular reason why Congress should not adjourn; but those who ought to know say it will be solely the fault of the administration, in not pushing the fighting all along the lines, if the war lasts 60 days longer.

It should have brought a blush of shame to the faces of Senators Sewell and Hale, who had objected to including the names of the seven men who accompanied Lt. Hobson when the Merrimac was sunk in the resolution extending the thanks of Congress, to be called down by a foreign-born Senator-Nelson, of Minn.,-in the following patriotic language: "The idea that the name of a soldier or sailor who does an act of gallantry and heroism should not be mentioned is hostile to the spirit of American institutions and I think no man should advocate such a doctrine. There are as many heroes in the ranks as there are wearing shoulder straps, and it is our duty to hand their names down to posterity." The names of the men were inserted in the resolution by vote of the Senate and it was a great day for the rank and file of both branches of the service when it was done.

HOW A PUZZLL WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

It is not what he has, nor even what he does, which expresses the worth of man; but what he is.—Amiel.

A friend that you buy won't be worth what you pay for him, no matter what that may be.—George D. Prentice.—Minneapolis Times.

Nicaragua Canal.

The war has convinced the people in all parts of the United States of the necessity of the Nicaragua canal. We can therefore hope to see it in operation several years sooner than would have been the case if it had not been for the war. As the war was unavoidable, we may be excused on congratulating ourselves upon such benefits as will result from it.—Oregon Agriculturist.

A woman's club in a western city has the following motto on the walls of the room: "Remember that you are raising your boy to be some woman's husband."

Princess Victoria ought to be a very proud woman. At 30 she can look back upon offers that included the crown of Italy, the throne of Russia and Lord Rosebery, of England.

Miss Helen Gould, although possessed of millions, is about to take her first voyage across the Atlantic ocean. She will visit England this summer, and as far as she can arrange it her stay will be incognito.

The American troops in the revolution numbered 309,781, in the war of 1812, 556,622, in the Mexican war 112,230, in the civil war 2,778,304. The force varied, but it was always large enough to win the victory. And so it will be in this war. If the 250,000 are not enough, there are plenty more where those came from.

Last year's exports of wheat and corn were phenomenal, but the prosaic hog for the first four months of 1898 was sent abroad to the amount of $53,800,000, or more than half the aggregate of breadstuffs exported. The increased foreign demand for American hog products is another commercial sign of the times.

The general officers and a large number of national secretaries of departments and state officers of the Nonpartisan National Woman's Christian Temperance union have issued a circular letter to the presidents and faculties of American colleges urging the importance of guarding their students from the temptations of drink and vice.

The rights of the inventor and the manufacturer are being jealously guarded these days. A judge has just imposed a severe fine on a man who inserted lead nickels in a slot machine and a Philadelphia jurist has sent a man to Moyamensing for refilling Apollinaris bottles with counterfeit water. The ways of the transgressor are hard in this commercial era.

Maj. Gen. M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, who lost his field glasses at the battle of Brandy Station, in 1863, as well as a leg, was greatly surprised and pleased the other day to get the field glasses back again, they having been restored to him by Mrs. Kemper, of Virginia. "The last time I used these," said the general, "I was a confederate officer; now I am a Yankee officer."

The old-time names of flowers are said to be coming into use agnin. It is now more fashionable to say "daffadowndillies" than jonquils, and "Johnny-jump-ups" than pansies. Instead of bouquets we hear of "nosegays" and "posies." A writer on social usages says that we may yet carry sprigs of lavender and bergamot or a handful of caraway to "meetin'" in imitation of our grandmothers.

Three grandsons of the late Admiral Semmes, commander of the famous confederate cruiser Alabama, are now in the United States service. One is a cadet in Sampson's fleet, another is a major in the Fourth Tennessee volunteers and the third is a sergeant in the First Tennessee volunteers. They are the sons of L. E. Wright, who married the admiral's daughter and was himself an artillery officer in the confederate army.

The post office department has determined to relieve congressmen and senators from future harassing and annoyance in the matter of locating new post offices in their territories. Their recommendations will be heard when such applications are made and information from them will be solicited, but the final decision will be made subject to the reports of post office inspectors. The new rule applies to post offices of the first, second and third classes.

Miss Kingsley has a rival explorer in an Australian lady, Miss Hastie, who has chartered the ship Sydney Belle for a cruise among the least known of the South Sea islands. In particular she is to devote her attention to the Solomon group, where the fiercest of contemporary cannibals are to be found. Hitherto white men have not been able to penetrate beyond a few miles from the coast, and they have almost invariably had some of their number killed or captured for the cannibal ovens.

Attention has frequently been drawn to the extraordinary number of animals that figure in the insignia of the various great orders of chivalry in Europe. Thus Russia and Servia have the Order of the White Eagle; Prussia the orders of the Black Eagle, the Red Eagle and the Swan; Denmark, like Siam, the Order of the Elephant; the grandduchy of Saxe-Weimar, the White Falcon; the duchy of Anhalt, the Bear; while the duchies of Hesse and the kingdoms of Holland and Belgium, like the Persian empire, all have the Lion.

There is something refreshing about the candor of Lieut. Blue, who traveled around Santiago to get a view of the imprisoned fleet. He says that he did not meet a Spaniard on the road, and if he had he would have jumped from his mule and made for the woods. He would never do as a correspondent for a yellow journal. Imagine a war reporter for such a journal on the same errand. He would have dispersed Spaniards like chaff before a cyclone, filled the air and his paper with hairbreadth escapes and returned with scars on everything but his imagination.

The Yukon river is open and the argonauts will soon be returning. Their coming will revive interest in the Klondike and in the question whether or not the "gold crop" has been a failure. Opinions differ upon this subject, but even with the most optimistic last year's expectations are at a discount, and there is no reason to expect a recurrence of the gold fever epidemic. Not only has the public something else to think about, but sober second thought on the Klondike question has convinced all that in that country it is not as easy to find gold as it is to find pneumonia.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

In the United States senate on the 30th ult. the last of the appropriation bills that have been pending in conference were disposed of and the Hawaiian annexation question was further discussed. The house adopted the report upon the Indian appropriation bill, insisted upon its disagreements to the senate amendments to the sundry civil bill and sent the general deficiency bill to conference.

The first formal speech in the United States senate in favor of the Hawaiian annexation resolutions was delivered on the 1st by Senator Pettus (dem., Ala.). The senate committee on privileges and elections reported the bill allowing soldiers to vote in the field. In the house a few private bills were passed and some conference reports of minor importance were adopted. Adjourned to the 5th.

In the United States senate on the 4th Senator Allen (Neb.) began his speech in opposition to Hawaiian annexation. At noon Senator Turpie (Ind.) read the Declaration of Independence. During the session a large number of pension bills were passed. The house was not in session.

WAR NEWS.

The army of Gen. Shafter began the attack on the city of Santiago, carried all the outworks of the Spaniards and were within three-quarters of a mile of the city. The fight lasted all day and over 400 Americans were wounded, but not many were killed. Morro castle and the other forts at the entrance of the harbor were bombarded by our fleet.

United States warships bombarded Manzanillo, on the gulf of Guacanaybo, inflicting much damage to the defenses of the place.

The officials in Washington have received assurances that there is no unfriendly action contemplated at Manila on the part of the German empire.

A dispatch from Admiral Dewey to the navy department, dated Cavite, June 27, made no mention of reenforcements and said he had avoided committing this government to any policy and had left Gen. Merritt free.

Advices received in Washington tell of the successful operations of balloons at Santiago.

For one day Gen. Shafter postponed the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba in order that citizens of foreign countries and all women and children might have an opportunity to leave the city.

Advices from Admiral Dewey say that the Ladrone islands had been captured, that a Spanish gunboat had surrendered, that a hundred or more Spanish officers and men were taken and that our first Philippine expedition had landed at Cavite.

The fleet of Admiral Cervera, consisting of the armored cruisers Cristobal Colon, Almirante Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and Vizcaya and two torpedo-boat destroyers, the Furor and the Pluton, were destroyed by Admiral Sampson's warships while attempting to escape from Santiago harbor, and the Spanish admiral and over 1,000 other officers and sailors were made prisoners and many were killed during the engagement. Only one American was killed and our ships were not injured.

A war balloon was sent up for the first time in the history of the United States, making observations of incalculable benefit to Gen. Shafter's forces in the field occupied by the enemy and over the City of Santiago.

Over 4,000 troops left Key West to reenforce Gen. Shafter in his operations in Santiago province.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Government receipts during the month of June aggregated about $33,500,000 and for the present fiscal year about $304,500,000.

The total proposals for the new government loan of $200,000,000 aggregate $790,000,000.

During the last fiscal year the internal revenue receipts amounted to $170,000,000, a gain of $23,500,000 over the preceding year.

Advices from all parts of the country announce a general observance of the Fourth of July. In many southern cities the celebrations were the first held since the close of the civil war.

George B. Cortelyou, of New York, has been appointed assistant secretary of President McKinley, to fill the additional position of that grade recently created by congress.

A COMPLETE ROUT.

Account of the Destruction of Cervera's Fleet.

He Makes a Heroic Dash for Liberty from Santiago Harbor But Fails —Beaches His Vessel and Surrenders.

Ten Miles West of the Entrance of the Harbor of Santiago de Cuba, Sunday, July 3, by the Dispatch Boat Wanda to Port Antonio, Jamaica, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—Admiral Cervera's fleet, consisting of the armored cruisers Cristobal Colon, Almirante Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and Vizcaya and two torpedo boat destroyers, the Furor and the Pluton, which had been held in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba for six weeks past by the combined squadrons of Rear Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, lies at the bottom of the Caribbean sea off the southern coast of Cuba. The Spanish admiral is a prisoner of war on the auxillary gunboat Gloucester (formerly Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's yacht Corsair) and 1,000 to 1,500 other Spanish officers and sailors, all who escaped the frightful carnage caused by the shells from the American warships, are also held prisoners of war by the United States navy.

Only One American Killed.

The American victory is complete, and, according to the best information at this time, the American vessels were practically untouched, and only one man was killed, though the ships were subjected to the heavy fire of the Spaniards all the time the battle lasted.

Cervera's Gallant Dash.

Admiral Cervera made as gallant a dash for liberty and for the preservation of his ship Sunday morning as has ever occurred in the history of naval warfare. In the face of overwhelming odds, with nothing before him but inevitable destruction or surrender if he remained any longer in the trap in which the American fleet held him, he made a bold dash from the harbor at the time the Americans least expected him to do so, and, fighting every inch of his way, even when his ship was ablaze and sinking, he tried to escape the doom which was written on the muzzle of every American gun trained upon his vessels.

Americans Open Fire.

The Americans saw him the moment he left the harbor and commenced their work of destruction immediately. For an hour or two they followed the flying Spaniards to the westward along the shore line, sending shot after shot into their blazing hulls, tearing great holes in their steel sides and covering their decks with the blood of the killed and wounded.

Pluck of the Spaniards.

At no time did the Spaniards show any indication that they intended to do otherwise than fight to the last. They showed no signals to surrender even when their ships commenced to sink, and the great clouds of smoke pouring from their sides showed they were on fire. But they turned their heads toward the shore, less than a mile away, and ran them on the beach and rocks, where their destruction was soon completed.

Destruction of the Fleet.

One after another of the Spanish ships became the victims of the awful rain of shells which the American battleships poured upon them, and two hours after the first of the fleet had started out of Santiago harbor three cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers were lying on the shore ten to fifteen miles west of Morro castle, pounding to pieces, smoke and flame pouring from every part of them and covering the entire coast line with a mist which could be seen for miles.

Heavy explosions of ammunition occurred every few minutes, sending curls of dense white smoke a hundred feet in the air, and causing a shower of broken iron and steel to fall in the water on every side. The bluffs on the coast line echoed with the roar of every explosion, and the Spanish vessels sank deeper and deeper into the sand, or else the rocks ground their hulls to pieces as they rolled or pitched forward or sideways with every wave that washed upon them from the open sea.

Cervera's Surrender.

Admiral Cervera escaped to the shore in a boat sent by the Gloucester to the assistance of the Infanta Maria Teresa, and as soon as he touched the beach he surrendered himself and his command to Lieut. Morton, and asked to be taken on board the Gloucester, which was the only American vessel near him at the time, with several of his officers, including the captain of the flagship. The Spanish admiral, who was wounded in the arm, was taken to the Gloucester, and was received at her gangway by her commander, Lieut. Commander Richard Wainwright, who grasped the hand of the gray-bearded admiral and said to him: "I congratulate you, sir, upon having made as gallant a fight as was ever witnessed on the sea." Lieut. Commander Wainwright then placed his cabin at the disposal of the Spanish officer.

Cristobal Colon Chased.

At that time the Spanish flagship and four other Spanish vessels had been aground and burning for two hours, and the only one of the escaping fleet which could not be seen at this point was the Cristobal Colon. But half a dozen curls of smoke far down on the western horizon showed the fate that was awaiting her. The Cristobal Colon was the fastest of the Spanish ships, and she soon obtained a lead over the others after leaving the harbor, and escaped the effect of the shots which destroyed the other vessels. She steamed away at great speed with the Oregon, New York, Brooklyn and several other ships in pursuit, all of them firing at her constantly and receiving fire themselves from her after guns. About ten miles from the westward of Morro castle, Admiral Cervera turned his vessel to the shore and beached her. She was blazing in a score of places, but her guns kept at work, and the white flag never showed until she was completely disabled.

The Only Man Killed.

Washington, July 5.—George H. Ellis, the only man in the United States navy who was killed in the glorious engagement off Santiago Sunday, was chief yeoman of Commodore Schley's flagship Brooklyn, in which office he succeeded Downing, the Spanish spy captured by secret service officers in Canada and who ended his career by suicide in the Washington barracks while awaiting trial. Ellis is a native American, having been born in Peoria, Ill., October 21, 1871. His naval career was very brief, he having enlisted on May 20, 1897, and his only cruise being that which resulted in his death. His next of kin is his wife, Sadie Ellis, who lives at Bullshead, N. Y.

A Gratifying Situation.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1.—The close of the scale year, which expired Thursday night, finds a gratifying condition of affairs in the iron, steel and tin plate industries. The wage agreements have been reached much earlier than usual by the manufacturers and the amalgamated associations, all of the scales for the coming year having been practically settled. President T. J. Shaffer, of the Amalgamated association, says that not one mill will be closed this year on account of wage disagreements.

The Fourth in England.

London, July 5.—The fraternal sentiment evidenced here during the last few months found vent Monday throughout the United Kingdom in an unprecedented display of the stars and stripes in honor of the Fourth of July and in hearty expressions of good will everywhere. The afternoon newspapers are unanimous in applauding the splendid courage of the Americans before Santiago de Cuba, and in congratulating the United States upon the signal successes of its arms both in the east and west.

A DAY OF DISASTER.

Tornado Causes Death at Hampton Beach, N. H.—Steamer Capsized and Several Lives Lost.

Hampton, N. H., July 5.—A tornado struck a section of Hampton beach at 3:15 o'clock Monday, causing immense damage to beach property and great loss of life. Cottages were blown flat, horses were picked up bodily and dashed against buildings, vehicles carried many feet, barns unroofed, large trees snapped off at their roots, while others were torn up bodily. The tornado touched the beach at a place about half a mile north of Whitler's hotel, and cut a swath 100 yards wide in a westerly direction, moving in rotary shape until it passed out to sea. Twenty cottages were torn down, and several small hotels completely wrecked. The greatest loss of life and injury came with the demolition of the old skating rink, near Levitt's, a single story structure of wood, 500 by 100 feet in size. Here from 75 to 125 persons were seriously injured, an unknown number slightly wounded and seven persons are already dead.

The list of dead on shore reported at eight o'clock was as follows: Mora, the actress, of New York, who was playing in a piece entitled: "The Blowing Up of the Maine;" Miss Mae Prescott, Exeter; Samuel Cammett, Exeter; William E. Karlson, Exeter. Among those believed to be fatally injured in the pavilion are Miss C. D. Pressey, Haverhill, Mass., fractured skull; J. F. Pennington, Exeter; W. H. Barber, Exeter, N. H., internal injuries. Karlson was taken out dead, but Mora, the actress, was alive when found and died shortly after.

A yacht owned by Capt. Frank Mudd, of this place, was sailing off the beach and was in the path of the storm. In it were nine persons, and of these five were drowned. The drowned are: Walter, Gertrude and Ralph Hodgeson, Kennington, N. H.; Mrs. W. H. Parker, Kensington; Capt. Mudd, Hampton.

Beverly, Mass., July 5.—The small excursion steamer Surf City, with about 60 passengers on board, while half way over from Salem Willows to her wharf here, a distance of about two miles, was struck by a terrific squall about six o'clock Monday night and capsized. Of those on board a large majority are believed to have been rescued by boats from both the Salem and Beverly shores, but no less than six bodies had been recovered at dark, and as it is known that many rushed into the cabin before the squall it is thought that twice as many bodies are still confined there. The boat sank in about 15 feet of water, her hurricane deck being loosened in the gale, while all those on board were either thrown into the water or struggled desperately to get from under the decks or out of the cabin of the boat. The steamer was seen to go down by persons on both sides of the bay and boats immediately put out to the wreck, reaching her in a few minutes. Those in the water were quickly hauled aboard, and with the living were drawn into the boat a number of dead, including the bodies of two children. The scene while the work of rescue was going on was a fearful one, as over half of those on board were women, and their screams could be heard for miles.

REFUSES TO SURRENDER.

Gen. Shafter Will Bombard Santiago as Soon as Women and Children Are Removed.

Off Juragua, on Board the Dispatch Boat Dandy, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—Gen. Shafter has demanded an instant and unconditional surrender of Santiago de Cuba. The Spanish commander curtly and emphatically refused. The American general, in sending his demand, warned all foreign residents out of the city before ten o'clock Monday morning, July 4, at which hour the bombardment would, he said, begin. The only notice Gen. Linares took was that no Cubans would be permitted to leave.

Following is the correspondence of Gen. Shafter demanding the surrender of Santiago. It is dated Sunday:

"To the Commanding General of the Spanish Forces, Santiago de Cuba—Sir: I shall be obliged, unless you surrender, to shell Santiago de Cuba. Please inform the citizens of foreign countries and all women and children that they should leave the city before ten o'clock to-morrow morning. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

"W. R. SHAFTER,
"Major General U. S. A."

Following is the Spanish reply which Col. Dorst returned:

"Santiago de Cuba, 2 p. m., July 3.—His Excellency, the General Commanding Forces of United States, San Juan River.—Sir: I have the honor to reply to your communication of to-day, written at 8:30 a. m., and received at one p. m., demanding the surrender of this city; on the contrary case announcing to me that you will bombard this city, and that I advise the foreign women and children that they may leave the city before ten o'clock to-morrow morning. It is my duty to say to you that this city will not surrender, and that I will inform the foreign consuls and inhabitants of the contents of your message. Very respectfully,

"JOSE TORAL,
"Commander-in-Chief, Fourth Corps."

The British, Portuguese, Chinese and Norwegian consuls came to Gen. Shafter's line with Col. Dorst. They asked if non-combatants could occupy the town of Caney and railroad points, and asked until ten o'clock of July 5 before the city be fired on. They claimed that there were between 15,000 and 20,000 people, many of them old, who would leave. They asked if Gen. Shafter could supply them with food. The following is Gen. Shafter's reply:

"The Commanding General, Spanish Forces, Santiago de Cuba—Sir: In consideration of the request of the consuls and officers in your city for delay in carrying out my intention to fire on the city and in the interest of the poor women and children who will suffer very greatly by their hasty and enforced departure from the city, I have the honor to announce that I will delay such action solely in their interest until noon of the 5th, providing during the interval your forces make no demonstration whatever upon those of my own. I am, with great respect, your obedient servant,

"(Signed) W. E. SHAFTER,
"Major General U. S. A."

Will Continue the War.

London, July 5.—A special dispatch from Madrid quotes Premier Sagasta as saying, in an interview, that he thought the Americans would "get the reenforcements they had required which would enable them to take Santiago de Cuba." The premier is said to have added: "Though the American warships may destroy our squadron in the harbor, yet we will pursue the war. There are in Cuba 100,000 men ready to die in its defense, but they will not yield."

HIS FLEET IS ANNIHILATED.

News from Watson Announcing the Complete Destruction of Cervera's Squadron.

SPANISH ADMIRAL TAKEN PRISONER

Over 500 Spaniards Killed or Wounded and 1,600 Reported Captured—American Losses Are One Man Killed and None Wounded—Great Rejoicing in Washington.

Washington, July 5.—At 11:45 Monday night the navy department posted the appended translation of a cipher cablegram received from Commodore Watson. It is similar to that received Monday from Admiral Sampson, but contains the additional information that 350 Spaniards were killed or drowned, 160 wounded and 1,600 captured. Commodore Watson's dispatch follows:

"Playa del Este, July 3.—To the Secretary of the Navy: At 9:30 a .m. Sunday the Spanish squadron, seven in all, including one gunboat, came out of Santiago in column and was totally destroyed within an hour, except the Cristobal Colon, which was chased 45 miles to westward by the commander-in-chief, Brooklyn, Oregon and Texas, surrendering to Brooklyn, but was beached to prevent sinking. None of our officers or men were injured except on board Brooklyn. Chief Yeoman Ellis was killed and one man was wounded. Admiral Cervera, all commanding officers, excepting of Oquendo, about 70 other officers and 1,600 men are prisoners. About 350 killed or drowned and 160 wounded, latter being cared for on Solace and Olivette. Have just arrived off Santiago in Marblehead to take charge while commander-in-chief is looking out for Cristobal Colon.

"(Signed) WATSON."

News Received in Washington.

Washington, July 5.—The complete annihilation of the Spanish squadron at Santiago and the capture of the Spanish admiral, Cervera, with 1,300 prisoners; the demand of Gen. Shafter for the surrender of Santiago by 12 o'clock to-day on pain of bombardment; word from Admiral Dewey that the Ladrone islands have been captured; that a Spanish gunboat had surrendered; that a hundred or more Spanish officers and men were taken, and that our first Philippine expedition had landed—this is a part of the thrilling record of such a Fourth of July as has not been known since the bells of Independence hall rang out the tidings of American freedom. It was a day when one momentous event followed another in constant and rapid succession, each hour bringing forth some new feature more startling than what had gone before The climax came at one o'clock, when, amid the wildest cheering, which fairly shook the great war, state and navy building to its foundation, Admiral Sampson's dispatch announcing his glorious victory and the entire destruction of the Spanish fleet was given to the public.

The following message was sent to Admiral Sampson by the president:

"To Admiral Sampson, Playa del Este: You have the gratitude and congratulation of the whole American people. Convey to your noble officers and crew through whose valor new honors have been added to the Americans the grateful thanks and appreciation of the nation.

"(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

The story of the day is best told in official dispatches, each bearing date of July 4, from Sampson, from Shafter and from Dewey. Stirring as they all are, that of Sampson was accorded the honor of chief importance, not only for the immediate results secured, but also from the effects of this crushing defeat in weakening the defenses of the city of Santiago, and in dealing Spain such a staggering blow that she is left practically without a navy.

The admiral's dispatch is as follows:

"Playa, via Hayti, July 4.—To Secretary of Navy: The fleet under my command offers the nation as a Fourth of July present the destruction of the whole of Cervera's fleet. No one escaped. It attempted to escape at 9:30 a. m., and at two p. m. the last, the Cristobal Colon, had run ashore 60 miles west of Santiago and had let down her colors. The Infanta Maria Teresa, Oquendo and Vizcaya were forced ashore, burned and blown up within 20 miles of Santiago; the Furor and Pluton were destroyed within four miles of the port. Loss, one killed and two wounded. Enemy's loss, probably several hundred from gun fire, explosions and drowning. About 1,300 prisoners, including Admiral Cervera. The man killed was George H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the Brooklyn.

"(Signed) SAMPSON."

Watson Will Go to Spain.

Washington, July 5.—The changed naval situation will bring no abatement in the activity of the authorities here in carrying the war directly home to Spain. There is a renewed determination to get Commodore Watson's eastern squadron away at the earliest moment for the double purpose of striking a blow at the coast towns of Spain and of pursuing Admiral Camara's fleet, which has halted at the entrance of the Suez canal. Secretary Long made the official statement that the fleet would sail at the earliest possible moment, and although he did not go into details as to its purpose it is well understood that it will devote its attention to the Spanish coast and to Camara. The destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago relieves Admiral Sampson from surveillance of this squadron, and he can readily spare the ships intended for the attack on the Spanish coast.

Fatal Storms.

London, July 1.—The Vienna correspondent of the Standard says: "During the last few days there have been terrific thunder and hailstorms with cloud-bursts in Hungary, especially in the north and northwest districts. Property and crops to the value of 40,000,000 francs have been damaged or destroyed. Many persons and innumerable animals have been killed. There have been similar storms in Austria, where also there have been fatalities and the crop losses serious.

Watery Graves.

Cleveland, O., July 4.—Five persons were drowned in the lake here Sunday. H. H. Fralick and Miss Jeannette Kaiser lost their lives while bathing, in the presence of several hundred persons. They were floating on a log, when Miss Kaiser lost her hold and sank. Fralick tried to save her and both went down. Two unknown men rocked a boat, which capsized, and both were drowned. One man was a cripple. Frank Shubeck, a news agent, lost his life while bathing.

A GALLANT FIGHT.

Gen. Shafter's Brilliant Victory Near Santiago—Killed and Wounded Will Number 1,000.

Gen. Shafter's Headquarters, by Dispatch Boat Dauntless, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 5.—As the wounded in Friday's battle continue to come in, it is found that the early reports of the killed and wounded were largely underestimated. It is believed that the number will reach at least 900, and possibly 1,000. The entrenchments lay west of the hills. Without cover the Americans, in their advance up the slope, were for fully 300 yards exposed to the volley firing of men protected to the shoulders in rifle pits. But they carried the trenches by successive rushes, pausing and huddling behind every bush or rut for temporary shelter from the rain of bullets, like storm-driven sheep. The wounded were dragged out of the death hail. After each pause, the man, undaunted, pushed on, firing as they ran. When they reached the trenches, the latter were full to the brim with the enemy's dead. The Spaniards had fled over the summit of the hills, but standing upon the bodies of their fallen comrades, there they remained fighting valiantly to the end.

They refused to give way, but continued the work with their Mausers, enfilading the American line as it came over the trenches. One volley which a company of the Sixth cavalry fired under the direction of Lieut. Short tumbled them forward on their faces. This was the charge in which the Sixth, Third, Ninth and Tenth cavalry and the rough riders all dismounted and in which the Twenty-sixth, Sixteenth and Twenty-second infantry and the Seventy-first New York were engaged, led in person by Gen. Hawkins. He was almost the first man on the summit, standing there sword in hand, a target for bullets, cheering on his men. Lieut. Lyons, of the Twenty-fourth infantry, distinguished himself by deeds of personal gallantry, and there were many others.

After the trenches and redoubts were taken came a bold attempt by the Spaniards to recover them This occasioned the fiercest fighting and the great loss of the day. When the Spaniards broke behind the hill and passed between the reserves, who came forward with a rush upon our breathless men, striking and breaking the line in several places, their impetuosity for several minutes well-nigh made our boys waver. Then, rallying gallantly, they staggered forward, carrying confusion into the enemy. As the Spaniards fled toward the city they were shot down like rats. In all 19 Red Cross hospital flags floated from the buildings of Santiago during the day. From at least two the firing was continuous.

HELP FOR DEWEY.

Troops Reach the Philippines, Stopping En Route to Take Possession of Ladrone Islands.

Washington, July 5.—Admiral Dewey's telegram to the navy department is given out as follows:

"Hong-Kong, July 5, Cavite, July 1.—Three transports and the Charleston arrived yesterday. The Charleston captured Guam, Ladrone Islands, on June 21. No resistance. Brought Spanish officers from the garrison, six officers and 54 men to Manila. On May 29 the Spanish war vessel Leyte came out of a river and surrendered to me, having exhausted ammunition and food in repelling attacks by insurgents. She had on board 52 officers and 94 men, naval and military.

"(Signed) DEWEY."

The dispatch also says that the situation at Manila is satisfactory, that the troops are debarking, and that the health of the men is excellent.

Manila, July 1, via Hong-Kong. July 5.—The United States troops on the transports City of Sydney, City of Pekin and Australia, convoyed by the United States cruiser Charleston, arrived off Cavite at five o'clock yesterday evening after an eventful voyage. On her way here the Charleston called at Guahan, the largest of the Ladrone islands, the group in the Pacific which belonged to Spain, took possession of the whole group, made prisoners of Gov. Gen. Marina, his staff and the entire military force, and raised the stars and stripes over the ruins of Santa Cruz fort in the harbor of San Luis de la Paz. The troops are in good condition, and our only loss was Private Hutchinson, of the First Oregon, who died on the City of Sydney on June 20, and was buried at sea on June 21.

London, July 5. — The Hong-Kong correspondent of the Times says: The American cruiser Charleston, with the transports, appeared off Guahan, the chief of the Ladrone islands, on June 20. The Charleston fired a few shells at the Santa Cruz forts, which did not reply. The Spanish were not aware that a state of war existed. The governor and the garrison surrendered, and the American sovereignty in the Ladrone islands was declared on June 22.

Hong-Kong, July 5. — The United States dispatch boat Zafiro, which arrived here early Monday morning from Cavite, with the report that the American troops arrived on June 30, reports also that Admiral Dewey, when the Zafiro left on July 1, was planning to attack Manila with the fleet and troops on July 4.

Shanghai, July 5. — It is reported here on good authority that Germany has arranged a concession for a port in the Philippine islands, antedating the present situation there.

Independence Day.

Chicago, July 5.—Dispatches from all parts of the country announce a general observance of the Fourth of July. In many southern cities, notably Atlanta, Ga., Mobile, Ala., and Vicksburg, Miss., the celebrations were the first that have been held on Independence day since the close of the war of the rebellion. The annual dinner of the American society in London became a jubilation over the victory at Santiago.

Three Men Drowned.

Hamilton, Ont., July 5.—Three young men, Charles Searley, Roy Sinnet and Charles Williams were drowned in the bay here Sunday night during a storm. They were sailing a clinker-built yacht when it began to fill, and endeavoring to bail out the tiller was left unguarded for a moment and the yacht capsized.

CHIDED HER MOTHER'S SPIRIT.

Practical Young Woman Didn't Want to Be Aroused at Night.

Kansas City has at least one young married woman who takes a very prosaic view of ghosts and so-called spirit manifestations. She was forced to spend a night alone in a St. Louis hotel, her husband being detained elsewhere by business. In the dead of the night she was awakened out of a sound sleep by a tremendous noise in the wardrobe. It was such a sudden and unearthly uproar that the woman, sensible and practical though she was, was frightened. The noise ceased, then returned. The woman jumped up, lighted the gas, and made a thorough search both of the wardrobe and the room. There was nothing so far as the evidence of the senses went which could account for the racket. The woman put out the light and went back to bed. The noise was not repeated.

Six months afterward, however, the woman was in San Francisco, and for the first time in her life, and solely out of curiosity, she attended a Spiritualistic meeting. Almost immediately the medium, a perfect stranger, turned to her and said: "The spirit of your mother is present, madam, and she says that six months ago (naming the precise date) she tried to communicate with you by means of the wardrobe in the Blank hotel, St. Louis."

The woman's practical good sense did not desert her.

"Well, you just tell my mother," she said, "that the next time she wants to communicate with me not to make such an awful racket in the dead of night and frighten me half out of my senses."—Chicago Chronicle.

A GRAVEYARD COLLOQUY.

Between Two Black Men on a Dark Night.

At rare intervals the moon peeped through the billows of a sea of fleecy clouds and cast sickly beams across the path of a form which was walking slowly and steadily in a country graveyard. The figure stole furtive glances about him as he crept to the grave of a man who had died on the gallows on Friday. Just as the clock was tolling the midnight hour the form fell prostrate on the grave, uttering not a sound. Almost in an instant the figure arose. Taking a knife from his pocket, he made a single, rapid cut, and turned to leave the place. A moonbeam revealed a look of ghoulish glee on his countenance.

"Halt!"

The figure stopped.

"Who goes there?"

"Jist a poah niggah."

The figures met and the lantern's flash discloses the identity of the men.

"Sam Johnsing!"

"Hiram Jackson!"

"Whatcher doin' heah, Hiram Jackson? Lookin 'fo' ghostes?"

"Naw. What yo' doin' heah yo'se'f?"

"Come after dis rabbit's lef' hin' foot. Kotched him at 12 o'clock on a dahk night, on de grave ob a man hung on Friday. G'way, niggah! Wouldn't take a thousand dollahs fo' it. Yo' niggahs won't be in it wid me at cake-walks an' shootin' craps."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SINGULAR STATEMENT.

From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. RANK, No. 2,354 East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse. I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone.

"Indeed, I thought I would lose my mind. No one knows what I endured.

"I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine.'"

Mrs. Pinkham invites all suffering women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

Busy at her work all day,
Never asks a cent of pay,
Thinks it ought to be that way;
Thank the Lord for Susan!

Singin', when she wants to sing,
Like the robins in the spring;
Scoldin' some, like everything;
Thank the Lord for Susan!

Always ready, day or night;
Always willin'—she's a sight,
When it comes to doin' right;
Thank the Lord for Susan!

Me and seven children's what
She looks after, well or not,
And she's "Mother" to the lot;
Thank the Lord for Susan!

Goes to church on Sundays, too,
'Long with all she's got to do;
It's her that's goin' to pull me through;
Thank the Lord for Susan!

In her hair is streaks of gray,
And the crows' feet's come to stay;

An East Indian Hurricane

By GEORGE H. COOMER.

WE WERE making a passage from Samarang, in the island of Java, to Singapore, which, as most readers are aware, lies close off the southern extremity of Malacca, and is one of the greatest commercial emporiums of the world.

Our ship, the Lion, a vessel of about 700 tons, was loaded with coffee and pepper, large quantities of the articles being carried from Java to Singapore, and thence reshipped to other ports upon demand.

We had as passengers an American physician and his wife, who brought with them a large number of beautiful Javanese birds, which they hung in cages about the deck cabin. In a large cage, placed in the open air, they had a wild peacock, with its mate, these superb fowls being very common in the deep forests of Java, where they must often, one would think, meet with unpleasant neighbors.

On leaving Samarang we were able to head directly for our place of destination, with the northeast monsoon squarely on our broadside, blowing a gentle breeze of five or six knots an hour, which, in about five days, brought us within sight of the tall treetops of Singapore that looked, as seen through our glasses at a distance of some 20 miles, as if they sprang directly out of the water.

Here, however, there fell a dead calm, the monsoon being entirely gone. The sky had an appearance which we did not like; for, although not a cloud was visible, the whole heaven assumed a strange, brassy look that was reflected on board the ship.

The captain and mate conferred anxiously together; the hands forward squinted at the sky and shook their heads, and the two passengers, Dr. Alton and his wife, were evidently not a little startled. The very peacock failed to cry out that day, as was his custom, and the birds in the cabin were more than usually quiet.

On the other hand, a cat which we had on board became strangely restless, darting hither and thither, and staring about her in such a wild manner as led the second mate to remark that it must be high water, if there was anything to be told by a cat's eyes.

Hurriedly the lighter spars were sent down to the deck, and while this work was in progress there came sweeping toward us three prodigious rollers in close proximity to each other, the central wave being, as we judged, 20 feet high, while those which accompanied it, and were merely its consequent adjuncts, were considerably lower.

There was something almost supernatural in the appearance of those three broad undulations, as they coarsed heavily along upon an otherwise smooth sea. The ship, lying totally becalmed, received them "broadside to," and it was our fear that they would sweep the decks; but, with three tremendous rolls, which threw the very peacock off his legs, she surmounted them in safety: The moment they had gone by the surface of the China sea resumed its ordinary appearance.

At the end of an hour, however, we received a second visitation, precisely like the first, except that the swells were somewhat heavier. They struck the ship upon the bows, and, as her position for the moment was the most favorable one possible, she received no injury, although pitching "bowsprit under."

Again succeeded the ordinary aspect of a calm at sea, where the gentle undulations, although nearly imperceptible, are never entirely absent.

Another hour, and we saw a third advancing column, which, like the first and second, consisted of a trio of waves, but with an increased weight and terror. The ship was now "stern on," and we awaited the result with great anxiety.

There was a terrible grandeur in the appearance of the rolling deluge. The middle wave could not have been less than 30 feet high, while those in front and rear may have lacked some eight or ten feet of this altitude. The combined line illustrated the military idea of a column of attack, formed three deep.

The silence with which this mighty avalanche glided onward was, in itself, fearful. Upon the top there might be an occasional break and growl, but below was an utter noiselessness, and the whole bespoke a weight and power to mock any effort of the imagination.

The foremost of these combined seas swept under the ship's counters, throwing her stern in air till the deck lay at a most unusual angle. Then the bow correspondingly rose, while the stern sank, and now the middle wave hung like a moving mountain close to the taffrail. The good old Lion—an excellent sea boat—once more lifted her after part as the base of the tremendous swell rolled under her rudder port, and for a moment we thought that even this huge sea would go harmlessly by.

But it was too steep, and too near its fellow wave for the ship to ride it safely. She had glided swiftly down from the smaller, and the larger caught her at a disadvantage.

As the stern began to rise, the top of the swell broke over the taffrail. It came with inconceivable force upon the poop deck, which was seven feet high, and under which was the cabin. The boat which hung at the stern was stove, the binnacle broken, the compass smashed, and the mizzen mast carried by the board.

Roaring forward, from the taffrail to the bowsprit, went the prodigious inundation, filling the decks to the top of the rail, staving a great hole in the house forward, where it deluged all the berths of the sailors, and tearing away many of the bulwark boards.

Our captain, together with the doctor and his wife, had darted into the cabin under the poop, while the rest of us ran up the fore and main rigging, there being at the time no one at the helm on account of the calm.

The poor peacock and his mate went out in their cage over the forward bulwarks, and the cat with them, and all this while there was not a breath of air.

But what a sight the cabin presented! The water had entered it to a depth of three or four feet, and gone swashing from side to side till it swept down all the bird cages, besides half drowning the captain and the two passengers. However, as the floor was on a level with the main deck, the flood soon abated.

We cleared the wreck with all possible haste, and had just completed the work when the great East Indian hurricane, of which the waves we had seen had been the advance guard, struck us with terrible fury. It had somewhere been circling around for many hours, although making no very rapid headway in a direct line, hence the mighty swells that swept far out into the calm.

For the rest of that day and all the following night the roar of the wind was awful. Our two remaining masts were whirled out of the ship, as if they had been only dry twigs, while the forward house was carried overboard with all our sea chests and mattresses. A man could not stand for a moment without grasping some object to support him.

Soon after daylight the hurricane on a sudden died away, and an hour later the ship, which had been driven to all points of the compass by the circling wind, struck on the island of Singapore, and a spot about five miles from the city.

An enormously high tide carried her sheer over the seashore rocks, and into the edge of a swampy forest which lined the low bank, yet she was drawing at the time 18 feet of water.

Here the old Lion stuck fast, a perfect wreck, and when the tide went down, she was high and dry, with "windrows" of great trees lying about her, looking as if some terrific scythe had cut them down.

In the afternoon we made our way on foot along the island shore toward the city.

When half the distance had been accomplished, it became necessary to pass over a piece of broken and difficult ground, where we came upon the dead body of a tiger, which had been crushed by the fall of a tree.

Pausing to examine the grim but still handsome creature, we began to hear, close to us, a low, deep sound, resembling the just perceptible roll of very distant thunder. Everyone started, and the doctor's wife turned pale with affright.

"Hist!" exclaimed the captain, pointing to a spot not more than 20 yards off, where there was a low, flat rock, partially hidden by a treetop which had fallen across it. We fixed our gaze upon the place, and a sharp thrill passed through us. There, crouched upon the rock, growling in a suppressed manner, and with its flaming eyes intently watching us, was another tiger, and in the full possession of life and strength.

"There is but one way," said the captain. "We must step back as gently as we can. It is just possible that he may not spring upon us."

He was large and fierce enough to have been able to kill 20 human beings in as many minutes, but perhaps the terror inspired by the hurricane had not yet left him.

We drew slowly away from the danger, the tiger all the while watching us with those terrible eyes, but remaining as motionless as the rock on which he lay. I remember distinctly the black stripes that marked the orange ground of his face and shoulders as he crouched there looking at us.

Our retreat, however, was effected in safety, and never were people more grateful for a happy deliverance from a most appalling danger than were we.

Reaching the city of Singapore, we found that the damage to its buildings and shipping had been immense. My tarry at the spot was not long. I was placed with the other foremast hands on board a steamer, and we went up to Calcutta.

The captain remained for awhile longer at Singapore, but the docter and his wife accompanied us to the great capital of Hindostan, where they fixed their residence.—Golden Days.

A PAIR OF OLD LOVERS.

The Strong Tie of Affection That Existed Between Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone.

There are some of us who have long believed that lovers are never so beautiful as when they have grown old—when youth and romance, and the ardor which comes with a first awakening, are no longer theirs; when, in place of expectancy, peace has come; when unrest has matured into confidence, sentimentality become sentiment and poetry a fact. Now and then we see lovers of this kind—lovers who have become comrades, friends; who live for each other because they live for a common end; and who count the cost of no service to each other, because all service counts the same with love. Beautiful stories have been told of such lovers; beautiful pictures have been drawn.

It is as old lovers that many of us like to think of Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, who for 50 years or more loved and labored, suffered, conquered and grew feeble together. If unrest and ambition for herself ever came to the wife, the world has never known it. Hers was absolutely the consecrated life, and hers has been the privilege of ministering to him to the last. Sometimes when one hears an impatient woman murmur at the absorption of a busy man, at the constant putting aside of herself in order that life may be arranged for him and for his work, one wonders why so few can realize what the privilege of such service can mean. Mrs. Gladstone, we are sure, would hardly have resigned hers for any individual honors that the world could have offered in their stead. —Harper's Bazar.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Fifteenth Regiment.

The adjutant general has issued General Orders No. 14, calling for the Fifteenth regiment as follows:

"The president of the United States has made another call for troops upon the governor of this state, to consist of one regiment of infantry.

"Confident that patriotism will in the future, as heretofore, distinguish our citizens, and that whenever the necessity for additional troops shall exist, all Minnesotans will cheerfully and promptly rally and respond to the call, the governor directs the immediate organization of one regiment of infantry to be mustered into the service of the United States, for two years, or during the war, to be designated as the 'Fifteenth Regiment Infantry, Minnesota Volunteers.'

"Said regiment shall consist of 12 companies, with the following field and staff officers: One colonel, one lieutenant colonel, two majors, one adjutant, one quartermaster, one surgeon, two assistant surgeons, one chaplain, one sergeant-major, one quartermaster sergeant, one chief musician, two principal musicians, three hospital stewards.

"Each company shall consist of: One captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, four sergeants, 12 corporals, two musicians, one artificer, one wagoner, 84 privates.

"The regiment raised under this order will be mobilized in St. Paul. The necessary transportation for officers and men will be furnished by the adjutant general.

"No pay will be allowed to officers and men until they are mustered into the service of the United States.

"By order of Gov. D. M. Clough.
—"Herman Muehlberg.
"Adjt.-General."

Red Cross Badges.

The badges to contain cards of identification will be sent direct to the captains of the various regiments and they will obtain the full name and address of each of the boys and inclose them in the leather badges. Each boy will wear his respective badge at all times around his neck, to enable him to be identified. It is therefore unnecessary for parents or friends to send names of the boys to the headquarters of the Red Cross Society of Minnesota for this purpose, as the officers of each regiment will obtain them direct from the boys in the field.

Narrow Escape.

Mrs. A. J. Myers, Mrs. Clifford, Miss Anna Selover and little Miss Sewers were driving to Frontenac to camp. When crossing a bridge the horse became frightened, backed against the railing of the bridge, which gave way, precipitating the carriage into a gully about twelve feet deep, landing on top of some heavy sewer piping. The little girl and Mrs. Myers got out on the bridge, and the whiffletree gave way, which let the carriage down and allowed the horse to remain on the bridge. No one was seriously hurt.

Paid a Premium.

Rudolph Klebolte & Co., of Cincinnati, were the successful bidders for the $200,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness offered by the board of capitol commissioners. The board considered 14 bids, but accepted that of the Cincinnati concern. The certificates bear 4 per cent interest and are in three series: $50,000 maturing July 1, 1900; $100,000 July 1, 1901, and $50,000 due July 1, 1902. The premium offered amounted to $3,621 for the entire series.

Lost His Balance.

Freddie Berg, of Minneapolis, 4 years old, had a narrow escape from death. The lad was leaning over a porch railing in the rear of the third story, when he lost his balance and fell to the ground. The fall, however, was broken by a clothesline. The boy struck the ground on his back, and for a time it was believed that he was badly injured. He was removed to the city hospital, where the physicians were unable to find any fractures.

Paid Cash.

It is claimed that the purchase of the Duluth, Superior & Western, formerly the Duluth & Winnipeg, by the Minnesota Eastern, was a cash transaction, the consideration being $3,378,400. D. M. Philbin, who was first vice president of the company, has been made second vice president of the Minnesota Eastern. The purchased road will become a link in the new Fosston line.

The oldest boy of Mrs. Viola Nichols, who committed suicide at Vernon Center and who administered paris green to her two boys, has died, and the younger boy cannot live. After the crazed mother had given the children poison, which did not take immediate effect, she took them to the river near by, intending to drown them, but the children climbed out of the water and ran back into the house, while the mother ended her life.

An unknown man, without stopping to deliberate, leaped into the river from the steel arch bridge at Minneapolis and sank to a watery grave.

A GUARDSMAN'S TROUBLE.

From the Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

The promptness with which the National Guard of the different states responded to President McKinley's call for troops at the beginning of the war with Spain made the whole country proud of its citizen soldiers. In Detroit there are few guardsmen more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. He has been a resident of Detroit for the past six years, and his home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was connected with the well known wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, in the capacity of bookkeeper.

The First Sergeant.

"I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mr. Davies, "but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work.

"I tried the hot-water treatment thoroughly, but it did not affect my case. I have tried many advertised remedies, but they would help only for a time. A friend of mine recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but I did not think much of them.

"I finally was induced to try the pills and commenced using them. After taking a few doses I found much relief. I do not remember how many boxes of the pills I used, but I used them until the old trouble stopped. I know they will cure dyspepsia of the worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

AN AVERAGE VERDICT.

It Was Struck Through a Difference of Opinion Among the Jury on Damages.

While the lawyers were waiting for court to open, and before they flew at each other's throats, they exchanged a few stories of the profession.

"The strangest trial in which I was ever engaged was one of my first," said a grizzled-headed attorney. "I was counsel for the plaintiff in a suit brought to recover damages caused by a runaway horse. My client had been knocked down and slightly bruised, not very much, just enough to base a lawsuit on. I had a very strong case: in fact, there was practically no defense, and the defendant was a rich man, so I asked for $2,000, hoping to get half. Well, when the jury came in they rendered a verdict for the plaintiff with damages assessed at $8,687. Of course the judge promptly set the verdict aside as excessive, and I had to begin all over again.

"Some days later I met the foreman of the jury and asked him how in the world they arrived at such a verdict.

"'Well, I don't quite understand it myself,' he said, scratching his head. 'We all agreed for the plaintiff on the first vote, but each fellow had his own ideas as to the damage. I was in favor of $1,000, another fellow thought it ought to be $2,000, and another stuck out for $700, and we were getting all tangled up, when one of the jury suggested that we strike an average.'

"'But you couldn't have done that,'" said I.

"'That's just what we did,' said the foreman. 'Each man put down what he thought right and I added them together. I know there does seem to be something wrong about that verdict, but hanged if I can see where it is!'"—Chicago Times-Herald.

WHY THE COOK FELT HURT.

Her Employer Was Not Laid Up from Overeating and She Felt Slighted.

A lady had a cook who gave her every satisfaction and she was under the impression that the cook was equally satisfied with her place. But one morning, to the lady's intense surprise, the cook gave her the usual month's notice.

"What do you want to leave for, Jane?" asked her mistress. "I am very much pleased with you, and I thought you were quite comfortable here."

"Yes, mum, I'm comfortable enough in a way, but—"

The cook hesitated and fidgeted about.

"But what?" queried her mistress.

"Well, mum," she blurted out, "the fact is the master doesn't seem to 'preciate my cookery, and I can't stop in a place where my efforts to please are wasted; so I'd rather go, mum."

"But what makes you think that your master doesn't appreciate your cookery? Has he ever complained to you?" asked the lady.

"No, mum, but my late master was always being laid up through overeating—he said he couldn't help doing so because my cookery was so delicious—but master here hasn't been laid up once all the three months I've been with you, and that's just what bothers me so, mum!"—Boston Traveler.

HOUSEHOLD PATRIOTISM.

Ma Made a Good Bluff at Bravery Until Pa Called Her and Came Out Ahead.

"Ma an' I went to see the soldiers go marching off," said Johnnie.

"I tell you t'was great fun to see 'em. Pa asked ma how she liked it an' ma said it made her feel real patriotic. She said she wished she was a man an' there wouldn't nobuddy ketch her staying to home such a time as this; she said she would be off fightin' for her country every time.

"Pa said she needn't stay to home on account of bein' a woman 'cause she could go as a nurse just as lots of others were goin'. An' ma said that wasn't what she wanted. She'd like ter get right inter the thick of the battle, where the bullets were whizzin' round an' cannon goin' off an' soldiers fallin' all round. An' pa laughed an' laughed.

"He said he'd just like to see ma in a place like that. An' he said out in the corner of the back room where his empty gun was standin', the dust was three inches thick 'cause ma was so 'fraid o' that gun she didn't dare to git near enuf to it to sweep the floor up. An' pa said ma would average 17 fits a minute if she got in sight of a real battle, to say nothin' of what would happen if she was right in it. An' then pa laughed an' laughed, an' ma was mad an' said there was times when pa acted like a regular idiot."—Lawrence American.

A LEAF FROM CAMP LIFE.

The Varied Commissions of Lieut. Mahoney When He Went to Town.

When Lieut. Mahoney came to Sioux City to recruit men he was intrusted with a number of errands for the members of companies H and L. He jotted them all down on a piece of paper, and referred to them when he came to Sioux City. This piece of paper will give an idea of what the men wanted in Sioux City and some of the things Lieut. Mahoney had to do. It reads as follows:

"Get three .38-caliber Colt's, for officers."
"Get a ruler and some black lead pencils."
"Kiss Harry Hamilton's girl."
"Have that order of roses countermanded for cigars."
"Take Claypoole's new vest, and get his old one out of the closet."
"Get 'Ed' Brown's manual for army cooking, his sword knot, and his French dictionary."
"Get Harry Chapman's blanket strap and tray for chess."
"Get any old thing."—Sioux City Journal.

DOWN ON THE FADS.

Mr. Stately Believed in Bringing Young People Down to a Business Basis.

"Mrs. Stately," began her husband, the other evening, "you're a good deal of what they term a faddist. It has been my rule to humor all your eccentricities, but from this time on, unless I find good and sufficient reason to change my mind, the education of our children is to be of the most practical nature possible."

"Just as you say."

"I understand that Loretta studied botany for three years, yet last season she went out to gather some greens and brought in the worst collection of weeds I ever saw outside of a bankrupt farm. They would have poisoned a mule. Yesterday this botanist sat in the parlor, bolstered with cushions, reading trash three inches thick and in fine print at that, while you were in the back yard setting out sweet peas. Isabel went through the cooking department from potato paring to fine pastries, and yet you can't keep her in the kitchen long enough to prepare a soft-boiled egg. Tom went in for higher mathematics, and yet he can't figure the simple interest on a promissory note for more or less than a single year. He can blow around about the constellations and about the direct communication with Mars, but I'll bet a farm he couldn't keep his own personal accounts on a single entry system. He's never going to locate in Mars, and there's not a dollar in the constellations for him. We'll just bring these young people down to a business basis, and when they know enough to help themselves, as they'll have to when you and I wear out, they can do their fad chasing. And that's the word with the bark on, mother."—Detroit Free Press.

UNFORTUNATE COLORS.

Jaundiced Man with Red Necktie Is Taken for a Spaniard and Has a Narrow Escape.

The man with the yellow jaundice leaned up against the drug store at the corner of Harrison and Halsted street and wiped the perspiration from his forehead. He was badly out of breath and he consequently talked rather spasmodically to his friend.

"I tell you, I've had a mighty narrow escape," he gasped.

"Why, how's that?" asked his companion.

"They purty near mobbed me just now down here on Blue Island avenoo."

"Mobbed you? Why, what in the deuce are you talkin' about?"

"That's right. That's what they purty near did. They just liked to got my pelt, I tell you—an' I hadn't done a thing, either."

"What did they have agin you?"

"You see that red necktie I got on? Well, that was the cause of the whole trouble. I was goin' along down Blue Island when I came to a gang out in front of a saloon talkin' war. I stopped to hear what the latest was. I wasn't doin' a thing when some cove sings out: "Look at this Spaniard right here in the crowd." Everybody turns on me an' a brick just grazes my ear. I says: 'I ain't no Spaniard; what you talkin' about?'

"'You bet he is; he's got the Spanish flag on 'im right now,' yells another. But I didn't catch on yet. 'That's right,' shouts another man, 'the yaller's on his face and the red's in his necktie—lynch him.' The whole crowd made for me and I cut for this corner. I give 'em the dodge two or three times and got away. But say, I've got to wear a different colored necktie till I git over these yaller janders."—Chicago Chronicle.

CLEAN PEOPLE.

Cleanliness Goes with Health—If We Have Catarrh Anywhere We Can Not Be Wholly Clean.

Make systematic efforts to be free from this disgusting disease. Mrs. L. A. Johnston, 103 Pilham and Ripley Streets, Montgomery, Ala., tells her experience with catarrh of the stomach and how she was cured:

"I will state to you that I have taken eight bottles of your Pe-ru-na and two of Man-a-lin and rejoice to say, 'God bless Dr. Hartman and Pe-ru-na.' And I earnestly assure you that it has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken in my life. I prescribe it to everyone I meet who is suffering, as the best medicine in the world, and have made many converts who are now rejoicing in the great good which they have derived from the same. I can tell you that I am almost entirely relieved of indigestion, that great foe which has tortured me so many years, and can now eat anything I desire without it is fruits or something acid."

To understand the scientific action of Pe-ru-na it is best to have Dr. Hartman's special book for women or his book on chronic catarrh. These books are mailed free by the Pe-ru-na Medicine Company, Columbus, O. All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED BUT QUALITY

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

Proposed Alliance with England.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. In a like manner, when men and women keep up their bodily strength with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, there is little chance of attacks from disease. The old time remedy enriches the blood, builds up the muscles, steadies the nerves and increases the appetite. Try it.

Is Health Worth Ten Cents?

Man suffers many mysterious ailments from unknown causes, and nine-tenths of them have their origin in the digestive canal somewhere. It does any person good to clean out this canal occasionally in a rational way, provided it is not done in a violent manner. The proper cleansing and disinfecting preparation is Cascarets Candy Cathartic, which are very gentle, but at the same time thoroughly effective. A 10c box will purify the whole system and in most cases remove the cause of ill health. When "feeling bad" take Cascarets. They will do you good, and can do you no harm.

Hay-Fever.

Change of climate as a means of relief from this distressing malady is, at best, uncertain, annoying, and expensive. It never cures, and the relief is but temporary. Year by year the benefit is less, and new places have to be tried. Business interests suffer because of enforced absence; your family may have to suffer because deprived of necessaries in order to pay your bills; you suffer yourself if you return "ahead of time."

Not so with our patients. They can stay at home in comfort, carry on their usual occupation, and perform their duties; have relief from the terrible itching, burning, sneezing, coughing, wheezing, and distress for breath; can sleep sound, and awake refreshened; and best of all, can be cured to stay cured. Write to Dr. Hayes, Buffalo, N. Y., for free examination blank and 112-page book on Asthma and Hay-Fever. Get his opinion as to your own case. It will cost you nothing.

Hair Hints

Is your hair dry, harsh, and brittle? Is it fading or turning gray? Is it falling out? Does dandruff trouble you? For any or all of these conditions there is an infallible remedy in Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

"For years, I was troubled with dandruff, large flakes scaling and falling off, causing great annoyance. Sometimes the itching of the scalp was almost unendurable. Prescriptions from eminent physicians, put up in my own drugstore were tried, but failed to afford relief. At length I used Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in one week I found it helped me. At the end of only two weeks, my head was entirely free from dandruff, and as clean as a child's. I heartily recommend Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor to all who are suffering from diseases of the scalp."—EDWIN NORDSTROM, Drugs, etc., Sacred Heart, Minn.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Raspberries are now being marketed.

—Tomorrow Saturday, July 9, Delano Fair Day.

—Sam Murphy has moved into the Litfkin house on Bridge Street.

—Quite a few drove to Watertown to enjoy the 4th. They report a big time.

—O. Peterson, advertises a fine line of shoes and hosiery for sale. Call on him.

—New potatoes are seen in the market. The Eagle should take note of this.

—The crew of telephone wirers at work on the new line camped in Dar Welker's yard for several day.

—We understand O. Peterson contemplates building another store room on Bridge Street. The more the merrier.

—Out of town picnics are all right from a livery stable point of view. Not a rig in town to be obtained for love, money or good looks.

—The German Evangelical Church on West Side has been re-plastered and painted inside and now is one of the nicest churches in the village.

—The west bound morning train Saturday was larger than usual, and crowded full. 4th of July must have been coming somewhere. Quite a few got off at Delano.

—The immense crowds of people obliged to return home before the expiration of the time allowed by their tickets, crowded the trains on the G. N. to overflowing.

—We understand that a train had to stop while the engineer or fireman got off and carried a small boy off the track here, a few days ago. Whose small boy was it: yours?

—Elmer S. Babb's, new Second Street residence is drawing towards completion. He will have a nice home when it is completed, and some grading done in that part of town.

—The train carrying the John Robinson circus, stopped here for water, on its way to Litchfield, last Wednesday and quite a number got a chance to see the elephants, etc.

—Coroner Dennis, of Minneapolis took charge of the remains of Sylvester Kochmose, found dead on the railroad track about 1½ miles east of Delano, Tuesday and shipped them to Minneapolis for burial.

--We are informed that Henry Rader, while catching, in a game of ball at Sauk Center, a short time ago had his knee dislocated. This is a painful accident and liable to disable Henry for some time.

—Don't forget to be at the school meeting at the School House at 7 o'clock Saturday evening July 16. Polls must be open one hour, vote by ballot two men on the ticket. Lindsley and Conzet are the members whose terms expire.

—Delano didn't celebrate this 4th of July. Most all the citizens took a trip to some of the neighborining towns. The village was unusually quiet. It is claimed that there was five times as many tickets sold at our depot for 4th of July excursions as there was last year.

—Barley is ripe for the reaper, and is a splendid crop. Harvest will begin early this year. Most grain is better for cutting early, and sometimes a day or two early cutting avoids the work, of gathering up tangled grain.

—The Delano creamery is about changing butter makers. Messrs Sirup and Farber stopped work July 1. Mr. Nelson has been engaged but is not yet ready to take charge so Ben Blacketter is superintending, ad interim.

—Everybody in town wants to see a good school in Delano. An institution of learning is an advertisement for any village. The way to have good schools is to have good Boards of Education; Boards that will observe at least the spirit of the school laws. The way to have good Boards is to be at the school meeting and help elect them. Women can vote on school matters.

—News was brought to town Tuesday morning that the dead body of a man known about town as Sylvester, who started for Al Hitsman, where he was working, drunk, the evening before, had been found on the track. It is supposed that he fell on the track and a freight train killed him, but the engineer did not know it. And the morning train bound east found him. He was in Hennepin County.

—The base ball game at Rockford the 4th for a purse of $15 between the Delano Crickets and the Buffalo Clippers was a very interesting feature of the programme. The players were to be under 18 yrs of age, but the Buffalo nine had several that would range in the twenties. Notwithstanding the discrepancy in age and size, the Crickets won the game by a score of 11 to 12. At the end of the 4th innings the score stood 4 to 10 in favor of the Clippers but the Crickets got down to work and when the last half of the ninth found them at bat the score stood 11 to 11. Johnson then brought in the winning score on Catlin's hit and the game closed. Following is the score by innings:—

Crickets	2	0	1	1	2	0	5	0	1	—12
Clippers	1	5	0	4	0	0	0	1	0	—11

—Mat Fautsch has sold his saloon to Mr. Kline, of Chaukassan. Mat will return to his first love, railroading.

—Comply with President McKinley's request on Sunday and attend church and show your patriotism and your faith in a Supreme Ruler of all.

—Farmers who have been complaining about low prices for feed are, most of them in this vicinity, satisfied that feed is high enough, plenty They have to buy.

—We are in receipt of our Tennyson's Poems, from the Dominion Company Chicago, in pay for advertisements. It is a large gilt edge, illustrated edition.

—Andrew Hanseman has been sweating worse than usual this week trying to keep material etc., on hand for a crew of men on the new Strauch residence on South Third Street.

—Church versus the Minnesota Issue, Published by the Anti-Saloon League Vol. 1, No. 1, is out. It is issued monthly for 50 cts a year at Minneapolis, and is a live paper.

--John Lohmiller, by one of his dry jokes played on the new man at the depot, secured a preacher's half fare ticket for Mat Fautsch to go to Minneapolis; but Mat's conscience wouldn't let him carry out the joke so a full fare was purchased.

—The Litchfield and Willmar companies passed through here Wednesday on their way to Camp Ramsey. The Brown's Valley and the Pipestone companies were on the afternoon train. Charley Welker, a former Delanoite, belongs to the Brown's Valley company; and Prof. C. R. Dewey is first Lieut. of the Litchfield company.

--Binding twine manufacturers are said to be reaping a harvest on the stock of manilla already on hand when war with Spain was declared. Of course, but little if any manilla is now being shipped, but who knows how much may be ready to come before the next lot is needed for binding twine? But it is human nature to take advantage of circumstances.

--An exciting runaway occurred Wednesday morning. A fine farm team belonging to John Lebor came thundering up R. R. Ave, at full speed with a heavy lumber wagon, they turned on to fourth then down Bridge St. to I. Gutzwiller's residence where one horse fell and the mad race ended. No harm, but a plowing up at Mr. G's front yard and a little spilt milk for Mr. L. A lucky runaway.

--Users of tobacco and snuff will now, since July 1, kindly pay a good share of the war tax. 12 cents a pound on some cheap grades of smoking tobacco will have a tendency to prevent small boys from participating to any great extent in defraying the war debt, but confirmed smokers and snuff takers will be frequently reminded that there is a war. 12 cts per pound may be all right some ways, but honestly wouldn't it look better if the fellow who chews fancy brands or smokes, costly cigars or tobacco would contribute a little more than the person who has to use cheap stuff.

--Although we did not spend the 4th at home, we understood from those that did, that Delano looked very dead and lonesome. Most of the people had gone to neighboring towns to celebrate, and the streets were practically deserted until the late afternoon and evening. The greater number went to Rockford and a fine time was had by all. Among prominent features of the day at that place were the ball game between the Delano Crickets and Buffalo Clippers, the cake walk by the members of the Picanniny band, from Minneapolis. Delano furnished the orators of the day, F. H. Lindsley and C. S. Hawker and they filled the bill in very commended style. The shooting gallery on the picnic ground should be mentioned as a dangerous sport, in the way and place it was set up. Several two inch planks before some trees making a backing about 3 feet wide and 6 or 7 high, with teams tied behind and people going to and fro, is hardly adequate. A young man from Delano was struck on the side of the nose, the bullet glancing off past the eye. The missle left a scratch, but luckily, did no serious injury. There was a dance at Delano in the evening and fireworks in various parts of the town and the glorious fourth, made more glorious by the news of a great naval victory at Santiago, was over.

—The Eagle acknowledges, we are happy to say, "that we are all apt to mistakes in typesetting, proof reading and writing." But she enjoys pointing out a few of our imperfections. Why don't she mention the shortcoming or the long coming of some of the political servants of the people? Why don't she point out a Board of Education doing thousands of dollars worth of business without having the Treasurer under bonds; of hiring teachers and paying them without their ever knowing that there is, or is not a teacher's examining board in the district; of having hundreds of scholars cooped up in a six roomed school house with but one door to get out at in case of fire or other accident, of spending hundreds of dollars of school money for insuring a house they claim there is no possibility of burning. Why don't they mention by way of diversion, that although our county affairs are almost entirely in the hands of Republican officials there are things that might be run better; that the State Public Examiner has a queer way of doing business, O. K'ing the accounts of county officials in different counties, all under the same law, where some have payed more than double others have allowed? Why can't the Old Bird see any of these things? Is she like Justice, blindfolded? And if so, can it be golden specks that obscures her vision? Come neighbor if you will take hold and do your duty you can assist wonderfully in cleaning the political atmosphere, and at the same time soar, in the minds of your readers a little above the mud holes through which your drooping wings and tail feathers have been dragging while you have been picking at the dottless "i's" and crossless "t's" of those who would purify politics, and have laws obeyed.

Personal.

Miss Grace Mowatt took a trip to Dassel Wednesday.

L. M. Meister returned home Friday evening from Minneapolis.

John Lohmiller and Mat Fautch went to Minneapolis Tuesday.

Post master Cassel, of Lyndale, drove into town Saturday on business.

Mrs. Williams, of Minneapolis, visited Watertown friends this week.

Ex-County Commissioner Bugbee, of Rockford was in town Wednesday.

Mr. Philip R. Brooks, of Minneapolis, visited his uncle Rob Bullen Wednesday.

E. W. Ferrell, of Montrose, was around the last week putting up tombstones.

Ed Freeman, of Minneapolis, visited his father and mother here the 4th.

Mrs. Laton, of Dassel, visited Delano and Watertown relatives this week.

Charley Schwerin and family, of Minneapolis, visited the folks at home on the 4th.

Col. Greear came home for a 4th of July vacation. He spent part of the day at Rockford.

Prof. C. S. Hawker and his mother and Miss May Mowatt drove to Minneapolis Wednesday.

F. A. Barth, of Watertown, visited Delano several times during the week on 4th of July business.

Dr. J. S. Shrader and family returned home Wednesday. The Dr. has been attending clinics in Chicago.

Hon. T. D. O'Brien, and two children, of St. Paul, passed through town on his way to Watertown on the 4th. Mr. O'Brien was orator at that place.

Jud Welker, of Pope County, arrived Wednesday. He accompanied his son Charley who has joined the Brown's Valley company, of the 15th Reg. as far as here.

Mrs. C. G. Halgren and son Guy, of Watertown, returned from Washington, Saturday. Her mother Mrs. Luther Cunningham was somewhat improved in health.

County Cullings.

Bro. Frank T. Hamilton, of the Maple Lake Messenger, given his valedictory address in the last issue of his paper. It is an able and gentlemanly address. He quits his paper, only for the most urgent reasons, involving health and opportunity. We are sorry to loose so bright a star from the galaxy of Wright County Journalism, and wish him well. Mr. J. H. DeHaven, an old hand at the business, will assume control and conduct it in the same lines as his predecessor established. May he give us as good a paper as Bro. H. has.

Rev. John Doran, assisted at a series of meetings held in North Rockford recently. A gentleman who was present informs us that Mr. D. has become one of the greatest pulpit orators in the North west.

The Eagle is quite readable this week having pounced upon several of our ideas and presented them in her customary sarcastic manner to her readers; to say nothing of the small personal and local items gobbled up by the gizzardless old Gormand.

KOCHMOSE.—In Independence on July 4th, Sylvester Kochmose, aged 38 years.

WELDELE.—On Monday, July 4, Mr. Wm Weldele, aged 75 years.

Among Our Exchanges.

It is a pity our boys have descended so low as to take part in Sunday ball playing. Our people have done a great deal to encourage our base ball team and have felt a pride in success, but this is a Sabbath keeping community and will not sanction its desecration by ball playing.—Wright County Times.

Litchfield Independent: Out of the forty years that Minnesoto has been a state the cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis have furnished the governors for twenty-five years, and the entire balance of the state has furnished the governors for fifteen years. And now the Republican party has put up another Minneapolis man.

Oregon Agriculturist: The collapse of the Leiter speculation has reduced the price of wheat to a legitimate basis. At the present figures its production in Oregon, Washington and Idaho is profitable and yet our developing Oriental trade can continue to be developed. It is plainly to the advantage of wheat producers to develop the growing habit of wheat using in China and Japan. It has been already shown that the demand for wheat flour increases in these countries even at fairly good prices, but "dollar-wheat" will make flour too costly for the Orientals.

THE BRAVE AT HOME.

The maid who binds her warrior's sash
With smile that well her pain dissembles,
The while beneath her drooping lash,
One starry tear drop hangs and trembles,
Though heaven alone records the tear,
And fame shall never know her story,
Her heart has shed a drop as dear
As e'er bedewed a field of glory!

The wife who girds her husband's sword
'Mid little ones who weep and wonder,
And bravely speaks the cheering word,
What though her heart be rent asunder,
Doomed nightly in her dreams to hear,
The bolts of death around him rattle,
Hath shed as sacred blood as e'er
Was poured upon the field of battle.

The mother who conceals her grief
While to her breast her son she presses,
Then breathes a few brave words and brief,
Kissing the patriot brow she blesses,
With no one but her secret God
To know the pain that weighs upon her,
Sheds holy blood as e'er the sod
Received on Freedom's field of honor!
—Thomas Buchanan Read.

EDITOR DARE may run independent for Senator in his district. And if he does he may be elected. And then.

JUDGE WILLIS, of St. Paul is being boomed for Congress from the 4th District. The Judge would average up well in that capacity.

ANOKA county Republicans seem determined to verify to the public their eligibility as a location for the Insane Asylum. They evidently think they are about the whole push politically.

HENNEPIN county Republicans have nominated for Judges the men already in and who were appointed by Gov. Clough, to fill out vancancies, Judges Harrison, Lancaster, Johnson and McGee.

RAILROADS are said to be cutting down wheat rates in great shape. Some of the papers give them great credit, and tell how much they will save the farmers. Wonder if the Supreme Court's decisions didn't have something to do with this streak of generosity.

Republican State Platform.

It is a curious kind of platform the Republicans of Minnesota have this year. They ask voters to elect the same old crowd to office, except Gov. Clough.

They congralulate the country on the evident signs of returning prosperity, largely due to the party's unswerving allegiance to the cause of sound money and the wise revenue legislation of the Republican congress. The state platform praises the party for what it has done for the country; but is terribly silent about what it has done for the state. Grover Cleveland, whose footsteps they follow in, they abuse. Are bonds sold by McKinley in order to meet deficits any better than those sold by Cleveland?

The platform favors the immediate annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, "not only as an absolute military necessity, but as the fruition of one of the noblest asperation of one of our greatest statesman, and because such annexation would be of unquestioned advantage to the American people." They might as well have a plank favoring the abolition of slavery in the United States to please Harriet Beecher Stowe.

The platform tenders its thanks to our representatives in Congress for doing party duty, taxing lumber $2, a thousand; the poor old woman's cheap tea 10 cts a pound, and helping keep the rich man's income from being taxed; they have great ideas of what Minnesota people want, else they are like the R. R. magnate who don't care for the public.

The platform favors a speedy termination of the war for humanity, and wants a Nicaraguan canal, expresses obligations to Gov. Clough, and all members of State adminstration. Thanks Knute Nelson for working for bankruptcy bill, and condems repudiating debts.

Express confidence in C. K. Davis, and wants better roads; never a word about Railroad facilities.

It looks very much as if state affairs are to go on, if the party succeeds, just as they have been going. The same officers are to be put back in office, except Clough who has been so terribly beaten, to hear the party say, in order to allow William Henry Eustis to run. How much better can Eustis do than Clough could, if he has the same surroundings?

The platform don't tell the voters that many needed reforms ought to be made; that the majority of public officers need looking after; that capitol commissions, asylum commissions, state prison affairs, education, pine lands, mineral lands, water ways, railroad, grain, milling, taxes, and many more matters not to forget oil inspectors, public examiners etc., etc., need looking after.

Can it be that the old clique from stem to gudgeon, save Eustis tor Clough, are to hang onto the coat tail of C. K. Davis and be pulled back into office? Will the people permit it? And that too with no platform, so far as state affairs go, to stand on? We guess not.

Parity of Gold and Silver.

The Hon. Knute Nelson's remarks on the "Necessity and Duty of Maintaining the Parity of Our Money," is being franked all over the country as a reminder that the Hon. Knute is still in the U. S. Senate and that in two years his term of office expires, and that he would be glad to have his fences strengthened by getting men elected to the state Senate who will be pledged in advance to support his re-election when opportunity presents.

While Mr. Nelson evidently gets an occasional glimmer of daylight on the subject of parity of gold and silver coin, it seems to us that his remarks are considerably rambling. For instance: he tells us right out that in 1878 silver dollars were worth 90 cts in gold and there was no law concerning maintaining the parity of the two metals, in 1890 and 1893 laws were enacted making it the duty of the government to maintain the parity of the two metals, and now silver dollars are worth just about the same as they are in Mexico, 44 or 45 cts on the dollar. Yet he complains because some men who advocated the passage of this law in the interest of silver, now wish to have it annulled. What stronger reasons could the Hon. Knute ask for wiping the parity clause out than that in his remarks, that before these laws were made, silver was worth 90 cts, and now with two parity laws silver is worth 45 cts, one half its former value? If this is a fact as Mr. Nelson would have us believe why don't he vote to do away with the parity clause rather than circulate "remarks" so rambling concerning it.

As an argument ostensibly in favor of the gold standard, or "maintaining the parity of the two metals." Mr. Nelson says: "If the Government of the United States, when a creditor comes and demands payment of any of its obligations, whether it be a bond or a Treasury note, shakes its head and says "I can not pay you in gold; that is the dearest metal; I will pay you in the cheaper, silver"—whenever the Government assumes that attitude and refuses to pay either a greenback, a Sherman note, or a bond to the holder in gold when he demands it, that moment and in that act the Government discredits its silver money and says it is not as good, and that brings us on a silver basis immediately, when silver will circulate on its bullion value and not on a parity with gold as now."

What difference can it make to Mr. Nelson whether our country is on a solid silver basis or a fictitious gold basis? Is it not a fact just the same, that when the Government undertakes to run on a gold basis and discredits its own silver coin by making parity laws, that the standard, instead of giving us what they pretend to give us, bimetallism, put the country on a contracted gold standard basis?

Mr. Nelson says: "What is the difference between our silver dollar and the Mexican Silver dollar?" He says the Mexican dollar is worth 45 cts, our silver dollar he has said was worth about the same. Why, in the name of common sense then does Mr. N. want to use thousands of dollars worth of silver in making dollars worth 45 cts, each and inflating them 55 cts, in order to have a gold standard?

If our Government made money according to the Coustitution, gold and silver coin, and accepted either and paid out either as the people want it; the same as they should do, without ifs or ands, there would be no need of parity laws, and no difference in the price of gold and silver dollars.

Opened the Wine Rooms.

The Twice-a-week World gives reports from the Press Publishing Co. New York, to the effect that Admiral Cervera's officers when they learned they were to sail out of the Harbor of Santiago, opened up the wine rooms and allowed the men to become drunk. Then stood, with drawn revolvers, to shoot any who might fail to fill the post assigned them. No wonder they were an easy prey for American soldiers, who are supposed at least, to be sober. Had the canteen been circulated among our men as some misguided people would have it, perhaps the battle would have been more even. Another thing it is claimed the Viscazy fired the first shot at the Texas, the latter's commander remarking that who ever fires the first shot on Sunday gets licked. How true his prediction proved in this instance. It pays to keep, sober and regard the Sabbath.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24, 1898.

Good news and lots of it has been the most striking feature of the present week. But the rejoicing over the destruction of Cervera's fleet was somewhat lessened by news that was not so satisfactory from Santiago. Gen. Garcia, who was expected with his 3,000 Cubans to keep the Spanish re inforcements out of Santiago, was not equal to the occasion, and consequently the Spanish army in Santiago is now more than twice as strong as it was, and with the re-inforcements went provisions and ammunition. The storms which have been raging there for several days have added much to the discomfort of Gen. Shafter's army as well as interfering with the forwarding of needed supplies, and it is feared will have a bad effect on the men. But worse than all was the news that Shafter and Sampson were pulling against each other, instead of pulling together. Of course, nobody has any doubt of our taking Santiago, but that does not lessen the aggravation of mismanagement that adds unnecessarily to the danger of our boys over there. By the first of next week Shafter will have received re-inforcements enough to enable him to take the town whether Sampson helps him or not, but it could be done at once if Sampson would take his fleet in the harbor.

Mr. McKinley is constantly called upon to decide disputes between the two fighting branches of the government. Gen. Shafter telegraphed to Washington that Admiral Sampson had positively refused his suggestion, that his fleet should be taken into Santiago harbor so as to co-operate with the army in bombarding and attacking the city. Mr. McKinley wired Sampson to act in concert with Shafter whenever and wherever possible to do so. There was another squabble as to which branch of the service should take charge of the 1,000 Spanish prisoners taken with Admiral Cervera, when his fleet was destroyed. Arrangements had been made by the War Department to take care of the Spanish captured by the army in Cuba, and it put in a claim for these naval prisoners, but it was resisted by the Navy Department, and Mr. McKinley stood by the latter, which will keep the prisoners, now on their way to the Portsmouth, N. H. navy yard.

Admiral Sampson has been much criticized in Congress because of his failure to even mention Commodore Schley's name in his dispatch announcing the destruction of Cervera's fleet, when it was well known that Schley was in command and directed the fight that resulted in the destruction of the Spanish fleet, and that it was to Schley that Cervera surrendered. As a result of this criticism a resolution was offered in the Senate by Senator Pettigrew and in the House by Representative Berry, of Ky., extending the thanks of Congress to Commodore Schley and the officers and men under him for destroying the Spanish fleet. Mr. Berry said of this resolution: "I propose that the officer to whom the glory is due shall be recognized. Schley is the real hero of the incident. He and the brave band of officers and men under his immediate direction are the ones who achieved the victory, and all honor should be given them."

Everybody was delighted when the news came that Gen. Shafter's offer to exchange some of the Spanish prisoners for Lt. Hobson and his men had, after being once refused, been accepted by the Spanish commandant at Santiago. It was especially desired that Hobson and his men should be out of the town before we started to bombard it.

The opposition grew tired of the one sided contest in the Senate and the annexation resolution was voted upon and adopted, as everybody knew it would be whenever a vote was reached.

Senator Hoar's protest against the adoption of an imperial colonial policy by this government, made in a speech favoring the annexation of Hawaii-it seems a little paradoxical to favor the annexation of some particular islands and oppose the taking of any others, but that is Mr. Hoar's position caused a sensation in the Senate, especially on the republican side. Of the annexation of Hawaii he said: "If this is to be the first step in a policy of dominion over barbarous archipelagos; if we are to join with Europe in the plunder of China and the pillage of Africa; if we are to be governed in part by people to whom the Declaration of Independence is a stranger, or, if we are to govern people with whom life and property are not sacred, then we should shun this proposition." He thus spoke of a colonial policy:" I believe that if we come out of this war without entering upon the fatal folly of retaining far distant possessions, the world will be so impressed with our strength that no nation will attack us for a hundred years." He declared that this country did not want the enormous debt and increased taxes that a large standing army and a great navy would bring, and that, "The starry flag is no emblem of dominion! In time of peace let it not fly over conquered territory. It is the emblem of peace and freedom."

Ahasuerus of the bible is the same as Xerxes of ancient history, of whom there were several, one of them being the husband of Esther. They fought for conquest, and were mighty conquerers. Ancient chivalry in those days seems hardly as bad as in these times, when we have such destructive implements of war.

The great drama of the present age is now being enacted in regard to war and politics. The armies of Spain and the United States have met upon the field of action, which is to decide the fate of nations and fix their destiny. Spain, in her mad career, is blinded to her own interest and seems not to know that her time is short and she only food for stronger powers.

While I am opposed to war in a moral and religious sense of view, yet I am always glad when our army prevails and we come off conquerors. But I always dread the horrors of war, for it brings sickness and death. It brings sorrow and calamity. It brings debt and taxes. It breeds dishonor, poverty nakedness. It breaks the heart of the doeting mother; sends the aged father to a premature grave, and fills the land with mourning. The ghastly battle field has no charmes for me; filled with the groans of the wounded and dying. If war becomes an absolute necessity then prosecute it to the bitter end, but I hardly think it the fair thing that David should put Uria in front of the battle that he might be slain, in order that David might gratify his own desire. So I do not believe it right to go to war for merely a selfish motive, but for liberty, freedom and independence only.

It seems that the war between Spain and the United States is being prosecuted with great energy and activity and I hope to soon hear the last gun has been fired. If we gain in this war, which I have no doubt but we will, our inheritance will come after in way of a bonded debt (which will never be paid) and a mongrel race of people which will take more than a century to colonize and civalize. and the gold standard party will find more use for their money than they ever dreamed of. But a nation never counts up the cost of prosecuting a war until after it is over. Will the crucible cleons us; separate the gold from the dross? Perhaps some gold standard fellow can tell, who has split his shirt collar crying 53cent silver dollar and never made a nickle by it nor never will.

With a single gold standard, a bonded debt that will never be paid, and banks of issue, we will have an inheritance that will last this nation from now to eternity. A million of money now days will buy more than a bushel of brains.

The republicans in state convention declared in their platform only a few days ago, could be seen upon the horizon signs of returning prosperity, and all on account of the Dinglev bill and a single gold standard; but I fear the common people have not found it out yet. They also declare it took a good geal of hard work and manipulation to undo the mischief done by the last Democratic administration, and this seems strange when the Republicans say Cleveland was a better man than his party, and he sold out to them for so many sheckles. Would say to the high toned plutocrats of our commonwealth, that the rank and file of Jackson and Jefferson Democracy do not claim any relation to the wizard ex-President. By lineal descent or party affiliation he sold himself and crucified his party.

The legislative convention of Hennepin Co. also declared in favor of returning C. K. Davis to the United States Senate, after he voted against taxing corporations; voted against an income tax; voted against a non interest bearing currency; voted against a non interest bearing currency; voted against the coining of the silver bullion in the treasury; but with uplifted hands, voted for a ten cent specific duty on every pound of tea. Shurely his righteousness exceeds the righteousness of the scribes and Pharasees. And I might add that Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, doue the same thing. "Is it meet to give your children's bread to the dogs". Enough of such legislating will sooner or later bring us to the Lazerous house.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am satisfied that all these words are as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal, for it seems natural for some people to follow the crowd, and others think it is nice to be of the class that are in power and have the most wealth. The love of party is stronger than love of country. In fact a good many think there is no difference between love of country and love of party. They seem to think both are of the same parentage and both were rocked in the same cradle, but they are widely different from each other and are not related.

An Emperor's Forty-Six Portraits and Poses

With five German warships facing Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manilla and the intentions of the German Kaiser still a matter of some doubt, the leading article presented in The Cosmopolitan for July will be read with interest. The forty-six portraits and poses of the Emperor William which illustrate the article are in themselves an extraordinary exhibit. They might be described as "The Evolution of an Emperor shown by forty-six human documents." Undoubtedly so large a number of portraits were never before gathered of any royal or imperial personage.

Severely Punished by Grant.

In 1864, at City Point, Va., while the General of the Army was strolling along the wharf one day, he saw a big, raw-boned teamster belaboring one of his wheel mules with a billet of wood, and cursing him roundly. Grant quietly said: "My man, stop beating that mule."

Rawny, looking around at the little, unostentatious appearing person in a plain blouse, replied: "Say, be you driving these here mules, or be I?" and crack again went the cudgel, the mule dodging and jumping the tongue.

"Well," said the General, "I think I have sufficient authority here to stop your cruelty to that animal;" and turning to the officer in charge of the train he order him to have the teamster "tied up" for twenty-four hours when he returned to camp, and report the fact to headquarters when done. The news spread rapidly from camp to camp, and there was much less mule-mauling after that.—Our Dumb Animals.

Minnesota Day At Omaha.

Minnesota's handsome building on the Trans-Mississippi Exposition grounds will be formally dedicated to exposition purposes on July 20. This will be Minnesota Day at Omaha. Governor Clough will visit the Nebraska metropolis with his staff, and a large number of citizens of the state is expected to take advantage of the reduced railroad rates to visit the exposition.

The Minnesota Building is in the form of a Swiss cottage, and is constructed entirely of Minnesota logs in native condition. Its dimensions are 60 x 100 feet, two stories high. It stands in a favorable position on the Bluff Tract, near the Nebraska building, and almost facing the magnificent Horticulture building.

Following is the program for the dedication ceremonies which will commence at 10:30 a. m.:

PROGRAM FOR MINNESOTA DAY, JULY 20.

Raising of "Old Glory" and State Pennant with "Hail Columbia" by Band.

Five minute address by John L. Gibbs, president Minnesota State Commission.

Five minute address by Governor Clough, turning building over to Exposition.

Response by President Wattles, accepting building.

"America" by the band and audience.

Minnesota Ode—Short poem by W. S. Harwood.

Address (of the occasion), Dr. C. N. Northrop, President University of Minnesota.

Audience invited into building for refreshments.

Music.

E. L. Danforth, secretary of the Minnesota Commission, says a very large number of Minnesotans will attend the dedication of the state building.

With the new war stamps, the Omaha stamps and the regular issues, all circulating at the same time, there is likely to be a vast confusion of colors and denominations.

After the American flag was hoisted on the bluff near Guantanamo, the next thing set up was a United States post office. The government will be collecting box rents all over Cuba in a short time.

War is no respecter of the holy Sabbath. It was Sunday morning when Dewey sailed into Manila bay; and when Cervera undertook to sneak out of Santiago harbor on Sunday what could Sampson do but follow him?

An exchange speaks of a man who it is said always pays for his local paper in advance. As a result he has never been sick a day in his life, never had any corns on his toes, or the toothache, his potatoes never rot, his oats never rust, the weasel never kills his chickens, the frost never kills his beans, his babies never cry at night and his wife never scolds.

Arthur Bride, who has been mourned as dead for 16 years by his relatives in Rochester, N. Y., turns up now with a fortune of $300,000 in hard gold, made in the Klondike, and deeds to $3,000,000 worth of claims. He happened to be on the spot when the strikes were made and his wanderings had given him the necessary knowledge of mining to make good locations.

Secretary of the Interior Bliss has approved a recommendation of the commissioner of education that each state and territory be given $24,000 for the support of agricultural and mechanical colleges during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899. This is done under authority of the act of 1890 providing funds to be expended in the advancement of these colleges.

Up to the end of 1897 Russia had expended within a fraction of $200,000,000 on her great Siberian railway. Between this and 1900 an outlay of another million is expected, when the road will be in running order, with through trains from St. Petersburg to the Pacific, opening one of the most important commercial channels in the world and a new and spacious page in Russian political commercial history.

That there has been progress in Africa within the last ten years is demonstrated by the increase of the trade of the Congo Free State within that period. In 1886 the total trade of that region aggregated only $354,000; in 1897 it had increased to $3,029,000. More than half of its export trade is in India rubber, its development being due largely to the opening of railroads and highways into the interior.

The year bids fair to be a record breaker in gold production. The total of the United States for 1897 is estimated at about $60,000,000. In 1898, counting $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 for Klondike receipts, this country will be credited, it is believed, with at least $75,000,000. The total for the world is put at $275,000,000. The United States is the greatest single gold producing country on the globe, and continues to gain on its competitors.

The theater hat in America has exhausted approbrium and been the cause of numbers of interdictory mandates, legislative and managerial, and now the restaurant hat in London is exciting similar commotion. The restaurant men or some of them, for no conceivable reason, wish their women patrons to lay aside their headgear and eat bareheaded. The women object, and there the matter stands at present, both sides obstinate, with odds on the bonnet.

The Spanish seamen of the ill-fated Cervera fleet went to playing cards and smoking cigarettes as soon as they were assured that they were to be treated as prisoners of war. The American and Spanish sailors are constructed upon vastly different lines. Had the case been reversed and our men prisoners of war by reason of the complete destruction of their fleet, our boys would have been in the very depths of mortification of despair. One could not imagine American sailors taking interest in a card game under such circumstances.

Only twice in history have the exports of agricultural products from the United States reached the value of $700,000,000. For the last fiscal year they exceed $800,000,000. They exceed the exports of the record-breaking year 1892 by more than $130,000,000. They exceed last year's exports by more than $150,000,000. They exceed those of the year before by more than $250,000,000. At the same time our exports of manufactured products have increased in still greater proportion, while our imports have enormously fallen off.

At Schkenditz, in Prussian Saxony, the burgomaster recently gave orders that on Sunday people should dress in a manner befitting the day, and when a mechanic appeared on the streets in his every-day working dress he was arrested and fined three marks. The decision was set aside on appeal, but the court admonished the culprit that he was an insensate dolt, and that the grace of the Lord was not in him. The tribunal evidently leaned to the conviction that he had got what he deserved, though the letter of the law did not sustain the penalty.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Proceedings of First Regular Session.

The house resolutions providing for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands were brought to a vote in the United States senate on the 6th and were passed by a vote of 42 to 21. Senator Pettigrew introduced a resolution tendering the thanks of congress to Commodore Schley and the men under him for gallant conduct in the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago. In the house the general deficiency bill was discussed and several senate amendments were concurred in.

In the United States senate on the 7th a bill was passed conferring the rank of major general upon Adjt. Gen. Corbin of the army. The house concurrent resolution that congress adjourn sine die on the 8th was referred to the appropriations committee. In the house resolutions providing for final adjournment on the 8th were agreed to.

In the United States senate on the 8th resolutions were adopted thanking Vice President Hobart and Senator Frye, president pro tempore, for the able and courteous manner in which they had presided over the deliberations of the senate during the present session, and then final adjournment was announced. With waving flags and singing by members and spectators of patriotic songs, the house adjourned sine die after adopting a resolution thanking Speaker Reed for his services.

WAR NEWS.

Washington officials expect that Spain will begin negotiations for peace in a few days. Important dispatches have been received with this end in view.

An order was sent to Admiral Camara, who, with his fleet, had passed through the Suez canal, to return to Spain.

Reports from Gen. Shafter to the war department say that as a result of the recent fighting 16 officers and 166 men were killed and 1,052 were wounded.

In Spain the loss of Cervera's fleet increases the danger of revolution, and extraordinary precautions are being taken to prevent a successful uprising.

In a severe storm off the coast of Cuba 11 lighters en route to Santiago in tow of tugs were swamped and lost.

With 1,750 Spanish prisoners, the cruiser Harvard started for the United States.

The civil government of Siboney has surrendered to Gen. Shafter and they assert further resistance is madness.

The combined forces under Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson began the bombardment of Santiago, Gen. Toral having refused to surrender unconditionally.

With Admiral Cervera, 50 officers and 692 sailors, all from the Spanish fleet destroyed on July 3 at Santiago, the cruiser St. Louis reached Portsmouth, N. H.

The fleet of Admiral Camara sailed from Port Said for Cartagena, Spain.

Following the suggestion of the president in his proclamation churches throughout the country held thanksgiving services in recognition of the recent American victories over Spain.

Gen. Shafter reports the official list of casualties at Santiago on July 1 and 2 to be: Killed, 22 officers, 208 men; wounded, 81 officers, 1,203 men; missing, 79 men.

A dispatch from Admiral Sampson says if proper wrecking appliances are sent at once the Spanish cruisers Vizcaya, Teresa and Colon can be saved.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The president has selected as the five Hawaiian commissioners Senators Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, and John T. Morgan, of Alabama, Representative Robert R. Hitt, of Illinois, and President Sanford B. Dole and Chief Justice Judd, of Hawaii.

In session in Washington the National Educational association elected as president E. O. Lyte, of Millersville, Pa.

The sender of telegrams must affix the war revenue stamps, says Commissioner Scott, of the internal revenue department.

THE EAST.

In the United States there were 229 business failures in the seven days ended on the 8th, against 254 the week previous and 206 in the corresponding period of 1897.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 10th were: Cincinnati, .671; Boston, .614; Cleveland, .609; Baltimore, .603; Chicago, .562; Pittsburgh, .543; New York, .500; Philadelphia, .439; Washington, .420; Brooklyn, .403; Louisville, .324; St. Louis, .301.

Five young men lost their lives by the capsizing of a boat in Portland (Me.) harbor.

On August 27 James J. Corbett and "Kid" McCoy will fight 25 rounds at Buffalo, N. Y., for a purse of $20,000.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Arthur Jones and Mary Leishman were found dead in a grove one mile south of Emporia, Kan. It is believed to be a case of murder and suicide. Both were 16 years of age.

Democrats of the Sixth Kansas district nominated W. G. Hoffer, editor of the Lincoln Sentinel, for congress.

A waterspout wrecked the town of Steelville, Mo., and 13 persons lost their lives.

At Stanberry, Mo., a flood destroyed several houses and drowned four persons and at Maryville two persons lost their lives.

Gold seekers direct from the Klondike reached San Francisco with $3,000,000 in gold.

In Clinton, Ia., Mrs. Paul Dengler, aged 38, drowned her two little children and herself while temporarily insane.

Fire destroyed the Hotel St. Joseph at St. Joseph, Mich., the loss being $130,000, and A. P. Baldwin, an employe, perished in the flames.

Fire ruined the plant of the Western Starch Manufacturers' association at West Hammond, Ind., the loss being $250,000.

In San Francisco Howard F. Brewer broke the world's swimming record for half a mile, making the distance in 12 minutes 42 2-5 seconds.

By falling from a balloon Miss Nevins, a well-known aeronaut, was fatally injured at East St. Louis, Ill.

In Cleveland the building occupied by the Britton Printing company was burned, the loss being $100,000, and three persons lost their lives.

At Charleston, Mo., James Albright was hanged for the murder of Prosecuting Attorney Elliott.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

The steamer La Bourgogne, en route from New York to Havre, sank after a collision with the British ship Cromartyshire in a dense fog about 60 miles south of the Sable islands. There were 716 persons on board and of these 553 were lost. Capt. DeLoncle and all of the officers except four went down with their ship. Not one first-class passenger was saved.

In Madrid an attempt was made to blow up the apartments of the queen regent of Spain with dynamite and several men were arrested for complicity in the plot.

Further news from the wreck of the steamer La Burgogne near Sable islands says that 565 lives were lost.

LATER NEWS.

Mines have been ordered from all the rivers and harbors in the United States.

Gen. Shafter has strengthened the weak places in his lines.

Flour was reported worth $19 per barrel in Porto Rico.

Part of the Laflin-Rand powder mills at Pompton, N. J., is blown up. Eight men killed.

REFUSED AGAIN.

Gen. Toral Declined a Second Time to Surrender Santiago as Shafter Demanded.

Before Santiago, via Playa del Este, Guantanamo Bay, July 13.—Yesterday morning Gen. Toral sent out a report to Gen. Shafter in answer to a second demand for the unconditional surrender of Santiago made by the latter. In his reply, Gen. Toral referred to his refusal to accede to the American demand made on Sunday, and again reiterated his determination to resist.

Notwithstanding this the American batteries did not open fire yesterday morning, and the renewal of the bombardment will probably be postponed until some time today (Wednesday), when it is hoped that all of Gen. Randolph's batteries will be in position. The siege guns landed yesterday will also be brought up as soon as possible.

The Cubans under Gen. Garcia took Calmenes without opposition Monday night and have entrenchments on either side of the road. The Americans are now in a position to strike the enemy on the left flank and roll it up, making the Spanish entrenchments north of the city untenable.

General Toral, realizing the weakness of this flank, has been busy during the existence of the truce in doubling back with entrenchments and fixing his guns in the directions from which he is threatened.

MINISTRY RESIGNS.

Premier Sagasta Notifies Queen Regent of Their Action.

Advises Her to Appoint Another Consisting Largely of the Military Element—Prospects of Peace.

London, July 12.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times telegraphing Monday says: Senor Sagasta went to the palace and tendered his resignation and that of the cabinet. It is said that he advised the queen regent to appoint a new cabinet, largely consisting of the military element, which would not necessarily mean the adoption of a warlike policy, but probably the reverse.

Couldn't Agree.

London, July 12.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times, telegraphing this (Tuesday) morning, says: "The cabinet resigned in consequence of irreconcilable differences of opinion on the question of initiating peace negotiations."

Willing to Open Negotiations.

London, July 12. — The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says: The queen regent is willing to open peace negotiations with the United States without any mediation of the powers provided the conditions are not too severe. Her maximum concession at present is a declaration of the independence of Cuba.

Uncle Sam's Alleged Demands.

Madrid, July 12. — It is asserted that the United States makes the following demands as conditions of peace:

First—The possession of Cuba and Puerto Rico, with a port in the Canaries.

Second—An indemnity of £48,000,000 (about $240,000,000).

Third—The retention of the Philippines as a guarantee of the payment of the indemnity.

These terms are regarded as impossible.

France Willing to Intervene.

London, July 12.—The French government is ready to tender the good offices of the French ambassador at Washington for the purpose of opening negotiations for peace between Spain and the United States. M. Delcasse, the foreign minister, has made known the disposition of his government to Senor Leon Castillo, the Spanish ambassador at Paris, and as soon as the Madrid government gives consent the important step may be taken. The proposition first suggested by Austria and France of intercession at Washington by the British ambassador has been abandoned.

ONE CAN BE SAVED.

Infanta Maria Teresa Only Spanish Vessel That May Be Repaired—The Damage to the Others.

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 10, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 12.—The board of survey appointed to examine the wrecks of the Spanish ships and to inquire into the nature of their injuries reports that only one ship can possibly be saved. She is the Infanta Maria Teresa, the former flagship of Admiral Cervera.

The hull of the Cristobal Colon shows she was only hit six times, and then only by shells of eight-inch, five-inch and six-inch calibers. This verifies the story that the commander of the Cristobal Colon surrendered because he saw she could not get away from the Brooklyn and Oregon, and to continue the battle meant a sacrifice of life.

The Vizcaya showed she had been riddled by the Brooklyn and Oregon. She had not been struck by projectiles larger than eight inches. There was no sign of her having been struck by a shell of 12 or 13 inches. Her upper works were riddled by one and six-pounder shells. Nearly all of these shells exploded inside the superstructure, and must have driven the men from the guns. This confirms the story of Capt. Eulate that the Brooklyn's secondary battery fire was so terrible that the men deserted their guns.

Why He Went Into Santiago.

New York, July 12.— Aspecial to the World from Portsmouth, N. H., says that Admiral Cervera's explanation to a naval officer, as to why he took the fleet into Santiago, was that he expected to provision and coal and get away inside of 24 hours, but this was found to be impossible owing to the tropical methods employed in handling coal. Then Capt. Gen. Blanco was communicated with and the presence of the two fleets in Yucatan channel and Windward passage was announced.

Camara Turns Back.

Cairo, Egypt, July 9.—Admiral Camara, the commander of the Spanish fleet which was bound for the Philippines and which recently passed through the Suez canal, has informed the Egyptian government that he has been ordered to return to Spain. Therefore his ships will go through the canal immediately and will proceed westward. The Spanish warships will now be allowed to coal, as they are returning home.

MANY PERISH.

Disastrous Flood in Missouri—Thirteen Lives Lost at Steelville and Six at Other Points.

St. Louis, July 9.—A special to the Republic from Cuba, Mo., says: A courier from Steelville, the county seat of Crawford county, brought the terrible news Friday that the town had almost been wiped out by a waterspout early Friday morning. The known dead: Mrs. Lou Tucker and babe, St. Louis; daughter of Charles Abrams, St. Louis; Mrs. John Woods and two children, Steelville; Mrs. James Taff and three children, Steelville; Mrs. William Lesough, Steelville; Luther Slough, Steelville; colored man, unknown, Midland.

The waterspout occurred outside the town, but swelled Yadkin creek, which came down in a mighty and destructive flood, sweeping all before it. Up to Friday evening 13 bodies had been recovered, but it is thought more have perished. Steelville was a town of 1,100 inhabitants, situated on the Salem branch of the 'Frisco railroad. All the wires are down and no communication can be had except by courier.

St. Louis, July 9.—A special to the Republic from Stanberry, Mo., says: A heavy rain at three o'clock Thursday afternoon became a flood of water along the valley south of the railroad tracks and some 15 families with their homes were carried along by the sweeping torrent. Some houses were destroyed, while men, women and children Friday morning were found in trees and drifts for at least a mile along the valley. The dead are: Mrs. Isaac Gray and babe, Charles Smith and Bert Vance.

The Standard Oil tank, with 3,000 gallons of oil, was carried a mile. Miles of railroad track and bridges are gone.

Three miles from Maryville, Mo., the water from the swollen Nodaway river surrounded the house of James Nolan, a farmer, and Mrs. Nolan and her mother, Mrs. Phoebe Joslyn, were drowned. Nolan made a heroic effort to rescue them, but they were caught in a barbed wire fence and he was swept away and lodged in a tree.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Cervera and Nearly 800 Captured Members of His Command Reach Portsmouth, N. H.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 11. — The auxiliary cruiser St. Louis, with 746 Spanish soldiers, including 54 officers, arrived in Portsmouth harbor at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, and a few minutes later dropped anchor just above Fishing island. The big liner left Guantanamo at six o'clock Tuesday afternoon, July 5, and did not make a stop until she dropped anchor in Portsmouth harbor. Including the prisoners there were 1,036 people on board the boat and out of this number there are 91 sick and wounded Spaniards under the care of surgeons. Admiral Cervera is confined to his cabin, having been quite ill for the past three days, although he was able to be dressed Sunday morning. Capt. Eulate, who was commander of the Vizcaya and is among the prisoners, is also quite ill, having been wounded in the head during the battle off Santiago.

All of the Spanish commissined officers have been on parole and had the freedom of the ship with one exception, and he was the governor of Santiago de Cuba, who was trying to escape from the city on Admiral Cervera's flagship when she was destroyed on that memorable morning of July 3. He refused to sign parole papers and was consequently confined in one of the cabins under guard. The remainder of the prisoners were confined between decks and closely guarded.

The bringing of Admiral Cervera to the United States does not signify that the proposition to parole him has been finally dismissed. It has been simply postponed for a time, though it may be surmised that the admiral will be much more comfortable here until the feeling of unnatural resentment displayed against him in Spain has subsided.

The cruiser Harvard arrived off Fort Constitution with 400 Spanish prisoners from Santiago at nine o'clock Sunday night. The prisoners will be brought up to the city this morning.

Brave Men Are Freed.

Washington, July 8.—The president has been officially notified by Gen. Shafter of the exchange of Hobson, who is now within the American lines. The president has given expression to his deep gratification at the successful accomplishment of the exchange negotiations. Gen. Shafter reports that Hobson and the others are well except two, who are convalescing from an attack of intermittent fever. The exchange was made on equal terms as to rank.

Spanish Lighter Captured.

Washington, July 8.—The war department has received a telegram from Gen. Shafter's headquarters, stating that the auxiliary cruiser Osceola has captured a Spanish lighter loaded with provisions and valued at $50,000.

ELEVEN LIVES LOST.

Terrible Result of a Gas Explosion in a Tunnel Under Lake Erie—Close Call for Rescuers.

Cleveland, O., July 12.—The lives of 11 men were snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye Monday evening in the big waterworks tunnel that is being constructed under the bottom of Lake Erie, as a result of an explosion of gas. Following are the names of those who were killed.

John Parks, foreman, 32 years old and single; James Parks, brother of John, 30 years old and single; John Fradey, an Italian, 22 years old and single; Tony Brunetti, Italian, 22 years old and single; Emerson Smith, bricklayer, 44 years old, married; John McCauley, 21 years old, married; William Tucker, colored, 26 years old and single; Gus Wattz, 28 years old, wife and several children; Frank Clements, married, with several children; John ——, Italian, 18 years old and single; Frank Haney, married, aged 22.

The tunnel is an immense affair, being projected to extend outward from the shore for a distance of 4½ miles, and it has been under construction for more than a year. The work has been attended with great difficulty. About six weeks ago there was an explosion of gas in the shore end of the big hole, which killed eight men and injured a number of others. Soon afterward a big pocket of quicksand was struck and work was stopped for some time.

The explosion occurred at a few minutes before seven o'clock Monday evening, but nobody will ever be able to tell what caused it, or how it happened, for every witness is dead and the bodies of all are lying where they fell, 6,000 feet out under the lake. The only man in the tunnel who escaped death is Con O'Donnell, a lock tender, who was stationed 3,700 feet from the shore. He says there were ten of the shocks and the concussion was something terrible, for it threw him off his feet, and for hours he was in such a dazed condition that he could scarcely remember what had happened. He finally groped his way out and told what had happened.

Two men, Patrick Varner and Martin McCauley, were the first to venture in the tunnel after the accident occurred. They made their way to a lock 5,200 feet from the shore, but were there overcome by the gas and fell to the floor. When they failed to return, a young man named James Clements, son of one of the men who was killed, and who was employed as a mule driver, went to their rescue. He found them almost unconscious, lying over a mule cart, and succeeded in helping them to the well at the shore end of the tunnel.

A Nation Gives Thanks.

Washington, July 11.—Sunday was a day of thanksgiving and prayer in the national capital. The president's recent proclamation was the basis of a concert of patriotic utterances from many pulpits. Thanks were offered for the glorious victories of American arms and prayers were offered for an early consummation of peace. In nearly every church where the proclamation had suggested the topic of the sermon special music of patriotic character was rendered, many of the services closing with the hymn "America." President McKinley, as usual, attended the morning services at the Metropolitan M. E. church. He went alone to the church, and was deeply impressed with the discourse delivered by the pastor, Rev. Frank Bristol. The church was crowded long before the services began. Scores of persons remained standing throughout, and many more went away unable to gain admission. Dispatches from numerous towns throughout the country show that the president's proclamation of thanksgiving for victory and prayer for peace was generally observed.

Maidhof, of New York, who was United States consul to Annaburg, Saxony, during the first administration of President Cleveland. Maidhof attempted to cross the portage from Unalaska to Kaltag, bound for Manook, in company with H. M. Morgan, correspondent of the Associated Press. Deserted by their guide, they lost their way in a blinding snowstorm. Their provisions were exhausted, their hands and feet frozen, and after subsisting on dog meat for several days Maidhof died and was buried in a snowdrift. His companion, Morgan, became snowbound and was found by a party of Indians.

Casualties of Sunday.

OPEN LETTERS FROM

Jennie E. Green and Mrs. Harry Hardy.

JENNIE E. GREEN, Denmark, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had been sick at my monthly periods for seven years, and tried almost everything I ever heard of, but without any benefit. Was troubled with backache, headache, pains in the shoulders and dizziness. Through my mother I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has done me so much good. I am now sound and well."

Mrs. HARRY HARDY, Riverside, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham the story of her struggle with serious ovarian trouble, and the benefit she received from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This is her letter:

"How thankful I am that I took your medicine. I was troubled for two years with inflammation of the womb and ovaries, womb was also very low. I was in constant misery. I had heart trouble, was short of breath and could not walk five blocks to save my life. Suffered very much with my back, had headache all the time, was nervous, menstruations were irregular and painful, had a bad discharge and was troubled with bloating. I was a perfect wreck. Had doctored and taken local treatments, but still was no better. I was advised by one of my neighbors to write to you. I have now finished the second bottle of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am better in every way. I am able to do all my own work and can walk nearly a mile without fatigue; something I had not been able to do for over two years. Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctors."

TELLS OF THE BATTLE

"Fighting Bob" Evans' Story of Capture of Cervera.

A Graphic Description of the Pursuit and Total Destruction of the Spanish Fleet—Awful Slaughter of the Enemy.

Chicago, July 9.—A dispatch dated "Off Santiago de Cuba" gives the following interesting account of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet:

The battleship Iowa was the first ship to see the Spanish fleet coming out of the harbor. Somebody on the bridge shouted: "What's that black thing coming out of the harbor?" A moment later the Iowa was at general quarters, and the signal was hoisted that the enemy's ships were coming out. A gun was fired to attract the attention of the fleet at 9:33 a. m.

"Fighting Bob" Evans, the commander of the Iowa, was sitting in his cabin, talking to his son, a cadet on the Massachusetts, who, luckily, had been left behind in a picket launch when the Massachusetts went to Guantanamo to coal at dawn. Capt. Evans' account of the battle, as told in the cabin of the Iowa, is intensely interesting. He said:

"Fighting Bob's" Story.

"At the time 'general quarters' was sounded, the engine bell rang full speed ahead, and I put the helm to starboard and the Iowa crossed the bows of the Infanta Maria Teresa, the first ship out. As the Spanish admiral swung to the westward the 12-inch shells from the forward turret of the Iowa seemed to strike him fair in the bow, and the fight was a spectacle. As the squadron came out in column, the ships beautifully spaced as to distance and gradually increasing their speed to 13 knots, it was superb. The Iowa from this moment kept up a steady fire from her heavy guns, heading all the ships to keep the Infanta Maria Teresa on her starboard bow and hoping to ram one of the leading ships. In the meantime the Oregon, Indiana, Brooklyn and Texas were doing excellent work with their heavy guns. In a very short space of time the enemy's ships were all clear of the harbor mouth and it became evidently impossible for the Iowa to ram either the first or the second ship, on account of their speed. The range at this time was 2,000 yards.

Fired a Broadside.

"The Iowa's helm was immediately put hard to the starboard, and the entire starboard broadside was poured into the Infanta Maria Teresa. The helm was then quickly shifted to port, and the ship went across the stern of the Teresa in an effort to head off the Oquendo. All the time the engines were driving at full speed ahead. A perfect torrent of shells from the enemy passed over the smokestacks and superstructure of the ship, but none struck her. The Cristobal Colon, being much faster than the rest of the Spanish ships, passed rapidly to the front in an effort to escape.

Shells Struck the Iowa.

"In passing the Iowa the Colon placed two six-inch shells fairly in our starboard bow. One passed through the cofferdam and dispensary, wrecking the latter and bursting on the berth deck, doing considerable damage. The other passed through the sides at the water line within the cofferdam, where it still remains.

"As it was now obviously impossible to ram any of the Spanish ships on account of their superior speed, the Iowa's helm was put to the starboard, and she ran on a course parallel with the enemy. Being then abreast of the Almirante Oquendo, at a distance of 1,100 yards, the Iowa's entire battery, including the rapid-fire guns, were opened on the Oquendo. The punishment was terrific. Many 12 and eight-inch shells were seen to explode inside of her and smoke came out through her hatches. Twelve-inch shells from the Iowa pierced the Almirante Oquendo at the same moment, one forward and the other aft. The Oquendo seemed to stop her engines for a moment, and lost headway, but she immediately resumed her speed and gradually drew ahead of the Iowa and came under the terrific fire of the Oregon and Texas.

Fate of the Torpedo Boats.

"At the moment the alarm of 'torpedo boats' was sounded, and two torpedo-boat destroyers were discovered in the starboard quarter at a distance of 4,000 yards. Fire was at once opened on them with the after battery, and a 12-inch shell cut the stern of one destroyer squarely off. As the shell struck, a small torpedo boat fired back at the battleship, sending a shell within a few feet of my head. Well up among the advancing cruisers, spitting shots at one and then at another, was the little Gloucester, shooting first at a cruiser and then at a torpedo boat and hitting a head wherever she saw it. The marvel was that she was not destroyed by the rain of shells. In the meantime the Vizcaya was slowly drawing abeam of the Iowa, and for the space of 15 minutes it was give and take between the two ships. The Vizcaya fired rapidly but wildly, not one shot taking effect on the Iowa, while the shells from the Iowa were tearing great rents in the sides of the Vizcaya.

Struck Their Colors.

"As the latter passed ahead of the Iowa she came under the murderous fire of the Oregon. At this time the Infanta Maria Teresa and the Almirante Oquendo, leading the enemy's column, were seen to be heading for the beach and in flames. The Texas, Oregon and Iowa pounded them unmercifully. They ceased to reply to the fire and in a few moments the Spanish cruisers were a mass of flames and on the rocks with their colors down, the Teresa flying a white flag at the fore. The crews of the enemy's ships stripped themselves and began jumping overboard, and one of the smaller magazines began to explode.

"Meantime the Brooklyn and the Cristobal Colon were exchanging compliments in lively fashion at apparently long range, and the Oregon, with her locomotive speed, was hanging well on the Colon, also paying attention to the Vizcaya. The Teresa and the Oquendo were in flames on the beach just 20 minutes after the first shot was fired.

Vizcaya in Flames.

"Fifty minutes after the first shot was fired the Vizcaya put her helm to port with a great burst of flames from the after part of the ship, and headed slowly for the rocks at Accaderos, where she found her last resting place.

Help for the Enemy.

"As it was apparent that the Iowa could not possibly catch the Cristobal Colon and that the Oregon and Brooklyn undoubtedly would, and as the fast New York was also on her trail, I decided that the calls of humanity should be answered and attention given to the 1,200 or 1,500 Spanish officers and men who had struck their colors to the American squadron commanded by Admiral Sampson. I therefore headed for the wreck of the Vizcaya, now burning furiously fore and aft. When I was in so far as the depth of water would admit, I lowered all my boats and sent them at once to the assistance of the unfortunate men, who were being drowned by dozens or roasted on the decks. I soon discovered that the insurgent Cubans from the shore were shooting on men who were struggling in the water after having surrendered to us. I immediately put a stop to this, but I could not put a stop to the mutilation of many bodies by the sharks inside the reef. These creatures had become excited by the blood from the wounded mixing in the water.

"My boats' crews worked manfully and succeeded in saving many of the wounded from the burning ship. One man who will be recommended for promotion clambered up the side of the Vizcaya and saved three men from burning to death. The smaller magazines of the Vizcaya were exploding with magnificent cloud effects. The boats were coming alongside in a steady string and willing hands were helping the lacerated Spanish officers and sailors on to the Iowa's quarter deck. All the Spaniards were absolutely without clothes. Some had their legs torn off by fragments of shells. Others were mutilated in every conceivable way. As I knew the crews of the first two ships wrecked had not been visited by any of our vessels, I ran down to them. I found the Gloucester, with Admiral Cervera and a number of his officers aboard, and also a large number of wounded, some in a frightfully mangled condition. Many prisoners had been killed on shore by the fire of the Cubans. The Harvard came off, and I requested Capt. Cotton to go in and take off the crews of the Infanta Maria Teresa and the Almirante Oquendo, and by midnight the Harvard had 976 prisoners aboard, a great number of them wounded.

An Unparalleled Action.

"For courage and dash there is no parallel in history to this action of the Spanish admiral. He came, as he knew, to absolute destruction. There was one single hope—that was the Cristobal Colon would steam faster than the Brooklyn. The spectacle of the two torpedo boat destroyers, paper shells at best, deliberately steaming out in broad daylight in the face of the fire of a battleship, can be described in one way: It was Spanish, and it was ordered by Blanco. The same must be said of the entire movement.

"In contrast to this Spanish fashion was the cool, deliberate Yankee work. The American squadron was without sentiment, apparently. The ships went at their Spanish opponents and literally tore them to pieces. But the moment the Spanish flag came down it must have been evident that the sentiment was among the Americans, not among the Spaniards.

Capt. Evans is intensely proud of his ship and her men. The Iowa fired 31 12-inch, 48 eight-inch, 270 four-inch, 1,060 six-pound and 120 one-pound shots.

CULLOM IS CHAIRMAN.

The Illinois Senator Placed at the Head of the Hawaiian Commission—A Conference.

Washington, July 12.—The American members of the commission appointed by the president under the act annexing Hawaii to the United States were in conference at the capital Monday. Senator Cullom was chosen chairman of the commission and other officials designated. It was impossible to fix a definite time of departure, but August 1 was agreed upon as the approximate date for sailing from San Francisco. It is expected that about two months' time will be spent in Hawaii and the commission hopes to have its recommendations prepared by the opening of the next session of congress.

The president't intention of continuing President Dole as the governor of the new territory was discussed at the meeting as a matter decided upon and was spoken of most approvingly. The commission favors a full territorial form of government, with a delegate in congress and a local legislation, but they necessarily will postpone the consideration of all matters of detail until they reach Honolulu and have an opportunity to confer with Messrs. Dole and Frear, the Hawaiian members of the commission.

Washington, July 8.—It was by a ceremony of the simplest character that the resolutions annexing the Hawaiian islands to the United States Thursday evening were enacted finally into law. Precisely at seven o'clock the president affixed to the resolutions the words which made them law.

The necessary orders were given during the day to start the Philadelphia for Hawaii, carrying Admiral Miller with a notice of the action of the United States government and directing United States Minister Sewell to take formal possession in the name of the United States.

United States Senator on Trial.

Wilmington, Del., July 12.—A trial probably unprecedented in the annals of this country, that of a member of the United States senate on a criminal charge, began in the United States circuit court in this city Monday afternoon before Judge Edward G. Bradford. The defendant is Richard Rollin Kenney, of Dover, junior United States senator from Delaware, indicted upon a charge of aiding and abetting William N. Boggs, who has confessed to robbing the First national bank of Dover, of which institution he was paying teller, of the sum of $107,000. The counts in the indictment, to which Senator Kenney has pleaded not guilty, charge him with aiding and abetting Boggs to the extent of about $3,500. Two men, Ezekiel T. Cooper, of Milford, and Thomas S. Clark, of Dover, have already been convicted of similar charges, and are now serving terms of 18 months and five years, respectively, in the New Jersey penitentiary.

Sender Must Bear the Expense.

Washington, July 11.—Commissioner Scott, of the internal revenue department, rendered a decision Saturday morning in regard to the question involved as to who shall pay for and affix the war stamps on telegrams and bills of lading issued by express, railroad and steamboat companies. After quoting the law, which is not by any means clear, he concludes that the sender of the telegram must affix and pay for the stamp. In the case of transportation companies Commissioner Scott decides that the companies shall affix the stamp, but that the courts must decide whether the corporation or the shipper shall pay.

SANTIAGO SHELLED.

Bombarded for Two Hours When Flag of Truce Is Received—Miles Arrives in Cuba.

Off Santiago de Cuba, via Playa del Este, July 12.—At half-past nine Monday morning, after several range-finding shots over the ridge protecting Santiago from the sea, the United States cruiser Newark opened fire into the city with her eight-inch guns. The signal corps officers stationed on top of the ridge reported the effect of the shots. The New York, Brooklyn and Indiana participated in the firing, at intervals of five minutes. The bombardment lasted for two hours, when Gen. Shafter reported that the shells were mostly falling in the bay and doing but little damage. The last shot, however, struck a prominent church in the heart of the city, which was heavily stored with powder and ammunition, causing a tremendous explosion. The extent of the damage is not yet known. When the warships ceased firing and before Gen. Shafter had begun a land attack, a flag of truce was seen coming from the city. The object of this is not known.

Gen. Shafter believes the Spanish troops have taken advantage of the truce to flee from the city. The attack on the city Sunday was not an attempt to capture the city.

At two o'clock Monday afternoon the United States auxiliary cruiser Yale, with Gen. Nelson A. Miles, and the United States protected cruiser Columbia arrived. Rear Admiral Sampson visited Gen. Miles immediately on his arrival, and then the Yale went to Siboney, Gen. Miles and his personal staff landing in a pouring rain.

On Board the Press Dispatch Boat Dandy, off Aguadores, Cuba, July 10, via Port Antonio and Kingston, Jamaica, July 12.—The Brooklyn, Indiana and Texas, under Commodore Schley, began the bombardment of the city of Santiago at 5:15 this afternoon in obedience to a request from Gen. Shafter conveyed by a signal from the shore.

The warships lined up from east to west, a quarter of a mile from shore, and fired over the limestone cliffs that come down to the sea and hide the city five miles away.

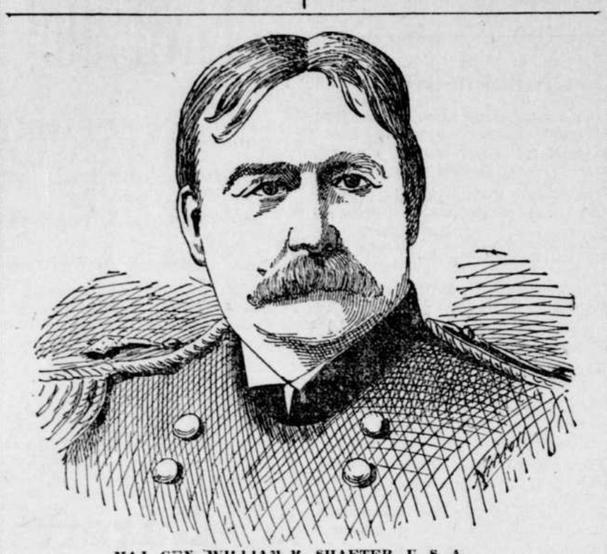
The bombardment was continued for one hour.

After 35 shots had been fired from the eight-inch guns, Commodore Schley became convinced that the Brooklyn's fire was falling short, and ordered a cessation, permitting the battleships to continue, they, with their larger guns, having longer range. The shots were fired apparently with great deliberation, and at intervals of two minutes. The signal from the shore announced that the shells fell a thousand feet short and a little to the left of the Spanish position. At dusk the squadron ceased firing and Commodore Schley sent a launch to shore to ask Gen. Shafter if he desired firing continued during the night.

When the press reporter went aboard the Brooklyn, Commodore Schley said he was ignorant of the purpose of the bombardment. The press reporter read to him a message received at Juragua from a mounted courier saying the armistice was ended and that hostilities had been resumed.

Gives Us Many Vessels.

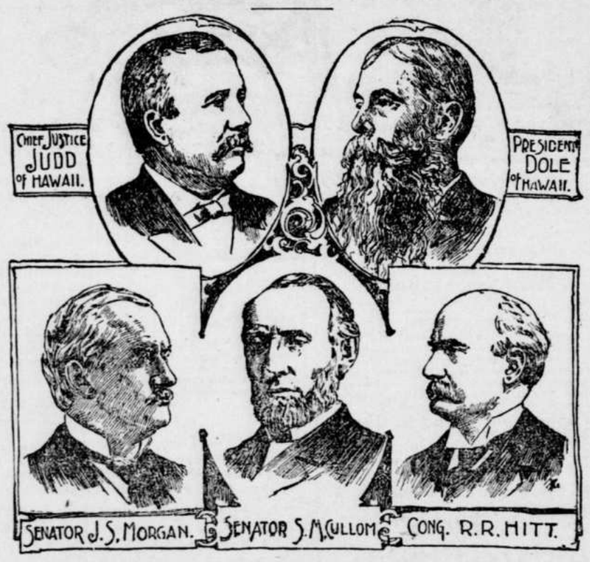
San Francisco, July 11.—The annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States has given American registry to 53 vessels. Of these 24 are steamers, four full-rigged ships, ten barks and 17 schooners. Most of the steamers are now engaged in the inter-island trade.



MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM R. SHAFTER, U. S. A.

This gallant officer who led the army of occupation into Cuba entered the army as lieutenant in the Seventh Michigan infantry in 1861. He received the brevet of brigadier general in 1865, and then became an officer in the regular army, reaching the rank of brigadier general May 2, 1897. He was recently made a major general by President McKinley.

COMMISSION APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT TO ORGANIZE A GOVERNMENT FOR HAWAII



THE FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

A Resume of the Work Done by the Body Which Has Just Adjourned Sine Die.

Washington, July 9.—The house adjourned sine die precisely at two Friday. Immense cheers were followed by singing of patriotic songs. Representative Bromwell, of Ohio, proposed three cheers for President McKinley, which were given twice over by the republicans. Then followed cheers joined in by the entire house for Admiral Dewey and Gen. Joe Wheeler.

The whole house was one vast demonstration and flags were passed about to every member and were enthusiastically waved while the members sang at the close of the Fifty-fifth congress.

Washington, July 9.—The senate adjourned sine die at 2:06 p. m. Before adjournment the senate in executive session confirmed all the nominations sent in by the president.

Washington, July 9.—The passing of the second session of the Fifty-fifth congress marks the close of the first war congress in a quarter of a century.

Hawaiian annexation, Spain and Cuba, war appropriations and war revenue legislation, organization of the vast volunteer army and expansion of the navy, a new bankruptcy law—all these were features of the session. Notable speeches and dramatic scenes over foreign issues were comparatively frequent in both legislative chambers. Urgent deficiency bills, carrying millions of dollars, were rushed through with far less delay than marked the course of an ordinary measure of little importance. The total appropriations footed almost $900,000,000 and upwards of $350,000,000 of this was for purely war purposes. It was the largest aggregate by any session since the civil war and the general deficiency was the largest separate measure since the $750,000,000 single appropriation in 1863. The naval appropriation bill provided for three new battleships, four monitors, 16 torpedo boat destroyers, 12 torpedo boats and one gunboat. The urgent deficiency bills all carried provisions for aggressive work in the prosecution of the war. The general deficiency, enacted in the last days, carried a provision for refunding the indebtedness of the Central and Western Pacific railroads to the government.

Cuba and Hawaii were the important matters of debate and provoked the most widespread interest. Hawaiian annexation, finally passed at the close, was agitated throughout the session, first in treaty form, in executive session, last in open session by resolutions accepting the Hawaiian government's cession of the islands.

There were a number of messages from President McKinley bearing on the Cuban situation, ranging from the submission of a report upon the Maine disaster and the consular reports to the call for a declaration of war.

The first real war legislation was when congress placed, without limitations, $50,000,000 in the president's hands as an emergency fund for national defense. Party lines were swept away, and both houses unanimously voted their confidence in the administration. Soon afterward a bill reimbursing the survivors of the Maine disaster for their losses not to exceed a year's pay, with a similar amount to those who perished, became law. On April 11 the president in a message left the Cuban issue in the hands of congress. Resolutions were soon enacted and became a law April 19, declaring that the people of Cuba ought to be and are free and independent, and demanding that Spain relinquish its authority and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters, and directing the use of our land and naval forces to enforce the resolutions.

The declaration of war was passed by congress and approved on April 25. Subsequent legislation gave free admission to all military and naval supplies purchased abroad by this government; allowed temporary fortifications to be constructed on a written consent of the owners of land so taken and prohibited under executive discretion the export of coal or other war material, and three days before the declaration of war President McKinley had approved the volunteer act. Under it all the soldiers massed against Spain mustered in the entire volunteer army have been raised, embracing 125,000 men under the first and 75,000 under the second call.

One feature of the session was the enactment of the war revenue law. Its framers expected it to produce $150,000,000.

In his connection congress also authorized a bond issue of $200,000,000, known as the war loan.

Other revenue legislation included a bill enlarging in favor of importers the provisions as to disposition of abandoned imported merchandise; and extending the outage allowance on distilled spirits in bonds from four to six years.

Other important legislation, aside from war, included:

Prohibiting the killing of fur seal animals in the North Pacific and importation of seal skins into this country; prohibiting foreign vessels from carrying merchandise directly or indirectly between United States ports; an Alaskan homestead and right of way act, encouraging railway construction; appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the Yukon miners, suffering from the fierce winter there; creating a non-partisan industrial commission to investigate immigration, labor, manufacture and business; appropriating $473,131 to pay the Behring sea awards; creating a commission to allot lands on the Uintah Indian reservation in Utah; adjusting the old land dispute between the United States and the state of Arkansas, the compromise calling for a payment from the latter of $160,572; dispensing with proof of loyalty during the war as a prerequisite in bounty land application where proof otherwise shows title; abolishing the distinction between offered and unoffered lands; the reclassification of the patent system; creating a commission to revise the statutes relating to patents and trade marks; removing the disability imposed by section 3 of the Fourteenth amendment to the constitution heretofore incurred; allowing $288,000 for the relief of the book agents of the Methodist Episcopal church south, for damages during the war; $330,151 for the heirs of John Roach, the Philadelphia ship builder, for work on the cruisers Chicago, Boston and Atlanta; $28,100 likewise for the dispatch boat Dolphin; $69,550 to the Richmond locomotive and machine works for damage and losses in the construction of the battleship Texas.

Late in the session a general bankruptcy law was enacted providing for voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy.

The Teller resolution declaring for payment of the national bonds in silver as well as gold was passed by the senate, by a vote of 47 to 22, but was defeated in the house. Statehood bills for New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma were killed in committee. An immigration bill requiring ability to read and write on the part of those 16 years old passed the senate, but did not reach a vote in the house. The anti-scalping bill, prohibiting ticket brokerage, reported in both houses, went over to the next session. The free homes amendment to the Indian appropriation bill giving over 20,000,000 acres of public lands as free homes for settlers, was finally compromised on a two-years' extension of payment for such lands.

President Gets His Diploma.

Washington, July 9. —President McKinley, upon whom Yale university recently conferred the degree of doctor of laws, has received from President Dwight and the members of the corporation the usual diploma, printed on parchment. The roll was wrapped in Yale blue silk and encased in an oak box.

Died of Her Wounds.

Dubuque, Ia., July 9.—Mrs. Bert Brownell, shot by her husband June 22 at Oelwein, died here Friday. After shooting his wife Brownell killed himself. Her wound was not considered fatal at the time.

HER EXPLANATION.

She Told Him How He Would Make Her and Mamma and Aunty Happier.

There are incidents of real life which constantly prove that truth is often more amusing as well as more strange than fiction. A sweet, gentle-voiced girl—one from whose disposition sarcasm is as far as frost from an active volcano—won the affections of a young man. It was an unintentional conquest on her part, but none the less complete. He propounded the old question and she demurred. He bided his time and again proffered his suit. She again delayed an answer. But the third time she received his question first with silence and then with assent.

"And you will be mine?" he asked.

"Yes."

"It seems too good to be true. When shall the wedding take place?"

"I—I don't know."

"There is no use in putting it off."

"No," she answered; "I think not."

"Say a week from to-day?"

"Very well."

"I knew that you would realize that you can be happier with me than without me," he suggested, a little triumphantly.

"Yes," she answered. "I do realize it now. You see, since Uncle Bob went away, mamma and aunty and I have been quite alone. We all talked it over and agreed that it would be ever so much safer to have a man in the house at nights."—Washington Star.

A Bald-Headed Reply.

A naval officer very well and favorably known in London has for some unknown reason been advanced in his profession very slowly, though he has grown gray in the service, and, indeed, lamentably bald. Recently one of his juniors was bold enough to question him as to his remarkable absence of hair.

"How comes it that you are so very bald?" The officer replied promptly and with much vindictiveness:

"Young man, you would be bald, I think, if you had had men stepping over your head for years in the way I have."—London Judy.

A STARTLED MOTHER.

From the Freeport (Ill.) Bulletin.

While busy at work in her home, Mrs. William Shay, corner of Taylor and Hancock Avenues, Freeport, Ill., was startled by hearing a noise just behind her.

Mrs. Shay Was Startled.

Turning quickly she saw creeping toward her her four-year-old daughter, Beatrice. The child moved over the floor with an effort, but seemed filled with joy at finding her mother. The rest of the happening is best told in the mother's own words. She said:

"On the 28th of Sept., 1896, while in the bloom of health, Beatrice was suddenly and severely afflicted with spinal meningitis. Strong and vigorous before, in five weeks she became feeble and suffered from a paralytic stroke which twisted her head back to the side and made it impossible for her to move a limb. Her speech, however, was not affected. We called in our family doctor, one of the most experienced and successful practitioners in the city. He considered the case a very grave one. Before long little Beatrice was compelled to wear a plaster paris jacket. Prominent physicians were consulted, electric batteries were applied, but no benefit was noticed until we tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"Busy in my kitchen one afternoon I was startled by the cry of 'Mamma' from little Beatrice who was creeping towards me. I had placed her on an improvised bed in the parlor. She became tired of waiting for me to come back and made up her mind to go to me, so her story 'My Pink Pills made me walk,' which she tells everyone who comes to our house, was then for the first time verified. She has walked ever since. She has now taken about nine boxes of the pills and her pale and pinched face has been growing rosy, and her limbs gained strength day by day. She sleeps all night long now, while before taking the pills she could rest but a few hours at a time." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all druggists.

A Credit to the Family.

"That's a pretty big assignment," clucked the city editor's hen, contemplating the 16 eggs in the nest, "but I'm going to try to cover it."

And about three weeks later she led a column of chicks proudly into the city editor's garden.—Chicago Tribune.

A TRAVELLER'S TESTIMONY.

What He Carried on the Cars.

To Take when Travelling.

Every traveller knows that continuous journeying on the railroad is very apt to derange the system in some way. In spite of springs and soft seats there is a continuous jar and vibration, which acts upon the nervous system, and produces results varying somewhat, according to the strength of the traveller or his predisposition to some specific ailment. The most common consequence of continuous car riding is constipation. And this condition invariably produces headache, and tends to biliousness. J. J. Converse, St. Louis, Mo., found a way to avoid the evil effects of constipation, to which he was subject when travelling. He carried with him "the pill that will" cure constipation and all its sequent sufferings. This is what he says:

"Travelling on the cars tends to constipation with me, but by using Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills moderately, my bowels are kept in healthy action. They also prevent headache."—J. J. Converse, St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. Ayer's Pills are good for constipation under all circumstances and conditions. They have cured long standing cases after every other medicine had failed. Rev. Francis B. Harlowe, of Atlanta, Ga., furnishes a case in point. He writes:

"For some years past, I was subject to constipation, from which I suffered increasing inconvenience, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, until some months ago, when I began taking Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and vastly improved my general health."—(Rev.) Francis B. Harlowe, Atlanta, Ga.

Constipation is, perhaps, the most serious physical evil of to-day. It is like the Octopus, that grapples its victim and fastens its tentacles on trunk and limbs one after another, until at last, incapable of longer resistance, the helpless being succumbs to his frightful foe. Constipation is the beginning of many of the most murderous maladies, the clogged system becoming charged with poisons that affect the liver and kidneys, and prostrate the entire being mentally, morally, and physically. Dr. Ayer's Pills will cure constipation. If you doubt it send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, free, containing the testimony of those cured by this remedy. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Nick Frank, is still building on River Street.

—Its either fishing or berrying now. Take your choice.

—Mrs. John Borsch is building an addition to her residence on South River street.

—Raspberries are being marketed. The wild variety are few, small, and most of them wormy.

—The Board of Trustees will meet at the M. E. Church, at 8 P. M. Monday, July 18. Important business.

—Fine strings of fish continue to come to town nearly every day. Small boys bring in about all they can carry.

—The telephone men have again got out of town. They have all the poles set but part of the crew will have to wire through town yet.

—Arch-Bishop Ireland didn't come to Watertown as was expected last week. He is to be there to administer Confirmation on Sunday, July 17.

—Shade trees were trimmed up along the electric light lines so the branches would not interfere with the system. The brush was hauled away Monday morning.

—Mrs. A. D. Smith, received a letter from her husband who is at Hot Springs, S. Dak. He is considerably improved in health, and hopes to be in Delano soon.

—If you don't want to be fined be sure to buy some internal revenue stamps and attach them to papers requiring them when you are transacting business.

—The Fourth Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church for Delano and Montrose District will be held at the church at Montrose, Wednesday, July 20, at 2 P. M.

—Read on the inside of this paper of the closing days of the Fifty-fifth Congress, and of some things they did during the last session. Also, war news, and other items of interest.

—Delano's corps of carpenters and builders are uncommonly busy this year. It seems harder than ever to get a man to drive a nail, saw a board, or plaster up a hole in the wall.

—Stories circulating around town about small boys fighting, and a knife being used, don't sound well. They should be stopped. If there is any truth in them then the boys should be looked after.

—Don't forget the school meeting Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. Polls open one hour. Vote for two of the best men for the positions to be filled, that the town affords. That is the way to have the best school possible.

—Hon. B. F. Christlieb, requests his paper changed from Monrovia back to Pasadena, Cal. He says his health is about as usual. He was surprised to learn from the GAZETTE that Martin Conzet was dead, and asks us to convey his sympathy to Mrs. Conzet and faimly.

—According to people living along telephone lines some of the companies are a trifle sassy, and trim up trees or cut them down as they choose leaving brush scattered all about, and against orders of land owners. Don't a land owners have any rights any more, if not why own land?

—Be at the school meeting tomorrow night. Something must be done about bonds for the Treasurer. It seems that for the past year we have practicably had no Treasurer; but only an acting Treasurer. It is claimed that $10. a year is not sufficient compensation for the work the Treasurer has to do.

—Somehow this going away from America to soldier don't appeal to our boys as did fighting on our own land. Most of the available soldier material seems to think their services are not actually needed copsequently they will continne to toil at home. Should more troops be needed however, there would probably be little trouble getting them, yet awhile.

—A one horse rig going it alone was discovered about six o'clock Tuesday morning near the River Street R. R. crossing. A couple of cases of eggs were partially beaten into batter, others scrambled. Capt. Carver commanded at the gathering up. The horse was made fast to a shade tree near Frank Mann's residence. George Cramer claimed the outfit.

—In compliance with the proclamation of President McKinley, Rev. Farber gave thanks for the recent victories gained at Manilla and at Santiago over the fleets of the Spanish. Mr. Farber took for his text Prov. XIV. V. 34. "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." He handled his subject in a masterful manner, and deserved a much larger audience than was present.

—Hundreds of tons of fine hay, both wild and tame, have been put up during the last week. And several farmers have cut early patches of grain. Now if harvest is rushed a little so as to save all the grain before another series of rains sets in our country ought to be in condition to dispose of an unusually large surplus, this fall. It makes considerable difference to the pocketbooks of our farmers whether they have to furnish the wherewithal to buy feed and flour, or whether they are being filled with the proceeds acquired from the sale of such articles. Lately many farmers have been buying what they should have been selling.

—Some of the friends of boys in the 13th Minn. U. S. Vol. received this week a printed by laws of an organization that has been effected in St. Paul, known as "13 Regiment Minnesota Volunteers Auxiliary Association." It is for the purpose of keeping in touch with the boys, and of aiding them as far as possible, among other thing to procure their returns home when they have finished their work for which they enlisted, so they may not be kept on guard duty for years after their work for which they enlisted has been done. Regular meetings will be held on the first Tuesday each month, at the Commercial Club, in the City of St. Paul. It would be in order for the Delano friends of the regiment to meet and organize as a sort of branch to the main association and appoint a delegate to attend the meeting of the Association, as all cannot well go at once.

Personal.

J. H. Hoover, of Minneapolis, was in town Monday.

John A. Brasie, of Monticello, was in town Thursday.

Ole Buckman left Monday for work on the Foston branch.

Don Ames and daughter, of Rockford, were callers Monday.

Len Sherer, of Litchfield, bicyled about town yesterday.

Will Carney, of Rockford station, went to Marshall Wednesday.

Len Terry and wife of Smith Lake spent Sunday with Delano friends.

J. S. Cooper returned Tuesday evening from a visit in Dodge bounty.

Mrs. C. W. Ingerson, of Lester Prairie, was a Delano visitor this week.

Arthur Meister and wife of Houston, Minn., are guest at the Meister House.

W. M. Mowatt entertained his father from Minneapolis a few days this week.

John Swedeback, from the Northern part of the state visited Delano this week.

John Peterson from the extreme North, came home for a vacation this week.

Mrs. Wolfendon and Fred Peters and the dog came up yesterday from Minneapolis.

William Sturman, Sr. and Aug. Brock, took the evening train Wednesday, for Minneapolis.

John Brandser, with his wife and two boys is enjoying an outing at Dixon's Lake, fishing this week.

Editor A. Y. Eaton, of Buffalo, drove through town with a span of white horses yesterday.

County Attorney Pidgeon passed through town Wednesday on his way to Smith Lake, professionally.

Swan Erickson went to Waverly this morning where he expects soon to begin work on the priest's house.

Misses May Mowatt and Kittie Johnson spent a week visiting in the city. They returned Tuesday evening.

Rollin Crawford, a member of Co. H. the old 3rd Minn. U. S. Vol. of Rockford was in town Monday looking for a sulky plow.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett have been canvassing our town this week in the interests of the American Encyclopoedic Dictionary.

Victor Jacobs, viewed Camp Ramsey Tuesday. He got back home Wednesday, and we understand prefers harvesting grain to soldiering.

C. M. Johnson, of Rockford, F. A. Barth, of Watertown and F. G. Nott, of Howard Lake were among Delano arrivals this morning from Minneapolis.

Wes Doran, wife and two daughters, of Hutchinson, went west this morning on a visiting trip. They had just come from a visit with Rev. John Doran at Eden Valley.

Among visitors to the Fair, Saturday, were Emil Gutzwiller and wife of St. Michaels, H. C. Budd and wife, Maple Plain; Dr. Knight and children, of Minneapolis; Peter Church, of Buffalo; Thomas Walker, St. Michaels Station and John Walker, Rockford; Leon Frazee Monticello; John Rader, Independence; Jud Welker, of Pope county.

County Cullings.

Rev. C. M. Heard, D. D., of Minneapolis, will preach in the M. E. church in Buffalo, next Sunday morning and evening. The subject for the morning sermon will be "The Value of Ideals in Education.

Mr. Heard, preached the Baccalaureate sermon here this summer. He is an eloquent sermonizer.

Brother Eaton seems to have lapsed into what his friend the Rev. Mat Hughes defines by the word pessimist, this week. Nothing appears to suit the Journal, not by a jug full. The whole business is growl and complain like an old bear with a sore head. What can the matter be? Ain't politics pointing right?

Brother Buckley, of the Eagle is evidently whistling to keep up courage until after tomorrow's Judicial Convention. Then you may expece the feathers to fly. Dr. Chilton is not a corporation attorney and he "will not be the only candidate for the nomination for senator from this 38th legislative district."

Frank Larabee, calls Judge Tarbox a Great Northern Judge. The Eagle says: "Judge Tarbox feels quite sanguine of victory at the Elk River convention next Saturday. "The Eagle editor says: "We are not on the "pass" list." But then the Eagle office has been doing lots of job work for Jim's railroad. On the whole this week's Eagle seems to have flopped clear over into the Great Northern camp from top to bottom.

The Republican Judicial nominee for the 18th Judicial District will doubtless be named Saturday, at Elk River; unless some of the Wright County leven gets into the lump; when we wouldn't wonder if the convention worked Sunday. Even though it be a Judicial Convention.

Wright County pays $3.00, Meeker $7.80, and Kandiyohi $5, for Medical Examiners in Lunacy, under the same law, and the Republican Public Examiners O. K. the doings of the county officers, and yet our Republican friends in their state platform haven't a word of objection to such things and are evidently preparing to drag the old machine into power another term by tacking it onto the coat tails of C. K. Davis. Tain't right. There is nothing right about it.

Paul Shicora aged 65 years fell from a boat while fishing in Waverly Lake, last Monday and was drowned.

A large number of teachers took advantage of the opportunity to attend Summer School at Buffalo, lately.

The name of the Republican candidate for Judge of the 18th Dist. is liable to be White Woolley Tarbox or Giddings.

Nothing like being honest. The Buffalo Standard says: Judge Page Morris, of Duluth, is frequently pointed out to visitors in the house galleries as the "Man who defeated Towne."

It seems possible now that there will be several surprises when the county tickets are announced in Wright, this fall. Just at present nobody seems able to hardly surmise what the outcome will be. Democrats and their friends seem bent on having the best possible ticket in the field, even though old timers be relegated to the rear. Republicans are waiting to learn whether what is termed a corporation Judge or an anti corporation Judge is nominated. This will probably be determined Saturday. Then those who see a streak, or think they see a streak of day light illumining their political paths will begin to agitate. Voters will be called on and the usual promises made, and the machine will be oiled up for the campaign. Just wait and see.

County Commissioners met July 11. Full board.

Tax petition, Oliver Veo. recommended.

Commissioners Johnson, Buckman and Lauzer, appointed to count county funds found on hand and in banks $36,035.52.

Names for jurymen for next term were handed in.

Usual bills allowed. Claims of A. G. Holmquist, A. R. Kinnev, Peter Lemme and George Midwood laid over to next meeting.

Adjourned to Aug. 22.

Among Our Exchanges.

Prison Mirror: They made a terrible lot of Spanish fly down in Santiago the other day.

Democrats nnderstand that they are not in it, and they will go down once more to overwhelming defeat and that a lively political canvass would be a useless expenditure of time and money. —Howard Lake Herald.

Sherburne County Times: For all around hoggishness and perfidy in politics, Anoka county even give Wright points, and have some to spare. —When the re-apportionment was made we predicted that Sherburne would be sorry for the change, and the action of Anoka at the recent convention verifies the prediction.

Aitkin Age: The Princeton Union strikes a body blow at the inefficiency of the average resolutions committee, in the following: The Republican platform is notable chiefly for what it left unsaid on the question of state issues. These column long platforms are generally constructed for the purpose of giving voice to a lot of verbose rot that has been festering in the mind of a committee, and do not mean or accomplish anything. Just for the sake of common sense we would like to see one Republican platform condensed into the space of a few lines, and one that said what it meant and meant what it said.

GET UP AND SCRATCH.

Said one little chick, with a funny little squirm,
"I wish I could find a nice, fat worm."

Said another little chichen, with a queer little shrug,
"I wish I could find a nice, fat bug."

Said a third little chick, with a strange little squeal,
"I wish I could find some nice, yellow meal."

"Now, look here," said the mother, from the green garden patch,
"If you want any breakfast, you must get up and scratch."

Who Pays The Tax.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The commissioner of internal revenue has a decision in preparation in which it will be held that the stamp representing the tax on express matter must be affixed to the bill of lading by the express company and not by the individual shipper. This also applies to the government in sending express matters under its contract.

No Longer Deceives.

The Yreka Journal proudly insists that gold is "honest money." Such claptrap no longer deceives the people. They remember the music to which protection was set and sung. Because gold is the rich man's money it does not necessarily make it honest in contradistinction to the poor man's money, silver. In the coming contest shibboleths, it will be found, will have lost their charm, and logic will win. The fact will be emphasized that silver and not gold is the honest money of this fair land. —Martinez County Paper.

In Hawaii they have one very unique custom in regard to debt. Any stranger can get credit almost from the time he sets foot on the island, but so long as he owes a dollar he is not permitted to leave the country. A man who gets hopelessly involved in debt down there had as well make up his mind to becoming a citizen for the rest of his life

A Fortune From a Scare.

An inventive genius who suffered from attacks by stray dogs when riding his wheel, set his wits to work to devise something which would be an efficacious, and yet comparatively harmless, means of defense. As a result he has brought out and patented a pocket pistol which will shoot ammonia, water, or other liquid. The most vicious dog cannot withstand a few drops of ammonia in his mouth or eyes, and yet there is no danger of actually injuring a valuable animal which might playfully annoy a rider. The weapon has proved so much of a success as a means of defense as well as fun making, that the lucky inventor is realizing much money from his device.—N. Y. Dispatch.

Letter From Manilla.

From the St. Peter Herald we reprint the following letter which will be of interest to many of our readers. St. Peter was our former home, and we were personally acquainted with Bob Lamberton who received the letter, also with his wife and her brothers Willis G. Dodd, and J. V. I. Dodd, of St. Paul, and with their father and mother, Capt. William Dodd, killed by Indians at the battle of New Ulm, and his estimable wife.

"R. W. Lamberton received a letter this week from his brother, Captain Ben P. Lamberton, now captain of the Olympia, off Manilla. The letter was dated on June 2' 98, and was just a month on the way. In speaking of the weather there he says it is so hot that all ones energy just oozes out. Referring to the battle of Manilla he writes as follows: "We were ready when war was declared and when we were warned out of Hong Kong, an English Port, we went straight to the Spaniards.—Arrived at the entrance of this bay at midnight.—Steamed in without any lights showing—passing their batteries with no damage and were off Manilla at daylight. As dawn broke, seeing no ships there, we steamed for some ships, the Spanish squadron, about seven miles distant and went at them without a moments delay. The way the shot and shell were flying around for the next two hours, surpassed anything I ever saw. We were putting them straight into their ships, whilst theirs were going over, falling short and bursting all around us. They were uncomfortably near and had a most disgreeable whizz, but the end came when we had two of their largest ships on fire and the poor devils trying to escape. Of course we made no effort to save any of them and all their wounded and killed were burned up. Their loss was very heavy, for I sent off 400 wounded a couple of days later. I buried eight dead whom they left. We destroyed twelve (12) vessels and captured the navy yard filled with stores of all kinds and tons of amunition. We made a finished job and have been fanning ourselves ever since. We are waiting for troops before capturing Manilla, because otherwise we could not hold it. They have batteries there and about 25,000 troops,—but some bright morning we will "go through them like an express train through a country village." I get here, at Hong Kong, the day the war was declared, joined the squadron —five days later fought with the boys." Since then Captain Lamberton, who was a commander at the time of the fight, has been promoted to a captaincy upon the recommendation of Admiral Dewey, for gallantry in action and he now commands the flag ship, Olympia, the best fighting ship in the station. It may also be regarded as a singular coincidence that the Olympia was constructed by the Union Iron Works of San Francisco and that the superintendent of these works is Willis G. Dodd, a brother of Mrs. R. W. Lamberton of this city and an old St. Peter boy."

SOLDIERS FAREWELL.

(From the Hawaiian Gazette.)

Farewell, dear Columbia, thy shores we are leaving,
And light hearts grow sad as thy hills fade from view,
We know that at home many dear hearts are grieving
And trembling lips murmur a loving adieu.
Let bright angels whisper in words low and tender
And tell dearest mother that all will be well;
May spirits of grace ever guard and defend her,
Are the last fervent words of each soldier's farewell.

Dear land of the free! Noblest birth of the ages!
The fairest domain under heaven's blue dome!
Thy record is brightest on history's pages,
And proud is each soldier to call thee his home.
We love thy green fields as they wave in their beauty,
Thy hills, plains and mountains and sweet smiling sky;
The deeds of thy great men shall teach us our duty—
To live like true heroes or bravely to die.

Though sick, faint and weary, with no kind heart near us,
Or heavily marching o'er blistering sand,
Unfurled in its glory thy banner shall cheer us,
When fighting for justice in far distant lands,
Ah! then we will fondly remember the bowers,
The lake, the cool brooklet and each shady dell
Where in boyhood we played when creation was ours,—
America, land of our birth, fare thee well!

REPUBLICAN literature circulating about the country claims that Mr. Bryan gained his information concerning silver in Mexico from palace car windows. Maybe he did some of it. But wherever Mr. Bryan, has traveled the people know that he gets right down among them and absorbs an idea of what is going on about as quickly as the best of hunters after information. Why, he used to be a newspaper reporter himself and knows how to hunt news and knows it when he finds it.

He Quoted A Verse.

"Boys" said a preacher in a Sunday school, "can any of you quote a verse from Scripture to prove that it is wrong for a man to have two wives?"

He paused and after a moment or two a bright boy raised his hand. "Well, Thomas." said the teacher encouragingly. Thomas stood up and said: "No man can serve two masters."—Ram's Horn.

Soldiers at Honolulu.

From the Hawaiian Gazette which we received Tuesday we learn that the 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. are keeping up their record. In the headlines we read "Stunning Regiment From Minnesota." We quote from that paper as follows:

THIRD EXPEDITION.

The steamships Ohio and City of Para, advance pair of Gen. Merritt's own squadron for Manilla, arrived in this port Tuesday forenoon. There were in the same fleet, leaving the same day and expected here hourly, the Morgan City and Indiana. There left San Francisco two days later than all these, the Valencia and City of Newport. Gen. Merritt and staff are aboard the City of Newport.

Aboard the City of Para, which was docked at the Pacific Mail wharf, is the Thirteenth Minnesota Volunteers, already a famous regiment. The command number 1030 officers and men.

Aboard the Ohio are twenty four officers and 954 men with a band. This ship's company includes five companies of U. S. Infantry. Two batteries of U. S. artillery and the First Battalion of Wyoming Volunteers. The senior officer is Col. Van Valzah, Eighteenth U. S. Infantry. Maj. Frank Foote is in command of the Wyoming Battalion.

The troops of this expedition are the first to be drilled ashore at Honolulu as final preparation for service in Manilla. Most of the men are in the brown dungaree uniforms, though the Wyoming battalion used the white canvas suits.

The reception to the two ships arriving Tuesday morning was about the same as to the others. The band and officials and citizens went out in the Wilder steamer Maui and there were the usual exchanges of cheers.

Soon after the noon hour Tuesday the regulars off the Ohio and the Wyoming battalion of volunteers marched out Beretania street. The regulars continued to the base ball grounds and were there drilled for a couple of hours. Maj. Foote halted the Wyoming battalion at Thomas Square. The men were allowed to rest in the park and were drilled in companies on the street by the captains. All of these commands appear to be in a high state of efficiency.

In the middle of the afternoon the Minnesota regiment, which may be called one of the very best in the service was guided to the base ball park by Lieut. Coyne of the N. G. H. Here Col. McC. Reeve drilled his three battalion for an hour and nothing like it in the military line was ever before seen on Hawaiian soil: Every command was executed promptly, in unison and with a snap and confidence that bespoke hours upon hours of earnest work in the earlier days of the organization. All who saw the Minnesota regiment drill would like to have another view of it in motion. The command was given cheer after cheer as it passed along the street, both going to the ball grounds and returning. An excellent band headed the column. The mascot is a little darkey in uniform.

A Devout Officer.

Captain John W. Philip is the commander of the famed battleship Texas. He is a brave man, a good officer, and a Christian gentleman. On Sunday, July 3, the Texas participated in the engagement off Santiago in which the Spanish fleet was utterly destroyed. After the action was ended, he called his crew and officers to the quarter deck, and baring his head he thanked God for the almost bloodless victory, Then turning to his men, he said:

I want to make public acknowledgement here that I believe in God the Father Almighty. I want all von officers and men to lift your hats and from your hearts offer silent thanks to the Almighty.

There was a minnte of deep silence, and then the ship's company broke out into three hearty cheers for their commander. His words will find as hearty endorsement from the American people as was given by his crew. It is proper to recognize, with becoming humility, the Divine favor; but we must be sure our cause is righteous ere we implore the aid of the Almighty. The Spaniards believe that God is on their side, but the trend of events does not bear out the supposition.—Toledo Blade.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Fromour Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24, 1898.

Had there been less monkeying with flags of truce and more co operation between Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson in the campaign against Santiago, the Washington officials would not now be nearly frightened out of their wits by the appearance in the field of Spain's long expected ally, "Yellow Jack". While our army and navy were waiting for the Spanish army in Santiago to surrender, the Spaniards were horrying refugees out of the town into our lines, with the knowledge that some of them would be certain to carry the yellow fever along with them. It was probably owing to the panic in which some of the officials were thrown by the news that the yellow fever had made its appearance in our army and that it was allowed to become public. But not one word can be had officially as to the extent of the outbreak or in what portion of our army it is, further than the admission that there are fourteen cases in the field hospital and some additional cases elsewhere. This is one case in which the censor does more harm than good. Since it is known that the yellow fever is in our army, it would be much wiser to allow the exact facts to be stated than by suppressing them to cause the public to imagine it much worse than it really is. There can be little public rejoicing over the taking of Santiago until our people are assured that there is no danger of yellow fever becoming epidemic in our army.

Admiral Dewey, the one commander who is not hampered by orders from Washington, has been at it aggin, and the result is another victory, with the demolition of the Spaniards. The victory was won by the cruisers Raleigh and Concord, and without the loss of a man or injury to either vessel. A German gunboat might also have been demolished if its commander had not been wise enough to get out of the way before the Americans began to bombard. This German had set himself up as the protector of this particular fort, going so far as to threaten to fire on the insurgents if they attacked it. The insurgents reported that to Dewey and that's why he sent the Raleigh and Concord to capture it. Later the German commander tried to explain his meddling to Dewey by saying that he acted in the cause of humanity. He wanted Dewey to take charge of a lot of refugees that he had on his gunboat, but Dewey told him he had better keep them since he had taken them.

The republican Congressional Campaign Committe professes confidence in the election of a sufficient number of republicans to keep in control of the House in the next Congress, but that committee is not acting up to its professions. If so confident of winning, they should be willing to fight fair in the campaign, instead of engaging in trying to bamboozle voters into believing that all the patriotism is in the republican party and that the democrats in Congress tried to obstruct all the war measures that went through Congress. Of course everybody who is acquainted with the facts knows that the democrats, and the populists, in congress voted for every war appropriation that was asked for. The republican committee has a force of expert word jugglers now carefully going through the Congressional Record for the express purpose of preparing cooked-up documents for campaign use that will misrepresent the position of the democrats in Congress during the session just closed. The committee may overshoot the mark and disgust the decent voters who know that patriotism has never been confined to any political party in this country.

Mr. McKinley has found time, notwithstanding the onerous duties imposed on him by the war, to give Senator Cullom, chairman of the Hawaiian legislative commission, a few pointers on the sort of government he wants the commission to recommend for Hawaii in the course of the next three or four weeks to confer with the two Hawaiian Commissioners, but so far as deciding upon the form of government for Hawaii is concerned the functions of the latter will be only ornamental. So far as can be learned, Mr. McKinley does not wish anything done to create the expectation that Hawaii will become a state. The problem ahead of the commission is somewhat like that which confronted the white people in some of the Southern States in reconstruction times-the commission is expected to recommend legislation that will give Hawaii control of its local affairs and at the same time make it certain that the control is exercised by reputable citizens of the islands. In short, that those who set up and maintained the republic shall continue to be the controlling element. There is likely to be quite a lively time in Congress, next winter, when the Commission makes its report no matter what sort of a government it may recommend.

Capitol Corner Stone.

The Capitol Commissioners hope to make the laying of the corner stone of the new State Capitol an historical event.

The following programme will be carried out on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the new Capitol, July 27th, 1898:

1. A Procession through the streets and terminating at the New Capitol site.
2. Music—(While invited guests are being seated on the stand which will be erected, to hold 1,000 persons.)
3. Prayer.
4. Introductory Address, on behalf of the Board of State Capitol Commissioners, by Hon. C. H. Graves.
5. Music.
6. Oration, by Hon. Cushman K. Davis.
7. Music.
8. Deposit of Metallic Box, containing various memorials, in the Corner Stone.
9. Laying of Corner Stone, by Hon. Alexander Ramsey.
10. Proclamation by Gov. D. M. Clough that the Corner Stone has been securely laid.
11. Music—"America," the audience joining.
12. Prayer and Benediction.

State Prohibition Convention.

The State Prohibtion Convention will take place at the Central Park M. E. Church, St. Paul, July 25, 26 and 27. Its object will be to put in nomination candidates for Governor, Lieut. Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, three Associate Judges of the Supreme Court and Clerk of the Supreme Court. Also to elect a State Central Committee and to transact such other business as may come before it.—GEO. W. HIGGINS, Chairman.

MAPLE PLAIN.

Our weather is all that could be desired for growing crops, and if the crops mature without blight or storm the farmers will have one of the largest crops of grain they ever had.

Farmers are now busy making hay, and the hay crop is immense, in fact it seems that Providence is doing every thing for us in way of crops. Julius Hardt, James Turnham and E. W. Jackson were delegates from our town to the Hennepin County Democratic Convention which was held in Minneapolis last Tuesday. Turnham and Hardt returned on the evening train, and said they had worked all day without nominating even one officer. The fight was over Sheriff, they left Jackson to fight the battle alone. Phillip and Conroy were the opposing candidates for the office of Sheriff. Hardt and Turnham say the convention was an alround love feast. If the Democratic party (or any party) expects to accomplish anything in their conventions or at the polls they must take a different course, such things only drive good men away from the Convention, and from their party. One trouble was there was to much fusion, Democrats, Populist and Silver Republicans all attempted to eat out of the same dish, and it wouldn't work. Men have great greed and love for office now days. Times in the country among the farmers keep about the same. What has become of the $1.75 wheat? What will the price be this fall if crop pan out as they look? Will the Single Gold Standard bring wheat up to $1.50 a bushel?

Minnesota's Agricultural Exhibit.

Minnesota has two magnificent exhibits in the Agricultural building at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition. Grains and cereals are shown in a handsome position on the north side of the main aisle. This is an imposing structure, its height exceeding that of any of the surrounding exhibits, and its general design and decoration being of a most attractive kind. The grains and grasses of the state are utilized in the decoration in a manner which produces the most effective results, and the arrangement of the interior of the pavilion is in keeping with the attractiveness of the exterior. Glass cases of handsome design are grouped about the interior and in these are shown the cereals for which the state is famous. Wheat, oats, rye, barley, millet, buckwheat, timothy, clover and other varieties of seeds are shown in these cases and in glass jars which are arranged on a pyramid occupying the centre of the pavilion. A strong showing is made of No. 1 hard wheat, the staple production in Minnesota. One entire side of the pavilion is devouted to a showing of the numerous varieties of flour made in the state. A huge pile of flour in sacks extends almost to the roof of the building, and in this pile are 120 varieties of flour from different mills. Each of the 400 mills in the state having a capacity of over 125 barrels per day has contributed a sack of its flour, but there was not sufficient room to display all of them at one time.

The second exhibit is that of the flax and wool industries of the state. The showing of the flax industry is in charge of Mrs. Oscar N. Olberg, of Albert Lea, Minn. Mrs. Olberg has acquired a national reputation in connection with the promotion of the flax industry in the United States.

Mrs. Olberg declares that no finer flax is grown than can be raised in the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Iowa.

The wool exhibit made under the direction of the Minnesota commission is in charge of W. J. Burnett, manager of the Northwestern Hide and Fur company of Minneapolis.

The Minnesota exhibit is in charge of C. W. Fields, of Minneapolis, one of the state commissioners.

HONOLULU, July 8th 1898.

DR. CATLIN,
Delano Minnesota.

Dear Sir: I take pleasure in reporting having met your son on his way to Manilla. He arrived here on Tuesday about 6 A. M., on board the S. S. City of Para and they remained here till noon today.

Your son attended a meeting with me at the Central Union Church on Wednesday evening last, where we listened to a lecture on the Philippines by lawyer Castle and he expressed the wish that you could hear it, I asked Castle if he would have it published and told your boy that if it was, I will send you a copy which I send herewith. I thought that perhaps you would like to hear of him from some one else, that is why I drop you this note.

He and the Minn. Reg., and in fact all the boys acquitted themselves very creditably while in port. Six vessels arrived with over 5,000 soldiers and only one sick that I have heard of. I used to live in Minn, and I have great love for any person that comes from that state.

Yours truly,
JONATHAN SHAW.

From the 13th Reg.

CAMP MERRITT, SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—(Times Special)—Letters received from soldiers aboard the City of Para state that the transport reach Honolulu safely July 8. Six in hospital stateroom. All seasick except Major Bean and Captain Morgan, Captain Reeve was too sick to attend the exhibition drill on the president's grounds Five letters state that bad food was served during the passage, and soldiers nearly starved. Had to put peppermint in the water because it was so brackish. Pickles, lemons and other acids in demand. The tradesman took $2.000 out of the Minnesota soldiers alone, for food, between 'Frisco and Honolulu, Sergeant Steele, in a letter to Lieutenant Scott says the food was very good for officers The cost per man daily was 50 cents. Ginger snaps were 50 cents a pound. The natives at Honolulu were enthusiastic for annexation. One monitor and a gunboat accompanied the City of Para to Manilla. They left before the other transport. The troops were grandly received by the Red Cross Society at Honolulu. A merchant vessel carrying the Spanish flag encoutered three days out from 'Frisco. It sailed away. Camp Merritt is condemned as unsanitary. All occupants will move in ten days. A report is current to-night that Minnesota's troops are not going to Manilla. They will be moved to the Presidio at once.—Minneapolis Times.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn, July 19, 1898.

We have had growing weather of late, but last week seemed to break the record for heat, and if it goes to a hundred here in the shade. What must it be down in Cuba and at the Philippine Islands where they manufacture earthquakes and yellow fever. Surely our boys had sooner see an ice berg fresh from the North Pole than to see a gun boat. Crops of all kinds are looking well, and if nothing happens them and the binding twine holds out we will have a large yield. Then some wizzard wheat speculator from some city on the sea (Chicago perhaps) will push up the price of wheat for a fortnight or until he bankrupts himself and his dad, while the line officers in the Republican ranks cry out in derision. "Where is the dollar of your dadies"? For since they have fallen asleep there has been nothing like it. Does wheat and silver bullion now go hand in hand? Yes they make people believe that a silver dollar is worth only 53 cents, and they even seem to feel proud over it because the sharpers fooled them into it. If a silver dollar is not a hundred cents then Congress is a liar. It makes no matter if silver bullion is worth only ten cents a ton, should Congress make all money in this country redeemable in gold, then the money power could crush the common people of this country more than would the wheels of the Jugernot.

A young non commissioned officer being examined for a Lieutenant's position was asked what was the duty of a Lieutenant. He says to follow the captain around and draw his pay. Some say the same way in party politics; follow your leaders around and vote as they dictate.

In early life I thought farming rather a hard occupation, especially for a fellow who had a desire or ambition for honor and notoriety; thought perhaps a profession of some kind or perhaps to dabble in politics would bring a fellow out before the world in shining colors, but I finally settled on farming. Came to the conclusion that it did not take as much brains to raise a hill of potatoes as it did to rob a bank.

Yes farming is all right. The farmer may not wear quite so good cloth as the banker, the merchant, or the chronic politician, but he gets products fresh from the dairy, the field, and garden, and has plenty of fresh air to breath, and lays down at night with a clear conscience, and an empty pocket, and this you know encourages longevity. But there is one trouble about farming, if a farmer makes a dollar clear profit, there will be half a dozen fellows after it before sun down and some of them will get it. But Mr. Editor it is no use to fret over the way things are going for the prophets of old have predicted these things and said they would come to pass, and whether the masses believe it or not it is so.

"But while I do live let me have a country, or at least the hope of a country and that a free country".—John Adams.

But time is on the wing and I fear that we like the Romans, are marching to our destiny unless something that is unforseen stops us in our mad career. The money of the country thrown into the hands of the few will in the ultimate bring about in this country confusion, disorder, discontent, a stagnation in business, and perhaps end in revolution. A starving mob would be worse than all the inmates of the insane asylum let loose at midnight.

We have a grand and glorious country. Let's keep it, and keep it pure if we can. But can we do it when the purity of the church, and the ballot box is at a discount? A first class, high geared bicycle will bring more in the market than the brains of a country minister. The country seems to be top heavy. FARMER.

Judging from the results of the present war, the safest place in battle is on board an American warship. It is ten to one that the vessel will not be hit, and if hit it is one hundred to one that no damage will be done.

The two Spanish fleets sunk at Manila and Santiago numbered in all 18 ships. They lost over 2,800 killed, wounded and prisoners. The American loss was one killed, eight wounded and not a ship was damaged. This is one of the most surprising facts in all history.

Natural gas has been flowing for ages in several sections of the Caucasian provinces bordering the Caspian sea. Many of these gas wells have constantly emitted flames for a period beyond the memory of living men, and are superstitiously spoken of as the "eternal fires."

Before the war Commodore Schley remarked that according to his observation the gunners of the United States navy are unequaled in marksmanship and general service of their pieces. The great sea fights at Manila and Santiago thoroughly prove the justice of the opinion.

Commodore John C. Watson was Farragut's flag lieutenant at the age of 19, and was in all that naval hero's fights from the capture of New Orleans to Mobile bay. This administration, the closing one of the nineteenth century, will be a historic one. It will have witnessed the beginning and ending of the Spanish war, the recognition of the United States as a world-power, the annexation of Hawaii, the liberation of Cuba, and probably the acquisition of Puerto Rico and the establishment of a new government in the Philippines.

When "Fighting Bob" Evans, of the Iowa, was told that Gen. Blanco had notified the American squadron at Havana that he would refuse to recognize the white flag of truce, Evans said: "I am in favor of wrapping a flag of truce around a 12-inch shell from the battleship Iowa, and sending it to Blanco with our compliments. And I would not send the shell in a wheelbarrow, either!"

The railway from the Congo river's mouth to Stanley pool, 240 miles in length, has finally been completed, after eight years' work, and a vast area of the interior of Africa has thus been opened to modern methods of trade and commerce. There are 10,000 miles of navigable waterways above Stanley pool, and 20,000,000 people inhabit the territory which may thus be reached.

The sinking of the French ocean liner La Bourgogne is one of those marine disasters which have come at long intervals to shock the world. They are not wholly preventible, notwithstanding the skill of professional mariners and the extreme care used to avoid such disasters. In this case the loss of 565 lives makes the wreck one of the most distressing that has ever occurred.

S. A. Andree and his two companions, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel, ascended from Dane's island in the balloon Eagle, in the hope of reaching the north pole, on July 11, 1897. Four days afterward, on the morning of July 15, a carrier pigeon alighted on the rigging of the sealer Aiken, cruising in the vicinity of Spitzbergen, bearing a brief message signed "Andree," which stated that he had made only 145 geographical miles north and 45 miles east of the point of departure. Not a solitary word has been heard from the expedition since.

The armor plate placed on our war vessels was perhaps a little high-priced, but judging from the reports from the front it is worth all Uncle Sam paid for it. The cruiser Brooklyn was hit 45 times during the running fight with Cervera at Santiago, when all of the Spanish fleet concentrated their fire on that one vessel with the hope of being able to put it out of commission, and then when our speediest vessel was gone to be able to escape, and the news comes that the Iowa was hit 11 times, twice with 11-inch armor piercing shells, without effect.

When Schley's sailors were destroying Cervera's fleet they probably remembered the Virginius as well as the Maine. It was in Santiago that the Virginius atrocity took place, a quarter of a century ago. The nation which massacred Capt. Fry, of the filibustering steamer Virginius, and his 55 companions, in 1873, in the middle of Cuba's Ten Years's war, may have forgotten all about the savagery, but it is safe to say that many of Schley's sailors had that episode in mind when they sent Spain's fleet to the bottom of the sea as it attempted to escape.

THE LATEST FOREIGN DISPATCHES

WAR NEWS.

Cuban insurgents have a plan of establishing the capital of their government at Santiago.

A dispatch from Gen. Shafter to the war department says that the Spanish commissioners to arrange for the surrender of Santiago were raising points of objection, but that he expected no difficulty in completing the capitulation.

The matter of Cuban independence ought to be left to a vote by the people of the island, says Minister Correa, of the Spanish cabinet. He also says Spain will retain the Philippines and Puerto Rico.

The president in speaking of the fall of Sanitago said that he hoped for early peace. The news from Madrid that Spain had been placed under martial law is regarded as a most hopeful sign.

With 1,008 prisoners of Admiral Cervera's fleet the cruiser Harvard arrived at Portsmouth, N. H.

With several hundred troops Maj. Gen. Otis sailed from San Francisco for Manila.

In Madrid a royal decree was issued suspending throughout Spain individual rights as guaranteed by the constitution and proclaiming martial law.

Lieut. Gen. Miles will go to Puerto Rico at once to decide upon a landing place for the troops. The expedition will be composed of 27 regiments.

The inhabitants of coast cities of Spain are in a panic over the expected arrival of the United States fleet. Barcelona, which is not fortified, is particularly in terror.

The American flag was raised over the governor's palace at Santiago at noon on the 17th while bands played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and cannon fired a national salute. An enormous crowd witnessed the ceremonies attending the surrender of Gen. Toral and the Spanish troops. Gen. McKibbin has been appointed temporary military governor.

Spanish officers, including Admiral Cervera, captured off Santiago, 45 in all, arrived at Annapolis, Md., and were confined in the naval academy.

In his report to the navy department of the surrender of Gen. Toral at Santiago Gen. Shafter says it would have cost 5,000 lives to have taken the city by force.

Capt. Gen. Blanco was completely cut off from communication with Madrid when the United States troops took possession of Santiago.

Final report of casualties in the army since it landed in Cuba three weeks ago has been forwarded to Washington. It shows an aggregate of 1,914 officers and men killed, wounded and missing. The killed number 246, of whom 21 were officers.

The president sent a message of thanks to Gen. Shafter and his army for the brilliant achievements at Santiago.

The stores have been looted in Santiago by the Spaniards, many houses wrecked by the American shells, and misery appears on every side.

FROM WASHINGTON.

It has been decided by the commissioner of internal revenue that all telegraphic messages must be stamped by the senders.

At the close of the war bond sale it was announced that the total bids amounted to $1,300,000,000, or six and a half times the amount of the issue.

The postmaster general estimates the postal receipts for 1898 at $100,000,000, the largest in the history of the department.

THE EAST.

At the leading clearing houses the exchanges in the United States during the week ended on the 15th aggregated $1,204,414,373, against $1,229,813,364 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week in 1897 was 16.6.

In the United States there were 215 business failures in the seven days ended on the 15th, against 229 the week previous and 263 in the corresponding period of 1897.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 17th were: Cincinnati, .654; Boston, .632; Cleveland, .613; Baltimore, .603; Chicago, .570; Pittsburgh, .533; New York, .527; Philadelphia, .458; Brooklyn, .417; Washington, .387; Louisville, .312; St. Louis, .295.

At the annual convention in Buffalo, N. Y., John H. Chapman, of Chicago, was reelected president of the Baptist Young People's union.

Indiana, Second district, R. W. Miers (dem.) renominated. Illinois, First district, Rollin B. Organ; Second, C. Porter Johnson; Third, George P. Foster; Fourth, Thomas Cusack; Fifth, Edward T. Noonan or Frank Kinnare; Sixth, Emil Hoechster; Seventh, Frank C. Rogers, all democrats.

In Owosso, Mich., Edward McKidder killed his wife and himself. Domestic trouble was the cause.

George Stone, of San Francisco, was elected national president by the League of Republican Clubs in session in Omaha, Neb.

A mob killed John Durrett (colored) at Coaling, Ala., for trying to provoke trouble between the whites and blacks.

In Omaha, Cudahy's and Swift's packing houses were tied up by the strike of 3,000 of their men.

The death of Gen. John S. Williams, ex-United States senator and hero of the Mexican and civil wars, occurred at his home near Mt. Sterling, Ky., aged 78 years.

In a saloon row at Farmington, Ia., Push Reece and George Hatter, the latter colored, were killed.

Charles Winant, Frank Waxson and Charles Clark were drowned in the Kaw river just above Kansas City, Mo.

Fire wiped out the Wisconsin River Pulp & Paper company's mill at Stevens Point, the loss being $200,000.

The farmhouse of E. J. Allen, near Junction City, Kan., was burned and three children under six years of age perished in the flames.

In Piqua, O., Rev. P. M. Weddell celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his active service in the Baptist ministry.

Flames that started in the sash and door factory of the Segelke-Kohlhaus company in La Crosse, Wis., caused a loss of $150,000.

At the age of 82 years George Alfred Pillsbury, of the firm of Pillsbury & Co., and one of the best known men in the northwest, died in Minneapolis.

At Brooklyn, Ill., Edward Rawley and his wife were struck by a Wabash train and killed.

Masked men held up a 'Frisco passenger train at Andover, Kan., and secured $500 from the express safe.

Near Washington, Ind., Sarah Cole (colored) was murdered by her divorced husband, James Cole, and Cole also killed himself.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Elizabeth Linton, better known as Mrs. Lynn Linton, a well-known novelist, died in London.

The emperor of Germany has donated 10,000 marks to the Red Cross society for the benefit of wounded Spanish and American soldiers.

With $1,000,000 in gold from the Klondike the steamer Cottage City arrived at Victoria, B. C.

LATER NEWS.

Shafter secured over 10,000 rifles and ten million rounds of ammunition at Santiago.

Nineteen paymasters have gone to pay off Shafters command.

Dewey denies strained relations between himself and the Germans.

There is talk in Madrid of court-martialing Gen. Toral.

A storm in Wisconsin and Michigan does great damage.

WATSON'S WORK.

Canary Islands His First Objective Point to Establish a Base for Coaling Operations.

Washington, July 20.—The Canary Islands will be the objective point for Commodore Watson and his flying squadron. It is pretty generally believed among official circles that before there is an attempt to bombard the Spanish seacoast towns there must be a base for coaling operations.

There is a well defined understanding in high military circles that the present remarkable activity in mobilizing troops and impressing transports does not wholly relate to the invasion of Porto Rico.

From now on the war will be pushed into the West Indian strongholds of the enemy. There are nearly 75,000 troops now preparing to embark for foreign points, only about 25,000 of these including 4,000 already en route under Gen. Miles, are intended for the Porto Rican campaign. The remaining 50,000 will be sent elsewhere.

Troops are being hurried to Jacksonville, Fla., to strengthen Gen. Lee's command, and it is understood that he will lead the expedition against Havana. It is also rumored that the Canary Islands are to be occupied. It is certain that the invasion of Cuba, so successful at Santiago, will be pushed westward along the southern coast.

Mrs. I. N. Barber, principal of the St. Paul school of fine arts, committed suicide at Mendota, Minn., where she was in charge of the summer art school.

Colorado miners have lately been changing the names of their plants to those of famous men in the present war. One of the best-paying copper mines is now called "Sigsbee."

Owing to the extreme drought placer mining in the northern counties of California has been suspended. It is thought that operations will not be resumed until next spring.

Advices from Honolulu state that the executive council of the island government has signed a contract with the Schymser company to lay a cable from the American coast to Honolulu and Japan.

Gov. McCord has received indefinite leave of absence from his duties as the executive of Arizona and will take command as colonel of the regiment of infantry now being recruited in the four territories.

The annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States has given American registry to 53 vessels. Of these 24 are steamers, four full-rigged ships, ten barks and 17 schooners. Most of the steamers are now engaged in the inter-island trade.

PUERTO RICO NEXT.

Plans All Laid for Capture of That Island.

Gen. Miles Sails with a Small Force—To Be Joined by Thirty Thousand Troops—Navy to Assist.

Washington, July 19.—After three days' consultation between the president, Secretary Alger and Gen. Brooke, during which there was frequent communication with Gen. Miles at Siboney, the details of the Puerto Rican expedition were perfected and the expedition itself was gotten under way, Gen. Miles, with some artillery and troops, sailing Monday for Puerto Rico on the converted cruiser Yale, to be followed quickly by an army of about 30,000 men. There are some notable differences in the plans for this expedition and for the stately naval pageant that sailed away from Tampa, under Gen. Shafter's command, to attack Santiago.

No Convoys to Be Used.

First, there will be practically no naval convoys; the navy department has declared that they are unnecessary, that there is not a Spanish warship in the West Indies that dare thrust its bow out of port. In the second place, the expedition does not start from one point, but will be divided among several ports, thus preventing the tremendous congestion that was encountered at Tampa in the effort to start the big fleet. Lastly, there will be no effort made to get the ships away together, but the transports will be allowed to find their own way to their destination without concerted movements.

Miles the Leader.

Gen. Miles leads the way. He had been promised by the president that he should go to Puerto Rico, and the promise was redeemed when the Yale headed Monday from Siboney for Puerto Rico, 800 miles distant. Gen. Brooke will be the senior officer in Miles' command, and upon him will fall the responsibility of the execution of the details of his superiors' plans.

May Be a Bloodless Campaign.

The purpose of Secretary Alger is to make the Puerto Rican campaign a short one. An overwhelming force will be thrown upon the island, and it is possible that a bloodless victory will be achieved when the Spanish become convinced that they have no reasonable chance to resist successfully. The expedition is to comprise 30,000 men at the start, and it will be swelled soon to 40,000 men, and, if necessary, to 70,000 men, the equipment of the volunteer forces having now progressed so well as to warrant the statement that that number of men can be ready for service in Puerto Rico within a very short time. The entire body of troops at Tampa will be taken, numbering about 13,000 men, and including a lot of heavy and light artillery under command of Gen. Rodgers. The expedition will be particularly strong with artillery, as some of that at Santiago commanded by Gen. Randolph is to be drawn upon. Gen. Brooke will take with him from Chickamauga park most of the First and Second brigades of his army corps, the First.

The Naval Plans.

The part which the navy is to take in the assault against Puerto Rico has been fully matured. The several transport fleets will have with them one or two auxiliary craft carrying strong secondary batteries of six or eight six-pounders. Secretary Long said that no time had been fixed for the departure of Admiral Sampson's fleet for San Juan. As to the naval plans he would only say that they would cooperate in every way with the movements of the army.

Martial Law for Spain.

Madrid, July 16.—The Official Gazette published Friday a royal decree temporarily suspending throughout the Spanish peninsula the rights of individuals as guaranteed by the constitution. The decree adds that the government will render an account to parliament of the use it may make of this measure.

The publication of the decree is generally accepted as being convincing proof that Spain is now ready to sue for peace and that negotiations to that effect are actually in progress. The government wishes to have full power to suppress any evidences of discontent or rebellion which might appear. The Carlists are furious and are sure to attempt to create trouble.

Gunboat Destroyed.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, July 18.—The United States cruiser New Orleans has completely destroyed the Spanish gunboat Antonio Lopez, whose captain recently ran his vessel ashore at Salinas, near San Juan de Puerto Rico, upon being chased by two American vessels while attempting to enter San Juan with a cargo of provisions and war materials.

SHAFTER REPORTS.

The General Tells of the Occupation of Santiago—Vanquished Lay Down Their Arms.

Washington, July 18.—The American flag is now waving over Santiago. The first message conveying the news of Santiago's formal surrender was received at the white house shortly before 11 o'clock, just as the president was preparing to go to church.

Late in the afternoon the official dispatch came from Gen. Shafter giving in brief military fashion an unusually clear statement from the general of the day's events. It was entirely satisfactory from every point of view, showing that the American army was in complete control of a city that it would have cost 5,000 lives to capture by storm. Moreover, it was very encouraging from a medical view, in that it showed, contrary to what had been expected, that there was little sickness and scarcely any yellow fever in Santiago, but a great deal of suffering and distress. Following is the dispatch:

"Santiago de Cuba, July 17.—Adjutant General United States Army, Washington: I have the honor to announce that the American flag has been this instant, 12 o'clock noon, hoisted over the house of the civil government in the city of Santiago. An immense concourse of people present. A squadron of cavalry and a regiment of infantry presenting arms and band playing national air. Light battery fired salute 21 guns. Perfect order is being maintained by municipal government. Distress is very great, but little sickness in town. Scarcely any yellow fever. A small gunboat and about 200 seamen left by Cervera have surrendered to me. Obstructions are being removed from mouth of harbor. Upon coming into the city I discovered a perfect entanglement of defenses. Fighting as the Spaniards did the first day it would have cost 5,000 lives to have taken it. Battalions of Spanish troops have been depositing arms since daylight in the armory, over which I have guard. Gen. Toral formally surrendered the place and all stores at nine a. m.

"W. R. SHAFTER, Major General."

At 11:05 o'clock Sunday night Adjt. Corbin made public the following dispatch from Gen. Shafter:

"Headquarters United States Army, Santiago, July 17.—To Adjutant General U. S. A.: My ordnance officers report about 7,000 rifles turned in to-day and 600,000 cartridges. At the mouth of the harbor there are quite a number of fine modern guns, about six-inch; also two batteries of mountain guns, together with a saluting battery of 15 old bronze guns. Disarming and turning in will go on to-morrow. List of prisoners not yet taken.

"SHAFTER, Major General Commanding."

Washington, July 18.—The following messages were sent Saturday by President McKinley and Secretary R. A. Alger:

"To Gen. Shafter, Commanding front near Santiago, Playa: The president of the United States sends to you and your brave army the profound thanks of the American people for the brilliant achievements at Santiago, resulting in the surrender of the city and all of the Spanish troops and territory under Gen. Toral. Your splendid command had endured not only the hardships and sacrifices incident to campaign and battle, but in stress of heat and weather has triumphed over obstacles which would have overcome men less brave and determined. One and all have displayed the most conspicuous gallantry and earned the gratitude of the nation. The hearts of the people turn with tender sympathy to the sick and wounded. May the Father of Mercies protect and comfort them.

"(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

"To Maj. Gen. Shafter, front, near Santiago, Playa: I cannot express in words my gratitude to you and your heroic men. Your work has been well done. God bless you all.

"(Signed) R. A. ALGER, "Secretary of War."

Afraid of Watson.

London, July 16.—It is announced in a special dispatch from Barcelona that the inhabitants of that city are panic-stricken. They believe the Americans will select defenseless Barcelona as the first point to bombard. The local banks are removing their specie to the country, the merchants are sending their goods to places of safety and many of the citizens are leaving. The governor of Barcelona has informed the people that they cannot expect help from the government.

Cadiz, July 16. — There is great excitement here, owing to the expected coming of Commodore Watson's squadron. Many are leaving. The Spanish mail steamers plying between this port and Tangier will cease to run next week.

A Heavy Defalcation.

Springfield, Mass., July 19.—The temporary receivers of the Hampshire savings bank of Northampton have given out a statement to the effect that the defalcation of Treasurer Lewis Warner amounts to $400,000. With the $240,000 which Bank Examiner Ewer estimates were taken from the Hampshire County national bank, Warner's peculations amount in the aggregate to $640,000.

To Be Hawaii's Military Governor.

San Francisco, July 15. — The Call says that it has been practically decided to appoint Col. T. H. Barber, of the First New York regiment, military governor of the Hawaiian islands. The appointments, however, will be only temporary, as Col. Barber is assured that the First will go to the Philippines as soon as it is possible for the war department to relieve it of garrison duty.

WILL FIGHT IT OUT.

Spanish Commander of Philippines Urged to Surrender to Insurgents.

Manila, July 13, via Hong-Kong, July 19.—An important interview has just been held between Gen. Aguinaldo's secretary, Le Garda, and a prominent native white man and the Spanish commander, Capt. Gen. Augusti. The insurgents' representatives urged Gen. Augusti to surrender the city, asserting that 50,000 insurgents surrounded Manila and were able to enter it at any moment. Thus far, they added, the insurgents have been restrained with difficulty, but if the Spaniards continued stubborn, the result would be that the insurgents would be compelled to bombard and storm the city, "with the inevitable slaughter, unparalleled in history, because in the excitement of battle they cannot discriminate." Continuing, the captain general's visitors advised him to disregard the official fictions regarding alleged Spanish victories in Cuba and reenforcements coming to the Philippine islands, and proposed a reconciliation between the Spaniards in the Philippines, under a republican flag, and a joint endeavor to persuade Americans to abandon hostilities in the Philippine islands. Finally, the representatives of the insurgents proposed an appeal to the powers to recognize the independence of the Philippine islands.

The captain general replied that he must fight, however hopeless the Spanish cause. Le Garda then returned to Cavite, taking with him the native, who is a paroled prisoner.

CLASH AT MANILA.

One of Dewey's Ships Halts German Cruiser with a Shell—Irene Brought to Time.

London, July 19. — The Hong-Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says: United States Consul Wildman informs me that as the German cruiser Irene was passing Mariveles, off Manila, the other day, the United States gunboat Hugh McCulloch was sent after her to ask her to stop. As the Irene refused to obey a shell was sent across hew bow and a small boat went to discover what she was doing. The German admiral protested and insisted that German ships had a right to enter the harbor without being searched, a claim which Admiral Dewey declined to recognize.

It is reported that Admiral Von Diedrichs, who is in command of the German squadron at Manila, interviewed Capt. Chichester, of the British cruiser Immortalite as to what he would do if the Germans interfered with the bombardment of Manila. Capt. Chichester replied that only Admiral Dewey and himself knew that.

Admiral Dewey has protested against the German admiral's disregard of the blockade at Manila. He has addressed that individual in firm language, saying if Germany is at peace with the United States he must change his methods.

Shafter's Losses.

Gen. Shafter's Headquarters, Before Santiago, July 15, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 18.—The final report of casualties in the army since it landed in Cuba three weeks ago has been forwarded to Washington. It shows an aggregate of 1,914 officers and men killed, wounded and missing. The killed number 246, of whom 21 were officers; wounded, 1,584, of whom 98 were officers, and missing 84, of whom none is an officer. Of the wounded only 68 have died. Col. Pope, the surgeon in chief, says this is a remarkably small number of fatalities, considering the large number of wounded. In the field hospitals there has been a small number of septic wounds, and but two cases of gangrene have developed, one of which resulted fatally.

Train Robbed Near Wichita, Kan.

Wichita, Kan., July 18. — The 'Frisco passenger train, leaving here at 9:30 o'clock for St. Louis, was held up on Saturday night by two masked men at Andover, a station ten miles east of here. A citizen of Andover, who learned of the plan to rob the train, attempted to notify the train crew and was shot by the robbers. He will probably die. His name could not be learned. Several hundred dollars were taken from the express car, but the exact amount is not known here. Andover is a flag station and has about 200 people.

Must Be Stamped.

Washington, July 18. — The commissioner of internal revenue has held that receipts used as checks to draw money from banks are subject to the stamp tax. It is said that several banks, in order to avoid the stamp tax, are accepting receipts for cash which, according to the letter of the law, are exempt. The commissioner, however, has decided that under those circumstances receipts to all intents and purposes are checks, and therefore must be stamped.

LAID DOWN THEIR ARMS.

The Spanish Soldiers at Santiago de Cuba Formally Submit to the American Demands.

SANTIAGO IS NOW UNDER OUR FLAG.

The Stars and Stripes Hoisted Over the Palace at Noon Sunday—Gen. McKibbon Made Military Governor—Arms of Toral's Troops to Be Retained.

Santiago de Cuba, July 18.—Amid impressive ceremonies the Spanish troops laid down their arms between the lines of the Spanish and American forces at nine o'clock Sunday morning. Gen. Shafter and the American division and brigade commanders and their staffs were escorted by a troop of cavalry, and Gen. Toral and his staff by 100 picked men. Trumpeters on both sides saluted with flourishes. Gen. Shafter returned to Gen. Toral the latter's sword after it had been handed to the American commander. Our troops, lined up at the trenches, were eye-witnesses of the ceremony. Gen. Shafter and his escort, accompanied by Gen. Toral, rode through the city, taking formal possession. The city had been sacked before they arrived by the Spaniards. At the palace elaborate ceremonies took place. Exactly at noon the American flag was raised over the palace and was saluted by 21 guns by Capt. Capron's battery. At the same time all the regimental bands in our lines played "The Star Spangled Banner," after which President McKinley's congratulatory telegram was read to each regiment. The Thirteenth and Ninth regiments of infantry will remain in the city to enforce order and exercise municipal authority. The Spanish forces are to encamp outside of our lines. Gen. McKibbon has been appointed temporary military governor.

The ceremony over, Gen. Shafter and his staff returned to the American lines, leaving the city in the possession of the municipal authorities, subject to the control of Gen. McKibbon.

Madrid Sanctions Surrender.

The formal sanction by the Madrid government of the terms of capitulation unraveled the tangled skein of demands and counter demands between the opposing commanders, which threatened to end the negotiations and compel a return to arms. After numerous conferences had resulted in the agreement, already sanctioned by Gen. Blanco, Gen. Toral decided that the approval of the Madrid government was necessary before he would leave the city. Gen. Shafter maintained that no such approval was necessary; that when Gen. Toral agreed to surrender the province of Santiago and Gen. Blanco sanctioned it, the agreement of surrender became an accomplished fact. He insisted that Gen. Toral had either surrendered Thursday or acted in bad faith, but documentary evidence bore out the fact that Gen. Toral mentioned that he only capitulated subject to his government's approval, and the six commissioners by whom the articles were signed at 2:10 o'clock Saturday afternoon so ruled.

The Terms.

The whole matter was cleared up Sunday morning, however, when Gen. Toral received the necessary sanction from Madrid. The agreement consists of nine articles, as follows:

First. All hostilities shall cease pending the agreement of final capitulation.

Second. That the capitulation includes all the Spanish forces and the surrender of all war material within the prescribed limits.

Third. The transportation of the troops to Spain at the earliest possible moment, each force to be embarked at the nearest port.

Fourth. That the Spanish officers shall retain their side arms and the enlisted men their personal property.

Fifth. That after the final capitulation the Spanish forces shall assist in the removal of all obstructions to navigation in Santiago harbor.

Sixth. That after the final capitulation the commanding officers shall furnish a complete inventory of all arms and munitions of war and a roster of all the soldiers in the district.

Seventh. That the Spanish general shall be permitted to take the military archives and records with him.

Eighth. That all guerrillas and Spanish irregulars shall be permitted to remain in Cuba if they so elect, giving a parole that they will not again take up arms against the United States unless properly paroled.

Ninth. That the Spanish forces shall be permitted to march out with all the honors of war, depositing their arms to be disposed of by the United States in the future, the American commissioners to recommend to their government that the arms of the soldiers be returned to those "who so bravely defended them."

Will Not Return Arms.

Washington, July 18.—The arms surrendered by the Spanish soldiers at Santiago to Gen. Shafter will be kept by the United States government. This conclusion, reached late Sunday afternoon by the president and Secretary Alger, was made public by the latter as he left his office after six o'clock Sunday night for his home. "All those who have arms will turn them over to this government. This is final." These were the secretary's words when asked for information on the subject. "And," he added, in response to further inquiries and to clear any doubt that might exist on the subject, "the rifles will not be returned to Spain." This decision, no doubt, already has been communicated to Gen. Shafter.

Serious Riot in Shanghai.

Hong-Kong, July 18.—Serious rioting is taking place in the French settlement at Shanghai, consequent on the closing of the Ning Po joss house. Saturday and Saturday night all the available men from the French cruiser Eclaireur were landed with four machine guns. The volunteers, police and firemen were on duty all night. Several Chinamen were killed and wounded and several foreigners were hurt by stones.

Peace Prospects.

Madrid, July 18.—A member of the cabinet in an interview on Sunday asserted that the government was seeking an honorable peace with the United States. El Imparcial says that a member of the ministry declares that negotiations for peace with the United States are only possible so far as the question of Cuba is concerned. To demand more would be to say that Spain must commit suicide.

IT MARKS AN EPOCH.

President's Proclamation for Government of Captured Territory—First Ever Issued.

Washington, July 19.—A state paper that will be historic, marking an epoch in American history, was issued Monday by direction of President McKinley. It provides in general terms for the government of Santiago de Cuba and is the first document of the kind ever prepared by a president of the United States. Gen. Shafter is instructed to have the document published in such manner in both English and Spanish as will give it the widest circulation in the territory under his control. The full text of the document follows:

"Executive Mansion, Washington, July 18, 1898.—To the Secretary of War.—Sir: The capitulation of the Spanish forces in Santiago de Cuba and in the eastern part of the province of Santiago and the occupation of the territory by the forces of the United States render it necessary to instruct the military commander of the United States as to the conduct which he is to observe during the military occupation.

"The first effect of the military occupation of the enemy's territory is the severance of former political relations of the inhabitants and the establishment of a new political power. Under this changed condition of things the inhabitants, so long as they perform their duties, are entitled to security in their persons and property, and in all their private rights and relations. It is my desire that the inhabitants of Cuba should be acquainted with the purpose of the United States to discharge to the fullest extent its obligations in this regard. It will therefore be the duty of the commander of the army of occupation to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come not to make war upon the inhabitants of Cuba, nor upon any party or faction among them, but to protect them in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights. All persons who, either by active aid or by honest submission, cooperate with the United States in its efforts to give effect to this beneficent purpose will receive the reward of its support and protection. Our occupation should be as free from severity as possible.

"Though the powers of the military occupant are absolute and supreme, and immediately operate upon the political condition of the inhabitants, the municipal laws of the conquered territory, such as affect private rights of persons and property, and provide for the punishment of crime, are considered as continuing in force, so far as they are compatible with the new order of things, until they are suspended or superseded by the occupying belligerent; and in practice they are not usually abrogated, but are allowed to remain in force, and to be administered by the ordinary tribunals, substantially as they were before the occupation. This enlightened practice is, so far as possible, to be adhered to on the present occasion. The judges and other officials connected with the administration of justice may, if they accept the supremacy of the United States, continue to administer the ordinary law of the land, as between man and man, under the supervision of the American commander-in-chief. The native constabulary will, so far as may be practicable, be preserved. The freedom of the people to pursue their accustomed occupations will be abridged only when it may be necessary to do so.

"While the rule of conduct of the American commander-in-chief will be such as has just been defined, it will be his duty to adopt measures of a different kind, if, unfortunately, the course of the people should render such measures indispensable to the maintenance of law and order. He will then possess the power to replace or expel the native officials in part or altogether, to substitute new courts of his own constitution for those that now exist, or to create such new or supplementary tribunals as may be necessary. In the exercise of these high powers the commander must be guided by his judgment and his experience, and a high sense of justice.

"One of the most important and most practicable problems with which it will be necessary to deal is that of the treatment of property and the collection and administration of revenues. It is conceded that all public funds and securities belonging to the government of the country in its own right, and all arms and supplies and other movable property of such government, may be seized by the military occupant and converted to his own use. The real property of the state he may hold and administer, at the same time enjoying the revenues thereof, but he is not to destroy it, save in the case of military necessity. All public means of transportation, such as telegraph lines, cables, railways and boats belonging to the state, may be appropriated to his use, but unless in case of military necessity they are not to be destroyed.

"All churches and buildings devoted to religious worship and to the arts and sciences, all schoolhouses are, so far as possible, to be protected, and all destruction or intentional defacement of such places, of historical monuments or archives or of works of science or art is prohibited, save when required by urgent military necessity.

"Private property, whether belonging to individuals or corporations, is to be respected, and can be confiscated only as hereafter indicated. Means of transportation, such as telegraph lines and cables, railways and boats, may, although they belong to private individuals or corporations, be seized by the military occupant, but unless destroyed under military necessity are not to be retained.

"Private property taken for the use of the army is to be paid for when possible in cash at a fair valuation, and when payment in cash is not possible receipts are to be given.

"While it is held to be the right of the conquerors to levy contributions upon the enemy in their seaports, towns or provinces which may be in his military possession by conquest and to apply the proceeds to defray the expense of the war, this right is to be exercised within such limitations that it may not savor of confiscation. As the result of military occupation the taxes and duties payable by the inhabitants to the former government become payable to the military occupant, unless he sees fit to substitute for them other rates or modes of contribution to the expenses of the government. The moneys so collected are to be used for the purpose of paying the expenses of the government under the military occupation, such as the salaries of the judges and the police, and for the payment of the expenses of the army.

"All ports and places in Cuba which may be in the actual possession of our land and naval forces will be opened to the commerce of all neutral nations, as well as our own, in articles not contraband of war, upon payment of the prescribed rates of duty which may be in force at the time of the importation.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"By Order of the Secretary of War:
"H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General."

The Clean-Up at Dawson City.

Victoria, B. C., July 18.—Editor Shippy, of the Skaguay News, says that down on the Cottage City, says that this year's clean-up at Dawson will be a trifle less than $20,000,000, three quarters of this being in the custody of the big trading companies, who will send it down by way of St. Michael. The May West had $750,000 and more and the other boats which left June 2 and July 4 carry the balance of the output. The Dawson newspapers do not approximate the down-river shipments so highly, the Midnight Sun stating that the Weare, Belle and Charles H. Hamilton do not carry to exceed $4,000,000.

Took Poison.

Tampa, Fla., July 19.—Freeman Schley, cousin of Commodore Schley, of the United States navy, died at his rooms on Seventh avenue Sunday afternoon. Monday it was announced by the physician that he died from the effects of an overdose of morphine, and inquiry developed the fact that it was taken with suicidal intention. Prof. Schley was a teacher of languages here and had been for years.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Corner Stone.

The special committee has arranged the parade for the laying of the corner stone of the state capitol. The personnel of the parade will be as follows: Uniform rank I. O. O. F. of St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater and other cities of the state; members of the Grand Army posts from St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities; uniform rank K. P. from St. Paul, Minneapolis and other cities of the state; the fire and police departments of St. Paul and the Hastings Naval Reserves.

The parade will be made up of three divisions, consisting of the military, civic and the fire department, and all civic and military organizations throughout the state are invited to participate.

Governor Clough will also be requested to order out the two batteries of artillery.

The committee on archives has addressed a note to the mayors and presidents of villages, requesting such officers to send to the committee having in charge the collection of archives for deposit in the corner stone of the new capitol, one unmounted photograph, presenting an attractive view of the respective cities. On the back of each photograph should be inscribed the name of the city it represents.

George A. Pillsbury.

George Alfred Pillsbury died at his home in Minneapolis, Sunday, July 17, aged 82 years.

Mr Pillsbury, the elder of the Pillsbury family, became a member of the milling firm of Charles A. Pillsbury & Co., in 1872, but was then a resident of Concord, N. H., and did not remove to Minneapolis until 1878. He had at that time passed the prime of life.

He was born Aug. 29, 1816, at Sutton, N. H. He married Margaret S. Carlton, May 9, 1841.

The Minnesota Academy, located at Owatonna, a school open to all, but under patronage of the Baptist state convention, has been a beneficiary of Mr. Pillsbury's bounty. In 1886 he built, at a cost of $30,000, a ladies' boarding hall. In recognition of this magnificent gift, the legislature changed the name of the institution to "Pillsbury Academy." Three years later the academy was again favored by its generous patron by the erection, at a cost of $40,000, of a new academic building. He also contributed $25,000 towards the endowment fund.

His charitable bequests during life amounted to over half a million dollars.

Crop Report.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Minnesota Section, Climate and Crop Service. Weather Bureau.—The week was dry till the morning of the 18th, when there were scattered showers, except in the southern part of the state. Spring wheat has advanced rapidly, so that it is now turning color as far north as the center of the state. A few correspondents are fearing that the hot weather will cause premature ripening, with consequent deterioration in quality, and lessened yield, but most of them state that the filling is going on nicely. It is said that in the Red River valley the quality is not even over large areas, which gives a patchy appearance. It is thought the first cutting in the state will be from the 20th to the 25th. Winter wheat is all cut. A good rye crop has been secured, and a fine crop of barley is now being harvested. Oats are ripening in the southern counties. Corn is growing very rapidly. A great deal of excellent clover and timothy has been saved in splendid condition. Haying is about to begin in the extreme north.

COMMODORE REMY'S SURPRISE

Relates His Disagreeable Experience in Acapulco While Chasing the Itata.

Commodore George Remy, now in command of the blockading squadron off the northern coast of Cuba, is the same George Remy who commanded the cruiser Charleston in her memorable chase of the Itata in 1891. The latter vessel, it will be remembered, was loaded at San Diego, Cal., with arms and ammunition for the Chilian insurgents, and in spite of the watchfulness of the federal authorities put to sea with her cargo. It was then that the Charleston was sent in pursuit.

Under a full head of steam the big cruiser went at a smashing pace down the Pacific coast, but no trace of the saucy filibuster could be found. Rumors had it that her cargo had been transferred at sea to the Chilian warship Esmeralda. To lend color to this report it was stated that the big South American sea fighter had been sighted off the loast of Lower California a few days before, and that she had been seen repeatedly standing on and off shore, as if in wait. No one could be found, however, to believe this seemingly weird tale, the American sailors in particular pooh-poohing it as a thing to be told to the marines.

The sequel of the story is best told by Capt. Remy himself, who repeated the yarn many times upon his return to San Francisco and indulged in numerous hearty laughs at his own expense.

"We were clipping it off at a 17-knot gait," he said, "and keeping a sharp eye out for our friend the Itata, without catching a glimpse of her. We were well down the Mexican coast when our supply of coal began to run low. We accordingly decided to put into Acapulco for a fresh supply. This is one of the best harbors in Mexico, but, while deep and almost completely land-locked, it is small. There is little more than enough room in it for a dozen good-sized vessels to swing free at their anchorage.

"Well, it must have been a few minutes past midnight when we steamed slowly into Acapulco, and as our ship rounded in we were taken completely by surprise when the searchlights of a warship were flashed upon us. Coming in from the complete darkness that enveloped the sea outside, you can readily imagine our feelings. We remembered in an instant the stories that had been told us of the Esmeralda having been sent north to convoy the vessel we had been ordered to capture, and our first impression was that we had blundered upon our quarry and her protector. If this were true we knew there was nothing left but to fight for it.

"Immediately our men were sent to quarters, ammunition was ordered up from the magazines, and all preparations made for a battle royal. We knew that if the vessel near us was the Esmeralda we would have a warm time, for she and the Charleston were built from the same plans, and were as near alike as two boats could be.

"We turned our searchlights on her and it took us but a minute to discover that she was the Esmeralda. Then we swept the little bay for the Itata, but she could not be located. As it was, all we could do was to keep our men at the guns till morning and await developments. When daylight came there was a puff of smoke from the big Chilian and a salute, which we promptly returned, thundered across the water. Then the other fellow hoisted his anchor and his ship steamed majestically out of the harbor.

"In all my experience at sea that is about as disagreeable a night as I ever spent, but we were ready to fight, if it had been necessary."—Chicago Chronicle.

WAR KEEPS MONEY AT HOME.

Europe Will Miss $75,000,000 of Good, Hard American Cash This Season.

Charles Alvin Gillig, of the "American Rendezvous," in Cockspur street, who has been for 20 years in the business of taking care of travelers from the United States in London, has made an estimate of the loss which the war has entailed upon England in keeping the American tourists at home. He has reason to believe, he says, that this year's season would have been an improvement upon that of last year in the way of travel, and that a grand total of 50,000 Americans would have visited Europe this spring and summer had it not been for the war. His estimate, based upon the carrying capacity of the steamships and upon figures furnished by the companies, is as follows

American line	6,000
White Star line	4,200
Cunard line	8,800
Hamburg-American line	5,800
North German-Lloyd line	7,400
French line	4,200
Anchor line	3,000
Allan line	3,000
Less important lines	7,600
Total	50,000

Mr. Gillig thinks that the recent riots in Italy would have shunted many Americans off on English towns, and that a very high percentage of the 50,000 would have limited themselves to England. According to Mr. Gillig, the American tourists average $1,500 per capita in the way of expenditure, many spending thousands, while others barely squeeze through, and that the total loss this year to England will, therefore, be about $75,000,000.—London Letter.

Japan's Great Steel Plant.

Japan is now building a great steel plant. The works will cost $10,000,000, and will be put into operation within three years. The product of the plant for the first year will be almost exclusively steel rails, and probaly some steel plates for ships. Boiler plates, bar steel and structural iron will follow in order. This steel plant, which will be situated at Yawatamura, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, is on the extreme northern end of the island of Kushiu. This island, according to reports, is rich in coal.—Chicago Tribune.

STONE IN HER STOMACH.

From the Gazette, Blandinsville, Ill.

The wife of the Rev. A. R. Adams, pastor of the Bedford Christian Church at Blandinsville, Ill., was for years compelled to live a life of torture from disease. Her case baffled the physicians, but to-day she is alive and well, and tells the story of her recovery as follows:

"About six years ago," said Mrs. Adams, "I weighed about 140 pounds, but my health began to fail and I lost flesh. My food did not agree with me and felt like a stone in my stomach. I began to bloat all over until I thought I had dropsy.

"I had pains and soreness in my left side which extended clear across my back and also into the region of my heart. During these spells a hard ridge would appear in the left side of my stomach and around the left side.

"These attacks left me sore and exhausted. All last summer I was so nervous that the children laughing and playing nearly drove me wild. I suffered also from female troubles and doctored with ten different physicians without receiving any help.

"My Husband Read."

"My husband having read in the newspaper of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, induced me to try them. I began taking them last November, but experienced no relief until I had taken six boxes. I am now taking the eleventh box and have been greatly benefited.

"I was also troubled with nervous prostration and numbness of my right arm and hand so that at times I could hardly endure the pain, but that has all passed away. I now have a good appetite and am able to do my own work. Have done more this summer than in the past four years put together. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured me and I think it my duty to let other sufferers know it."

Hundreds of equally remarkable cases have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

PLUGGING THE PIANO.

Mr. Gozzleby Finds Temporary Relief from the Heavy Pedal by Simple Means.

"It is a familiar fact," said Mr. Gozzleby, "or it is a fact at least familiar to all fond parents, that children, without exception, like to play the piano with the hard pedal on all the time. All children like to make all the noise they can, in playing the piano as in everything else. Playing upon the piano without the heavy pedal does not disturb me at all; but the minute the heavy pedal is put on I am greatly disturbed, and the continued resounding of the notes fairly racks me.

"Of course, I can't be forever saying 'don't,' and it's ungracious to say it at all, I suppose, for why shouldn't the children have their fun? And so I hit upon the desperate expedient of blocking the heavy pedal. I have whittled out a nice little piece of soft white pine into a plug that just fits into the space under the pedal in the opening in which it works, so that the pedal cannot be depressed.

"It has only been there two days now, but it has been two days of blessed relief. It can't last much longer, because the children are liable to ask me any minute what's the matter—I wonder they haven't asked me long ago—and of course I'll have to tell 'em. but I am grateful for the rest I have had, and the respite has given me strength the better to withstand, for a time at least, the uproar that will surely come when the children discover the plug."—N. An Open Letter to Mothers.

We are asserting in the courts our right to the exclusive use of the word "Castoria," and "Pitcher's Castoria," as our Trade Mark. I, Dr. Samuel Pitcher, of Hyannis, Massachusetts, was the originator of "Pitcher's Castoria," the same that has borne and does now bear the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on every wrapper. This is the original "Pitcher's Castoria" which has been used in the homes of the mothers of America for over thirty years. Look carefully at the wrapper and see that it is the kind you have always bought, and has the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the Wrapper. No one has authority from me to use my name except The Centaur Company, of which Chas. H. Fletcher is president.

When a man proposes to a woman in fun and is accepted for a joke the foundation for real trouble has been laid.

The average man's head contains about 128,000 hairs. A woman often has more, but many of them are not indigenous.—Chicago Evening News.

A Dilemma and the Way Out.

There are thousands of Hay-Fever and Asthma sufferers who cannot resort to a change of climate during their annual attacks, either because of the expense or because duties at home will not permit their absence. They have to stay and suffer.

There are many, also, who are year by year finding that places heretofore exempt are becoming less and less so, and they must move on to find new locations where they can escape the Hay-Fever fiend.

Now this is all wrong. When doctors tell you that Hay-Fever cannot be cured, they simply mean that they cannot cure you.

What is it that makes one man have Hay-Fever or Asthma and another escape entirely right by his side, exposed to the same pollen, same dust, same influences? The dust is not the cause; the pollen is not the cause; nasal growths are not the cause.

The disease is in the blood and nervous system; and it is the constitutional pre-disposition that gives power to the dust or pollen or other exciting influences, to awaken the disease and make one man suffer while another goes free.

Our constitutional treatment for Asthma and Hay-Fever is addressed to this pre-disposition, and by changing the constitution it eradicates the cause and cures to stay cured, taking out of a man that which makes him different from the man who has no disease, and giving a robust body strong and healthful. That these statements are correct, and that our treatment does just what we say, is testified to by thousands who have tried it and know whereof they speak. You can have the names and addresses if you wish them.

The hair

is like a plant. What makes the plant fade and wither? Usually lack of necessary nourishment. The reason why Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its normal color, stops hair from falling, and makes it grow, is because it supplies the nourishment the hair needs.

"When a girl at school, in Reading, Ohio, I had a severe attack of brain fever. On my recovery, I found myself perfectly bald and, for a long time, I feared I should be permanently so. DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The trustee's meetingof the M. E. Church did not materialize Monday evening; a quorum not being present.

—Read the interesting letter from our special correspondent with the 13th Reg. Minn Vol. U. S. A., written from Honolulu.

—Quite a number of the voters in Independent School District No. 34 are awfully sorry they were not out to the annual election.

—Joe Merriman is now chief of police having succeeded to the office on the retirement of Martin Nelson who has so long held the position.

—John Brandser has our thanks for some of the finest fish we ever ate; Black Bass caught at the lake near Fred Brandes' residence. When you go fishing again John don't forget us.

—Bicycles since roads are better, are again becoming more numerous in our village. Almost daily arrivals from the cities and from the west are noted on our street. Some of the riders look tired especially on hot days.

—There was quite a change in temperature from Monday to Tuesday evening. Monday was hot and mosquitoes bad, Tuesday was to cold for mosquitoes and Wednesday morning people wanted fires to sit by.

—Village officers ought to obey the ordinances and not get out into the middle of the street and shoot, (contrary to law) on Sunday, or any other time. How can ordinary citizens be expected to keep the laws the officials break?

—Nearly all the boys from Delano, with the 13th, wrote letters home from Honolulu. They are having a large experience. When they get home we presume they can spin soldier yarns as long as the best of the veterans of the late unpleasantness.

—People wishing to see the country, or visit friends in Nebraska, should take advantage of cheap rates to the Omaha Exposition, now in running order. You will be well repaid for your time and trouble in making the trip.

—There is talk of another new drug store in Delano. This time from Minneapolis. There has been so many scares about a new drug store coming here that we are not prepared to say whether or not any reliance can be placed in the rumored coming. When we see it we will belicye it has come.

—John Cunningham, now has city water in his yard, it does to sprinkle the lawn and might be handy in case of fire, but if it was what it ought to be, pure, sparkling, bright spring or well water, instead of dregs from the Crow, it would save carrying drinking water or digging a well.

—Health officer Catlin again suggests that the weather is favorable to a general clean up of the streets, alleys, and premises of the village, and that where individuals have failed to do so the village authorities ought to see to it. Slops about hotels, restaurants, stores and other place should be carted out of town and not fired out onto the ground to breed pollywogs and pestilence.

—Crops of all kinds are looking fine. They should be harvested and well stacked just as soon as they are at all fit, before the fall rains begin. It is much more pleasant work cutting a field of grain just ripe then after it has stood until a large percentage shells out, and a heavy rain or wind has laid half of it on the ground. The early out grain usually is the brightest and best looking and most marketable also.

—James Murphy appeared at the depot Wednesday morning all rigged up in soldier clothes. He says he joined the 15th Reg. about two weeks ago. He makes a good looking soldier. He proudly exhibited a furlough good till 7 o'clock July, 20, signed by the Captain of Company "I" who, so far as we could learn from Jim or the chirography, is a Spaniard; but the attest by Adjutant Fred Catlin was a saving appendage. Jim says he hasn't been in the guard house yet.

—Primary elections now take the place of the old fashioned caucuses. The polls must be open one hour and voters can vote only at the caucus of the party they have belonged to before or intend voting with. The place to see that a stream is pure is at the fountain head, and the place to see that proper men are nominated in Conventions is to see that proper delegates are sent to County Conventions. Don't stay away from primary elections and allow tricksters to get elected to conventions to put up a ticket they know you will not vote for, and which will allow the opposition to win.

—Vaccination don't seem to receive the attention it should by our citizens. It has become an established fact that vaccinated people don't die of small pox. So much so that when the boys join the army they are required to be vaccinated before going to a foreign land where small pox may be contracted. If they wish to be insured they are obliged to sign a waver of all rights to insurance if they die of small pox never having been vaccinated. Children can be vaccinated and cared for at home to for more advantage, and with greater safty than to wait until they are grown to men and women.

- Dogs bites have begun to make their appearance again. The village ordinance on the dog question is not enforced.

—We understand that J. D. Young and Charles Epple Jr, each lost a horse, and Tom Lanway a cow, by death, this week.

—Mrs. M. A. Chance received a consignment of Hawaiian fans by this morning's mail. This will help her to keep cool till her letter arrives.

—Otto Marr, will probably come in for a share of prize money. The Mayflower, on which he is, captured a vessel trying to run blockade the other day.

—On account of changes being made putting in a couple of new, and larger dynamoes than we did have, at the power house. Our villagers have been obliged to hunt up their old kerosene lamps for several nights.

—The ice cream sociable given by the ladies of the M. E. Church, in the lawn on Tuesday evening was, notwithstanding the coolness of the atmosphere, well attended, and things passed off pleasantly.

—Sam Murphy desires the sporting public to know that he is prepared to haul fishing parties to neighboring lakes. He has a good team, a new tent and is prepared to furnish what is needed to have a good fish. He says yesterday Sin Ball and he caught more than they knew what to do with.

—Some of the Crickets were coaxed into playing a game on Sunday with the Montrose nine and got badly scooped. The Crickets have agreed to play no more Sunday games. That's right boys. Law abiding people will now be more than ever interested in your winning every game you play.

—The school meeting Saturday evening was quite a lively one though there was but 45 votes cast. Three names were written on the board as candidates F. H. Lindsley, M. A. O'Hair and Dr. Shrader. The ballot showed for Shrader 35, for O'Hair 23, for Lindsley 22. The rest of the votes scattering. Some discussion was had over several items shown by the acting Treasurer's report, all of which we understand have been adjusted satisfactorily to the board exeept that of the bill of the Eagle Printing Company, the committee appointed to investigate it not having yet reported. The sense of the meeting was voted to raise the salary of the Treasurer so that he can afford to buy bonds from an insurance company and not be obliged to ask his friends to go on his bonds. The question of a back door to the school house was under discussion and it seemed to be the nnanimous opinion of those present that there should be one. Also that a fire drill in each room should be had often.

Lieutenat R. C. Dewey, of the 15th Reg. Minn. Vol. stopped off the train and shook hands with a few friends yesterday, while on his way to Litchfield.

Dr. and Miss Mary Catlin and Rev. Farber and Mrs. Frances E Wilder and Jim Smith represented Delano at Quarterly conference at Montrose Wednesday.

County Cullings.

The Maple Lake Messenger reports the death at her home in Albion, on Saturday, July 9, of Mrs. Mary O'Shea, aged 110 years. She was probably the oldest person in the State. She was born in Kinmore, Kerry County, Ireland, in 1788. John O'Shea of Albion, Mrs. Jos Archambault, of Albion and Mrs. Jas. Whalen, of Chatham, are her surviving children. Forty two grand children and twenty four great grand children also mourn her loss.

Mr. Nugent will be the next sheriff if he wants the office.—Maple Lake Messenger.

Kind of early for a man from Minneapolis to begin picking out a sheriff for Wright county, Mr. DeHaven.

Judge Tarbox said delegates to the Judicial Convention could be bought! Did Giddings have the longest purse? In the interest of justice and humanity, we should hope he did not get the nomination that way.

If you have not secured your second papers remember you must before Aug. 8, or you can't vote at this year's election.

Gustavus Adolphus College announcement for 98-99 has arrived. This school located at St. Peter is forging to the front. Wright county is well represened; Cokato, Buffolo, Waverly having students there.

Delegate Billings intorms us that it required 38 ballots to nominate Mr. Giddings of Anoka, for District Judge of the 18th District.

Mrs. Boquist, nearly 82 years old, of Cokato was run over and killed last week while trying to stop her son Erick's team which was running away.

Editor Buckley says they tried to get him to be Chairman of the Republican County Committee, but he wouldn't. Didn't want it don't cher know; They? who are they? Does he mean Tarbox, Woolley, French, or Eaton? Anyway George Carpenters has the yob.

The Eagle accuses Cokato Swedes of wanting all the Republican nominations for office, and then says H. C. Bull and Ed Fairnham are after something. Those names don't have the Swedish jingle. If Mr. B. wants to be along with the Cokato people why don't he move up there and get his name changed to "Buckleyson" and try his luck? Even then we believe Ole Mattson would scoop him on the home run.

John Hutchinson, aged 18, a member of the 14th Minn. Vol., died at Camp Thomas Tuesday, July 19. His home was in Middleville.

Editor Eaton seems to be a very ardent supporter of Judge Tarbox. After Tarbox's speech at the Buffalo Convention how can he, if he is opposed to such things as were practically admitted by the Judge? He says Tarbox, at Elk River had within 4 votes of enough to nominate, and it would have been an honorable and manly thing for Woolley's supporters to have turned to Tarbox and by so doing, and harmony could have been restored in the republican ranks, and this county would have retained the Judge." If Woolley's friends looked at the affair as they claimed how could they give up the fight and go straight over to a man they considered under the obligations to corporations that Judge Tarbox was charged with. Woolly came within 6 votes of the nomination at Elk River, and had about $\frac{3}{4}$ of the delegates at the Buffalo Convention. Under all the circumstances wouldn't it have been rather more "honorable and manly" for Tarboxe's delegates to have supported Woolley? Perhaps Mr. Giddings is the proper man after all.

The Puyallup Citizen says no strawberry grower at Puyallup, Wash., can show a crop of one box to every two plants, taking his field through. This must surely be an error for there are a good many growers around Portland who can make such a showing.—Oregon Agriculturist.

A. N. Dare who was recently defeated for state senator in the Forty Fifth Legislative District is being urged to accept of the vacant House nomination and in the event of his election become Speaker of that body. It is a question whether he could secure the support of Anoka county for the speakership. Anoka county's promises don't mean much.—Buffalo Standard.

While we deplore the action of the five supporters of Judge Tarbox who openly proclaimed their support to his candidacy and bolted the action of the county convention that instructed in favor of Judge Woolley our feeling changes to respect and admiration when we compare their action with the contemptible course taken by at least three of the Wright county delegation who after pledging themselves on the day of the convention to support Judge Woollev's candidancy opposed him in the most cowardly manner, and Why?—Buffalo Standard.

Anoka county is likely to lose considerable support in its contest for the Fourth Insane Asylum. It is possible that some other location than either Hastings or Anoka will be chosen. Delano offered the commission appointed to locate the asylum the best and most valuable site of any city entering the contest and there is some reason to believe that if she enters the list at the next session of the legislature she may be able to win out and secure not only the location but an adequate appropriation to erect the necessary building.—Buffalo Standard.

From the 13th Reg.

HONOLULU, HAWAII, July 5th, 1898.

FATHER: Having met and formed the Assessor's acquaintance I am now at the great pleasure of writing to you in full, so far as possible, all the circumstances and instances of interest of our short but seemingly long voyage, thus far.

On Sunday we broke camp and marched through the city of San Francisco to the mail dock pier, where we boarded the ship called the 'City of Para". We numbered nearly a thousand. Along toward evening we retired to awake in the same position, lying along the pier. About 10 o'clock we swung out into the bay and cast anchor, which was weighed at 2 P. M., then the voyage begun with our band playing "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and "Star Spangled Banner" by turns, which were very popular pieces. During the day about a dozen private tugs also had bands aboard, which chimed in with the much favored pieces.

Along about 4:00 P. M. the fun began. I ran to the railing to spit overboard, and actually believe I should have lost my shoes had I not been standing on them to hold them down. I was by no means the first either. Some of the boys never got sick at all, but I did.

The boat left the other three boats behind so we arrived about a day ahead of the other first to arrived, which was the Ohio, filled with Idaho boys. The only way we celebrated the 4th of July was to put our new brown suits on, which we received Sunday. The voyage was a pleasant one after the first two days.

When we sighted land this morning about 2:00 A. M, it seemed a grand thing to see. Upon entering the bay we found a body of water something like a small lake. Flying fish were the only kind of fish we saw. Some claim to have seen sharks, but they must have been "card sharks".

The Colonel's wife was on board. There was one case of typhoid fever, one of appendicitis, and several smaller cases. For my part I broke out with the small pox from the arm Dr. Beck yaccinated me in. I am now well except have a sore arm.

Honolulu is a magnificent little city. The Assessor claims about 25,000 with about 150,000 on the island. It is situated on the west side of the Oahu island. It can be beautifully fortified if necessary, but as long as the Monadnock is near there is no danger.

There is a large post office with an eagle on the lid of each lockbox. The inhabitants are as near American as they can be and be born on the islands. At this table there are a couple of Japanese and a couple Chinese working as clerks of the office.

I visited several large lawns which were magnificent, also saw about an acre of bannanas growing. The people are very kind, perhaps owing to the fact that they expect to be annexed. All along the east of the city there is a mountain range.

I visited the large printing establishment near the post office, and must say it is up to date. Besides the latest type there is also the type setting machines, two in number.

The Fourth was not celebrated same as here-to fore, so claimed by residents, on account of the expectation of being annexed soon.

I will write as soon as we reach Manilla. Your son,

A. G. CATLIN.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER WRITTEN THE LAST DAY OF THEIR STAY IN HONOLULU.

King Dallicor's band, or what remains, is one of the greatest bands of the world. They were at Minneapolis a few years ago.

We had a ball game to attend yesterday. The score was 13 to 5 in favor of the native team.

This town has a population of nearly 30,000, composed of Chinese, Japs, Portugese, Hawaiians, and English speaking people.

All the boys are well with a few exceptions, who are being sent home; fortunately none of the Delano boys.

At present there are the following vessels here:

Monadnock, a monitor; Moheagan, a condemned wooden vessel of the civil war, which has been turned over to the navy militia of California; Nero, collier for monitor; City of Para, Ohio, Indiana, Morgan City, NewPort, Valencia, transports. Expect to pull out within a day or two, some say today.

This island is composed of coral reefs, sulphur, and some lava. There are two volcanoes on the edge of town.

Have just learned that we pull out at 3:00 o'clock. ALVA.

THEIR SONS ARE MARCHING ON!

They are sleeping in our churchyards;
They are moldering on the plains;
They are mingling with the earth-dust,
While the world enjoys their gains;
They who earned a soldier's glory—
In the bloody years long gone—
Now are resting with their comrades,
But their sons are marching on!

Could they hear the martial music,
In their far-off, peaceful home.
Could they know our brave young soldiers
Cuba's hill and valleys roam;
That the battle cry of freedom
Is a death-knell to the don,
They would send a loyal message
To their sons now marching on!

There'll be other silent victors,
Ere this holy war is o'er;
There'll be some death-laden transports
Anchored on the other shore;
But the heroes of the sixties—
Proud of other victories won—
Will be waiting there with greetings
For their sons now marching on!
—Mary Frances Marrinan in Indianapolis News.

MAJOR BOWLER candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and Julius J. Heinrichs for Secretary of State were present at the State Central Committee meeting Wednesday and both seem sanguine of success this time.

BUFFALO BILL'S Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World will exhibit at Minneapolis Aug. 8, and St. Paul Aug. 9. Excursion rates will be made on all lines of travel to the Wild West on that day.

THROUGH the courtesy of the Minneapolis Times our readers are enabled to read a fac simile of the letter of acceptance of the Hon. John Lind, of the nomination for Governor of Minnesota. Read it on the inside of this piper.

IT seems Mrs. Col. Reeves got to Honolulu when the Col. did, somehow, notwithstanding it didn't seem to be understood that she was on the City of Para, for several days out, and friends in Minnesota supposed her visiting in California. How did she get aboard the transport?

JOHN LIND was with "my men" at the front while the corner stone of the new Capitol was being laid. We don't know where William Henry Eustis was, we didn't see him in the grand stand. War Governor Clough, and Ex War Governor Ramsey were quite conspicuous.

SOME of the Republicans are trying to make out that John Lind made a bargain with Governor Clough to keep out of politics if he was appointed Quartermaster of the 12th Reg. Wonder if they will be charging Hobson, Schley, Lee, Wheeler, and Bryan and every officer and private in the army with the same thing the first time they want to run for office.

JUDGE WILLIS gave as his opinion to the Democratic State Central Committe, of which he is a member, that the Democrates have not lost their standing as a party, and that every vote counted for John Lind would be considered a Democratic vote, and every vote would, when the Populists were in question, be considered a Populists vote, the same with Free Silver Republican or Independent parties. This would then, if held correct, not oblige those parties receiving more than the legal per cent of the vote to get up petitions to place nominees on the ticket.

REPUBLICANS, many of them, think their convention made a great mistake in not endorsing Judges Mitchell and Canty at least for their old places on the Supreme bench. There has been a great deal said about a non partisan Judiciary, but when they have an opportunity to endorse good men for such positions they must throw them overboard in order to get a man on the ticket from a certain part of the state, in order to hold the votes. Mr. Eustis succeeded in carrying Hennepin, because he lived there, in the Republican Convention, but can he carry the county at election? That's another question. Can Judge Lovely carry the State because he was placed where Judge Mitchell ought to be, simply to appease the Van Sant men in that part of the State? The Pioneer Press says they ought to have nominated Mitchell, and we guess they ought.

WILLIAM HENRY EUSTIS, it seems, will have a hard time holding together his forces in Hennepin county. He succeeded in working the personal pride of a sufficient number of Republicans to nominate him, by appealing by personal letters to the Republicans of Hennepin to nominate him because he lived in their county. That scheme as a county issue went; but as a state issue it won't work. It is too thin. And then John Lind happens to be a citizen of the state too, even though he is off with the boys fighting his country's battles.

So soon in the campaign it begins to look mysterious along the path to the capitol for William Henry. Whispers are in the air that he was a part and parcel of the Guaranty Loan business from which Menage managed to escape. Loren Fletcher, they say, was another. With this kind of timber on the road, people begin to grow shy, especially when there is so much of a kind.

Then there is something about William Henry's vetoing some street car business that the people wanted.

And "My Policy" is being talked about considerably. When he was the Mayor of Minneapolis he appeared to be in hot water about all the time with saloon keepers, preachers and others. It seemed he took a middle of the road policy of some kind that didn't suit anybody in particular and against which most everybody was arrayed. He didn't continue "My Policy" but one term, and it is hardly likely that the "fellow citizens" of the state will care to carry "My Policy" to the capitol.

Anyway it looks very much as if Mr. Eustis had, as Gov. Clough says, found a very hard man to run against when he tackled John Lind for Governor.

A Good One.

DAR REESE, I understand there is to be a meeting of the Democratic State Central committee today.

CHAIRMAN ROSING, Yes.

DAR REESE, We are to have ours tomorrow.

CHAIRMAN ROSING, Is it "yours" or "his"?

DAR REESE, (somewhat discomfited) H'm! h'm! haw!

Should Never be Governor.

According to the Buffalo Gazette, William Henry Eustis should never be governor of the great state of Minnesota. When he was a boy he "used to shift the bail of the water pail along to his brother's end of the pole and let him carry the whole load." This is an offense the Gazette can never condone. —Aitkin Republican.

And he has never reformed. He argues that so long as his brother carried the load without knowing it it was all right. He might as well say that so long as a man took $1. a day out of his employer's money drawer and his employer never found it out there was no harm done. The GAZETTE don't want that kind of a philosopher for Governor of Minnesota. Does the Republican?

Republican State Platform.

Under the above head line in the GAZETTE of July 15, we took occasion to point out that the Republicans were silent in their platform concerning the much needed reforms that everybody knows ought to be made.

Mr. Satterlee, of the Annandale Advocate attempts to belittle the remarks by intimating a lot of stuff. Readers in this enlightened age are not to be misled in such a way. Instead of admitting that the Public Examiner, and others have done things that don't look well, he wants to make out that other people are so bad. Now if Mr. Satterlee wants to be good, and work for the best interest of humanity and good government, instead of writing such tirades about his neighbors why don't he tell the people that the Public Examiner don't "O. K." county officers accounts where they in Meeker county pay $7 80, in Kandiyohi $5 00, and in Wright $3. for same service, under the same state law? If he hasn't the "cheek" to do so why don't he put up a defense for doing that kind of business? The GAZETTE wants a better state of affairs even though the Advocate may be made in his minds eye to see "the same Pharisee of old."

Now Advocate if you are an Advocate for the people, and their interests, join in and help root out this rottenness from our State affairs. If you are an Advocate rather of the rottenness, and its continuance, of course you will persist in seeing "The same Pharisee of old." People have stood this thing just about as long as they think they ought to, and we predict notwithstanding the Advocate's obstinacy or obtuseness, they will proceed to cut out the cancer, even though the patient do yell.

Will Meet a Military Death.

CEDAR RAPIDS, July 28.—Word reached here from Camp Cuba Libre, Jacksonville, that Guy Hatfield, of this city, is to be executed in accordance with military rules—that is, shot by a detail of soldiers. In a drunken row soon after pay day Hatfield stabbed another soldier, who died from the effects of the wounds. Hatfield served a term in the penitentiary. When the recruiting officers came here Hatfield enlisted.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22, 1898.

Whether the administration is making a gigantic bluff for the purpose of frightening Spain into begging for peace upon any terms that we may choose to offer, or has actually determined to utilize the enormous resources at its command to force the fighting in every direction until Spain is whipped to her knees, is not clearly apparent at this writing. But everything points to one or the other. Members of the administration say it is the latter. Every good American ought to hope it is.

The Porto Rico expedition, now under way, under command of Gen. Miles and Admiral Sampson, is no bluff, for one of the certainties of the war is that we are to get and keep Porto Rico for our very own. The landing of the advance guard of the troops is expected to be accomplished by the first of next week, and then the combined land and water movement against San Juan will begin. How soon the town will be captured will, of course, depend upon how vigorously the campaign is conducted.

The bluff, if bluff it is, is in connection with the movement against Spain itself. All this week there has been mysterious talk about Watson's fleet being accompanied, or closely followed, by an army of invasion, and the activity in the movement of troops from the various camps, which has been much greater than was necessary in connection with the invasion of Porto Rico, has lent probability to the talk. And the calling of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, who is still drawing salary as U. S. Minister to Spain, to Washington for the purpose of conferring with Mr. McKinley and his cabinet, has not lessened the talk, although some think that Woodford was sent for in connection with some proposition for peace that may have been received, notwithstanding the official denial that any such proposition had either been received or made.

The clashing between Gen. Shafter and Admiral Sampson, which formed such a disagreeable feature of the campaign against Santiago, broke out in the Cabinet this week, Secretaries Long and Alger respectively taking the sides of their subordinates as to whether the valuable Spanish merchant ships that were in the harbor at Santiago when the place was surrendered to Shafter should be held by the army and thus become the property of the government without the payment of prize money or should in accordance with Sampson's demand, be turned over to the navy Just as the two Secretaries were getting warmed up in their dispute Attorney General Griggs settled the whole business by saying: "Neither of you may have the ships. The Supreme Court has rendered a decision on that very point. When there is a joint capture of ships by army and navy, or when the army alone captures them they are not to be considered prizes. Nobody gets any prize money." Official orders have been issued in accordance with what Griggs said.

Those who have stood up for the Cubans are anxiously waiting to see if Shafter's official reports will confirm the press dispatches, as to the insurgents under Garcia being in almost a state of revolt because Santiago was not turned over to them; also as to the numerous stories of shirking, both of working and fighting, on the part of the insurgents. If these stories are officially confirmed, stock in the insurgents will take a decided slump. It has already been seriously affected by the dispatches of the correspondents with the army, many of whom are known to have gone to Cuba strongly prejudiced in favor of the insurgents and more likely to exaggerate their good qualities than their bad ones.

Secretary Alger is being accused of allowing his political prejudice against the Southern regiments, most of the members of which are known to be democrats, to prevents his giving them a chance to win any glory out of the war by fighting. It is pointed out that such extraordinary orders as combining two brigades have been issued from the War Department so as to shut out a southern regiment from each brigade; also that Gen. Fitz Lee was being kept in camp with the hope that the war might end before he had a chance to do any fighting. These are not pleasant things to write, but the accusations are being made, which makes it necessary that they should be written. It is only fair to add that Secretary Alger's friends deny that he has discriminated against either the Southern troops or generals.

There is much criticism in Washington of the hobnobbing of American officers with Spanish officers of the surrendered army at Santiago. The general opinion is that if our officers properly remembered the Maine they would confine their association with Spaniards to military courtesy.

Although it is stated that the yellow fever in our army in Cuba is now under control, Surgeon General Sternburg, to whom all reports from army surgeons are sent, declines to answer a single question about the fever. He will not even say whether it is increasing or decreasing.

Walking as a Tonic.

The lack of proper outdoor exercise, walking briskly and inhaling plenty of fresh air, is the cause of fully one half the ills that feminine flesh is heir to.

Walking, which also means standing erect, with shoulders thrown back, lungs expanded, and head well poised, is the best tonic that can be prescribed for exhausted brains, weakened muscles, and threadbare nerves.

And appropriate dressing is an important item, in order to secure the fullest possible benefit. To walk in tight shoes, a snug-fitting corset, and trailing skirts is disastrous rather than beneficial to womankind.

Club women, who have studied the situation, prepare for their walks by donning short bicycle skirts, short, light jackets, low-heeled, square-toed boots and light hats. The corset, tight or loose, is wholly discarded.—From "Why Women Should Walk," in Demorest's Magazine for August.

TODAY AND TOMORROW.

(Written for The Tribune.)

Today man lives in pleasure, wealth and pride!
Tomorrow, poor, as life itself denied.
Today, lays plans of many years to come:
Tomorrow, sinks into the silent tomb.
Today his food is dressed in dainty forms:
Tomorrow, is a feast himself for worms.
Today, he's clad in gaudy, rich array;
Tomorrow, shrouded for a bed of clay.
Today enjoys his halls, built to his mind:
Tomorrow, in a coffin is confined.
Today, he floats on honor's lofty wave;
Tomorrow, leaves his titles for a grave.
Today, he has delusive dreams of heaven:
Tomorrow, cries "Too late to be forgiven!"
Today, he lives in hopes as light as air:
Tomorrow, dies in anguish and despair.

Below we give some extracts from a speech delivered by W. R. Castle, at the Central Union Church in Honolulu, to which some of our soldier boys listened, and which was published in the Hawaiian Gazette a copy of which Jonathan Shaw, of Honolulu sent us.

Because of Dewey's splendid victory in Manila Bay, the world, and especially Americans, have learned more of the geography and history of that interesting country within the past two months than it has known in three hundred years. Americans are looking beyond the borders of their own great land, into the new world about them. The people begin to feel that there are concerns which affect them, and in which they must have an influence, that are not local to America.

The Philippines extend south from Formosa about 960 miles or 14 degrees of latitude to within 4 degrees of the equator, and over 650 miles from east to west or 9 degrees on longitude. Within their embrace is the whole of the Sulu sea; south and 300 miles away lies Celebes. Manila, about 250 miles south of the extreme north, is nearly 700 miles south east of Hongkong, and over 5,000 miles south of west of Honolulu, lying in latitude 15 north.

It is believed that there are over 1,400 islands, the most of which are insignificant in area, but Luzon and Mindanao, the northern and southern, are truly majestic, the one containing nearly 41,000 square miles, the other over 37,000. The whole group is believed to contain about 115,000 square miles, or double the area of New York State. Samai, Panay, Mindoro, Negros and Palawan each have an area a little more or less than that of the Island of Hawaii, or something over 4,000 square miles. In no part of the world is volcanic activity more evident, although but few active craters attest the fact. Mountains have been shivered to fragments, valleys filled, passages rent from the ocean to the interior; the courses of rivers have been changed, and lakes have been drained or new ones created. With such terrific forces of nature in constant operation, the works of man could stand but a poor show, and many times have towns and villages been wholly destroyed. A great earthquake in 1863 destroyed the city of Manilla, with the loss of nearly 3,000 persons killed and injured, and the damages known to have occurred amount to over $8,000,000. Mountain ranges extend from the north to the south, with spurs running both to the east and west. There are broad plains and a few elevated tablelands; lakes are numerous, and there are a number of considerable rivers. The soil in many places is very fertile, and is capable of unlimited production of the fruits of the tropics. At present sugar, tobacco and hemps are the principal exports, but rice and bananas constitute the main food of a portion of the population. The mineral wealth is probably quite large. Gold, copper, iron, mercury and lead exist and mines are worked to some extent. Coal is also found in two or three of the island, although the quality is not of the best. The mineral promise is such as to indicate good results under the fostering care of an enlightened government.

The Philippines were discovered by Magellan in 1521, and were called the Lazarus Islands for about 50 years, when the name Filipinas first appeared. Manilla was founded in 1571. It lies on one side of a bay of the same name, which is a magnificent sheet of water, being about 120 miles in circumference, having a length of not far from 50 miles and breath of 27, and is is well protected, excepting from the southwest gales which sometimes sweep up the bay with enormous violence and destructive force. At such times the shipping in the harbor seeks refuge behind the headland of Cayite.

Many portions of the interior have never been occupied, nor have the savage tribes been subjugated, and the story of Spanish occupation is one of cruelty, avarice and barbarity similar in much to the story of Mexico, the West Indies, South America and other places of Spanish domain. The history of the Philippines, or of the Spanish control, might be comprised in a very few words, and they would be relentless fanaticism, extortion, cruelty, misapprehension. The effect of such government and of such a financial system has of course prevented the development of the country's resources. With its teeming population, fertile soil and natural resources, the Philippines might easily raise all the sugar required by the world. It could increase its production of tobacco many hundredfold, and they already export annually 150,000,000 cigars. Its resources in fibres, india rubber, various medicinal roots and herbs, dye woods, spices, and other tropical productions are not only hardly known but are probably inexhaustible The islands are also noted for the variety and fine quality of their fruits, among which are the orange, mango, mangosteen, pineapple, guaya, bananas and limes. From the Manilla banana comes the so-called Manilla hemp, which is the most valuable rope making material in use, and in spite of the utter imbecility and repressive tendency of the Spanish system, or lack of system, nearly forty thousand tons of the value of $2,800,000 was exported last year.

Situated but a short distance north of the equator the climate of the Philippines is warm; but the country is not regarded as unhealthy. From November until February the climate of Manilla is endurable. The nights are frequently quite cool, although the thermometer seldom, if ever, falls below 70 degrees. From that time until the following November the heat is oppressive. The hottest months are generally April and May, when there is but little rain. From June on the rain is heavy and in the latter part of the year the country is visited by storms of great severity sometimes accompanied with terrific thunder storms. At Manilla the rainfall runs from 75 to 95 inches a year. During the heated term, business is very largely suspended from 9 o'clock until 5 in the afternoon. In the evenings the streets are brilliantly lighted in the cities, and thronged with a varied population.

The original inhabitants were the Negritos, who are very small, very black and with woolly hair growing in isolated tufts. They rarely attain a greater height than four feet nine inches, but in this country, as elsewhere, they have been overwhelmed by stronger races, although found to some extent in the north. It is believed that not more than 20,000 of them remain. They live in the utmost degradation, very nearly allied to animals in nearly every respect, and can hardly be called religious, their rites consisting mainly of a few attempts to appease offended deities. Next to these wretched beings are the Manthras, a cross between Negritos and the Malays, who first overcame and conquered them. These people are about as degraded and wretched as the Negritos. Then come the Indonesian and Malay races who entered the country from the south and west in the great migrations of nations in the past. They were originally Mahommedans or Buddhists, but today their descendants, numbering not less than six millions of people, are about equally divided between the religions of Rome and Mahomet. In the Island of Luzon the natives are generally called "Tagals" and "Visayans." The former are occupants of the lowlands and generally build their houses upon piles, to avoid the floods which so often overwhelm the flats. The Visayans are more often found in the mountains and upon the islands south of Luzon. The remaining portion of the eight or nine million inhabitants of these islands, is made up of Chinese, Japanese and a mixed race crossed with them. The percentage of Europeans is insignificant, there not being over ten thousand Spaniards, and perhaps twenty-five hundred of all other European nationalities. There may possibly be one hundred Americans, with a few Germans, French and British.

The great question is now presented to the United States, having conquered the Philippines, what are you going to do with them? America cannot with honor return these islands to the Spanish. It cannot thus hopelessly condemn to ruin the millions of that benighted land who are now first seeing the glimmerings of light. America has been the land of liberty and Christian light, and her war with Spain has suddenly thrown upon her hands questions of the gravest and most solemn nature. I believe that the genius of the great republic will deal in a successful and enlightened manner with this matter, as it has met and overcome all difficult questions in the past.

Laying of the Corner Stone.

The corner Stone of the New State Capitol was laid by Alexander Ramsey, on Wednesday. Gov. Clough, presided at the meeting and C. K. Davis made the oration. Mr. Graves, on behalf of the Capitol Commission made a lengthy report.

The parade consisting largely of the 15th Regiment from Camp Ramsey was quite an imposing affair. Not so many people from outside of St. Paul, as one might expect took time to attend. Many who bought tickets at reduced rates, stopped at Minneapolis, and attended to business. However the occasion passed off pleasantly for those in attendance.

The New Capital is to be a much more commodious, and a much more stately building than its predecessor, and an honor to the great state of Minnesota.

WASHINGTON July 28.—The war department to-night posted the following bulletin from General Shafter regarding the condition of the army yesterday:

"Total sick, 4,122; total fever 3,198; new cases fever, 822; cases fever returned to duty, 542."

As light cases are counted it is claimed that the figures make things look worse than they really are.

Secretary Alger has ordered Gen. Shafters army to Mountauk Point, L. I. as soon as it can be moved.

The 15th Reg. is to go to Jacksonville, Fla., when they move. Owing to sickness in the south it may be some time before they start.

The second brigade of the First army corps, with the exception for the 4th Ohio regiment sailed yesterday to join Gen. Miles in Porto Rico. They are expected to reach there by Monday.

It is thought the 13th Minnesota regiment will go to Porto Rico.

The present war has brought to light the fact that Dr. Antommarchi, who attended Napoleon during his last illness at St. Helena, is buried in Santiago de Cuba, where he gave his services free to the poor for many years.

Exports of corn and corn meal last year went up to the unprecedented figure of $75,260,067, an increase of $20,000,000 over any preceding year. The corn exported exceeded in value more than a third of the exports of wheat and flour.

One of the gratifying and unexpected developments of the war has been the friendly attitude of Japan. So far as the formal limitations of neutrality permit the Japanese government has on every occasion shown its good will for the United States, while the sentiment of the people themselves is unmistakably friendly.

The girl students of a school in Missouri sent the following lines to some of the boy students among the troops at Chickamauga:

Fare ye well, intrepid heroes,
Haste to war with its alarms;
You'll return to find us sheroes,
Waiting here with yawning arms;
If the Spaniards do not plug you
In the sanguinary fight,
Hasten back and we will hug you,
In wild spasms of delight.

Admiral Dewey has once more shown that he is abundantly able to hold his own as against enemies in the Philippines and unfriendly influences outside of the islands. The German warship Irene prevented the Philippine insurgents from attacking the Spaniards on Grande island, whereupon Dewey sent two vessels to investigate, at which the Irene withdrew and the Spaniards, after receiving a few American shots, surrendered.

On Sunday, May 1, Commodore Dewey attacked and destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila bay. On Sunday, July 3, the squadron of Admiral Cervera was destroyed by the American fleet in front of Santiago. On Sunday, July 17, the Spanish army at Santiago formally surrendered to Gen. Shafter, and the American flag was raised over the first capital of Cuba. These three Sundays are red-letter days in American history.

It will be remembered that when Cervera reached Santiago with his famous fleet a banquet was given him, at which the archbishop of Santiago made a speech, during the course of which he said: "It is not enough to win victory on the sea. The Spanish flag must float from the capitol at Washington." It is evident from the way that archbishop has been begging Gen. Linares to surrender Santiago that he has changed his mind about hanging the Spanish flag over our capitol.

Statistics published by the treasury bureau show that the foreign trade of the United States for the year ended June 30 was the greatest in its history. The exports amounted to $1,231,311,868, an increase over those of the previous year of $180,318,312. The imports free and dutiable were $616,052,844, less by $148,677,568 than those of the previous year. Of gold, in coin, bullion and ore, there were exported $15,405,591 and imported $120,391,674. Of silver the exports were $55,105,239 and imports $30,924,581.

What is described as the first American tramp steamship built in the United States has just been launched at Bath, Me., for a New York firm. She is 302 feet long, with 42 feet beam and a depth of 25 feet. She can carry 3,800 tons and will seek for cargoes. Americans ought to welcome thisship. It is the sort of tramp we like to see. We have had too many of the other kind in recent years, trailing along our railways and through our farming districts in endless, heartrending procession. The coming of the new tramp may help the going of the old.

The battle of Santiago demonstrated the value of balloon service for determining the enemy's position in an assault. The balloon used at Santiago was connected by wire with the commanding officers of our troops who were thus supplied with important information concerning the location of the enemy. It is reported that this information was of the highest value in preventing our soldiers from falling into Spanish ambuscades. This highly successful use of the balloon for military purposes is another signal achievement of our army.

Yousouf, "the Terrible Turk," who was undoubtedly the greatest wrestler the world has ever known, was among the passengers on board the ill-fated liner La Bourgogne, which was sunk off Sable Island. Yousouf was one of the strongest men the world has ever known; he was able to take Evan Lewis, "the Strangler," and nearly choke him to death at his own game; he has made the best men in the sporting world get down on the wrestling mat and ask for mercy, and yet so terrific was the fight for the boat of La Bourgogne that Yousouf failed.

Admiral Sampson's report of the battle of Santiago is made public.

It is announced the powers will oppose American annexation of the Philippines.

PORTO RICO.

General Miles Lands His Forces at Guanica with Only Slight Resistance—The Spaniards were Surprised.

Washington, July 26.—The war department at 11:30 posted the following:

St. Thomas, July 26, 9:35 p. m.—Secretary of War, Washington.—Circumstances were such that I deemed it advisable to take the harbor of Guanica first, 15 miles west of Ponce, which was successfully accomplished between daylight and 11 o'clock. Spaniards surprised. The Gloucester, Commander Wainright, first entered the harbor; met with slight resistance; fired a few shots. All the transports are now in the harbor and infantry and artillery rapidly going ashore.

This is a well protected harbor. Water sufficiently deep for all transports and heavy vessels to anchor within two hundred yards of shore. The Spanish flag was lowered and the American flag raised at 11 o'clock today. Capt. Higginson, with his fleet, has rendered able and earnest assistance. Troops in good health and best of spirits. No casualties.

(Signed), Miles,
Maj.-Gen. Commanding.

A Report.

New York, July 27.—The Sun's Madrid cable says: It is rumored here that Manilla has surrendered to the Americans. The situation at Manilla is causing the deepest anxiety.

The government believes that the town has been bombarded by the American warships, and that it was concurrently attacked on the land side by 12,000 Americans and 20,000 rebels.

There are 29 vessels engaged in sealing this year in the Behring sea. The total figures of the coast catch officially computed by customs authorities are 10,581 skins, being the total catch of 30 vessels. This is more than twice as large as that of last year.

HIS AIMS ARE HIGH.

Aguinaldo Declares Dictatorship and Martial Law.

But He Will Not Be Allowed to Commit the United States—Another Spanish Cruiser Sunk at Nipe.

Washington, July 23.—There were several events of interest if not of importance at the war and navy departments Friday. Gen. Anderson at Cavite sent a message saying that Aguinaldo had declared a dictatorship and martial law over the Philippines, something that gave the cabinet food for consideration at their regular meeting. There was no disposition to force any issue with the insurgent chief at this time, but it is pretty well understood that he will not be allowed to commit the United States government in the future treatment of the Philippines question.

Don't Want Watson.

It would not be surprising if it should develop that strong European influences are being brought to bear to dissuade the navy department from dispatching Watson's fleet to Europe. But so far they appear to have been ineffectual for it is officially stated that the departure of the squadron is only delayed, not abandoned.

In an authoritative statement on war plans it is stated that Commodore Watson's mission is to find and destroy Camara's fleet and that he is not to bombard Spanish cities or seize the Canaries.

May Be a Costly Delay.

Although Gen. Miles reported by cable from Mole St. Nicholas, Hayti, that he was "moving along well" with the first detachment of the military expedition against Puerto Rico, the body of his dispatch preceding this statement gave rise at first to the apprehension that, like Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Gen. Miles was threatened with a costly delay in landing his expedition on Puerto Rican soil owing to the absence of lighters and tugs. It was said at the war department later on that some of these lighters were already on their way from New Orleans and New York and that no sensible delay would arise on that score.

An Important Victory.

The brief report from Admiral Sampson declaring the success of the expedition to Nipe is really more important than appears on the surface. The Bay of Nipe lies on the north coast of Cuba, almost directly across the island from Santiago. It is purposed to establish a base there which will save at least two days' time in getting supplies into Cuba, as compared with the Santiago route. It will also form a good point of operations against Holguin, not far distant, and if it should develop unfortunately that a restraining hand must be laid upon the Cubans themselves Nipe, in connection with Santiago, would be an effective means of doing this. The following is the message received at the navy department:

"Playa, July 22.—Expedition to Nipe has been entirely successful, although the mines had not been removed for want of time. The Spanish cruiser Jorge Juan defending the place was destroyed without loss on our part. The Annapolis and Wasp afterwards proceeded from Nipe to assist in the landing of the commanding peneral of the army on arrival at Puerto Rico.
"(Signed) SAMPSON."

The Spanish Prisoners.

The Madrid government officially has recognized the proposed return by the United States of the Santiago prisoners to Spain. This recognition came Friday in the form of a letter to Gen. Shafter from Gen. Toral, commander of the Spanish troops at Santiago. The fact of the receipt of the letter was communicated to the war department in a dispatch from Gen. Shafter. In the letter Gen. Toral says that the Spanish secretary of war desires the troops landed at Vigo Coruna on the Atlantic, and at Santander in the Bay of Biscay. The request of the Spanish government will be complied with unless something unforeseen should prevent.

Wine for Sick and Wounded.

New York, July 23.—A firm of wine-makers at Rheims, France, has offered the United States government 1,200 bottles of champagne for the sick and wounded soldiers. The surgeon general of the army referred the offer to the secretary of the treasury, who has issued orders that the wine be admitted free of duty. Part of the wine will be sent to Santiago and the rest to other ports.

Wants to Abdicate.

London, July 26. — A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Shanghai says that Li Houi, the king of Corea, desires to abdicate and take refuge at the British consulate at Seoul. The British consul, however, declines to receive him.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Star Pointer paced a mile Friday afternoon at the Grosse Pointe track in 2:01½, failing to equal his record of 1:59½.

HOBSON ARRIVES.

Famous Lieutenant Comes to Urge the Hastening of the Saving of the Spanish Warships.

Washington, July 23.—One of the most agreeable events of the day was the arrival at the navy department of Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac. The officials were not informed of his approaching visit, except through the newspapers. Consequently when he reached the railway station here at 2:38 o'clock Friday afternoon there was no official there to meet him, and his reception was truly democratic. He succeeded in escaping observation as he passed through the train shed, coat and umbrella in hand, and followed by a porter proudly carrying his bag, but before he emerged from the station some one spied him, a hurrah went up from one throat by him, and in a moment the station resounded with vociferous shouting. The cry of "Hobson, Hobson," rang out and the crowd closed about him, shaking his hand and pushing him about until he was rescued by the police and escorted to his carriage.

The officer was driven at once to the Army and Navy club, and after brushing himself up he drove over to the navy department. A large crowd had gathered about the doorway and the hearty welcome it gave the young officer brought blushes to his cheeks.

About 5:30 o'clock Lieut. Hobson went to the white house to pay his respects to the president. Secretary Long accompanied him, the two walking over to the executive mansion from the navy department. The president received them in the cabinet room. He gave Lieut. Hobson a most cordial greeting and paid a high tribute for what he regarded as one of the most conspicuous acts of gallantry in the history of naval warfare. The lieutenant modestly acknowledged the compliments of President McKinley and quietly turned the conversation to the object of his mission to the United States at this time—the effort that is being made to save to the navy of this country some of the vessels of Admiral Cervera's squadron.

Will Keep Puerto Rico.

Washington, July 22.—The authoritative declaration was made Thursday that the island of Puerto Rico is to be held as a permanent possession of this country as the price of the war. The subjoined practically official statement was made to the press Thursday:

"Puerto Rico will be kept by the United States. That is settled and has been the plan from the first. Once taken it will never be released. It will pass forever into the hands of the United States and there never has been any other thought. Its possession will go toward making up the heavy expense of war to the United States. Our flag, once run up there, will float over the island permanently."

News from Shafter.

Washington, July 25. — The war department at midnight Sunday posted the following:

"Santiago, via Hayti, July 25.—Adjutant General of the Army, Washington: Lieut. Miley has returned from San Luis and Palma Soriano, where he went four days ago to receive surrender of Spanish troops. The number surrendered was larger than Gen. Toral reported—3,005 Spanish troops and 350 volunteer guerrillas gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone to work. Three thousand stands of arms were turned in loaded on ox carts and started to the railroad. Spanish troops accompanied him to San Luis, and all were apparently greatly delighted at prospects of returning home. They were on the verge of starvation, and I have to send them rations. If the numbers keep up as they have, there will be about 24,000 to ship away—nearly 12,000 here, 3,000 from San Luis, 6,000 from Guantanamo, and over 2,000 at Sagua and Baracoa.

They Want to Smoke.

London, July 23.—The Daily Telegraph publishes a dispatch from St. Petersburg which says the ladies of the Russian court are greatly upset at the fact that the czarina has forbidden cigarette smoking in her presence. The dispatch adds that the ladies have petitioned her majesty to withdraw the prohibitory ukase, pointing out that ladies smoke cigarettes at all the courts of Europe and that there are smokers among the crowned heads and the princesses of royal blood, including the dowager czarine, the empress of Austria, the queen of Roumania, the queen regent of Spain and the queen of Portugal, while, they allege, the greatest devotee of all is Princess Henry of Prussia, the sister of the czarina.

Sails to Join Miles.

Washington, July 26.—Maj. Gen. Brooke, commanding the First army corps, sailed Monday from Newport News to join Gen. Miles at Puerto Rico.

LATEST NAVAL BATTLE.

Official Story of the Engagement at Manzanillo—Spanish Gunboats Destroyed.

Playa del Este, Guantanamo, July 22.—The following is the official account of the latest naval victory—that at Manzanillo—modestly told by Commander Todd, of the United States gunboat Wilmington, in his report to Admiral Sampson:

"At seven o'clock on the morning of July 18 the vessels on blockade duty in this vicinity, the Wilmington, Helena, Scorpion, Hist, Hornet, Wampatuck and Osceola, approached the harbor of Manzanillo from the westward. At half-past seven the Wilmington and Helena entered the northern channel toward the city, the Scorpion and Osceola the mid-channel and the Hist, Hornet and Wampatuck the south channel, the movements of the vessels being so timed as to bring them within effective range of the shipping at about the same moment. At 7:50 fire was opened on the shipping, and after a deliberate fire lasting about 2½ hours three Spanish transports, El Gloria, Jose Garcia and La Purciana Concepcion, were burned and destroyed. The pontoon which was the harbor guard and storeship probably for ammunition was burned and blown up. Three gunboats were destroyed. One other was driven ashore and sunk and a third was driven ashore and is believed to have been disabled. The firing was maintained at a range which is believed to be beyond the range of the shore artillery. It was continued until after a gradual closing in the shore batteries opened fire at a comparatively short range, when the ships were recalled, the object of the expedition having been accomplished and the ideas of the commander in chief carried out as I understood them—that is, to destroy the enemy's shipping, but not to engage the field batteries of forts. No casualties occurred on board any of our vessels. Great care was taken in directing the fire that as little damage as possible should be done to the city itself, and so far as could be observed little, if any, was done."

The Spanish loss is believed to have been in the neighborhood of 100 killed. The gunboats destroyed or driven ashore were the Delgado, Guantanamo, Ostralia, Continola and Guardian.

Gen. Garcia Withdraws.

New York, July 22.—A Santiago special to the Journal, dated July 20, says that Gen. Garcia has written a letter to Gen. Shafter declaring that he is disgusted at his treatment at the hands of the Americans, and will therefore withdraw his forces to the hills. The receipt of this information would seem to indicate that the report of Gen. Garcia's death was untrue.

Among the things of which Gen. Garcia complains is the failure of the American commander to officially notify him of the surrender of the Spanish force under Gen. Toral, and he is also incensed at the alleged fact that he was not invited to be present at the ceremony attending the formal capitulation of Santiago.

Another grievance is the retention of the Spanish civil authorities in the administration of their functions in Santiago.

The Confederate Veterans.

Atlanta, Ga., July 23.—The city was decorated with endless miles of bunting for the confederate parade Friday. Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, Miss Winnie Davis, Mrs. John B. Gordon and Mrs. Cabbelle Currie, president of the Daughters of the Confederacy, occupied carriages, as did also Gen. and Mrs. Longstreet, Gen. and Mrs. Hooker and Gen. Wade Hampton. Gen. Gordon, at the Auditorium meeting, introduced Miss Winnie Davis, the veterans giving her a great ovation. A resolution was passed to substitute for "the war of the rebellion," the expression "the civil war between the states." Charleston, S. C., was selected as the place for the encampment next July. Adjourned sine die.

Couldn't Agree.

Wilmington, Del., July 26.—After having been locked up since last Friday at 12:45 o'clock the jury in the case of United States Senator Richard R. Kenney, who is charged with aiding and abetting in the looting of the First national bank of Dover, Monday night were still unable to agree upon a verdict and were discharged by Judge Bradford from further consideration of the case. It is said that since the case went to the jury about 25 ballots were taken and in nearly every instance the vote stood 7 to 5 for acquittal.

Each Wants to Be Ruler.

London, July 22.—The Manila correspondent of the Daily Mail, under date of July 16, commenting on the "state of anarchy among the rebels," says: Each local chief desires to become the supreme ruler of his island. It is pitiful to think that a nation like the Spanish has been beaten by such miserable specimens of humanity. American inactivity is telling on the natives in the rebel districts. Food is plentiful, but there is no money to purchase it, and no way to distribute it.

Garcia Attacks Captives.

Santiago, July 21, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 23.—It is reported that 5,000 Spaniards included in Toral's capitulation while marching to Santiago to surrender to Shafter were ambushed by 4,000 Cubans under Garcia, but put the latter to rout after hot fighting. During the battle Garcia was told his opponents were prisoners of war of the American army, but he scorned the notification.

STRAINING A FRIENDSHIP.

A Story Which Snapped the Bonds That United Two Sweet Young Things.

They were standing at the counter, and I couldn't help but hear.

"Talk about hard luck," said the girl with the hot chocolate. "I know a woman who had an awful thing happen to her over in New York."

'Oh, do tell me about it," gurgled the girl with the ice cream soda.

"Well," went on the chocolate girl, "she's not wealthy at all, you know, and she doesn't keep a nurse. So, one day, when she had to go down town shopping, she took her baby and left it at one of these day nursery creche places. They gave her a check for it, and she went off shopping. She didn't come back to the creche till late in the afternoon, and when she went to take out the check it was gone."

"Good gracious!" said the girl with the ice cream soda, looking shocked. "What did she do?"

"Well," went on the chocolate girl, "they told her she couldn't take the baby without a check, and she'd have to wait till the other babies were taken away, and then she could have what was left. So she waited for hours and hours, till all the babies were gone but one, and when she went to get that—well, the only baby left was a colored baby."

"Oh, how perfectly awful!" exclaimed the girl with the ice cream soda, in accents of horror. "What did she do? Wasn't she perfectly frantic? My goodness, how horrible! Didn't she ever get her baby back again? I should think she'd have been perfectly crazy. What did she do?"

"Oh, said the chocolate girl, coolly, "she took the colored baby. It was hers. She was colored, you know."

And in the silence which followed I could hear the snapping of the bonds of a tender and lifelong friendship.—Washington Post.

READY TO TAKE HIS GALL.

The Surprising Offer of a Bankrupt's Soulless Creditor at an Assignment Meeting.

Not long ago a substantial looking New Yorker came to Chicago to engage in the retail cigar business. He had seemingly good credentials and rented an attractive little store on the North side, buying his fixtures on credit. On the same terms he laid in quite a large stock of goods and opened his doors for patronage. He seemed to be doing quite a good business and none of his numerous creditors manifested the least alarm as to the safety of their accounts. Suddenly he made an assignment. His creditors were notified and a full meeting was held in the office of his attorney, the sorrowful bankrupt not being present with them.

The attorney made a politic and pacific speech. An eastern creditor, who had secured judgment on a fraudulent claim, had attached and carried away everything except 270 cigars and $6.30 in money. The unfortunate debtor owed over $3,000 to the men present, which he would liquidate at the earliest possible moment.

"My client suffers far more acutely than any of you," continued the lawyer. "He has surrendered all that he possesses. It is not much, it is true, but I trust it will serve as an earnest of his future intentions. He is crushed by his misfortune and would willingly divide his body among you."

"What's that?" asked a somewhat deaf old man, supplementing his right ear with his broad palm.

"My client is willing to divide his very body among you," repeated the attorney.

"All right," responded the old man, "I'll take his gall!"—Chicago Chronicle.

War to the Death.

The slaughter was frightful.

The dead and dying were strewn about by thousands.

The crash of matter and the wreck of material bore testimony to the awful work that had been done!

But the end was not yet, for Mrs. O'Hoolihan, with her insect destroyer in hand, continued to pass to and fro among the detached pieces of furniture, slaying without mercy and spraying with a fierceness that betrayed long suffering and a grim determination to end it, even if the cost should mount up to a quarter.—Cleveland Leader.

When some people try to be kind they overdo it.—Atchison Globe.

PERIODS OF PAIN.

Menstruation, the balance wheel of woman's life, is also the bane of existence to many because it means a time of great suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical pain, it does not seem to have been nature's plan that women otherwise healthy should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition that produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors. Here is proof:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—How can I thank you enough for what you have done for me? When I wrote to you I was suffering untold pain at time of menstruation; was nervous, had headache all the time, no appetite, that tired feeling, and did not care for anything. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, two boxes of Liver Pills, and to-day I am a well person. I would like to have those who suffer know that I am one of the many who have been cured of female complaints by your wonderful medicine and advice. —MISS JENNIE R. MILES, Leon, Wis.

If you are suffering in this way, write as Miss Miles did to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for the advice which she offers free of charge to all women.

JOHN LIND ACCEPTS.

Camp George H. Thomas, Ga. July 20th 1898

Gentlemen: Having been formally advised by the several committees of my renomination for the high office of Governor of our State by the same forces who co-operated so harmoniously in the last campaign for the accomplishment of the reforms set forth and for the correction of the abuses so forcibly arraigned in the platforms adopted I have the honor to say to your Committee (as I have this day advised the others) that while I did not desire the nomination which you have given me this feeling was not prompted by indifference to the cause which you and your action represent but solely by a desire that my present separation from my family should end my connection with public affairs in any other capacity than as a private citizen. But with the renewed evidence of your confidence so unanimously expressed I feel that I owe it to you and to the people to co-operate with you in the capacity which you have assigned me to rescue our State from the dominion of personal greed and ambition to which it has so long been subjected and to restore in its place the rule of law - equally administered - with justice to all interests and to all of our citizens.

Neither my situation nor my time permit a discussion of the questions involved in this Campaign at this time. I regret this the less as my views and attitude on public questions have been fully expressed by my acts and in my utterances in public life as well as in the late campaign.

Referring to the names on your ticket other than my own I congratulate you on the selection of candidates. The patriotism of the Convention is demonstrated by the choice of men for our Supreme Court whose ability is an honor, and whose probity and courage have proven a protection to the people of our State.

Neither can I forbear to express my appreciation of the wisdom of the Convention as shown by its determination not to permit the shimmer of a proposed imperial policy in distant lands to blind the eyes of the people to existing abuses at home. This war was undertaken to drive oppression and the last vestige of imperialism from the American Continent - You propose the same for our State - I pledge you and the people of the State of Minnesota my best efforts in behalf of both undertakings.

Thanking you and through you the convention for the honor conferred, I am

Very respectfully
Your obedient Servant

HOW SOUSA GOT HIS START.

Some Ancient Theatrical History as Related by Milton Nobles and Jack Haverly.

One day recently John E. Warner and Milton Nobles were conversing in front of the Dramtists' club, when they were joined by Jack Haverly. Warner and Haverly had met recently, but Nobles and the hustling manager had not met in many years. They eyed each other inquiringly. Then Warner said: "Of course you know Nobles, Jack?"

"Nobles?" said Haverly, in a puzzled sort of way, as he sized up the trim figure, waxed mustache and perennial youthful features of the comedian. "Not the Nobles who played 'The Phoenix' with me at the old Adelphi in Chicago in '77."

"Are you the original Jack Haverly?" asked Nobles, solemnly.

"The original and only," said Jack.

"Well, well," said Nobles, "I've often heard my father speak of you," and he grasped Haverly's hand cordially. There was an awkward pause, during which Warner chewed his mustache. Haverly looked dazed, and Nobles smiled amiably.

"Your father!" stammered Haverly. "Why, Nobles was a single man in '77; I know, because we compared notes; and I read of his marriage about ten years later, when I was out in the mines, and sent my congratulations. Still," he continued, after another awkward pause, "Nobles always was a versatile fellow."

By this time it began to dawn on the genial Jack that the "father" gag was a joke, and he joined in the laugh.

"By jingo!" said Haverly, "that was over 20 years ago. What have you done with the old 'Phoenix?'"

"Playing it yet, occasionally. Four repertoire companies made a living with it last season, and it has kept any number of professional pirates from becoming sneak thieves or paupers during the past 20 years. It pulled me out of a hole once, and now that I think of it, Warner, you booked that engagement with me at the Adelphi."

"Yes; it was the end of Nobles' first road season. I was his manager, and John P. Sousa, a youngster of 21, was his leader."

"That's right. I took him from Washington, where he was playing a violin in the orchestra. And the first music he ever wrote was the dramatic music of 'The Phoenix' as I use it to-day. His first march he dedicated to me, naming it the Bludsoe march. I still have the original score, in good condition. It's a rattling good march, too." —Dramatic Mirror.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

He Was a Keen Boy and Was Equal to the Occasion When Caught at Mischief.

The farmer crept stealthily along behind the fence. Step by step he advanced, always with his gaze fastened upon the cherry tree, in the distance.

"Gol durn them town boys, anyway," he muttered to himself, as he took a firmer grip upon the ugly-looking switch that he had cut from the hickory back of the barn, "I'll show 'em!"

Nearer and nearer he drew to the spot where the engagement was to occur. Softly, like a tiger advancing upon its prey, he edged along through the weeds, from one fence corner to another.

Meanwhile the boy in the tree kept crooking his elbow at a 32-knot clip. The cherries were large and fat and red, and he had a wonderful tonnage. Ever and anon he would smack his lips, and eject a handful of stones from his mouth. It was glorious.

Suddenly a rugged form seemed to rise up out of the ground, and somebody bawled in tones that were husky with emotion:

"Here, drat your hide, what are you doin' up there?"

It was one of those moments when a word may win all or cause all to be lost.

The boy dropped the biggest, reddest, juiciest cherry that he had been able to reach, pulled himself together, drew his bare, brown legs up under him, and replied:

"I'm rememberin' the Maine."

When he could speak again the farmer said:

"If they ain't enough here fer you, there's another nice tree full of 'em, up yonder in the orchard."—Cleveland Leader.

The Light That Failed.

Yawper now keeps a grocery, but he loves to tell how near he came to being a great actor. "I'm a natural elocutionist," he tells, "and for that reason I found it pretty easy to get a good part in a fair theatrical organization. I went through all rehearsals like a star and the manager predicted all kinds of success for me. Among my lines there was a patriotic address, and there I came out particularly strong. I was delivering it on the first night and I could just feel that I was making the cold chills run up and down the spines of my audience and covering them with goose flesh. Suddenly my memory became a blank. As I stood mute trying to gather the lines some little cuss yelled 'louder.' I ran from the stage and never went back."—Detroit Free Press.

One of the Philippine insurgent leaders is a beautiful woman whose life seems to be charmed. She has often rushed bravely into the very teeth of death from guns and cannon, but has never been wounded. Frequently we see people in this country who live so long that their lives seem charmed also, but the only charm about it is that they keep up their strength and vitalize their blood with that celebrated remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

PE-RU-NA'S VICTORY.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR: — I feel like a new woman since using your Pe-ru-na.

Your medicine has helped me so much that I can work and never feel tired out. When I first began to use your medicine I couldn't sweep my own room, run the sewing machine or lift anything, not even a chair. It even hurt me to ride or walk any distance. Now I can do all this, and I believe more, and never feel the effects of it. I feel so proud of the way it has brought me out that I tell it far and near. I can heartily recommend your medicine to any woman suffering from female disease. I know from experience that your medicine will do just what you say it will. I thank you, Doctor, a thousand times for your treatment. I shall recommend your medicine wherever I go. I know what it has done for me and I know it will do the same for others. I feel that there are thousands of other women who would, after using your treatment, as I did, be thankful. I am so glad I got your treatment. This month is the first time in my life that I can remember of having my menses without pain. Why, I can't do anything but recommend Pe-ru-na.—Miss Emma L. Bolden, Wilberforce, O.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail Dr. Hartman's special book for women, free on application, to women only. All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

"I thought I should surely die."

When the stomach begins to fail in its duties, other organs speedily become affected in sympathy, and life is simply a burden almost unbearable. Indigestion and dyspepsia are so common that only the sufferer from these diseases knows the possibilities of misery that inhere in them. A typical example of the sufferings of the victim of indigestion is furnished in the case of John C. Pritchard. He went on for fifteen years, from bad to worse. In spite of doctors he grew constantly weaker, and thought he would die. He got well, however, and thus relates his experience:

"For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from indigestion in its worst forms. I tested the skill of many doctors, but grew worse and worse, until I became so weak I could not walk fifty yards without having to sit down and rest. My stomach, liver, and heart became affected, and I thought I would surely die. I tried Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills and they helped me right away. I continued their use and am now entirely well. I don't know of anything that will so quickly relieve and cure the terrible sufferings of dyspepsia as Dr. Ayer's Pills."—JOHN C. PRITCHARD, Brodie, Warren Co., N. C.

This case is not extraordinary, either in the severity of the disease or the prompt and perfect cure performed by Dr. Ayer's Pills. Similar results occur in every case where Dr. Ayer's Pills are used. "They helped me right away" is the common expression of those who have used them. Here is another testimony to the truth of this statement:

"I formerly suffered from indigestion and weakness of the stomach, but since I began the use of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Pills, I have the appetite of the farmer's boy. I am 46 years of age, and recommend all who wish to be free from dyspepsia to take one of Dr. Ayer's Pills after dinner, till their digestive organs are in good order."—WM. STEINKE, Grant, Neb.

Dr. Ayer's Pills offer the surest and swiftest relief from constipation and all its attendant ills. They cure dizziness, nausea, heartburn, palpitation, bad breath, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, biliousness, and a score of other affections that are, after all, only the signs of a more deep rooted disease. You can find more information about Dr. Ayer's Pills, and the diseases they have cured, in Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

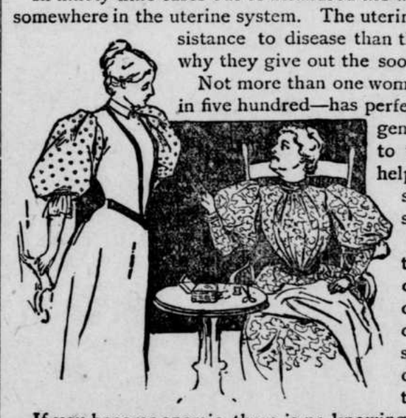
WEAK SPOTS.

Everybody Comes Into This World With a Predisposition to Disease.

A Talk With Mrs. Pinkham About the Cause of Anemia.

Everybody comes into this world with a predisposition to disease of some particular tissue; in other words, everybody has a weak spot.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the weak spot in women is somewhere in the uterine system. The uterine organs have less resistance to disease than the vital organs; that's why they give out the soonest.



Not more than one woman in a hundred—nay, in five hundred—has perfectly healthy organs of generation. This points to the stern necessity of helping one's self just as soon as the life powers seem to be on the wane.

Excessive menstruation is a sign of physical weakness and want of tone in the uterine organs. It saps the strength away and produces anemia (blood turns to water).

If you become anemic, there is no knowing what will happen. If your gums and the inside of your lips and inside your eyelids look pale in color, you are in a dangerous way and must stop that drain on your powers. Why not build up on a generous, uplifting tonic, like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

Mrs. EDWIN EHRIG, 413 Church St., Bethlehem, Pa., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you that I am better than I have been for four years. I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills, and can say that I am perfectly cured. Doctors did not help me any. I should have been in my grave by this time if it had not been for your medicine. It was a godsend to me. I was troubled with excessive menstruation, which caused womb trouble, and I was obliged to remain in bed for six weeks. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine was recommended to me, and after using it a short time, was troubled no more with flooding. I also had severe pain in my kidneys. This, also, I have no more. I shall always recommend the Compound, for it has cured me, and it will cure others. I would like to have you publish this letter." (In such cases the dry form of Compound should be used.)

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1898.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, Aug 6 and 7.

—Dr. C. B. Ames is celebrating his birthday today He says he is 58 years old.

—New hay of first class quality is being marketed at Delano for from $3 to $4 per ton.

—William Gross is building a fine new barn. He intends his animals shall be as comfortable as any in town.

—T. S. Kerr has given his residence a couple of coats of paint which adds much to the appearance of the property.

—T. E. Wolfenden, the "photo man," well known to Dassel people, is again located in Litchfield.—Dassel Anchor.

—Rev. Hanke will preach next Sunday, at 3 P. M. at the Presbyterian Church. Services at the M. E. church at 8 P. M.

—Ole Peterson is making preparations for commencing his new building between Brandser's tailor shop and his shoe store.

—Mrs. Julia Reichel moved her family yesterday into the Andrew Bockman house on N. Third St, which she recently purchased.

—Liveryman Jones has added a spanking new team, silver mounted harness and all to his outfit. We are growing metropolitan sure.

—J. L. Stein, has made application to sell intoxicating liquors for next year. A hearing will be had by the council Wednesday, Aug 10,

—Miss Jones, of Delano, arrived Sunday evening and visited with Miss Edith Ames until yesterday morning, when she returned.—Dassel Anchor.

—The first new rye of the season appeared at the elevator Monday, from near Maple Plain, it was of good quality, and went for 36 cents per bushel.

—The hose cart and hook and ladder companies went through a practicing exercise Tuesday evening. They ran from the City Hall to the corner of R. R. Ave, and Second Street and turned the water onto the trees in the park.

—Paul Plotnick has his new residence on N. River Street up and well under way. More new houses appear to be showing up about town than has been seen so early in the season for many years. Let the good work go on.

—Our thanks are hereby tendered Col. W. F. Cody, for a unique souvenir, of a unique man's unique show, Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the world, which will be in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Aug. 8 and 9 respectively.

—The St. Paul Dispatch has made arrangements at the depot to have that paper handed out to subscribers after the evening train arrives. This is quite a convenience, as it allows our villagers to read the St. Paul and other news before going to bed in the evening.

—Ill. Dyer thinks the Great Northern ought to post their agents up sooner. He wanted to know at the depot Tuesday if half fare ticket would be sold to the laying of the Capitol corner stone. He says he was informed that no orders to that effect had yet been given.

—The Delano Home Guard has tired of soldiering and disbanded with several dollars collected for a drum on hand. The boys very honestly returned the funds as far as possible minus a little expended for wooden guns. Drilling is fine exercise and the boys ought to be able to keep up a good sized company in Delano.

—Nearly two dozen persons attended the M. E. S. S. picnic at Lake Rececca, Tuesday. The day was an ideal one and those present enjoyed boating, fishing, the good cool breeze from the lake, the picnic dinner, and all. It so happened that for various reasons many could not attend; but those who did endeavored to make up as far as possible for those who were absent.

—Be sure to read the fac simile letter of acceptance of the Hon. John Lind, which through the courtesy of the Minneapolis Times appears with a cut of our warrior leader on the inside of this paper. Preserve it for reference, and when some fellow tries to tell you what John Lind's views are, just take out his letter and post yourself up, and likewise, your neighbor.

—Harvest was begun all along the line on Monday morning July 24, as perfect weather for the business as was ever seen in any country at any time. Wheat and oats looked fine. Barley and rye were already mostly harvested. The fine hay crop is stacked, much of it without a drop of rain. Corn appears to be doing well, but the ground is getting very hard and dry. If harvest is what it appears to be farmers will once more be happy.

—The Crickets went to Montrose last Saturday afternoon and played a good interesting game with the first nine of that place. The score stood 9 to 10 in favor of the Delano boys. They speak very highly of their treatment in Montrose and of the Montrose players. Time 2 hrs. Umpire; Delano, E. Epple; Montrose, Streeter. Following is the score by innings:

Delano,	1 0 0 2 0 4 0 3 x	10
Montrose,	2 0 0 0 0 2 3 2 0 0	9

—Life Insurance companies are growing wiser yearly, as has been learned by some of our citizens lately. New companies starting up adopt the improved methods of ascertaining the probable longevity of their risks. They figure on the most approved plans. People engaged in business or labor liable to shorten life, or who belong to families with a poor history, or who do anything themselves that tends to shorten life are not accepted. In order to belong to a first class insurance company now it is necessary to be a pretty good man and live so as to have a prospect of filling out the alloted time of man's life.

Personal.

C. A. Brunkow made a business visit to Minneapolis Wednesday.

C. R. Carlton, of Independence, was a Delano business visitor yesterday.

Rev. J. L. Parmeter, of Everson, Wash., has moved back to Minnesota. He intends taking work in this state. He is at present, stopping at Rockford.

Dr. Catlin attended a meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee St. Paul, Wednesday, and a part of the State Capital corner stone laying exercises.

Elmer S. Babb,s family have returned from visiting Mrs. B's mother. They are living for a few days on the corner of Elm and Fourth. They will soon occupy the new residence on S. Second Street.

Teeth: Dr. Niven will be in Waverly Aug, 6 and 7. First class dental work. Lowest prices. Painless extracting.

County Cullings.

Frank A. Latham, of Howard Lake, A. P. Moores, of Cokato and Judge Woolley, of Buffalo were city visitors Wednesday.

Frank Stacy, editor of the Free Press and Chairman of the Populist State Central Committee is compiling some information on political corruption.

For some reason or another Dr. Chilton's candidacy for State Senator don't seem to be meeting with the success that it might. Why must the Republicans have a corporation lawyer for that position?

One of the leading questions of the day is who will the Democrats run for Judge, against Mr. Giddings, of Anoka whom the Republicans nominated on the 36th ballot, after one of the hottest fights in the district. Hon. Charles Wheaton, of Elk River, is mentioned as an ayaible man.

A. J. Noren, of the Cokato Enterprise, who is taking a vacation, passed through town yesterday on his wheel. He came here from Buffalo, where he said he left the city Skandinavian editors picnicing. Bands of music old country costumes, and everything for a good time was on hand. Mr. Noren looked over the GAZETTE office and pronounced it up to the average at least of Wright County printing outfits.

This week's Eagle contains the following:

"Politicians are scanning the local papers every week for the call for the Republican county convention."

"The Democrats are not very active at present. Can it be that they are going to let the whole thing go by default?"

Is the Republican party more active than the Democratic party? If so, why so? We think if Eustis expects to beat John Lind in Wright county he had better be about it.

Eustis has even gone and chosen Steele for chairman of his committee.

Aleck McVeety, of Howard, the Herald says feels quite encouraged in his candidacy for nomination on the Republican ticket for Sheriff.

The Eagle ain't half so rabid on the question of claims vs the G. N. R. R. as she was, though she says she will "take back nothing" we presume not even the G. N.'n, printing which has followed the chopped off head of the Old Bird to Willmar.

The Howard Lake Herald of yesterday gives an interesting account of the burial of John Stanley Hutchinson, of Co. H. 14th Minn. Vol. Infantry, who died at Camp George H. Thomas, Chicamauga Park. The funeral was held from the Presbyterian Church at Howard Lake, which was crowded to overflowing. Rev. J. S. McCornack preached a good sermon. Mr. Hutchinson was the first Wright County boy to die in the presenc war.

George Carpenter, the newly elected Republican Chairman of the County Committee was lamenting that he would do all right "except for brains." When a good Democrat quickly answered "never mind George they will furnish you brains enough." George is all right, and his head is about as big as some of the other fellows and probably contains as much and as good brains as the average Republican at least. And we presume that the county would be as well off if the new Chairman would rely considerably on his own brains, after hearing from all the others.

Among Our Exchanges.

St. Cloud Times: "Immune" doesn't mean a person who has had the yellow fever, but one who has been through an epidemic of the fever without taking it.

World: The calmness with which the people of the United States have received the reports of the remarkable performances of the German Admiral Diederichs about Manilla shows their confidence in Admiral Dewey, and this confidence is well bestowed. He belongs to the Washingtonian class of men who "never slop over."

Waseca Herald: It is etimated by the surgeons of the army, at the Chickamauga park encampment, that at least one quarter of the sickness in the camp is fairly attributable to the "canteens"—the regimental saloons—and yet the President does not order them abolished. These "canteen" saloon are killing more of our men than are the Spaniards. How would it do to declare war on the Republican saloon in the army?

Duluth Herald: When talking of joint debates, the News Tribune never mentions the name of Congressman Page Morris. Has not the ex-judge and soon to be ex representative the ability or the courage to stand up alongside Mr. Towne and discuss the issues of the day? One would suppose from the attitude of his organ, that he has not. The Herald does not believe the News Tribune fairly represents him, and is confident that, upon his return to Duluth, he will promotly accept the offer made by his opponent to meet him in joint debate.

From the 13th.

Dispatches from Camp Merritt say that the steamer Mariposa arrived July 27, from Honolulu, with five sick men from the third Philippine expedition on board. H. P. Budge, Company B. Thirteenth Minnesota among them. Budge brings the news of the death at Honolulu, on July 20, of Band Master Watson and private William Sullivan, of Co. L. Quartermaster Sergeant W. H. Hatcher recovered from an operation for appendicitis. He with Guy Boynton, Company A., left at Honolulu ill with heart disease, will return to Minneapolis.

The transport St. Paul was to sail for Manilla this morning. Major A. M. Diggles, six officers and 310 men, recruits for the 13th Reg. to be among those sailing.

Notice of Hearing of Application to Sell Intoxicating Liquors.
